The question is to be voted on by the people of Pennsylvania the 18th of this coming June. A more vital question could not, at this time, be brought before the people. Every year nearly one hundred thousand of the human race are being swept away by this terrible soul-and-body-destroying demon — alcohol. As a Christian people we ought to do all in our power to help put down the rum power, and it is hoped our Pennsylvania Brethren will not neglect the opportunity on the 18th of June, 1889, to vote for God, home, and native land. We have never taken much interest in politics. Sometimes we go to the polls and vote, and sometimes we don't. We have never allowed ourself to be drawn into the whirl of political excitement. But the question to be brought before the people of the State of Pennsylvania this coming June, and to be decided one way or the other, is not practically speaking, a political question. It is simply a question of liquor or no liquor for the State of Pennsylvania, and it is for the Christian people, and voters in general, to say—independent of political proclivities or affinities—whether the terrible demon shall be wiped out, or still be permitted to go on and do his work of devastation for time and eternity. If Christian people will vote as they pray, and do their duty for God, home and native land, they will help to bury, if possible, the rum demon so deep that there will be no possible chance of his resurrection again.

AROUND THE BAPTISMAL WATERS.

The last day of February, 1889, we gathered around the baptismal waters, when fourteen precious souls were baptized by the writer. Quite a number of people were gathered together to witness the occasion, and though the water was quite cold, yet the applicants were all baptized without offering the least resistance or struggle, a spectacle we ought always, if possible, cautiously to guard against. If only those who baptize would keep themselves composed, and not attempt to put the applicants for baptism under the water until first asked whether ready, with the request to hold the breath while being put under the water, very little struggling and gasping for breath, which makes baptism, by immersion, so objectionable and obnoxious to many people, would have to be witnessed! We are strong in our convictions and faith, as to trine immersion being the only true mode for baptizing; yet, to the shame of some it must be said, we have witnessed baptismal occasions which were far from being what they ought to have been. Of course an excitable and flustering baptismal scene is, in itself, no argument against trine immersion, as the true mode of baptizing, yet excitable and flustering baptismal scenes carry with them a certain amount of objectional features, which the more sensitive and refined are not so soon ready to overlook. A solemn, composed and dignified baptismal scene will always leave an impression for good with the people, while a flustering baptismal scene, where modesty, solemnity and dignity are lacking, will have just the reverse effect. Let us ever aim to have all our baptismal occasions characterized with the solemnity and dignity becoming the occasion, and we will not be obliged to do so much preaching on the subject of baptism. "How" it is done will go a great way towards satisfying the people why it should be done.

J. T. MEYERS.

From the Bremen Church, Ind.

WE have just closed, last Sunday evening, a series of meetings that was held in the Hepton meeting-house. Bro. George B. Shively, from Camp Creek, did the preaching. He preached for us two weeks. We had good interest and good order. He delivered to us the whole counsel of God, in plain words. As a result two young men came over on the Lord's side. May they walk in that narrow road that leads from earth to glory! Let us work while it is day, for the night will come in which no one can work!

JOHN S. KAUFFMAN.

To the Churches in Nebraska.

INASMUCH as the churches of Nebraska are very much scattered, and have been very poorly represented by delegates, for the last few years, at the District Meeting, we have placed the meeting near the center this year. The Secretary was informed by District Meeting, of 1888, to urge all churches to send delegates this spring, instead of representing by letter. There will be some important business to transact, such as the question of dividing Nebraska into two districts.

Let all the churches of Nebraska bear in mind, that if we do as half of them have done the past two years, there will be no delegates at District Meeting to transact the business. The next meeting will be held in the Exeter church, Exeter Nebr., April 12, 1889. J. E. YOUNG, Sec.

From California.

THE series of meetings in the Conejo Valley, Ventura County, lasted ten days, with increasing interest to the last. Bro. Witmore's earnest and uncompromising way of presenting the Truth resulted in building up the members more firmly in the faith of the Gospel, and the bringing in of six more precious souls to work for the Lord in his kingdom! The last two were baptized on the last night of the meeting, about the hour of ten o'clock.

On Saturday, March 2, we met in council with the members, and found them all in union and love, and in unanimity of sentiment in regard to organizing a new church district, to embrace the territory of Ventura County and adjoining territory, most convenient to that locality.

An election was held for a minister, which resulted in the choice of Bro. Geo. F. Chamberline. Bro. Brandt was elected to the office of deacon. We hope the dear brethren will, by the grace of God, be qualified to magnify their office to the good of the church. The newly-organized congregation now has twenty-five members, including the two ministers and two deacons resident there. Bro. C. Wine is a minister in the second degree, so the congregation is now in good working order. Several more members soon expect to locate there, and we can say to brethren who contemplate coming to the coast country, you will find a good country there, with warm-hearted brethren and sisters. Land is comparatively cheap and very productive.

The writer having been chosen as overseer of the above congregation, and having many other duties to see after, takes this opportunity to say that if there is an elder anywhere who contemplates coming West, we would like for him to think of this little band of brethren and sisters, and locate among them. Only such as are efficient in word and doctrine, and fully identified with the distinctive features of the general Brotherhood, and full of love and humility, can be a success in communities where there is so much to contend with. For particulars, write to Bro. C. Wine, Timberville, Ventura Co., Cal.

J. S. FLORY.

From the Field.

TIMBERVILLE is in the Conejo Valley, Ventura County. We commenced meetings at this place Feb. 22 and closed March 3. We had twelve sermons in all, three of them by the home ministers. As an immediate result of the meetings there were six additions by baptism, with a fair prospect for more in the near future. The Conejo Valley is not so large as some other valleys in California. It has plenty of timber for fuel, and wells of good water can easily be had at a depth of twelve to thirty feet. There is running water through the Valley also. The soil is excellent. I think it is a healthy Valley. Good land can be had in small forty to fifty acre lots, from $50 to $65 per acre, and in large tracts, I was told, it could be had for $30. Some of it can not be farmed, but nearly all the rough land will produce pasture.

Brethren desiring to locate in California would do well to look at this valley before purchasing elsewhere. There is now a church organized there. Bro. J. S. Flory will give the particulars of the organization which was effected last Saturday. Ministering brethren who are firm and true to the doctrine of our beloved Brotherhood, as based upon the New Testament Scriptures, are much needed in California to help along the cause of Christ.

I expect to go to the beach to-day and spend a few days by the side of "Old Ocean," for a little recreation. On the evening of March 10, I expect, by the help of the Lord, to commence a series of meetings at the urgent request of the Christian church, in their house in the town of Glendora, five miles from Covina, to continue as long as may be thought prudent. If I were to stay here and fill the urgent demands that are made for me to preach, I would not get home this year. Thirty-one have been baptized since I left home, Nov. 29. Brethren, pray for me, that the Lord will continue to bless our labors more and more. I never was in a country where there was as much unbelief as in California, or else it did not show itself so much at other places.

JACOB WITMORE.

Covina, Cal., March 5.

From Shideler, Ind.

IN my last report I was with the Brethren in the Landisville church, Grant Co., Ind., where I labored in the cause of our Master until Dec. 19. At this place four young sisters were baptized. May they prove faithful in their holy calling!

Dec. 22 we began a series of meetings at Royerton, in the southern part of our church district. Bro. Joseph Spitzer did the preaching. The meetings continued until Jan. 6, and closed with three additions by baptism.

On account of my health not being good, I remained at home until Jan. 23, at which time I started for the Southern mission field of Indiana. I was met by Bro. D. F. Hoover, at Indianapolis, and remained in the city all night. Jan. 24 I arrived at Velpen, Pike County, and began meeting on the evening of the 24th, and continued the work until Feb. 5, when I took sick and had to return home one week sooner than anticipated. I left Bro. Hoover to continue the meetings. There were no immediate accessions, but we believe there were many good impressions made. If the work would be followed up soon, much good might be accomplished.

On Monday, Feb. 11, I was called to preach the funeral of Bro. Jacob Gump, aged eighty-three years, three months and fifteen days. He was one of the oldest brethren in the Massissinewa church. He united with the church in the year 1833, and moved to Indiana from Ohio in the year 1835. He was elected to the deacon's office in 1845, in which office he served faithfully until death. Funeral services were conducted at the residence, assisted by Eld. J. U. Studebaker, to a large concourse of friends. May God bless the old and afflicted sister who has been bereft of a kind and faithful companion!

I remained at home until Feb. 16, when I went to the Hickory Grove church, Miami Co., Ohio, began meetings that evening and continued until March 4. Although the weather was somewhat inclement, our meetings were quite interesting. We had the pleasure of leading six souls into the liquid stream and burying them in baptism! May God bless them and keep them faithful!

On Monday, March 4, I was called to the Lost Creek church, Miami Co., Ohio, to preach the funeral of friend Alexander Smith, aged sixty-eight years, six months and eleven days. He, like a great many others, had his treasures upon the earth, and had neglected the "one thing needful."

On the evening of March 4 I went to New Carlisle, where Bro. J. H. Miller was conducting a series of meetings. I had the pleasure of hearing him preach one sermon. May God bless his labors! Next day I returned home. The brethren were conducting meetings in our home church, and continued until the 10th. One was baptized.

Our quarterly church council was held March 2. It was decided to hold a communion this spring, May 17, at 10 A. M. May God bless his people every-where! May Zion's border be enlarged, and may we all be found at our post of duty, so when the Lord sees fit to call us hence, we may be ready and prepared!

JOHN H. STIFLER, Treas.

From Chiques Church, Lancaster Co., Pa.

WE recently closed a very interesting series of meetings, held at different places in our district. The first week's meeting was held in Elizabethtown, following the dedication of the new church, recently built. It was conducted by brethren James Sell and H. E. Light. A few weeks later quite an interest was awakened at the Green Tree church. A number made the good choice to walk with the people of God, and work for the Master, finally to obtain that eternal crown of life. We hope they, with all of us who have previously begun this noble work, may ever be faithful, and, if trials and temptations assail us, take all to the Lord in prayer! Our good Master is ever willing to take the weak lambs by the hand, and lead them gently on, if they wholly consecrate themselves to him. During the last few weeks our brother, John Flory, from Virginia, was among us. Our prayers are that the good seed, sown during these meetings, may bring forth copious fruit in the near future! ELLEN R. HEISEY.

Elizabethtown, Pa., Feb. 26.

From the Field.

BY the earnest request of the brethren and sisters of the Sandy church, I commenced a series of meetings in the Reading meeting-house, located two and a half miles east of Homeworth, and about two miles west of Georgetown, Columbiana

Co., Ohio. The meetings began on the evening of Feb. 2, and continued for two weeks, day and night. The ronds were excellent, and the dear members were greatly interested in the noble work. The meetings grew more interesting every day, until their large house was completely packed with attentive listeners to the Word preached. We preached in all twenty-one sermons, including one funeral discourse. As an immediate result of our labors, three precious souls were united to the church by baptism. They all being young in years, I hope the dear members will carefully guard them, being ready to give encouragement, so that they may grow up as useful members in the Christian church, and find a place at last in the city not made with hands, eternal in the heavens, whose Builder and Maker is God. I feel glad that the ranks of Satan are being broken and the church strengthened. Allow me, dear Brethren, to urge you always to work for the overthrow of sin in every form, and your labor in the Lord will not be in vain. What an encouragement to work! I thank the members and community for their good attention and excellent deportment during the meetings.

REUBEN SHROYER.

GOD'S faithful children at this place have had another happy season of worship together. Bro. D. L. Miller fed us with "heavenly manna." He came to us Feb. 26, preaching in the Syracuse church in the evening and in day-time at the other church-houses in our district. Although he only remained four evenings with us this time, he made many warm hearts feel sad when he extended his parting hand. Bro. Miller preached the Gospel in its primitive purity. While he talked about the "Bible Lands," he also preached from the Bible itself, proving that the Word is true. Oh, how we do enjoy such seasons of worship with the dear brethren and sisters!

Brethren and sisters, do we appreciate the blessings of God as we should? We certainly have enjoyed a rich harvest of spiritual food this winter. For nearly four weeks Bro. Loomis dealt out the Bread of Life to us so richly that each one of us ought to know our duty we owe toward God. Bro. Loomis labored hard for both saint and sinner. Although there were no immediate accessions to the church, there were good impressions left.

Saturday, March 2, was our quarterly council. The church sent Bro. Daniel Shively and my father, J. H. Warstler, as delegates to District Meeting of Northern Indiana.

CANDACE WARSTLER.

From Middleburg, Elkhart Co., Ind.

THE brethren, sisters and friends of the Pleasant Valley church held a series of meetings commencing Feb. 2, and continued until Feb. 19. Much good was accomplished while Bro. W. R. Deeter was with us. May the Lord bless Bro. William wherever he may go! There were ten baptized and made willing to take up the cross and follow the meek and lowly Lamb of God. May they, though young and tender lambs in Christ, be such a shining light to the world that men may see their good works and thereby be convinced that there is a reality in the religion of Jesus Christ. One who had wandered away from the church was also made willing to come back again. May he be faithful in the days to come!

While Bro. William was with us, sinners were made to realize that they, too, had a soul to save. May not one of the many who attended these meetings ever have cause to say, "The harvest is past, the summer is ended, and I am not saved"! May they make their peace, calling and election sure, while in a time of grace! We enjoyed the meetings very much, and rejoiced to see Bro. William hold forth not part, but the whole Word! May the Lord Jesus Christ ever be with his people here and elsewhere, for evermore!

CLARA SCHROCK.

From Dry Creek, Linn Co., Iowa.

WE met in quarterly council Feb. 25. Quite a number of the brethren and sisters were present. All the business was disposed of in a Christian way. How glad we should be when we thus meet! It is encouraging.

The District Meeting will be held at this church May 24. We concluded to have our love-feast on the 25th, —the day after the District Meeting. This gives a better opportunity to those who will stay with us during our meeting.

We are trying to have a social prayer-meeting this winter. Our dear old sister, Rachel Stamy, wanted us to meet every two weeks at her home, to have these meetings. Her cancer is troubling her, so that she does not get to church at all. It is as great an enjoyment to us to go there and hear her talk, as to her to have us come. She feels lonely living, as she does, with her mute sister. When we last parted she said, "I am waiting for the Master's call! Remember me in your prayers!" Oh, how happy we would be, could we all say, "I am ready when he calls." My prayer is, Remember us all! JENNIE B. MILLER.

From Goodland, Kans.

TO DAY (March 3) the brethren and sisters were made to rejoice when Bro. Cline led one precious soul down into the water and baptized her. She had never heard of the Brethren until about one year ago, when she began coming to our meetings. This was the first one baptized in the immediate neighborhood. It was something new to most of the spectators. Her husband, when she came out of the water, said, "I know that my days are but few, and I, too, am coming soon!" Others were deeply impressed, and we hope the Lord will help them to realize their condition, before it is eternally too late! LEVI WHISLER.

From Hickory Grove Church, Miami Co., Ohio.

WE have just closed a very interesting series of meetings at West Charleston. We had called to our assistance our esteemed brother, G. L. Studebaker, of Indiana, who came, according to appointment, Feb. 16, and continued until the evening of March 3. Quite an interest was manifested during all the meetings. As an immediate result, six were received by baptism to walk in newness of life, and the members much encouraged. Another very enjoyable feature of the meetings was a children's meeting, that was held at the request of the teachers of the Charleston schools. Although the weather was very inclement, the turn-out was good and the interest of the children was excellent. We feel that such meetings make lasting impressions on the young minds.

JACOB COPPOCK.

Tippecanoe City, Ohio.

Notes.

WE left Arcadia, Ind., March 4. Just before leaving, we met in prayer with our aged brother, Eld. Elias Caylor. We were sorry to find him suffering very much. Bro. Elias has passed his fourscore years, and is nearing his setting sun. It was interesting to me, on a former visit, to hear him relate his pioneer ministerial labors in the cause. Traveling for miles, following zigzag paths through the dense forests, crossing bridgeless rivers on canoes, swimming his horse behind him, he often preached and slept in cold log-houses, etc. He will soon "rest from his labors," and may his be "good works that will follow him," is our prayer! We were pleased to find his zeal unabating in the cause for which he has labored so long with untiring zeal.

A number of agents, carrying Bro. Miller's and Bro. Eshelman's books, have written to handle our Chart. We invite others to do so. Do not think our Chart will detract from the sale of those books.

Bro. I. M. Gibson has taken the entire field of Southern Illinois to canvass for our Chart.

I. J. ROSENBERGER.

Notice to the Elders of the Middle District of Indiana.

IN MESSENGER No. 7, present volume, page 107, appeared a notice with regard to a donation of an Orphans' Home, or a "Home for the Poor Members and Orphans" of the Middle District of Indiana, and as we learn that many do not understand what is requested of the elders, we will say that Bro. Levi Miller, of Mexico, wishes that each elder, having charge of a local church, should immediately get the expression of said church whether they will accept it as a gift, and, also, when accepted, support it by endowment funds or some other way as may be thought proper. The delegates of each church should be instructed to give a definite answer at District Meeting, as Bro. Miller wishes to begin the enterprise just as soon as spring opens. We hope this will prompt Brethren to act at once in this case. May God bless Bro. Miller in so important a work as this, and may this be the means of awakening many more brethren that have a surplus of this world's goods! NOAH FISHER.

From Middletown, Md.

As previously arranged, Bro. D. C. Moomaw came to Broad Run Feb. 9. He commenced meetings in the evening, and closed on the evening of the 24th, after preaching nineteen sermons. With little exception the weather was favorable and the attendance good. As an immediate result, twelve were received by baptism and others are near the kingdom.

Bro. Moomaw preaches the Gospel very zealously and effectively, and shuns not to declare the whole counsel, yet does it in such a way that those who differ most widely from him in doctrine, do not become offended. He endeared himself not only to the brethren and sisters, but to others also, and his labors were highly appreciated. May God ever be strength and wisdom to him and continue to bless his labors!

Broad Run is on the east side of South Mountain, Md., and is a part of the Brownsville congregation, under the care of Eld. Emmanuel Slifer.

DAVID AUSHERMAN.

From Walnut Church, Marshall Co., Ind.

BRO. JACOB SNELL, of Collamer, Ind., came to us Feb. 4, and remained with us until Feb. 17, preaching day and evening most of the time.

Bro. Workman, of the same district, also came to us Feb. 13, and remained until the 16th. The brethren labored earnestly while with us. The church was much encouraged, though none were made willing to forsake sin and walk in newness of life. May the good seed sown yet bring forth an abundant harvest for the Master!

MARY ZEITERS.

Notice to the Brethren of Kansas and Nebraska.

THE Brethren's Mutual Aid Association of the North-eastern District of Kansas will hold their Annual Meeting in the Chapman Creek church, on the day following the District Meeting, April 3, 1889. All policy holders and others interested in the work are invited to be present.

S. B. KATHERMAN, Sec.

Lawrence, Kans.

From Mainland, Montgomery Co., Pa.

We have enjoyed a series of meetings in the Indian Creek church. Bro. Hiram Gibbel, of White Oak, Lancaster Co., Pa., and Bro. Hottenstein from Petersburg, Lancaster Co., Pa., preached for us. The meetings commenced on Saturday evening, February 9, and continued until February 19. They were well attended, with an ever-increasing interest until the close. The brethren proved themselves faithful embassadors. Surely their reward will be a glorious one, for, by the blessing of God, several precious souls were brought to Jesus' feet, and the members were very much encouraged. It was truly a church revival. We know that the influence of these meetings will be unending as eternity. May God bless the Brethren for their labor of love: their services were appreciated. We trust they will come again.

Answers Concerning "Two Sticks."

ALMOST daily I get letters asking me questions about TWO STICKS. Here are some and my answers to them.

1. "Is the book undenominational?"

Ans.—Yes. It deals with prophecy concerning the two houses of Israel and the history of events, showing that Bible prophecies are being fulfilled.

2. "Will the book sell to any others but Brethren?"

Ans.—Certainly! No agent should pass any one by. All classes of people buy TWO STICKS. It is a book for the people.

3. "Have you the work in paper cover?"

Ans.—A part of the third edition will be bound in paper. Price, 60 cents, post-paid.

Good pay to live agents. Write at once for terms.

M. M. ESHELMAN.

McPherson, Kan.

To the Churches in the Southern District of Iowa.

THERE has been, for some cause, a lack of attendance, by delegation or otherwise, at our District Meetings.

While our District is only a small part of our great Brotherhood, and each congregation only a small part of our District, yet District Meeting is our only avenue to pass business to our Annual Meeting. When local churches are not represented by delegate at District or Annual Meetings, they have no voice whatever, in the business done. This certainly shows a lack of zeal and interest.

It reminds me of a great piece of machinery, with its smaller wheels all in subjection, and working in harmony with the larger. Should the smaller wheels become inactive and not perform their duty, a dullness comes over the whole machinery.

So it is with our work in the Gospel vineyard. Our congregation may be small but it is our duty, and it shows life and zeal in our Master's cause, if we are represented.

Our District Meeting has been appointed for April 26, and we would be pleased to see every church throughout the District represented by delegates. If you have no queries, come and help those churches that may have. Come and hear the report and progress of the home mission work, and make arrangements for the future prosecution of the great work of saving souls. May we all be encouraged to be more zealous in the future, is my prayer!

THE divinest attribute in the heart of man is love; and the mightiest, because the most human principle, in the heart of man, is faith. Love is heaven; faith is that which appropriates heaven.—Sel.

MATRIMONIAL.

"What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder."

CLOUSE—BURGER.—At the residence of the officiator, C. L. Buck, New Enterprise, Pa., Feb. 28, Bro. George W. Clouse and sister Ella Burger.

RAKER—ROCK.—At the residence of John Evland, Fulton, Ill., Feb. 8, by Mathias Lingenfelter, Nelson Raker and Josephine Rock.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

SHOWALTER.—In the bounds of the Linville Creek church, Rockingham Co., Va., Dec. 28, 1888, of typhoid fever, Joseph Daniel Showalter, aged 27 years, 5 months and 27 days.

Deceased leaves a wife and one child; also a widowed mother to mourn his untimely death. Services by the writer, from Ps. 103: 15-18.

KLINE.—In the same church, Feb. 20, William Joseph, son of brother and sister B. B. Kline, aged 1 year and 3 months. Services by Eld. Christian Wine and the writer, from Num. 14: 31.

SHIRKEY.—In the bounds of the Greenmount church, Rockingham Co., Va., Feb. 21, sister Catharine, wife of Bro. David Shirkey, aged 82 years and 3 months.

Deceased was a consistent member of the Brethren church for 49 years. She leaves a husband, well stricken in years, 10 children, 58 grandchildren and 50 great-grandchildren. Her remains were buried in the Linville Creek church graveyard, followed by a large number of friends. Services by Eld. Benjamin Miller and others, from 2 Tim. 4: 6-8

J. P. ZIGLER.

ICKIS.—In Virden, Ill., Jan. 29, Mathias Ickis. His wife, sister Lucinda, and two children are left to mourn their loss. Deceased had applied for baptism, but, not being very well, said he would wait until he felt better. He grew worse, however, and died. J. H. BRUBAKER.

METZGER.—In the Powell's Valley congregation, Multnomah Co., Oregon, Bro. John Metzger, aged 65 years, 11 months and 7 days.

Deceased was born in Pickaway County, Ohio, Jan. 31, 1823; was married to Margaret Wagner in 1843. Seven children, five sons and two daughters, blessed their union. One son and one daughter preceded their parents to the spirit land. He leaves four sons and one daughter, twelve grandchildren and many relatives and friends to mourn their loss. Bro. Metzger was a faithful member of the Brethren church for about eight years. Services by the writer and J. A. Royer.

M. M. BASHOR.

ANDERSON.—In the Macedonia congregation, Knox Co., Tenn., of consumption, sister Sarah J. Anderson, aged 35 years, 1 month and 1 day.

Deceased united with the church at Cedar Grove, Hawkins Co., Tenn., about ten years ago, and has lived a faithful and devoted Christian life ever since. She was loved by all who knew her. She leaves a husband and four children to mourn their loss, but their loss is her eternal gain. She bore her affliction patiently, and her only regret was to part from her husband and little children. Services by the writer.

J. M. BOWMAN.

MADISON.—At Birmingham, Huntingdon Co., Pa., Feb. 27, sister Elizabeth Madison, aged 80 years, 1 month and 5 days.

Deceased was a consistent member of the church for about 52 years. She was the mother of ten children, five of whom are left to mourn their loss. Her husband died about 34 years ago. Services by the writer.

S. S. GRAY.

CUMMINS.—At Beatrice, Nebr., Feb 17, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cummins.

ASHENFELTER.—At the same place, Feb. 26, Mable Ashenfelter, aged 3 weeks. Funeral services by the writer.

J. E. YOUNG.

HENDERSON.—Within the bounds of the Plum Creek congregation, Armstrong Co., Pa., Feb. 28, sister Lorie Ann (Fry) Henderson, aged 32 years, 6 months and 8 days.

This sister has been much troubled in her short life. A little over three months ago the family was composed of father, mother, daughter and granddaughter. To day only a grandfather, and granddaughter of thirteen years of age, are left to mourn their loss. Services by the writer, to a large audience.

R. T. POLLARD.

WRIGHT.—In the Beaver Creek congregation, Rockingham Co., Va., Feb. 11, sister Sarah Wright, aged 78 years, 6 months and 24 days.

Deceased has been a consistent member of the Brethren church for nearly a half century. Her Christian life has been one worthy of imitation. Her greatest concern and desire for a number of years has been for several of her children who are yet out of the church. May her prayers yet be answered! For more than twenty-five years she was sorely afflicted with rheumatism. Services by brethren Jacob Thomas and Martin Miller, from Ps. 36. 9

JOSEPH.—In the Cook's Creek congregation, Rockingham Co., Va., Feb. 28, sister Fannie Joseph, aged 20 years, 2 months and 16 days.

Sister Fannie, though young in years, was held in high esteem by all who knew her. She was received into the church about one year ago. She faithfully endeavored to exhibit to the world the true ideal and realities of the Christian life. Her remains were interred at the Beaver Creek church, in the presence of a large concourse of sympathizing friends and sorrowing relatives. Services by Bro. Martin Miller and the writer, from Phil. 1: 21. J. W. CLICK.

CUSTER.—In the Harlan congregation, Shelby Co., Iowa, Oct. 27, sister Elizabeth, wife of Henry Custer (deceased), aged 80 years, 8 months and 1 day. Services by Bro. Stephen Yoder and the writer, to a large audience.

SHATTS.—In Kirkman, Shelby Co., Iowa, Feb. 25, of pneumonia, Harry, son of friend J. B. and sister Anna Shatts, aged 16 years, 11 months and 22 days. Services in the M. E. church, by Bro. Stephen Yoder, the writer, and the pastor of the M. E. church, from 1 Cor. 15: 22, to a large audience.

R. A. YODER.

SNOKE.—In the Eel River church, Ind., Feb. 23, Bro. Jacob Snoke, aged 85 years, 3 months and 3 days. Services by Leander Pittinger and the writer.

EMMANUEL LECKRONE.

REISH.—In the Sandy church, Columbiana Co., Ohio, of old age, Bro. Simeon Reish, aged 91 years and 14 days.

His companion preceded him to her eternal home about ten years. Their union was blessed with seven children, two of whom survive him. Services by the writer.

ELI STROUP.

POOL.—In Spring Run church, Ill., Feb. 24, Elizabeth Pool, aged 79 years.

Deceased was born in the State of New York; moved with her parents to Indiana when quite young; was married to John Pool Jan. 30, 1830; moved to Illinois about 1843. Her husband departed this life some years ago. She, with her husband, although living isolated from the church for many years, believed in practical Christianity, and was always ready to help the poor and needy, and they were permitted to see a church of the Brethren organized in their own neighborhood. Sister Pool leaves two sons and one daughter to mourn her departure. Services by the writer and H. C. Lucas, of Prairie City.

Advice to Mothers.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle 28y1

EUROPE AND BIBLE LANDS!

BY D. L. MILLER.

THE large sale of this work gives abundant proof of its popularity. The eighth edition is almost exhausted, and a new edition will be necessary to supply the demand. The following partial list will give an idea of the contents of the work:

Life in Germany.—Berlin.—The King's Palace.—Dresden.—The Crown Jewels.—Women in Germany.—The City of Prague.—The Martyrdom of John Huss.—The Habits and Customs of the People.—Bro. Hope's Work in Denmark.—Old Castles and Prisons of the Middle Ages.—Paul's Preaching at Mars' Hill.—Old Temples at Athens.—The Seven Churches of Asia.—Ephesus, and the Temple of Diana.—Jaffa.—The House of Simon, the Tanner.—Plain of Sharon.—Lepers and Leprosy.—Mountains of Judea.—Jerusalem.—Place of Crucifixion.—Mount Moriah.—Solomon's Temple.—Mount Zion.—David's Tomb.—Bethlehem.—The Fields Where the Shepherds Watched their Flocks by Night.—Rachel's Tomb.—Mount of Olives.—The Garden of Gethsemane.—Jericho.—The Dead Sea.—River of Jordan.—Bethel.—The Mountains of Blessing and Cursing.—Nazareth.—Cana of Galilee.—The Sea of Galilee.—Capernaum.—Damascus.—Ruins of Baalbec.—Customs, Manners, Habits and Home Life of the Arabs.

Bro. Miller visited the places he describes, and tells about them in an easy, pleasant manner, which makes the book exceedingly interesting. It contains 439 pages, and 40 engravings, among which are a number of full-page illustrations of Palestine scenery. It is printed on heavy, tinted paper, in clear-faced type, bound in a good, substantial manner, and will be sold at the very low price of $1.50 per copy, cloth binding, postage prepaid.

SPECIAL RATES TO MINISTERS.—In order to have a copy of the book placed in the hands of all our ministers, we make them the following liberal offer: Send one dollar for the book, and sixteen cents to pay postage, and you will receive a copy by return mail.

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER.

"Set for the Defense of the Gospel."

Vol. 27. Old Series. Mt. Morris, Ill., and Huntingdon, Pa., March 26, 1889. No. 13.

The Gospel Messenger.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH, Editor,
And Business Manager of the Eastern House, Box 50, Huntingdon, Pa.

OUR meetings in the Chapel closed on last Sunday evening, and although there was only one addition to the church, the services throughout were interesting, and we feel that we were greatly benefited by the meetings held, and believe that the good seed sown will yet produce a good harvest. Bro. Moomaw is an acceptable and zealous worker for the Master, and has been spending, for the last three months, all his time in the service. He left us with our good wishes and prayers accompanying him. May the Lord abundantly bless all those who are laboring for the extension of Christ's kingdom on earth!

ON Monday, the 11th, we attended the funeral of Eld. Jacob Mohler, of the Lewistown, Pa., church, and father-in-law of Eld. Wm. Howe, the present elder of the above-named church. Father Mohler was one of those exemplary Christian men of whom nothing but good could be said. His life was an exceptionally blameless one. His life was the light of his church and the community in which he lived, and he leaves a record in the memories of those who knew him that is more blessed than the worldly fame that is emblazoned on the pages of history. Although he never did much oral preaching, he was an excellent elder, who ruled in love and with wisdom, and his sweet Christian life preached more loudly than words. He was in his eighty-seventh year, and passed away without a conflict with the grim monster, death. He leaves an aged and afflicted wife, who is patiently waiting to pass over and be at rest. The funeral was largely attended, and the services were conducted by the home ministers, Samuel Swigart and S. G. Rupert. The relationship was large, and much feeling was manifested on account of the departure of the aged soldier of the cross. Truly, blessed is the death of the righteous!

STUDY TO SHOW THYSELF APPROVED.

A VERY suggestive and important precept, Paul gave to Timothy, when he said, "Study to show thyself approved." It is a far-reaching truth, and is applicable to every phase of Christian experience. Our study should ever be to stand approved before God and men. And to do this, requires earnestness of purpose and a willingness to sacrifice self. Charity, it is said, thinketh no evil,—is kind, and always puts the best constructions upon things with which it comes in contact, and blessed are those who come within the range of its power and influence. It always seeks after the motives that prompt action rather than the dead form of expression, or our actions as circumstances are made to make them seem.

The Apostle Paul most eminently illustrated the true principle of charity, and yet some of his actions are made subjects for severe criticism by the baser sort. The central thought in all his actions was, that he might save sinners, and, to put himself in the best possible position to do this, "he became all things to all men." His far-reaching intelligence enabled him to see, at once, that, to save sinners, he must first make them his friends, not by indulging them in their wrongs, but by accepting their customs when they did not conflict with the principles which he was preaching. Here it was that he exercised the wisdom of the serpent and the harmlessness of the dove. In studying to make himself approved, he adapted himself to the circumstances by which he was surrounded. When he was with the Jews, he was a Jew; when with the Romans, he became a Roman.

The first question that is presented is, Did he do right in thus adapting himself to the customs and habits of the people with whom he labored and associated? We answer, Yes. First, because in doing so he violated no principle. He accepted no custom and adapted himself to no habit that could, in any way, be construed as a violation of any part of the great Truth that he was so anxious to inculcate into the minds and lives of the people.

And again, it was right, because, in so doing, he placed himself in a moral relation to the people that he could reach them and they could reach him. This relation is the great secret upon which success depends. Opposites will not attract, and separate bodies can never become one by remaining separate and away from each other. This spirit was not a creation of Paul's, but an amplification of that of the Master. The principles of the scheme of redemption are self-adapting. To the Jew and the Gentile, the bond and the free, the rich and the poor, they were alike suitable, so that the saving efficacy is as universal as are the subjects from whom it was made.

The next thought is, Are we justifiable in following the same course? We believe that we are, as far as we can do so without violating a principle. And in our own churches we have ample room for exercising this very commendable grace, —that which thinketh no evil.

Though the desirableness of a complete unanimity among us in customs and practice has been fostered for years and years, yet we have not succeeded sufficiently to wipe away all differences as to customs and forms, and the question is very practically raised, How shall we respect these differences without affecting our bond of union? Of course, the better way would be, not to have the differences, but we must look at things as they are, and not as we would like to have them. Things that do exist are the inevitable for the time being, and we must so treat them.

Some of our old and well-established churches, especially in German settlements, are to-day much as they were fifty and seventy-five years ago. While they preach the same truth and practice the same principles, their customs are quite different from many others that are equally orthodox in their faith and practice. In these forms and customs they have become so well-established that they would be slow indeed to make any change. They are satisfied with their present environments, and to bring in among them the unlike, would be to disturb their peace. Hence we believe that, if Paul would have visited such brethren, he would have made himself one among them and done as they did. And it seems to us that this is the right thing for us all to do, when it can be done without sacrificing principle. It is easier for one man or a few to sacrifice their preferences than to expect a whole church or congregation to change, to accommodate the few.

The uncharitable would say, This is a deception, but we do not so consider it. If the motive is pure, the sacrifice that we thus make to avoid giving offense to our brethren, or placing a stumbling-block in their way, is commendable, and is characteristic of that charity that thinketh no evil. Many of our customs have been accepted as a means to an end, and so far as they fill a good purpose in this direction, they should be respected. Such is the case with our form of apparel. We profess to be a plain people, and it was thought, by the church, that plainness can be best promoted and perpetuated in unanimity of form or cut. If this form or cut is not uncomfortable, —is neat and modest, there is no good reason why we should take pleasure in rebelling against it,—by adopting other forms that afford no greater advantages, unless we are fully persuaded that adhering to a certain form is a detriment to the furtherance of the Gospel.

Even under such convictions Paul would say, Go in the way in which you can reach the hearts of the people and gain their confidence. To go in any other way is to fail in the mission and throw a stumbling-block in the way of others. Some good brethren have lost their influence and failed in their purposes by ignoring this principle. Truly, charity thinketh no evil, doth not behave itself unseemly. Those who can adapt themselves to their work and become all things to all men that they may win some to Christ, are the ones that will meet with success and make the most acceptable workers for the Master.

In taking this position we have reference only to customs that are the outgrowth of circumstances and yet are in harmony with the principles which we profess. We should never do wrong that good may come, but we may modify our forms and preferences in doing good, by sacrificing, to some extent, our wills for the pleasure of others, ever remembering that, naturally, we are, after all, largely what our environments make us. It is the grace of God and the charity that thinketh no evil that enables us to rise above these things and measure men by the mold in which they have been molded. When we get wisdom and grace enough to do this, we will be ready to make any reasonable sacrifice rather than place a stumbling-block in the way of others.

"Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth."

SECRET PRAYER.

THERE is an hour of calm relief
From every throbbing care,
'Tis when before a throne of grace
I kneel in secret prayer.

Where one by one like threads of gold,
The hues of twilight fall,
O sweet communion with my God,
My Savior and my all.

There beatific tones that float
Amid celestial airs,
And bathe my soul in streams of joy
Alone, in secret prayer.

O when the hour of death shall come,
How sweet from thence to rise,
With prayer on earth my latest breath,
My watchword to the skies!

O may that word, to me so dear,
Breathe softly on my ear,
O, lonely child, look up and see
Thy Savior speaks to thee!

"WHY TARRIEST THOU?"

BY WM. M. LYON.

WE should always be able to give good reasons for all that we do, morally and religiously.

It has always been a query in my mind, why the brethren in some places are accustomed to waiting in the administration of baptism. Why tarry in attending to this duty after all has been made ready on the part of the applicant who now desires baptism?

We know of instances in which applicants have been made to wait for considerable time after they had complied with all the necessary conditions prior to baptism. In some of these cases the duty was attended to by and by and all seemed to pass off satisfactorily, while in other instances the results were quite different. From good authority I have learned of one instance of this kind to which I will now refer. A meeting was held in the winter season at a certain place and at its close there were nine applicants for baptism. They were put off till spring. When that time came, lo, all were gone. Not one of the whole number was to be found, i. e, ready for baptism.

To my mind this is shocking. What a fearful responsibility must rest on him who says to the seeking penitent as he stands at the door of the church, asking admittance, "Hold on now, just wait till we get ready to let you in." It is too bad to think about.

How we plead with the unconverted to forsake sin and join in with us! When they come then, will we say, "Just wait now, we are not in a hurry"? Tell the poor sinner he is starving for want of the Bread of Life, then, when he comes and knocks at the door of the church, say to him, "Just stay out there now and starve on a little longer." This we virtually say to every one that is kept waiting for baptism after he has complied with all the duties preceding this ordinance. Hear what Ananias says to Paul: Why tarriest thou? Acts 22: 16.

Had Ananias been like some of our modern officials, most probably he would have said, "Brother Paul, just wait awhile for baptism; we are not quite ready to receive you." (Ananias and the other brethren having already decided that since Paul had been such a wicked man before this, that perhaps they had better test his sincerity, etc., before receiving him by baptism.)

Again in the case of Philip and the Ethiopian eunuch there was no tarrying. Peter here meets an entire stranger (at least we infer this), though a great man in the world, but just as soon as application had been made, this chosen administrator says, "All right, if you have complied with all the requirements, you shall be baptized," and it was done. Now turn to Acts 16: 33. In this instance we also find that baptism was administered on very short notice. Paul and Silas did not even wait till morning. It must be attended to at once. We could refer to other cases, supporting the position already taken. Suffice it to say, however, that in all instances of baptism recorded in the Gospel, if not specific, the implied meaning of the language agrees with what we have here been advocating. Therefore we feel at a loss to know why any among the Brethren should step aside from the Word of Truth on this subject. Why go beyond the Word of the Lord? Who would dare to say, "Wait" when God's Word and Spirit says, "Delay not," "Make haste?"

Besides all this we have often noticed that the practice of prompt action upon application for baptism is attended with encouraging results. For instance, a meeting is continued for a considerable time at a certain place, and there are those who come out for baptism at different times during the meeting; now, instead of postponing baptism, once for all, till after the meeting is over, let it be attended to in order as the applications have been made, and notice the results. A baptismal scene now and then during a protracted effort, has a telling effect. No difference if it is every day; the oftener the better. Who has not noticed this?

Which is the better way?

"TO THIS END."—Rom. 14: 9.

BY C. H. BALSBAUGH.

To George Hossack, Leask Dale, Ontario, Canada:—

YOUR unlooked for, but very welcome missive is here. I would gladly refresh your soul weekly through the GOSPEL MESSENGER, but am too weak and nervous, and am not sure if the little I am able to give is not too concentrated for the generality of readers. The persistent injunction of editors is, "Boil down, boil down." But in God's furnace truth is boiled down to an intensity that will not be tolerated by those who have not learned BY HEART Gal. 6: 14. We must learn to read John 18: 36, 37, and Rom. 14: 8, 9, and 2 Cor. 5: 14, 15 as complemental. No person knows Christ who does not carry in his hands and feet the nail-prints of Golgotha. "To this end was I born," is the constant and emphatic testimony of every true believer. "God in the flesh" pertains to the members no less than to the Head. The body is a unit in nature and purpose. The life of God and the glory of God—this is what distinguishes Christians from the world. When God begets, He begets in His own likeness. No hybrids in His family. His Spirit is in their hearts, and His Name in their foreheads. "Holiness to the Lord" shines in the Golden letters of Heaven's chirography on the brow of every saint. "The voice of many waters, and the voice of mighty thunderings" that roll the anthem of creation and redemption eternally around the Throne of Jehovah, is ever repeated in solemn and joyful undertone in the walk and talk of the church militant. "ALLELUIA: FOR THE LORD GOD OMNIPOTENT REIGNETH." Rev. 19: 6. In the church nominal are found those whom Paul describes in Philpp. 3: 18, 19. But in the Elect Church are only those which the same Apostle represents in Eph. 5: 27. Not lip-worshipers, not tradition mongers, not ordinance-idolators, but life-consecrators, heart-lovers, spirit-adorers are the true seed of Abraham, the joint-heirs of Emmanuel in the boundless riches of God's Grace.

You refer to isolation and loneliness in your Canadian home. Well, my dear brother, I do sympathize with you in my inmost soul, and would esteem it a great pleasure to give you such fellowship as my poor heart is able; but the isolation, and solitude, and heart-ache of the sick-chamber is as painful, and more so, than any mere geographical gulf. If the will of God were so, I would sooner be a silent, patient, consistent witness for Jesus in Ontario, than be apparently useless in the crucible of suffering. But I say to my eager soul, Hush, poor, ignorant worm, what do you know of the manifold relations of your lot to God's great end? The best service you can do, the most eloquent sermon you can preach, is to LIVE JESUS—"evidently set forth the crucified before the eyes" of your neighbors in the beauty of holiness. Gal. 3: 1, and 1 John 2: 6. "TO THIS END:" what end? "That GOD is in YOU of a truth." 1 Cor. 14: 25. Now, my sad-hearted brother, take courage, and let Jesus be your Alpha and Omega, and think only of what He is in Himself, and what He is willing to be to you and in you by faith.

FIDELITY TO THE LORD NECESSARY TO SALVATION.

BY GERTRUDE A. FLORY.

To A. E. N., Columbiana, Ohio:—

YOU have presented in your letter some knotty subjects,—some that I feel hardly able to expound. Nevertheless, God has promised "strength for our day," and as his promises are true and faithful, I am trusting the Holy Spirit to dictate my thoughts, and the divine Hand to guide my pen, while I endeavor to clear away the mist that shadows your spiritual vision.

"Professors" will tell you, "Do as you think to be right, and you will be right, no matter what church you belong to;" but Jesus says, "I am the way . . . and no man cometh to the Father but by me." John 14: 6. Mark, he does not say ways, but "THE WAY." Again he says, "If ye love me, keep my commandments." John 14: 15. He makes obedience the test of love and fellowship, as well as discipleship. See 1 John 1: 3, 6, 7; 2: 4–6, and 5: 3. "If ye keep my commandments, ye shall abide in my love, even as I have kept my Father's commandments and abide in his love." John 15: 10. "And whosoever doth not bear his cross, and come after me, can not be my disciple." Luke 14: 27.

Nowhere in the blessed Bible have I found where Jesus bade us, "Do as you think," or, in a broader sense, "as you please." His command is, "Deny thyself and take up thy cross daily and follow me." Luke 3: 23. We must not follow our own carnal inclination, but the holy Lord Jesus. We must not walk in our own pathway, but in the narrow path of self-denial,—the path that Jesus trod,—the one that leads to life and immortality!

To accept the theory that what we believe to be right, is right, would grant the vilest sinner the privilege of continuing in his sinfulness,—just so he thought he was right. That will not do. The Bible is our only standard of right. It is our guide, our governor, and unless we are led and controlled by it, we have no assurance of inheriting eternal life. "If thou wouldst have life, keep my commandments," says Jesus, the Savior. Not one, not a few, but "all things whatsoever I have commanded you." Matt. 28: 20.

True, we may take faith, repentance and prayer only, for a profession, and hang our hope of heaven upon it, but we do it on our own responsibility, and without the assurance of reaching that blissful place. Christ has laid the foundation for our salvation, and unless we build thereon, the structure we erect will not stand the test of the final Judgment. Oh, what a disappointment that will be! A life-work lost, because we did not build our house according to the plan of the Master Workman,—because we built upon the sand, and not upon the eternal Rock! How sad! Strange that we, of finite minds, prefer our own wisdom rather than the infinite wisdom of the Lord Jesus! He came not to do his own will, but the will of Him who sent him. By his obedience to the Father, he gained sovereignty over heaven and earth, and an eternal habitation near the Father's right hand. So we, too, by an obedience to the Son, may win eternal heirship with Jesus, and a place at his right hand in the sweet glory home.

"Straight is the gate, and narrow is the way that leads to life, and few there be that go in thereat," because this gate is so difficult of entrance that none but the humble cross-bearers can enter it. The way is so narrow that the pilgrim must lay aside "every weight and sin," the "carnal mind," the "lust of the eye and the pride of life," and the "love of the world," because the way will not admit one laden with such ponderous burdens. Hence, many go in at the "wide gate," and console themselves with the thought, "It is just as you believe," and "No difference what you believe, just so you think it is right." But the Lord requires us to know whether we are in the faith, and the only way to prove our faith to be that "once delivered unto the saints," is to prove it by the Word of God. If it stands the test, it is well; if it will not, the sooner we set about correcting the error we have believed, the better it will be for us, as no one can tell what a day may bring forth.

Dear sister, I now approach a subject of deep thought and solemnity,—one that often causes me to blush with shame, and one at whose door can be laid drunkenness, debauchery, ill-fame, bankruptcy, forgery, intemperance, divorce, discord, unfaithfulness, incontinence, broken vows, and a world of heartaches and sorrows. This evil is, the fashions of the world.

Among those invented for woman's attire, there are none so unsightly as the bustle. Yet there are those who would entice you to "wear one when you visit them." Oh, what a shame that woman (of whom it is said, "She is God's last, best gift to man") should thus degrade herself, to dress in such a manner that the form, made in the image of God, should appear so hideously deformed! No doubt, if the bustle were a natural deformity, the one possessing it would beseech the Lord in lamentations and tears for its removal, and spend all her possessions for that end. But since it is an invention of the spirit of darkness, she accepts it as an indispensable article of dress. Surely some one must have got the idea that the All-wise God did not know what it took to constitute beauty when he created woman, that the bustle had to be invented to improve her! Whether it has done so or not, I shall let common sense say. But I am sorry, oh! so sorry, that among the senseless things in dress, this, too, has crept into some of our local churches. But, thank God! my sister, it is only in some of the local churches, where "members don't have to dress plain if they don't want to." The church as a body is yet pure, and will ever remain so until Jesus claims her as his holy bride.

Were the rules and principles of the church enforced, there would be no local church or congregation of our Fraternity where members could dress as they please. But this is not the kind of obedience that pleases the Lord. He desires the free-will submission, prompted by the love of the whole mind, soul and strength. When members of a church "have to" be obedient to the rules governing them, it becomes compulsion, and not the free-will offering of love to Jesus, which ought to constrain each soldier of the cross to live in the strictest obedience to the laws of God and his church. Hence, disloyalty to the church must come from an improper appreciation of Christ. We cannot love one without loving the other, for the two are as inseparable as Father, Son and Holy Spirit.

The child that loves father and mother most, will do most to please them. So, too, the disciple who loves the Savior most will obey the most. And his wonderful love ought to induce us all to love, with an undying affection, him and his blest commands. Oh, that each member of the church of Christ would live the principle and doctrine thereof! What a blaze of Gospel light would then illuminate the world! Satan would destroy the church, root and branch, if he could, and he knows that if it is ever done, it will be through individual members,—by dividing the fold and scattering the sheep. But, thanks be to God, that disloyal members, the world with all its fashions and allurements, and Satan, with all his devices and mighty hosts combined, can not destroy the church of the Living God, for it is built upon the Eternal Rock,—Jesus Christ, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it. So, too, shall each member of the church be kept safe in the hand of the Father, if they trust in him. But relax your hold upon him, and give Satan a chance, and he will entice you into his dominion by some worldly allurement. O, that all would run with willing feet to do the will of the Lord! Then Satan would search in vain for subjects for his kingdom, and one of the last places he would visit would be the church of Christ. May we not hope that the time is not far distant when the soul-damning fashions and worldly devices can not get a foothold in its borders? Will you not join me in the prayer that we may?

You "think it is of as much importance for sisters to have their heads covered while asking a blessing at table as during church services," and would know "what I think about it"? Well, I find it much easier to "think" than to impart thoughts to others, yet I shall try to give you an outline of "what I think about it," and trust you to decipher the rest for yourself. Inasmuch as "every woman that prayeth or prophesieth with her head uncovered, dishonoreth her head," 1 Cor. 11: 5, and a "blessing asked at table" is nothing more or less than a short prayer of praise and thanksgiving for blessings received, and intercessions for future blessings desired, we conclude that it is wrong for any woman to return thanks at table with her head uncovered, or even be present in that manner where prayer of any kind is offered. Paul says: "The woman ought to have power on her head," 1 Cor. 11: 10, but attaches no penalty to not having. Therefore, to cover the head during prayer may seem a little thing to do, or not to do; but if the penalty of not doing is as great as in the case of the servant who ought to have put his talent to the exchangers, but hid it in the ground instead, we do not desire a portion in it. Matt. 25: 24–30. His portion for not doing what he ought, was "outer darkness," where there is "weeping and gnashing of teeth." The same God that commanded us to pray, commanded us to cover our heads during prayer, and as he is such a tender, loving Father, as well as a righteous God, to do his will ought to be our delight. I know that when we consider the ridicule and scoffs of the world, the ordinances of God's house often become a heavy cross, but when we look beyond, to the glorious reward that shall be ours if we suffer persecution with Jesus, we need not care for the jeers of a sinful world. "If we suffer with him, we shall also reign with him." "Delight thyself in the law of the Lord," is an injunction of one of old, and to abide in Jesus is to live in perfect obedience to his commands and precepts, thus making the doing of his will a delight. We must be faithful to the Lord if we desire the reward. Had we a friend who had stood by us in distress and affliction, and succored us in time of danger, we should feel that we owed him the strictest fidelity in friendship. We have no greater, truer, nobler friend than Jesus, and we ought to be honest in all our dealings with him.

What we want, to make the world and church better, is, more honest Christians; zealous, glowing, earnest workers, not simply professors. The profession will take care of itself, if the professor is loyal to it. For "a city that is set on a hill can not be hid." And when sin is overcome, the Christian light will shine.

I am glad that you are striving, in the face of such difficulties, to do right, but sorry that you have not fully conquered. Remember, it is the brave and earnest soldier that wins the victory, and never, for one moment, listen to the persuasions of those who would entice you from the narrow way of life into the way that leads to death and eternal gloom. To live a consecrated life to God, even though surrounded by frowning relatives, will win a bright crown and glorious reward. On the other hand, to be disobedient to your Redeemer, to gratify man, will bring as great a condemnation to your soul.

From sad experience I know what courage it takes to leave the dear ones of the flesh, to hear daily their censure, and sometimes scoffs and ridicule of the church of our espousal, but from sweet experience I also know, how exceedingly sweet is the tender love of Jesus, who says, "There is no man that hath left houses, or parents, or brethren, or wife, or children, for the kingdom of God's sake, who shall not receive manifold more in this present time, and in the world to come life everlasting." Luke 18: 29, 30. Consoling promise! Let us "go on unto perfection," rejoicing on our way, with exceeding great joy, forgetting the cares, by keeping the reward in view. I sympathize with you, because you are a pilgrim to the same country to which I am journeying, and our situations are similar. I pray for you because you are a soul redeemed by blood,—the precious blood of Jesus. I love you, because a precious life was given up for you,—the life of the Son of God. I love you, because I want to greet you on the other shore, among the white-robed throng of purified saints. I persuade you to "lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset thee, and run with patience the race that is set before thee, looking unto Jesus, the Author and Finisher of our faith." Don't forget, however, that it is not the swiftest runner, but the careful, watchful runner that wins the prize, and only then, when the race is run. Let the Bible be your counselor! In it are mines of untold wealth. Daily we may draw supplies, and use, to our heart's content, of its delicious food, yet there is still something sweeter and better to the taste each time we renew our supplies. We have the precious promise that its countless riches shall never be exhausted, and if we drink of its fountains we shall never thirst any more, and after partaking of its life-giving food we shall not hunger again, for it is life everlasting to the soul.

"DEATH removes the shutters from the windows of the soul. Why should we dread his coming, since his work is to let light and air into rooms which are now dark and suffocating?"

THE GOOD WAY.

BY JAMES EVANS.

A Sermon Preached on the Evening of November 22nd, near Bro. Wampler's.

"Stand ye in the ways, and see, and ask for the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein, and ye shall find rest for your souls." Jer. 6: 16.

WHEN the Gospel was first preached to the Gentiles, it came to them unsought. Men did not ask after God, still God visited them to take from them a people for his name. Acts 15: 14. The way of life was clearly set before all who heard the Word. No darkness then rested on the Gospel of the grace of God. The wisdom of men had not yet corrupted the Bread of Life. Jesus was still the Head.

A falling away came. The traditions of men made void the Word of God. The darkness of Babylon fell on the temple of God, hiding it from the sight of men, so that, far from being a high-way, as it will be in the millennial age, it was buried under a mass of human inventions, rendering it almost impossible to find the Truth as it is in Jesus. The restoration of the Bible to the nations did much to remove the mass of over-lying traditions, but it did not remove it entirely. Much remains to be removed yet, so that it is no easy matter to know the exact Truth of God.

Our text has three commands in it, one declaration, and one promise. We are commanded, first to STAND IN THE WAYS.

We are to come in contact with the means of instruction. We must honestly and sincerely desire Truth. We are not to remain in ignorance. Those who never attended preaching, or any other means of enlightenment, are not standing in the ways. We are to stand in the way of honest investigation. We are to come to the light and have our deeds reproved. We can place ourselves in ways so dark that no ray of Truth will ever reach us. We thus exclude the light from our souls, and never come to a knowledge of the Truth.

The young are standing in the ways when they attend Sunday-schools, prayer-meetings, public preaching, or hear the instructions of parents. The older are standing in the ways whenever they come to be taught the oracles of God.

WE ARE TO ASK FOR THE OLD PATHS.

Mere standing in the ways is not enough. We are to enquire for the old paths, because they are of God. The paths of obedience, holiness, self-denial, crucifixion of the flesh, non-conformity to the world, and a careful observance of all that Jesus commanded, are the ancient landmarks set up by the wisdom of God, and ordained for us to walk in. We are not to ask for new paths, for these are of men, and lead to perdition.

To ask for the old paths is to honor Jesus, the Author and Finisher of our faith. To seek new paths is to forsake the narrow way of life. To ask for the old paths is to manifest an earnest desire to be saved. We are convinced not only of sin, but we want the righteousness of God. We ask, What shall we do to be saved? We search for Truth, we investigate; we are not afraid of the light, we ask those who know the way to instruct us in all Truth. We are not satisfied with partial truth, we want the whole Truth to sanctify us wholly, and we thus continue asking, inquiring and seeking until we find it.

We are not only to stand in the ways, and ask for the old paths, but we are TO WALK THEREIN. The knowledge of the Gospel alone will not save us; we must walk in the newly-found paths. To the carnal mind this is painful, but to the soul, renewed in the knowledge of God, it is pleasant and full of peace. We feel that we are safe there. To walk in the old paths is to follow Jesus, our forerunner. We shall enter within the vail, and be forever with the Lord. Our feet are now on the way to God. Our faces are Zionward. Our feet may become weary and sore, but when shod with Gospel peace, we will endure the journey. We are fed with the Bread of heaven, and are led by the still waters. We can not go back, for that is perdition. We must keep marching on, obeying the orders of our King.

Many, seem to stand in the ways, asking for the old paths, but never enter them. Such never find rest. The old paths are called the good way. The way of holiness, and eternal life must par excellence be a good way. The way of peace and safety must be a good way. The way of assurance, of the abiding assurance that we are loved of God, and cared for by him, must be supremely good. All other ways are evil.

Finally rest is promised to our souls. Jesus repeats this promise to the seeking, weary and heavy laden. In him our sorrows end. He bore our sorrows, sin and infirmities, and he is now our merciful high-priest. In him we find pardon for sin and abiding strength. Our burdens are cast on him, and he is our never-failing friend. Would we be saved from the unrest of sin, the labor and weariness of life, let us come to Jesus! Let us be meek and humble! Let us wear the yoke of Christ!

THE HEART.

BY ENOCH EBY.

"Keep thy heart with all diligence; for out of it are the issues of life." Prov. 4: 23.

A PROVERBIAL sentiment very extensively, if not universally, obtains, "If the heart is right, all is right." While that is true, viewed from a Bible stand-point, it nevertheless requires some Bible analysis to know when the heart is right. This task would not be so difficult, or important, if it were not so deceitful. Notice the language of Jeremiah 17: 9. "The heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked. Who can know it? I, the Lord, search the heart." This language shows the heart to be more deceitful than anything else, and desperately wicked. It plainly signifies that none can fully search it but the Lord; yet our text requires us to keep it, and with diligence. "Keep,—to tend, to have the care of." —Webster.

We will first notice where the deception lies; otherwise we can not escape its bad results. It may be summed up in this,—making us believe we are right when we are wrong, telling us that if we are honest and sincere in our motives and are praying men and women, and strictly moral in character, we are safe, without obeying from the heart that "form of doctrine delivered to you." Hear Jesus: "Not all that say, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom, but they that do the will of my Father which is in heaven." Again, "Many will come to me in that day and say, "Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils, and in thy name done many wonderful works? And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you, depart from me ye that work iniquity."

Here we have the worst deceived people on record. They thought they were right, but they were wrong, hence were not saved,—their heart deceived them. Let us see what kind of persons these were that were so disappointed. Were they wicked? They did not think so, for they did some good things. They prayed much,—even on the corners of the streets, where most people would be ashamed to pray, but their heart did not tell them they were only doing it to be heard of men. Some of them made long prayers, and, at the same time, would cheat a poor widow out of her living. The heart said, That is right, only pray. The heart was so deceitful, it would not tell them the wrong, but the Word of the Lord did. The Pharisees even fasted, disfigured their faces, and were of a sad countenance. They gave much alms to the people, but their heart said, That will do you no good unless you sound a trumpet, so the people will know it. What satisfaction is it to give your goods to feed the poor, and no one know it but the receiver? They were not ready to confess they were deceived, even when Jesus told them what kind of hearts they had, and that they had their reward, and would not need to expect any other. They also cast out devils, but yet Jesus would not accept them, because their heart was not right. They did some wonderful works. It does not say what, but I can conceive of nothing more wonderful than to compass sea and land to make one proselyte. What zeal! Look at the expense of travel, the time, the danger! Is it not simply wonderful? It is a great work to save one soul, which is worth more than all the world. This, surely, must be one of the many wonderful works, but, alas, alas, is he saved? No, no; he is twofold more the child of hell than himself. O cruel, wicked heart, to run a man over sea and land, with all that expense and travel, to make one proselyte, under the impression that he is a child of God, when he is a child of hell, and the convert twofold more so! My heart beats, my hand trembles, my pen is ready to drop, while considering the deceitfulness and wickedness of the heart, and yet, out of it are the issues of life, or "issue the actions of life," as a better rendering has it; hence, how important to have the fountain pure, so that the stream may be pure; as the heart genders thought, and thought moulds action, and action forms character, so keep thy heart with all diligence.

"Diligence," says a certain writer, "is the philosopher's stone that turns everything into gold." Hence, dear reader, we must go about this important work in good earnest, and get our hearts right, and then keep them so. Even though you think it is right, another examination will not be lost time.

You ask, How shall I proceed? Take the Word of the Lord. It is a perfect law. James 1. Look into it, as you would in a mirror, to see your face, and you will soon see even the thoughts and intents of the heart. Heb. 4: 12. It will show you that your heart is full of evil thoughts, murders, adulteries, fornication, thefts, false witness, blasphemies, covetousness, deceit, lasciviousness, pride, foolishness, lust, hatred, malice, strife, envyings, etc., Mark 7: 21, 22, and then be not a forgetful hearer, but a doer of the work, and your heart will be purified in obeying the Truth. Christ said: "Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth." John 17: 17.

The Word of Truth is not only a mirror to see our true spiritual condition, but it is the power of God unto salvation. It saves from every sin, within and without. It is perfect because it first points out the sin, then gives the remedy, and the only reliable evidence of a good heart is an unconditional surrender to the Gospel of Christ, without even mental reservation. A heart that is right will take pleasure in obeying the simple commands and examples of Jesus, whether he fully comprehends the whys or wherefores or not.

A heart that is right never finds anything in the Scriptures that is not essential to our salvation. You will not hear it say, That was for the apostle, but not for us. The system of religion that Christ and the apostles had, is the same today as then, and is the only religion that will get the heart right and keep it right. The Bible must control our hearts, and not our hearts the Bible.

Here comes sister A., so-called, in the latest style, with her ruffles and flounces, and the abominable "Grecian bend." Her hair, if not shamefully shingled, is pompadour. There are several finger-rings on her hand, rings in her ears, and a gold chain, or an imitation, round her neck. She wishes to commune, or enjoy church fellowship with us. We would say, We would be glad to do so, but you must change. You look too proud, and God hates a proud look, and so do his children. "Oh," she says, "I am not proud; my heart is not on those things." Well, then, you can easily give them up, especially your rings and chain, which do not serve for heat or cold.

"Well, but I don't see why we need be so particular, if only our heart is right." Well, are you sure your heart is right?

"Would you question my heart religion? I know I was converted at such a meeting, and I am happy ever since, and besides, this ring I got as a present, and I will never part with it, no, never. I can not see any harm in it when I know my heart is right." Well, admitting your heart is right, do you really think it would be right in the sight of God to do anything that his Word says we shall not do?

"No, of course not; I did not mean to convey such an idea. I do not know that the Gospel says anything about such things. I never heard our preacher say anything about non-conformity to the world, or being separate from the world. I do not get much time to read myself, and if I did, I do not think I could understand the Scriptures, for if no one can preach the Gospel without a theological course, I do not see how I could succeed, hence I am not accountable for anything the preacher does not preach." On the last point I would say, that when the learned scribes and Pharisees saw the boldness of Peter and John, and perceived that they were ignorant and unlearned men, they marveled and they took knowledge of them that they had been with Jesus.

Here the educated or learned took knowledge of the unlearned. Acts 4: 13. Again, "I speak as to wise men; judge ye what I say." 1 Cor. 10: 15. How can we be judges of what the minister says, if we can not understand the Scriptures?

"Well, if we can understand the Scriptures, wherefore the necessity of a preacher?" I answer, because "the world by wisdom knew not God, it pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe."

Now please turn with me to 1 Tim. 2: 9, 10, "In like manner also, that women adorn themselves in modest apparel, with shamefacedness and sobriety; not with braided hair, or gold, or pearls, or costly array; but (which becometh women professing godliness) with good works." Now turn to 1 Pet. 3: 3, 4, "Whose adorning, let it not be that outward adorning of plaiting the hair, and of wearing of gold, or of putting on of apparel; but let it be the hidden man of the heart, in that which is not corruptible, even the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, which is in the sight of God of great price." Now, in these texts, the things you wear are positively forbidden; and in all candor, appealing to your intelligence, if your heart is all right, would it not condemn you in doing that which the Gospel forbids? "Yes, it does now, since I know it, but it did not before." You can now see plainly that we can not confide in the heart. Solomon says, "He that trusteth in his own heart is a fool." Prov. 28: 26. Read also the third chapter of Isaiah and see what the Lord says about the daughters of Zion. If he hates a proud look, he surely loves an humble look, or appearance. "Wherefore he saith, God resisteth the proud, but giveth grace to the humble." James 4: 6. If there is no pride in the heart, the outside will indicate it as clearly as the fruit indicates the tree. Jesus was meek and lowly in heart. Matt. 11: 29. So must we be, for if any man have not the spirit of Christ, he is none of his. Rom. 8: 9. The law of God must be in our heart. Ps. 37: 31. We must love the Lord our God with all our heart. Matt. 22: 37. We must keep our heart from all dissembling. "This people draweth nigh to me with their mouth, and honoreth me with their lips; but their heart is far from me." Mal. 15: 8.

We must diligently keep the thoughts of our hearts. Simon, the sorcerer, discovered he had a wicked thought in his heart, after he had believed and was baptized, hence was admonished to repent, if perhaps the thought of his heart would be forgiven. Acts 8: 22. We must keep our heart pure; call on the Lord out of a pure heart. 2 Tim. 2: 22. Our charity must come from a pure heart, 1 Tim. 1: 5, we must love with a pure heart fervently, 1 Pet. 1: 22. "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." Matt. 5: 8.

CHRISTIAN PROGRESS.

BY B. C. MOOMAW.

PROGRESS is one of God's thoughts which is written every-where in nature. The tree, the plant, the flower, the animal which stops growing before it reaches maturity, misses the true end of its being and becomes a monument of decay and death. The divine law of growth, as written upon all the lower order of creation illustrates the law of grace, and finds its antitype in that growth of soul which is the essential evidence of spiritual life. The soul which does not grow in grace cannot be planted in grace, for growth is the outward manifestation of grace. Grace is a soil so rich that every one who is planted in it must increase in stature until eventually the full measure is reached of manhood in Christ Jesus. There can be no such thing as a permanent state of imperfection with any soul which has felt the regenerating power of the Holy Ghost. It may have imperfections such as are common to an unripe state,—a lack of maturity,—but it cannot have the imperfections of decay. There may be scars of former decay-spots, but the wound is healed, and nothing but the scar remains. The nature is radically regenerated, if regenerated at all. If this is not yet manifest outwardly, it must be true fundamentally, and will, sooner or later, produce its visible results.

A perfect tree, a ripe ear of corn, a full-blown rose, is not produced in a night or a day. But God has patience and so ought we. Christian men and women are often judged by false standards, or judged impatiently. God only can judge right, therefore he has forbidden us to judge at all. You cannot judge a tree in January by its fruits. Wait until the time of fruitage. The ear of corn is not perfect at all times. It is hard to tell what process of discipline God has employed, or what seeds of life he has sown in any soul. But if we are not sure of the method, we are certain of the fact. Every living branch in the vine must grow, and must bear fruit in its season. The controversy, therefore, is not between me and my neighbor, but between me and myself,—between my soul, as the branch, and God as the husbandman.

There is another reason why we cannot judge others in respect to their regeneration. A man may not himself be planted, rooted and grounded in Christ, but may be so much under the influence of those who are, as to bring forth, what seem to be, the fruits of grace.

The unregenerate member of a godly church may appear as a saint to all eyes but God's. He yields to his environment. He feels the outward pressure of public sentiment in the direction of godliness. It is this outward influence and not the inner power of grace which sustains his semblance of spiritual life. So we may be equally mistaken, if, taken two professors of religion, we pronounce one a saint and the other a sinner. But there is no necessity that any one should be self-deceived. To be honest and impartial with one's self, will surely lead to self-discovery. We may quickly learn whether or not we are born again, and whether we show evidence of it by steady growth.

Now this growth must be principally in two directions,—in knowledge and in character. We have named them in their logical order.

The accurate knowledge of any science must be based upon its technical terms and definitions. After we pass these vestibules and halls, we reach the large inner chamber where we breathe the spirit of the science, and find, with surprise, that it bears a vital relation to consciousness. It seems to be a part of our inner being,—of our nature. Did we remain forever in the antechambers and outer courts, we would never see the glory of the Shekinah.

So the knowledge of God cannot be acquired at a bound. We cannot leap at once into this infinity. It has its long and gradual approaches of definition, illustration and discipline. It has its "first principles."

Many become discouraged at the magnitude of the task, or, failing to comprehend it altogether, stop at the first principles, and content themselves with "the doctrine of laying on of hands, and baptisms, and resurrection and eternal judgment."

Those who fail to see that the ordinances are essentially first principles, or the outward symbols of vital spiritual truths which lie behind, beyond, and above them, are likely to do one of two things, either they will ignore the ordinances altogether, or blindly worship them as the end and not the means of spiritual knowledge and experience. It is difficult to decide which is the worse. Therefore the two apostolic admonitions are weighty, first, to keep the ordinances; second, to "leave them,"—grow beyond them,—"and go on to perfection."

To grow in the true knowledge of God is to grow in character. The last is the legitimate fruit of the first. When we pass the technical or theoretical stages of spiritual knowledge, we enter the rich experimental stage. This is the land of Beulah where the soul holds communion with God without the intervention of forms or priests, excepting the Great High-priest,—Christ. Here we may be conscious that we speak directly with God, and he speaks to us. The listening inner ear can hear the divine voice, and the heart can feel the throbbings of infinite love. This is a dreadful place, for it is none other than the house of God and the gate of heaven.

But one result can attend those who often frequent these hallowed courts,—they grow in all the lovely attributes of character, and display the rich fruits of the Spirit. Wealth which suffocates or hardens many a soul, pleasure which withers, ambition which blights;—all lose their power for evil. They consecrate these things to God and make them holy saints, conquerors, gods! Such are they unto whom, in its inner and spiritual sense, and in its transforming power, the Word of the Lord has come, and while behind them, in their behalf, and in their own experience, are the sufferings of Christ; before them is the glory which shall follow.

"THE fewer words the better prayer."

SABBATH LOUNGING.

BY JOHN HARP.

"WELL, I believe I'll not go to preaching to-day, as I feel quite fatigued this morning, and must be out bright and early to-morrow, besides it is likely that only Bro. Brown will be there, and he is not much of a preacher anyhow, and I believe I can do as much good by staying at home and reading my Bible."

Suiting his actions to his words, he takes down the old family Bible, wipes off the dust, sits down in the old arm-chair, and begins to read. But before he reaches the Omega of the first chapter, his eyes become heavy, his head begins to droop, the book falls out of his hands, and behold,—he is asleep! He has given way to the first temptation in the morning, and now the devil has taken him captive at his will.

Presently he discovers his mistake, and, true to his first resolution, he makes a second effort with no better success.

Feeling himself foiled in his efforts, he yields to the demands of nature, and as the day passes wearily by, he concludes he will take a stroll across the field to see his neighbor, and as he reaches the house, he finds him ardently engaged in looking over the morning papers. Entering the house, he is cordially received, and soon enters upon a lively conversation, "and out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh." After some preliminary remarks about the state of the weather, the topic of conversation may turn on the condition of the crops, upon their horses, upon the market, upon politics, upon the shortcomings of their neighbors, and, in short, upon every conceivable object, except about Jesus and him crucified. About that there is not a word. He is left standing "out in the cold," while His bleeding heart yearns for the poor souls. He mournfully says, "Father, forgive them for they know not what they do."

In speaking of his neighbors, he will ask his friend: "Have you heard of that trick of Mr. A.? If not, I will tell you."

In relating the story, he is careful in giving it all its original force, and if there are any weak points about it, he must spice it a little and it will pass for good.

This reminds his friend of a similar circumstance that happened with Mr. B., who has many defects, and so few good qualities.

Next comes up Mr. C., who is the worst character of all, and thus they will pass through the whole catalogue, until they have taken in the whole community, and passed judgment upon all. While he is wending his way homeward, he thanks God that he is not as other men are,—extortioners, unjust, adulterers, or even as the publican,—not knowing that he is poor, and wretched, and miserable, and naked, and blind.

All this time Bro. Brown's little audience were fed with the crumbs that fell from the Master's table,—they were strengthened that they could ascend the mount with Peter of old, and behold the beauty of holiness in all its brilliancy, until they were loath to depart from the scene of glory.

THE ORDAINING OF ELDERS.

BY BRICE SELL.

IN every church reform we are prone to forget that the church is composed of individuals. We often forget that, to improve or reform the church, we must commence with those who compose it,—the members. To try to do otherwise, is, to make the rose bloom before the bush is rooted, or to erect the tower before the corner stone is laid. The center of all organizations (or churches) and social existence is the individual man. All improvements should begin with individuals, and to make improvements or reforms in the church, that reform must begin with those who need reforming.

No business of greater importance can come before a church than the election of its officers, and as the election is always in the hands of the elders, they constitute the board that holds them. They have the qualifications of elders plainly told them in 1 Tim. 3: 1–7; Tit. 1: 6–8. If any are holding that office in the church to-day without possessing the proper qualifications, they have obtained it through the hands of the elders themselves.

Some of the elders may say, "We are not to blame. We acted for the church. The church said they wanted a certain brother ordained and we did what they wanted."

Stop a little! Did you take heed to 1 Tim. 5: 22, "Lay hands suddenly on no man?" Did you go on in the laying on of hands before you knew whether they possessed the proper qualifications? If you did, who is to blame,—the church, or the system, or the elders?

If the querist is an elder, he knows whereof he affirms when he says: "The candidate aspires to office and his friends arrange for the matter. Help is secured [that help is an elder or two], and the question is half answered in the asking, or put in a shape looking to a certain end, and the ordination is completed." An elder is ordained and one of those fatal mistakes is made.

Who made it? The church? No! Is the system at fault? No. The elders are at fault, and no one else. The querist says himself that if "the question would have been otherwise, the decision would have been accordingly." Again I say, the fault is with the elders. One of the qualifications required for an elder is lacking in them, for they are self-willed,—wanting their own way or no way.

If elders will thus arrange and take advantage of the membership, to accomplish their own selfish purpose what better can be expected than the present state of things?

THE REMEDY.

1. Let the elders who know that such a state of affairs exists, call the offending elders to account, that the church in general may know who they are, so when a board is needed, they be not called.

2. A church may need an elder and have a number of ministers. The oldest may possess the qualifications, but his days of usefulness are about over. He can not attend to the duties of his office,—feed the flock of God, taking the oversight of them! He lacks, by reason of age or ill health, the qualifications necessary to enable him to perform the duties of the office. If the older one is not qualified, do not ordain him. That is plain. If any such are ordained, the officiating elders are to blame.

You may say, "Ordain two to get the one you want." By no means! If there is not intelligence enough in the elders officiating to know the proper qualifications, it is a bad state of affairs indeed! If the querist knows of a case of this kind, and is an elder, it is his duty to make it known, and see to it for the sake of the church! He says, "In most cases the objections are a lack of qualifications, or a want of influence, or a peculiar turn of mind, or narrowness of views.

Now if these are the objections offered by the membership before the board of elders, and they overlook them all and set them at naught, and set up their own selfish wills, and accomplish their own wish, do not wonder that churches are retrograding, and are on a dead-lock. If churches have such men at the head of their affairs, and it is known, it is the duty of those who are conversant with the fact, to report at the proper place, that things may be set in order, for such elders are certainly out of order, and need to be corrected. If they will not bear correcting, they should be removed from their office.

3. The third difficulty is easily disposed of. Do not ordain a brother who is not in full sympathy with the church. If the church, in which he lives, knows of this and gives it as an objection, and the elders in charge heed the objection, they will never get into the office. But if the elders are self-willed, they may perhaps install such. So eager are they sometimes, to install their favorites, that when objections are filed by some one of average ability, they will call him in the second time and ask him to withdraw his objections. A brother told me that it was so done with him when his objection was a Scriptural one.

I asked a brother a short time ago, why they did not ordain one of their ministers. His answer was, "I would object to that because they are not in full sympathy with the church."

According to the foregoing considerations, we are inclined to think the fault lies with the elders in charge. They stand at the head and are hard to reach if out of order. If an elder makes a move for reform, the cry is, "He is jealous or envious." If one in the second degree makes a move, he "is aspiring." If the laity says anything, "they are not acquainted with the matter sufficiently," and so the matter is deferred.

4. The fourth difficulty is to know what to do with the superannuated elder,—who has outlived his influence,—who is incapable of attending to the wants of the church, but will not give it up. It is certain that the church has power over its own affairs, and when she sees he is misleading the flock, she has a right to take the charge from him. Should he refuse to give it up when the church says so, he is self-willed and lacks one of the essential qualifications!

THE FRIEND OF GOD.

BY FLORA E. TEAGUE.

IN the second chapter of James, we find much said in regard to faith; also in the eleventh chapter of Hebrews. In this latter chapter we find it is impossible to please God without faith. A careful study of this subject seems to convey the idea that the faith most desired by God and the faith most acceptable in his sight, is the perfect faith that never questions any of God's reasons for his obligations and commands placed upon us. A perfect, child-like faith, before contamination with evil surroundings, wicked companions, or deceptive parents, has perfect trust and confidence in what father or mother say. But just as soon as the Evil One, arrayed too often in the garb of an angel of light, steps in and begins to tamper with our conscience in regard to some matters which our Heavenly Father has bidden us do, we begin to doubt, to waver, and to decide finally that this or that matter is not necessary, until there is so much of a falling away in faith, that there is but little left of what we do consider necessary.

How different is this from the description of Abraham's faith, given in the above-mentioned chapter. The most sublime faith ever known belonged to this old patriarch. He was entirely willing without any doubt or questioning, to submit to God's will by sacrificing his dearly loved son, after God's promise to him in regard to his seed in the future! Oh, what trust! and oh, what a reward! His faith was imputed to him for righteousness, and he was called the Friend of God! His works proved his faith and trust in his God, too! He was not satisfied with simple belief but must prove it by action.

Would you have your faith imputed to you for righteousness? Then do all that Christ bids you without seeking to know the why and wherefore. Would you be called the Friend of God? Put your trust in him fully and entirely, and prove it by your work.

According to previous arrangements, Bro. Landon West came to the Jonathan Creek church, Ohio, Feb. 25, and commenced meetings the same evening, continuing day and night until March 2, when he held a "Children's Meeting," which was much appreciated by the little folks, and enjoyed by older ones. That same evening Bro. George Worst came to assist in holding a council, or rather a business meeting, which was held March 6th. The church being without an elder, it was thought best to select some ordained elder to take charge of it, and Bro. I. D. Parker, of Ashland, was chosen.

After the council, which passed off harmoniously, Bro. Worst returned home, leaving Bro. West to continue the meetings. Although the roads at times were almost impassable, the congregations and interest increased, which proved that his labors were not in vain, and as the council passed off so pleasantly, it seemed that Bro. West continued the meeting with renewed zeal and unabating energy. Bro. West is a fearless expounder of the Word, and shuns not to proclaim the whole Truth. On the night of March 8, after holding his audience in almost breathless silence for nearly an hour, he extended an invitation to all who felt the need of a Savior, and while the congregation was wafting a hymn of praise to heaven, three dear souls declared themselves for Jesus.

The following day, after preaching at the church, the congregation repaired to the water near the home of Bro. J. Leckrone. As the weather was inclement, preparatory services were performed in the house, and they were the most solemn we ever witnessed.

The meetings continued until the night of the 10th, when Bro. West bade us farewell. The church was edified and built up. His preaching seemed to create a desire for searching the Scriptures, and no doubt the dust will be brushed from many an old Bible, to see whether these things are so. Let all the praise be given to the Father above!

A Sad Accident.

On the afternoon of March 1, Bro. John Holsinger went to Carleton, and sister Sally sent by him for some quinine for herself, as she was not well. Bro. John also purchased some corrosive sublimate, to use for a ring-bone on a horse. On his return, late in the evening, as he passed the house, going toward the stable, Aunt Sally came out and called for the quinine, and Uncle John gave it to her (as he thought), and went on to put up his team, but he soon heard Aunt Sally screaming, and he went to her assistance as soon as possible. To his surprise and astonishment, he found he had given her the wrong paper, and, instead of quinine, she had taken a dose of corrosive sublimate. Assistance was soon at her side, and antidotes administered until a physician could be had. Her son, L. T. Holsinger who had recently come to see them, from Ladoga, Ind., and who was conducting a series of meetings in the Exeter church, York Co., Nebr., was telegraphed for, and the next morning, at 5 o'clock, was by her side. Her son and daughter at Oakville, Ind., were also notified by wire, and her son, J. T. Holsinger, also arrived on the dreadful scene before she became unconscious. All that could be done by loving hands to alleviate her intense suffering, was done, but she suffered untold agony until the evening of the 6th inst., when she became partly unconscious, in which state she lay, growing weaker and weaker, until the morning of the 8th, when, at near 3 o'clock, she passed quietly over the river.

Sally (Teeter) Holsinger was born Jan. 16, 1823, in Bedford County Pa. She was married to John Holsinger, Feb. 9, 1845, with whom she lived a devoted wife and mother. To this union were born two sons and one daughter, all of whom are now living. They moved from Pennsylvania to Indiana in April, 1849, where they lived until October 10, 1876, when they removed to near Carleton, Nebr. Deceased united with the church in 1846, and was a faithful member for forty-three years. Her age was sixty-six years, one month and twenty-one days. Funeral services were conducted by the writer from Luke 8: 52.

Thus passed away a loving wife, devoted mother, and an humble Christian. A mother in Israel has left us, and gone to the loving embrace of her blessed Redeemer! Oh! may we all remember her kind admonition and entreaties, and live a righteous life, that we may all meet with her in the Redeemer's kingdom!

The writer was acquainted with Aunt Sally (as she was called), for about forty years, and in all these years always found her striving for the right. She suffered many afflictions in this life, and though weak in body, was strong in mind. She had to bear many of the sorrows of this life, but all seemed to be borne with patience and Christian fortitude. A very large concourse of friends, brethren, sisters and neighbors, attended the services and followed her to her last resting place. Let us all try to meet her in heaven!

North Carolina Field Notes.

Feb. 20 I left home to visit the Brethren in Forsythe Co., N. C. This church has no resident elder, but is under the care of Eld. J. W. Eller, of Roanoke Co., Va. J. F. Robertson is the only minister they have. He is in the second degree of the ministry, and has no small amount of work to do.

The peace of this church has been very much disturbed by false charges against our Annual Meeting. I was told of some things, but no proof was produced. Missionaries have been sent there who did not have the Brethren's cause at heart, and the usual result followed.

The cloud seems to be vanishing, and we trust the church will soon be gliding along peacefully again.

We began meetings Feb. 23, at Fraternity, with small congregations, and continued until March 3, when we closed with a much increased crowd.

The church here knows how to get work out of a visiting minister. The last day of our labor with them we traveled in buggy twenty-eight miles and filled two appointments. Three were baptized (Bro. Robertson's wife was one of the number) and another visited. The morning we left we met another lady in the road who had been at our meetings. She expressed herself as being ready to unite with us, but desired to wait a few days on her husband.

We had a very pleasant visit among the Father's children and we learned to love them dearly. They need more ministerial help and would be glad if some minister would locate in their midst.

They have a very good country and can raise wheat, corn, oats, cane, cotton and, in fact, everything adapted to the temperate zone in the way of fruits and vegetables.

Land is worth from $12 to $20 per acre. Railroads are being built all through this section. Any minister desiring information can apply to J. F. Robertson, Salem, N. C.

We arrived home March 6, where we found all well, for which we feel grateful to the Father.

In Memoriam.

The people all around were startled when they heard the first announcement that Eld. William P. Nice was dead. It was so unexpected that it could hardly be credited. It was known that he had not been quite well, but his case was not considered serious, even by his physician.

The brethren, assisted by Eld. Hiram Gibble, of White Oak, Lancaster Co., Pa., held a series of meetings in the Indian Creek church near Harleysville, Pa., of which Eld. Nice was the housekeeper. Bro. Nice took much interest in the meetings, and was very solicitous for the prosperity of the church. The weather was cold at the time, and Eld. Nice, though a healthy man, took a cold, which resulted fatally. He died Feb. 27, 1889, leaving a disconsolate widow, and seven children, all married. His funeral was a very sorrowful one, for nearly the whole church seemed to mourn. His age was sixty-six years, nine months and ten days. He served in the ministry about thirty-five years, and was ordained to the office of bishop in November last. He was quite a fluent speaker in the German language, and was well versed in Scripture. His death is a hard stroke on the church and a great loss, according to our way of thinking, but God's ways are not our ways.

Bro. Nice will surely receive a crown of glory and an inheritance among the children of God!

Jas. Y. Heckler.

From Lick Creek Church, Williams Co., Ohio.

The home ministers of the above-named church began a series of meetings Feb. 10, and on the 11th Bro. David Berkeybile, of Delta, Ohio, came to their aid and conducted the meeting until the evening of the 13th, when Bro. Henry Frantz came and took charge of the meeting, and continued until the evening of the 24th, preaching in all nineteen sermons, in which he shunned not to declare the whole counsel of God. We think many good and lasting impressions were made by his clear way of explaining the commands and precepts of Christ. He appealed to the intelligence of the people, and not the emotional nature.

We also had a series of meetings in the western part of our congregation in, what is known, as the Eden church. Bro. John Felthouse, of Brighton, Ind., did the preaching. This meeting began on Feb. 17, and continued two weeks. Interest and attendance were good.

BRO. SOLOMON BUCKLEW'S address is now Canton, Fulton Co., Ill.

OUR hooks are filled with manuscript. We have many excellent articles which will appear in due time.

WE have a large number of queries on hand. These will be answered as soon as we can find time and space.

ARRANGEMENTS with Western railroads for those desiring to attend the Annual Meeting, will be announced in a short time. Our railroad agent, Mr. G. L. McDonaugh, has made requests of the various associations, and an early reply is expected.

A FRIEND, to whom some one kindly sent the MESSENGER as a donation, says, "The MESSENGER is the best religious paper I have read." We have many unsolicited expressions of this kind, showing that our church paper is appreciated by others than our own members.

REV. ROBERT BROWN, pastor of the M. E. church at this place, has been preaching a series of sermons against dancing, card-playing and kindred vices. He has the courage of his convictions, and calls these evils by their right name. He characterizes the ordinary church festival and lottery with other forms of gambling. We commend him for his courage.

BRO. R. H. MILLER reached this place on the 15th inst., and left on the 18th, in company with Bro. J. G. Royer, for Ray county, Mo., where, as has already been announced in these columns, he will meet Eld. Daniel Summers, of the Christian church, in debate. Bro. Miller preached several sermons during his short stay, which were much appreciated by all who heard them. We expect to publish a synopsis of the debate in the MESSENGER.

WE give this week a letter from the Secretary of the Committee of Arrangements for our next Annual Meeting. Preserve this copy of the MESSENGER, as you may want to refer to it again.

MAY WOMEN PUBLICLY PROPHESY?

[IN a recent issue of the MESSENGER we referred to the examination given the above-named subject by our late, beloved Editor-in-Chief, Eld. James Quinter, and stated that, if it was desired, the articles might be republished. A number of requests have come in, asking that we give them again to our readers, and this we now do. We suggest to those who do not preserve files of the MESSENGER, that they carefully preserve the numbers of the MESSENGER containing Bro. Quinter's exposition, for future reference.—ED.]

NUMBER II.

IN the examination of the subject that we are making, we examined in our first article what liberty women enjoyed in regard to prophesying under the Jewish dispensation. From the facts we gathered, it seems they enjoyed considerable liberty. We shall now examine the New Testament oracles, to ascertain their utterances on the same subject.

During our Lord's ministry on earth, such respect was shown to the female sex, that clearly indicated that a degree of honor was to be given to woman in the kingdom of heaven that he came to introduce, and her sphere of activity was to be enlarged in that kingdom beyond what she had generally before experienced in the different nations of the earth. In the history of the early part of our Lord's ministry we read that among those who followed him in his journeyings, were certain women who had been healed of evil spirits and infirmities, and these ministered unto him of their substance. Luke 8: 2, 3. These women, living when they did, and under the circumstances under which they lived, had, no doubt, much opposition to encounter in thinking for themselves upon the subject of religion, and in accepting the religion of Christ, which was at that time very unpopular. But that opposition was boldly and successfully encountered. Our Lord not only accepted the ministry, or assistance, of these women, but he departed from the popular usages of society in giving the attention he did to females that needed his attention and help. Several women, that probably were despised by many, met with favor and sympathy from the merciful Savior. Among these were the women of the despised Samaritans, John 4: 7-30, the trembling suppliant who sought his gracious favor, but who only ventured to touch the hem of his garment, Matt. 9: 20, 22, and the poor, humble penitent that washed his feet with her tears, Luke 7: 36-50.

After the resurrection of our Lord, still more regard was shown by him to several of his female followers. It was to Mary Magdalene that he first appeared after his resurrection, Mark 16: 9; and it was she whom he first commissioned to bear the tidings of his resurrection to his disciples. This was done in the following words: "Go to my brethren, and say unto them, I ascend unto my Father, and your Father, and to my God and your God. Mary Magdalene came and told the disciples that she had seen the Lord, and that he had spoken these things unto her." John 20: 17, 18. And as our Lord's female followers showed so much courage and so much devotion to him, during his trial and crucifixion, it seems reasonable and right that he should honor them as they had honored him.

What is said in regard to the results of the pouring out of the Spirit on the day of Pentecost, plainly shows that women were to prophesy under the Gospel dispensation. Peter's application of the language of Joel clearly proves this: "And it shall come to pass in the last days, saith the Lord, I will pour out of my Spirit upon all flesh, and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, and your young men shall see visions, and your old men shall dream dreams, and on my servants, and on my handmaidens, I will pour out in those days of my Spirit, and they shall prophesy." Acts 2: 17, 18. While it is plain, from the language of Peter above quoted, that women were to prophesy, there is no intimation whatever that there was to be any difference between them and men. This does not seem to have been any new endowment of women, for we have already seen that "Deborah was a prophetess and judged Israel." Judges 4: 5.

But while there were but few that prophesied in the Jewish dispensation, it was to be common in the Gospel dispensation, as Peter's language implies, and with this idea agrees Paul's language in 1 Cor. 14: 31, "For ye may all prophesy one by one, that all may learn, and that all may be comforted." The apostle seems to give liberty here to both men and women to prophesy, for he says, "ye may all prophesy one by one." The word all is used here three times—all may prophesy, all may learn and all may be comforted. Then, as all, in the last two applications that are made of it, embraces both men and women, it would seem that in the first application it should also refer to both. It is true, a passage that seems to forbid woman to prophesy, follows pretty closely after the one above quoted that seems to give liberty to all. But we shall see hereafter that the passage that forbids women to speak under certain circumstances, does not prohibit them from prophesying. That women had the liberty of praying and prophesying seems to be plainly conceded from 1 Cor. 11: 5: "Every woman that prayeth or prophesieth with her head uncovered, dishonoreth her head, for that is even all one as if she were shaven." If the apostle would have designed to prohibit women from praying and prophesying in public altogether, it appears to us that he evidently would have done so in connection with the reproof that he administered to them for praying and prophesying with their heads uncovered. That this had been done by them in public, there can be no doubt. This is clear from the way in which the apostle speaks of the reproach that women incurred by having their heads uncovered in time of worship. For a woman to have appeared with her head uncovered in retirement from the world, or in her own family, would not, we presume, have been the great reproach to her, that the apostle exposes and reproves. So it seems that the offense that the Christian women of Corinth committed, was, praying and prophesying with their heads uncovered, not in the family, but in church. This is further manifested from the consideration that the disorder in praying and prophesying among the Corinthian Christians, is mentioned in connection with the disorder in holding the Lord's Supper. But the disorder in the Lord's Supper occurred in the church, hence the inference would seem to be just, that the disorder in praying and prophesying also occurred in the church.

That the apostle did not design to prohibit Christian women from prophesying altogether, and that there were some in the apostolic church that did prophesy, is further manifest from what is said of, and to, the church of Thyatira, Rev. 2: 18–29. There was a woman called Jezebel in this church, that taught a very corrupt form of heresy. The prophetess is threatened with severe punishment, and the church is reproved. But a careful reading of the address of our Lord to this church, will show that it was the wickedness of this prophetess, and of the doctrine that she taught, that was so offensive to him, and not the fact that the church permitted a prophetess to teach. There is nothing apparently said against her teaching, and, had she taught the truth, from all that appears, there would have been no offense committed by her, or by the church. There were some that kept themselves pure from the corrupt doctrine taught by Jezebel. These are addressed by our Lord as follows: "But unto you I say, and unto the rest in Thyatira (as many as have not this doctrine, and which have not known the depths of Satan, as they speak) I will put upon you none other burden; but that which ye have already, hold fast till I come." Rev. 2: 24, 25. The faithful in the church at Thyatira, were not commended for having opposed the teaching or prophesying of a woman, but for having rejected her corrupt doctrine. Had it been wrong for a woman to teach, as Jezebel did, the faithful would have rejected her, and for such a rejection they would have been commended. But they are not commended for that, but for showing no countenance to her heretical doctrine. Hence, we infer that the offense of the church in Thyatira was not that it permitted a woman to teach, but that it permitted a bad woman to teach, and to teach very corrupt doctrine.

As a fulfillment of the prophecy of Joel, quoted by Peter, we have the following: "And the next day, we that were of Paul's company, departed, and came unto Cesarea: and we entered into the house of Philip the evangelist (which was one of the seven), and abode with him. And the same man had four daughters, virgins, which did prophesy." Acts 21: 8, 9.

The gift of prophecy enjoyed by the daughters of Philip, seems to have consisted in that form of prophecy that Paul explains in 1 Cor. 14: 3, "He that prophesieth, speaketh unto men to edification, and exhortation and comforteth," and not in foretelling future events. This is probable from the consideration that, though these virgins did prophesy, they did not foretell the trouble Paul was to meet with at Jerusalem. This the prophet Agabus did. Acts 21: 10, 11. And as all these virgins, the daughters of Philip, did prophesy, it is not at all probable that their prophesying was confined to their own family, or to the private circle.

In the further discussion of our subject, we shall notice a number of texts occurring in the epistles of Paul. And we shall first notice the great truth stated in the following passage: "There is neither Jew nor Greek; there is neither bond nor free; there is neither male nor female: for ye are all one in Christ Jesus." Gal. 3: 28. While the oneness in regard to male and female, that is referred to by the apostle, may not be a oneness in every conceivable respect, we can not limit it to mere enjoyment. It no doubt extends in a considerable degree to the privileges enjoyed by Christians of both sexes under the Gospel dispensation. But whether the oneness in regard to the sexes, recognized by the apostle, extends to prophesying in public, we shall not here positively affirm, as that must be determined by the general tenor of Gospel teaching. The oneness referred to no doubt extends to many things to be held and enjoyed in common by Christians of both sexes, and it may extend to the liberty of prophesying in public. Dr. Macknight, a popular commentator, in explaining 1 Cor. 14: 34, and 1 Tim. 2: 11, 12, makes Paul's language contain a prohibition of Christian women's speaking in public, yet, when paraphrasing and explaining Gal. 3: 28, he gives the passage the following meaning: "In Christ Jesus there is no distinction of persons as under the law: under the Gospel no Jew is superior to a Greek; neither are slaves inferior to free men, nor are males preferred to females; for ye are all one, in respect to dignity and privileges, under the Gospel dispensation." Now, how males and females can be one "in respect to dignity and privilege," and yet females be prohibited from prophesying, or from "speaking unto men to edification, and exhortation and comfort," which is the meaning of prophesying, according to Paul, if they should feel prompted to do so, we can not understand, for there seems to be a contradiction in such a view of the subject.

We have already seen that Paul, in 1 Cor. 14: 34, one of the passages in which he is thought, by some, to prohibit women from prophesying publicly, refers to a law to which they are to be obedient. That law is understood to be Gen. 3: 16, "And thy desire shall be to thy husband, and he shall rule over thee." This law was given by God to woman after the fall, and it was intended to humiliate her because of her transgression. And we presume that we may justly infer that, had not woman sinned, her subjection to man would not have been required of her to the extent it now is, and that there would not have been as much difference between them in regard to the authority that the man has over the woman, as there now is. Hence it seems to be reasonable that in the new creation that takes place when men and women are born again, the difference between them in respect to the power of the man over the woman is not so absolute as it was at first, when woman was a transgressor.

We shall next notice what Paul says of certain Christian women, and of the position they seem to have occupied in the apostolic church.

1. "I commend unto you Phebe, our sister, which is a servant of the church, which is at Cenchrea; that ye receive her in the Lord, as becometh saints; and that ye assist her in whatsoever business she hath need of you; for she hath been a succorer of many, and of myself also." Rom. 16: 1, 2. Here we have a Christian woman distinguished for her labor and official standing in the apostolic church. The honorable title of "servant of the church," is given to her by the apostle, according to the reading of our version of the New Testament, but the general judgment of writers, in referring to her position in the church, has decided that she was a deaconness. And several translations of the New Testament read, "a deaconness of the church." And this seems to be a correct translation. The Revised Version has deaconness as a marginal reading. And it is stated on good authority that there were deaconnesses in the primitive and apostolic church.

If, then, Christian women filled the official position of deaconess in the apostolic church, it would seem to follow that we must put a construction on Paul's language in 1 Cor. 14: 34, 35, different to that which is put upon it, when it is interpreted to prohibit women from speaking or prophesying in the church. For, with the duties that are usually associated with the office of deacon or deaconess, we can not easily reconcile the performance of those duties by the incumbent if debarred from all liberty of speaking in the church.

2. "Greet Priscilla and Aquila, my helpers in Christ Jesus; who have for my life laid down their own necks: unto whom not only I give thanks, but also all the churches of the Gentiles. Likewise greet the church that is in their house." Rom. 16: 3–5. These two earnest workers in the church are also referred to in the Acts of the Apostles. When Paul came to Corinth on one of his journeys, he met them at Corinth (Acts 18: 2), and they accompanied him on his journey. Acts 18: 18. At the close of the same chapter, we have the statement made that Aquila and Priscilla took unto them Apollos, "and expounded unto him the way of God more perfectly," as he knew only the baptism of John. In the case of Priscilla, the wife of Aquila, we have a Christian woman mentioned in connection with her husband, and in a manner that seems to indicate that she stood on a level with him in regard to the high tribute of praise bestowed upon them by the apostle. (1) They taught Apollos "the way of God more perfectly." (2) They had done that which justified the apostle in saying they had "laid down their own necks for him." (3) They had done that which made all the churches of the Gentiles feel under obligations to them for they all gave thanks to them. (4) They had a church in their own house. (5) They are called by Paul his "helpers in Christ Jesus." In the Revised Version the reading is, "my fellow-workers in Christ Jesus." Lord translates it "my co-laborers in Christ Jesus." Dr. Macknight translates it, "my fellow-laborers in Christ Jesus," and paraphrases it as follows: "In my name wish health to Priscilla and Aquila her husband, my assistants in preaching the Gospel at Corinth." Now the idea that a Christian woman of such a noble Christian character, and of such a great Christian influence, as Priscilla is represented to have been, would not be permitted to speak or prophesy in the church, not even in the church in her own house, can not easily be reconciled with the general teaching of the Gospel, nor with the spirit of Christianity as it is learned from the Gospel, and Paul could hardly have designed to prohibit such a Christian woman from prophesying in the church publicly.

3. "Salute Tryphena and Tryphosa, who labor in the Lord. Salute the beloved Persis, which labored much in the Lord." Rom. 16: 12. Here we have three Christian women who are said to have labored in the Lord. This form of expression, "labor in the Lord," seems to refer to spiritual labor, though not necessarily to public labor. Yet, if women did prophesy publicly, as we are inclined to think they did, then such a phrase as "labor in the Lord," would naturally associate with it the idea of public labor for the promotion of the cause of the Lord. We have the following in Rom. 16: 6, "Greet Mary, who bestowed much labor on us." Now this, no doubt, was Christian labor, but it was labor bestowed by Mary on the servants of God. But the phrase, "labor in the Lord," which is applied to the service rendered by Tryphena, Tryphosa and Persis, seems to convey a different idea, and, as already remarked, seems to associate with it the idea of ministerial labor.

CHIPS FROM THE WORK-HOUSE.

BY DANIEL VANIMAN.

KNOWING that we as a people have much to learn about city work, I clip the following from the March number of The Treasury, coming from one who has much experience in city work. It is well worth careful reading and prayerful thought.

CITY EVANGELIZATION—ITS METHODS.

By Moses D Hoge, D. D.

In the destitute districts of our cities I venture to suggest that we should combine two plans of operation — the establishment of a few large churches and the multiplication of small centres of evangelistic effort. There is a strange power in the sympathy and zeal engendered by the aggregation of numbers in a noble enterprise. The Church of England has taken advantage of this principle in the use of its great cathedrals for popular services. This is notably true of St. Paul's Cathedral and of Westminster Abbey. Once these stately edifices were the shrines of exclusive aristocratic churchism; now they are thronged by the multitude, made up of all sorts and conditions of men, attracted by the most eloquent and learned divines of the English Establishment. If the best known, most honored ministers of our great city churches would each select the most destitute locality known to him, inhabited by the most ignorant and degraded of the population, and in the largest building which could be secured for the purpose would commence an afternoon or a night service, results the most cheering would crown these labors of love. The inhabitants of these neglected localities would be conciliated by the spectacle of men, constrained only by love for their souls, engaged in these self-denying toils; and far more important than that, men who have proved their power by the capacity they have shown in the management of the great charges committed to them are the men best qualified to minister to those who differ from the heathen only in speaking the English language, and in adopting the vices of civilization. And when under their ministrations souls are awakened, and the cry, "What must I do to be saved?" is heard, then the experience, the prudence and the sympathy of such pastors will find the noblest field of exercise.

I know the objections that can be urged to such a course. I know how city pastors are already overburdened, how they are pressed beyond measure by exacting duties regularly recurring, and distracted by unexpected demands on their time; but, brethren, we do not know how much work we can accomplish under the fresh incitement of new and promising avenues for usefulness opening immediately before us, and beckoning on to success surpassing any we have hitherto known.

If, I, an humble minister in a small city, without presumption, might refer to my own experience in mission work, I would say that for three years I have preached three times every Sabbath, the third service being held in what is called the Old Market Hall, the largest in Richmond, and situated in a densely populated neighborhood, singularly overlooked, and in sore need of what the Gospel alone can supply. There I have a congregation limited only by the size of the building.

It is an eager, expectant throng, the very sight of which is at once subduing and animating. If I am fatigued by the second service in my church in the afternoon, I am refreshed and invigorated by the third, held in the hall at night.

At first my congregations were disorderly, many of them never having attended a religious service in their lives; but now they are as decorous as any of yours are on a sacramental Sabbath. We have connected with this mission a medical infirmary, free of charge; a Bible-class, a Sabbath-school, prayer-meetings in private houses, a society, composed of the young ladies of my church, rendering help in every way in their power to girls living in the vicinity of the hall, and every Thursday night a meeting for inquirers, seeking the way of life; and the last one I attended was the most encouraging of all since I commenced my work in that part of the city.

I number these three years among the most delightful of my life, and I can never be too grateful for the privilege of gathering such a multitude around me, so willing to be instructed, and rewarding my interest in them by the most unmistakable evidences of affection.

In providing places for the gathering of the people in such localities, it will often be found that a public hall or large apartment in some building devoted to secular purposes, is more attractive than a church edifice. Mortifying though it be, it is a fact that many of those whom we wish to reach regard churches as the retreats of spiritual aristocracy. Ecclesiastical architecture has no charm in their eyes. The freedom of a hall into which they can enter unembarrassed, as open to them as a public square, where they can feel at ease in their working clothes—the only ones they have, it may be—and where there is no reminder of social inequalities, is something they appreciate most decidedly, and forms a strong inducement to attend the religious services to which they have been invited. This must not be forgotten by those who seek to gather in the classes that have no pleasant associations with the house of God. That will come afterwards, if they can be interested in the first services which they have been persuaded to attend.

There is one department of worship which may be made especially attractive to the multitude gathered at our mission stations. All of us have felt what Augustine experienced in listening to the commingled voices of the great congregation lifted up in praise, though we might not be able to express it as he has done. "How freely," says he, "was I made to weep by those hymns and spiritual songs, how transported by the voice of the congregation sweetly singing. The melody of their voices filled my ear, and divine Truth was poured into my heart. Then burned the flame of devotion in my soul, and gushing tears flowed from my eyes, as well they might." Such music goes down into the memory as dew sinks into the heart of a rose, giving refreshment and gaining sweetness.

The hymns which never wear out are those which are rich in evangelical truth, expressed in the language of true poetry; and yet, for the masses, hymns made up chiefly of chorus are often the most effective. There may be little connection between the hymn and the chorus, so far as the thought is concerned. It does not matter. The chorus may contain but a single truth. It is all the better for that. That one idea is worked into, sung into the mind and heart by repetition, and thus the chorus is more effective than the hymn. Take this for example:

"O, depth of mercy! can it be
That gate was left ajar for me."

All through the week such refrains run through the memory; to the man on the scaffold of the house he is building, to the driver of the tram-car, to the woman bending over her needle, the words return,

"O, depth of mercy! can it be
That gate was left ajar for me?"

Hymns of worship are to be preferred to didactic hymns, and yet one expression concerning the worth of the soul or the preciousness of the Savior, may awaken conviction, or the hope of pardon and lead that soul to Christ.

A solo is out of place in congregational worship, and yet in this very city I saw hundreds in tears as Mr. Sankey sang one year ago in the Wanamaker building.

Then, with what care the preacher to such an audience must select his themes! How natural must be his manner, how patient, earnest, tender must be his spirit, and if he hopes to secure attention at all, how simple must be his style, how full of illustrations drawn from common life, that his sermons may be intelligible from end to end. A minister once rose to address one of the most ignorant audiences ever gathered. His first sentence was this: "As in physics so in ethics, like causes produce like effects!" Of course his hearers did not know even in what language he was speaking. How different would have been the introduction, had Whitefield been the preacher, or Archibald Alexander, or Spurgeon, or any of God's chosen sons anointed to preach the Gospel to the poor and to move the multitude, as the trees of the wood shaken by mighty winds.

Notes from our Correspondents.

"As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country."

—A series of meetings, continuing for two weeks, was held recently in the Richland church, Richland Co., Ohio. The meetings closed Feb. 24, with five additions by baptism.

—Bro. L. D. Caldwell, of Matthias, W. Va., informs us that during 1888 they had forty-one additions to their congregation by baptism. Bro. Caldwell states that during the same length of time he conducted the funeral services of seventeen persons.

—Sister Berkey, of Rossville, Shawnee Co., Kans., has been isolated from the church for over three years. She knows of no church near the place where she lives, and, in her isolation, she doubly values the weekly visits of the MESSENGER. She asks the brethren and sisters to remember her in their prayers, that she may once more enjoy sanctuary privileges.

—Under date of March 7, Bro. Josiah Beeghly, of Engle's Mills, Garrett Co., Md., writes: "We had our quarterly council to-day. Everything went off peaceably and quietly. We had no query for District Meeting. Four were added to the church by baptism. One sister was baptized about seven weeks ago, which makes five additions since Jan. 1."

—The particulars of a sad accident are given to us by Bro. C. D. Hylton: "On Feb. 15, while cutting timber, Abram Weddle was killed instantly by a falling limb, which struck him on the head. He did not have time to offer the publican's prayer, but was hurled into the presence of God in a moment. He had neglected that all-important work of preparing to meet God. He was a son of Bro. Isaac Weddle. Funeral services by the Brethren, from Heb. 10: 31: 'It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God.' Sinners, prepare to meet God!"

—Bro. S. T. Harnes, of the National Soldiers' Home, near Dayton, Ohio, writes: "The Brethren of the Lower Miami church held their regular quarterly council March 7. Considerable business was before the meeting, but there seemed to be a good feeling among the members, and all business passed off pleasantly. The church was admonished by Bro. John Bowman. The Sunday-school question was brought up, and it was decided to have a school, and arrangements were made to organize March 16. We hope that it will prove a source of good to us all, as well as to the building up of the church."

—Under date of March 11, Bro. Lemuel Hillery, of Hutchinson, Kansas, writes: "The Pleasant View church has decided to hold a love-feast on Thursday evening, April 18. This will be the day following District Meeting. Communion services will commence at 3: 30 P. M. We want the brethren and sisters to stay for the feast, and one or more of the ministering brethren to remain with us over Sunday. All those who come by rail should start so as to be here day before meeting. Those coming from the South on Missouri Pacific, will be met at Elmer at 1 o'clock P. M. on the day before meeting (ministerial meeting), and 1 P. M, next day, for District Meeting. Those coming on Missouri Pacific from the North and West, and also from the Sante Fe and Rock Island, will be met on both Monday and Tuesday, but only for the forenoon trains, the place of meeting being ten miles from Hutchinson."

—Bro. Samuel A. Driver witnessed a distressing accident at New Hope, Augusta Co., Va., of which he writes as follows: "While I accompanied my brother to the depot to board the train, we saw Mrs. Geo. Weaver coming toward us, shouting wildly and frantically to her husband, who was at work near by, that their little girl, Maggie, had caught fire at the stove while she was on an errand to a neighbor's house. I started, with the father, to run to the scene, about a quarter of a mile distant. When within a short distance of the house, I met the most ghastly sight I ever beheld. The little girl, in a sitting posture, was in the open yard gate, her clothing all burned off excepting her shoes and stockings; her flesh was burned to a crisp. With outstretched arms she plead to her father for help. Whilst her father picked her up and carried her into the house, I summoned doctors Ewing and Christian to her assistance, but it was of no avail except to alleviate her pain while life lasted. She lived but four hours, and was rational until put under the influence of morphine. She was a bright and intelligent little girl of nearly six years. Her interment took place next day."

—George U. and Ida Creager, of Baltimore, Md., write: "We wish to thank all the brethren, sisters and friends at McPherson for their kindness extended to our son, Charles F. Creager, during his sickness. Brethren Sharp, Studebaker, and Eshelman are especially deserving of praise for their untiring efforts in his behalf. May the Lord bless them!"

JAN. 9, Bro. James A. Sell, of McKee's Gap, Pa., came to the Antietam congregation to hold a series of meetings, which continued for two weeks. During this time Bro. James labored each evening, and several meetings were held in the daytime. All of them were instructive and edifying There were no accessions to the church, though some felt the convictions of sin. The church is constantly standing, with her arms open, and glad to receive all true seekers into her fold. Great danger and much trouble may grow out of an imprudent ingathering, by unduly prevailing and working on the feelings of persons, instead of proper teachings and instructions being imparted to them, that they may fully know their duty,—what they can expect of the church, and what the church will expect of them. This not being fully understood before, afterwards they become dissatisfied with their engagement and proceed to violate the contract. We have experienced that, from our meetings, there were lasting impressions made upon the minds of the membership.

T. F. IMLER.

From Florida.

THE death of my companion last fall, the sickness incident thereto, and the additional family care that has fallen upon me since I am left alone, have prevented me from doing much preaching for nearly one year. One week ago I visited the members at Keuka and Hawthorn, Fla., remaining with them nearly one week. I had not been on my place since last spring, and was pleased to find it in such fine condition. Many of the orange trees that I set out with my own hands are now in full bloom and the peach trees laden with fruit, now the size of hazel-nuts.

I found the members in peace, cheerful and hopeful. At times the Florida excitement ran high, but it has now settled down to the reality, and those that are here are likely to remain, and form a solid basis from which the upbuilding of the church and country will take another and a better start. From time to time others will settle here, and I look for the church at Keuka to be strong and influential. The members are well disposed toward each other, and stand well with their neighbors. In their church and Sunday-school work they are in advance of other denominations in that community. They are now preparing to place a neat picket fence around the meeting-house, repaint the building and set the lot in orange trees, so that in coming years our visiting members, from the snow-covered regions of the North, can have the pleasure of worshiping amid the outspreading branches of the evergreen orange trees, either laden with the golden fruit, or covered with bloom, emitting a fragrance that, amid prayers and songs, will remind the faithful of that land beyond the river where frosts are never seen and the long summer is given.

The work is in charge of Bro. E. J. Neher, who, during the last winter, has been greatly assisted by brethren J. C. Lahman, of Franklin Grove, Ill.; Robert Metsker, of Denver, Ind., and Garman, of Ohio, all of whom, with their families, have been spending the winter at Keuka, and it is a pleasure for me to say, that they have all conducted themselves in such a becoming Christian manner as to have made many warm friends, both in the church and out of it.

I spent two days with the members at Hawthorn. Bro. Frederick Sherfy had charge of the work here, but much to all of our regrets, he is going to Virginia, leaving the preaching in the hands of Bro. B. F. Bowser, who lives a little to one side of the main body of the members. At this place I presided over the first council-meeting, for adjusting difficulties, that I have attended in Florida. There was one last winter, that I could not attend. Everything was settled to the entire satisfaction of all present. We had managed to get along without regular council-meetings. Occasionally, prior to love-feasts, the members met to consult, and all passed off peaceably.

Bro. J. C. Lahman has purchased land, and planted out a grove near Hawthorn, much to the encouragement of the members at that place. The members here seem to be doing well, and are likely to make a success of it, but they need more help in the ministry, and I hope some good ministers will locate among them. They live in a good country, where people have lived and prospered for forty years.

My visit to Florida, after an absence of nearly one year, is a source of considerable satisfaction to me. I now have more confidence in the future of that State than ever before. The work may be slow, but I think it will be sure, and the good cause firmly established by and by.

Concerning my own work I have little to say. While none of my four children are very young, the youngest being nearly five years old, they are, nevertheless, too small to be left much alone. It will therefore not be possible for me to do anything for some time. We are well situated for making a good living, have good school facilities, and plenty to keep us all busy, but the departure of my wife has made it necessary for me to suspend my regular appointments, and devote my attention to the family till the children get older. In the start we had a good prospect for locating members, and I believe a church might have been built up in the course of a year or two. I have said this much personally in answer to many inquiries, and also as my excuse for not finishing my promised series of articles on the Great South.

From Fredonia, Kans.

BRO. SIDNEY HODGDEN came among us Feb. 1, and held forth the Word with power, shunning not to declare the whole counsel of God. He preached for us one week, baptizing three, assisting in the holding of an election for two deacons, and advancing a brother to the second degree of the ministry. The lot fell on brethren Frank Waas and Charles Horner as deacons. Bro. Jacob Frantz was advanced. Such are God's ways,—the young are stepping in, while the old are stepping out. Soon we all may join the angelic throng!

ALLEN A. OBERLIN.

From Laurel Run, Pa.

BRO. H. W. STRICKLER, of Loraine, Ill., commenced a series of meetings Feb. 8, and continued till March 1. Nine souls expressed a desire to go with the people of God, and were buried with Christ in baptism. There are four other applicants that were not ready yet for baptism, and many others that were almost persuaded to come. Oh, sinner, do not put it off too long, but come to Christ while it is yet called to-day, for to-morrow is not ours! May the Lord help many more to come soon, for the night cometh wherein no man can work! The writer could not attend these meetings on account of his wife's illness. She has been confined to her bed for four weeks with a severe attack of pneumonia. She called for the elders of the church during our meeting, and was anointed in the name of the Lord, according to the epistle of James. She feels much strengthened, both physically and spiritually, and desires the prayers of the entire Brotherhood in her affliction.

The church was much revived by the meetings held at this place. A prayer-meeting will soon be organized. Bro. Strickler did us much good by coming among us. We had truly an old-time revival meeting. Bro. Strickler held forth the Word with great power and zeal. May God bless the dear brother in his work! J. M. Ritter.

Kecksburg, Pa., March 4.

From Okaw Church, Ill.

March 7 we held our quarterly council. The attendance was rather small, owing, I suppose, to bad roads, but we had a good meeting. Everything passed off pleasantly. We felt sorry that we had so many letters of membership to give. Seven of the number have been teachers in our Sunday-school, and two of them scholars. While we will miss them, other churches will be benefited by their walk and conduct among them. Our church decided to commence her Sunday-school again this spring, and elected Bro. Uriah Edgecomb, Superintendent, and Bro. Rufus Hendricks, Assistant.

We have had no additions this winter. We expect Bro. Menno Stauffer, of Mahomet, Champaign Co., Ill., this evening, and, if the weather is favorable, he will preach a while for us. We hope that our members will be revived and built up in the most holy faith which was delivered unto the saints. May sinners be warned to flee the wrath to come!

Our church is in peace and union, as far as I know. Many warm-hearted members give to the missionary work with a free will. This is right, for God "loveth a cheerful giver." While we give to him, he will give to us, not only in this world, but in the world to come, a hundredfold!

Alta C. Eikenberry.

Cerro Gordo, Ill., March 8.

From Edgemont, Md.

Bro. S. F. Sanger, of Bridgewater, Va., met with the brethren and sisters at the Welty church, near the above-named place, belonging to the Antietam congregation, Feb. 9. He preached, in all, twenty sermons, and also two sermons in the Brethren's church at Waynesboro'. The meetings were well attended, notwithstanding the uninviting state of the weather and bad condition of the roads at times. Bro. Sanger has made many friends at these places, by "earnestly contending for the faith once delivered unto the saints."

Bro. Sanger showed with force the propriety of our entire consecration by and through our love for the Brotherhood. The fact was firmly impressed upon us that we are either representatives of Jesus Christ or of Paris. Unfortunately for the human race, the majority seem to be for Paris. The covering and non-covering question was candidly treated. He showed that there is power to be realized in the observance of it. Sisters, who wear the covering adopted by the church, do not want to wear the hat, as the two do not agree. This will also prevent our sisters from going to places not befitting them. The brethren, also, if strictly consistent, will be kept from many a snare.

These meetings resulted in four applicants. Three have been baptized, and one is to be baptized in two weeks. One of this number is an old soldier who has now concluded to become a soldier of Jesus Christ. He has been making his home with Bro. J. M. Stover, near where the meeting was held. We hope that all may prove valiant soldiers of the cross! T. F. Imler.

Notes by the Way.

I am home again from York County, Pa., where I have been laboring for the Master in Eld. Jacob Shamberger's district for three weeks. I preached in the city of York two weeks. Here Bro. John Flory, of Rockingham County, Va., kindly filled two appointments for me, to the satisfaction of all present.

York is a city of about 28,000 inhabitants. The Brethren there have a commodious, plain house of worship, and they are in earnest. They realize what it has cost them to become free men and women in Christ, and their desire is that their friends may also become free. They love to hear the plain, unvarnished truth. They are aware that they are living in the age when men will not endure sound doctrine.

Through the labors of the Brethren quite a number of persons in the city of York see the "confusion of Babylon," and I hope and pray that they will come out of her before her overthrow, as she is destined to be overthrown.

I also spent a week in the country, about eight miles from the city, at the Codorus church, which is the mother church of that district. They have been accustomed to holding but a few meetings at a time; I found them just as eager for the sincere milk of the Word here as anywhere else. My conclusion is that the children of God are the same anywhere—that is, they want to know all things commanded of Jesus, and they love to feast upon his promises.

The brethren and sisters there are mostly of German descent, yet they can understand English. They love to hear the Gospel preached, either in German or English, just so that it is simplified, as Jesus intended it should be, when he gave us examples by his illustrations, such as the "lilies," "sparrows," "buildings," parables of "sheep," "fishes" and the "sower."

Brethren in the ministry, if you visit York City and County, you will feel that you are in the royal family. All are children of a King. I was cared for in every particular, for which I hope the good Lord will reward them all!

I have a desire to meet all again, though it be not until the battle-scarred soldiers will have their reunion on the other shore, after the contest with sin and Satan is over! Jacob Hedrick.

Midland, Va.

A Missionary Tour.

Father and I left home Feb. 1st, to visit the Brethren, and hold meetings for them. Our first point was at Neel, Nebr., where Bro. Short and wife reside. Here we held three meetings in the town hall with good congregations and attention to the Word preached. We then proceeded on our journey to a few members living about fifteen miles north-east of Benkelman, and held four meetings for them, with good interest. From there we went to Cheyenne Co., Kan., and met with the Brethren in Bro. Slifer's school-house. Here we had three meetings and one applicant for baptism—the youngest son of Bro. Esrom Slifer. We then went to Bro. J. F. Cline's, in Sherman County, who is one of the ministers of Fairview church. The officials of said church, feeling that the harvest truly was great and the laborers few in this church, called for help both in the ministry and deacon's office, and, accordingly, the members met at the house of Bro. Cline, Feb. 12th, and, amid much prayer, and solemnity, gave their voice for the brethren whom they wished to make servants of the church. The lot for speaker fell on Bro. Marinus Peterson, and for deacon on Bro. William Welch. These brethren were installed into office amid many tears, and may God's choicest blessing attend them through life, to make them faithful workers in his kingdom.

The brethren of the above-named church had three appointments for meeting, and therefore father and I were separated, he going to one, and I with Bro. Cline to another. I preached twice a day until Friday evening. At this place one old lady, nearing her threescore years, came and said she wanted to unite with the people of God. It was said by all present that meetings closed too soon. All said, if we could have continued our meetings over Lord's day many more would have come, but arrangements had been made for another appointment on Sunday, and we had to bid them farewell, and go to feed other hungry children. Having done our Sunday's work, and the time having arrived when we had to turn our faces homeward, we again met at Bro. Cline's, and then bade the brethren farewell to go on our journey and do some more church work on our road home.

In company with Bro. Cline, we went to Lawn Ridge, and held one meeting in their union church in Cheyenne County. The next day, as previously appointed, we met at the house of Bro. Slifer for the purpose of holding an election for deacon. The lot here fell on our dear young brother, Oliver Slifer. May God's blessing and the prayers of the church be upon him, that he may prove a blessing to the solemn charge conferred upon him, and to the church for which he is called to work. The next day was set apart to administer baptism, and, in the presence of a large crowd of anxious, eager lookers-on, a young soldier went down into the liquid waters and was buried in the likeness of Christ's death.

This closed our work in Kansas, and bidding the Brethren farewell, we started again for Neel, Nebr., where we had agreed to preach again on our return home. Therefore, at the appointed time, we met a goodly number assembled, and tried to point them to the Lamb of God that taketh away the sins of the world. The people desired more meetings, and, to supply their wants, father remained over Sunday with them. I set out for home on Saturday morning, and arrived home that evening; found all well, after an absence of three weeks, for which we thank the Giver of all good. Father arrived home on the following Thursday and reported two applicants for baptism.

A. C. SNOWBERGER.

Annual Meeting for 1889.

THE Annual Meeting for 1889 will be held at Harrisonburg, Va., opening for public business on the 11th day of June.

To the brethren and sisters who will attend the Meeting, the following sketch of the town, surrounding country, and means of reaching the place, may be of some interest.

Harrisonburg is located in the center of the Shenandoah Valley, and surrounded by a thickly-settled country, under a good state of cultivation.

The town has a population of nearly 4,000 persons, and all seem to be interested in the coming Meeting. Much inquiry is made, and many are offering their services and putting forth their efforts to make the stay of the brethren and sisters here, a pleasant one.

The healthfulness of the country is hardly surpassed anywhere. The surrounding country is thickly settled, in various directions, by Brethren, and while the Meeting will be held in the Cook's Creek congregation, there are two more very near,—three church districts cornering at Harrisonburg.

The scenery is interesting. On the east and west are the Blue Ridge and Alleghany Mountains. Through the Valley flows the historic Shenandoah River, and sparkling streams make the country fertile in every direction. But a few miles distant are the watering places to which many persons resort, during the summer months, to regain their wasted health by the use of mineral waters. The famous caverns are of easy access, with all their beauty and grandeur. In many of these caverns nature has been lavish in her adornments, and the beholder is struck with awe at the huge pendants and glistening stalactites.

The Meeting grounds are immediately on the railroad, and also within three-fourths of a mile from the center of the town. There will be a station, during the Meeting, at the grounds, and within 200 yards of the Tabernacle.

Situated, as it is, on the Valley Branch of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, ample arrangements will be made, and the said Railroad Company has promised to furnish ample accommodations to reach the place of meeting, and good platforms, telegraph and ticket offices, etc., at the grounds.

Persons coming from the West will find the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad their most direct route, and the only one running to Harrisonburg, enabling them to reach the Annual Meeting grounds without delay. Upon arriving at Harper's Ferry, the Valley Branch train is taken, and the passengers step off the cars at the place of meeting.

In consideration of the fact that the Baltimore & Ohio Company will give a commission to the Executive Committee on each ticket sold, those who are interested in the success of church work should use this Road as much as convenient. This is not asked from a selfish motive, nor to the detriment of any other railroad, but from the fact that, all things being equal, a ticket over the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad means a revenue to the church, without any additional cost to the purchaser. As all surplus of Annual Meeting funds goes to the mission work, each one is enabled, without extra cost, to add materially to the welfare of the church, and we feel that this request should be fairly considered.

Persons desiring to secure lodging can do so by writing to any of the following brethren, who compose the Lodging Committee: N. W. Beery, Edom, Va.; D. T. Click, Dayton, Va.; D. B. Wampler, Keezletown, Va.

The Executive Committee is trying to secure tents to be used on the grounds, and should any desire to use them, write to the above-named Lodging Committee, and arrangements will be made.

Further notice in regard to railroad matters, schedules, connections, etc., will be published later, if necessary.

Any desired information, relative to the Meeting, will be cheerfully given.

P. S. THOMAS, Sec.

Harrisonburg, Va., March 12.

From Sand Ridge Church, Henry Co., Ohio.

A SERIES of meetings in the above church began Feb. 11, and continued until the evening of the 25th. Bro. Joseph Holder, of Lacon Co., O., did the preaching; he delivered nineteen discourses. An excellent interest was manifested all through the meetings, and good order prevailed. As an immediate result two souls were received, and baptized on Saturday, the 23rd. May God nourish and revive our little church that it may do more good in this part of God's moral vineyard! May the blessings of the Lord accompany our beloved minister through his future life, that he may do still more good and cause sinners to repent and become children of God!

T. J. MALLOTT.

From Dayton, Ohio.

I WISH to make a suggestion through your valuable paper in regard to the debt on the Dayton Brethren church, as suggested by a sister in No. 6, of GOSPEL MESSENGER "on bearing one another's burdens"—which we think would be quite an advantage. Why not sell the present church property, which is valuable, pay off the debt, and with the remainder buy a cheaper lot, build a neat, and comfortable church to Almighty God, make the city a district of itself, and have a good preacher who would reside here, for the people of Dayton are used to good preaching, if not used to so good a Gospel. A live, energetic, zealous man, after God's own heart, could build up a congregation here. He could have preaching every other Sunday morning, and every alternate Sunday evening. In this way we would have divine service every Lord's Day. Heretofore the preaching in a great measure has not been to that edification, for which the Gospel is intended. Then the members from the country, who live near by, could make it their personal duty to attend all these services. By so doing it will encourage the little band to press toward the mark for the prize of the "high calling of God in Christ Jesus." There is also a class of people who never attend church anywhere, on account of pride, and coldness in other churches. These might, by the power of God, and the earnestness of preacher and members, be saved. There are members and friends living in the city who would enjoy all these privileges, whereas it is now inconvenient to attend in the country.

The old, old story of Jesus is ever new, if the teacher is apt to teach it. If not, we are fed on husks, and might, perhaps, as well stay at home, and study the Scriptures for ourselves. It was partly from this cause that we left the "church of our first love," some six years ago. Being outside the fold so long, we feel a more urgent call than ever before to come home, if none should forbid our coming. Yet, who would dare, when Jesus said, "Whosoever will come unto me, I will in no wise cast out."

AUGUSTA ELSON.

Dayton, O.

From Fremont, Kans.

THE members of the Sand Creek church, Graham Co., met in quarterly council Feb. 15, at the home of Bro. Wm. Crouse. Our elder, Isaac Studebaker, of Quinter, Kans., was with us to give us counsel, and encourage us on our way. All the members were present but two. All business before the meeting passed off pleasantly. The church is in love and union, and in the order of the general Brotherhood. Bro. Studebaker gave us four sermons while with us. At present we are without a minister, hence Bro. Isaac has more to do than he is really able, as his health is poorly.

The writer was instructed to write for the GOSPEL MESSENGER, and invite a ministering brother to locate among us and labor for us, as we have a large field to work in, and the laborers according to the Gospel of Christ are few. The M. E. friends have organized a union Sunday-school, and have preaching every two weeks. As this is a good point for preaching, we hope soon to have the whole Gospel preached to us. Brethren, wanting to change their location by coming West, will address the writer at Fremont, Graham Co., Kans., who will give all information desired.

WM. C. HEISEL.

From Medical Lake, Spokane Co., Wash. Ter.

HAVING received many letters of inquiry from the Brethren and others, about our country, I thought best to write a little through the MESSENGER.

We have a healthy country, good climate, good water and plenty of timber. The land lays rolling and hilly in the eastern part of the Territory, but lays level west of here, though it is not as rich as the rolling land. We have much Government land yet, and all of the school land, which will soon be in market. We have railroad land worth from $2.50 to $10.00 per acre, on reasonable terms. This land all produces well, and a failure has never been known.

Grain averages from twenty-five to thirty bushels to the acre. Vegetables do well here; also fruit of most all kinds. We do not have any cyclones or heavy thunder-storms here. We have but little rain after July until fall, so that you can thresh your grain and leave it lay in sacks in the field. We do not have any insects to injure the grain. It will stand two weeks after being ripe, without harvesting.

We have a grass here, on the prairie, called "bunch grass," on which stock can live the year round. Horses are cheap out here, but cattle are high,—a good milch cow bringing from forty-five to sixty dollars.

There are only about thirty members living here, but they are in need of a shepherd to look after the little flock out here. We hope that our Brethren in the East will soon send us a speaker. Then others will follow.

JOHN H. POWELL.

Literary Notice.

"The Path to Wealth, or, Light from my Forge," published by B. F. Johnson & Co., Richmond, Va., price $1 75, is a book that none can read too carefully. It is written by "a blacksmith." There is an introduction by J. H. Vincent. There are papers on systematic beneficence, written for the work, by E. C. B. Hallam, F. R. Beattie, R. W. Woodsworth, John Pollard, and Wm. Taylor. From first to last, the book is a plea for Christian giving. The author takes the position that every Christian must give at least one-tenth to the Lord's work. No matter what his circumstances may be, no one is excused from giving. Books like this one are needed at the present time, and so are men who will advocate such principles. Professing Christians say that all they have comes from God. If this is so, are they doing a very great thing when they return a tenth of it to him? "Self-interest and blind prejudice, backed up by the devil, are arrayed on the one side, while God's plain declaration, . . . as well as sound argument, are on the other side, and I most earnestly exhort you to render obedience to these messengers of God, and 'Bring all the tithes into the storehouse'" And in the papers added to the work proper there is much that is good and helpful. One should not say that he has given anything to the Lord until after he has paid what God claims as his own. The evils of church sociables, etc., are spoken of. F. R. Beattie writes of them as follows: "I have looked with some care at these things, and have become more and more convinced that for the purpose of raising money for religious objects they are all wrong in principle and injurious in practice." Many other things are discussed, and the writers look at their subjects from a Bible stand-point. And this is why there is so much Christian principle in their words.

MATRIMONIAL.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

DAVIS.—In the Dunning's Creek church, Bedford Co., Pa., Oct. 29, 1888, sister Rebecca Davis, aged 70 years, 1 month and 26 days.

Deceased joined the church Oct. 18, 1846, and lived a consistent Christian life ever since. Services by J. B. Miller and Levi Rogers, from 2 Tim. 4: 6, 7.

MILLER.—In the Brother's Valley church, Pa., Dec. 23, sister Magdalene, wife of Bro. Henry Miller, aged 63 years. Services by Eld. Michael Weyandt and S. F. Reiman. G. J. Schrock.

GUYER.—In the Snake Spring congregation, Feb. 20, Blaine, son of Emmanuel and Elizabeth Guyer, aged 9 months and 14 days. Services by brethren Jacob Koontz and John B. Fluke. A. S. Replogle.

ROOF.—In Sunfield, Eaton Co., Mich., Mar. 6, Leander Roof, aged 48 years and 2 days. He was born in Columbiana Co., O., Feb. 14, 1841. Services by the writer, to a large audience. Benjamin Frygogle.

SHOWALTER.—In the Aughwick church, Huntingdon Co., Pa., March 2, sister Mary A. Showalter, daughter of David Bowman, deceased, aged 33 years, 8 months and 12 days. Services by Eld. James R. Lane, from 2 Cor. 5: 1. Interment at Stone meeting-house in Germany Valley. John E. Garver.

SMITH.—In the Clear Creek church, Ind., March 8, sister Catherine, wife of D. Smith, aged 71 years, 1 month and 19 days. She leaves an aged companion, who has been blind for several years, and two sons. Services by the writer, to a large audience. Dorsey Hodgden.

ROWZER.—At the same place, Feb. 13, Armenia C. Rowzer, daughter of Joseph and sister Susanna Rowzer, aged 17 years, 5 months and 20 days. Services by Eld. J. S. Holsinger and the writer. J. B. Miller.

GREENFIELD.—In Mansfield, Ohio, Feb. 22, sister Ann Greenfield, aged 73 years, 9 months and 25 days. Services from Job 14: 14. Israel Whisler.

PENTZ.—At Shepherdstown, Pa., Feb. 22, after a short illness, Bro. David Pentz, aged 66 years, 10 months and 1 day. He leaves seven children. Services by Bro. I. H. Raffensberger and the writer.

ECKERT.—At the same place, sister Salinda Eckert, aged 46 years, 2 months and 14 days.

Deceased had gone up-stairs to attend to some work, and her husband not hearing her for a short time, went up to ascertain the cause of her silence. He found her lying on the bed, and her spirit gone to the eternal world. She leaves a husband, three sons and one daughter, and a large number of relatives to mourn their loss, which, we hope, is her gain. She was buried at the Stone meeting-house, eighteen miles north of Mechanicsburg. Services by Henry Beelman and the writer, to a large audience. Daniel Landis.

CONNER.—At Salfordville, Montgomery Co., Pa., at the residence of her son, Eld. Jacob Booz, in the bounds of the Indian Creek church, Feb. 28, sister Barbara Conner, second wife of the late Bro. Jesse Conner, aged 72 years and 6 months.

She suffered severely about four months from cancer, but she bore it patiently, and died in the hope of a glorious hereafter.

SOUDER.—In the Hatfield church, Montgomery Co., Pa., Feb. 19, after a lingering illness and mental debility, Bro. Samuel Y. Souder, aged 66 years, 11 months and 13 days.

Deceased was for some time quite zealous in the work of the Lord, but for the last year or two he was unable to walk, and weakened in his mind. About the year 1877 he moved his family to Lanark, Ill., but not succeeding so well there as expected, he returned after living there several years. He leaves a disconsolate widow and eight children to mourn their loss, though not without hope. His funeral was very largely attended.

SLABAUGH.—At Goshen, Ind., March 8, sister Mary Slabaugh, aged 74 years and 22 days.

Deceased was born in Basel, Switzerland, Feb. 14, 1815; brought to this country when six weeks old. Her mother died on the sea. She lived a consistent member of the church for 35 years. She was on her bed about one year, and suffered much, but was very patient. She was the mother of seven children. The aged husband and four children survive her. Services by the writer. J. L. Berkey.

REINER.—At his residence at Line Lexington, Montgomery Co., Pa., Jan. 12, Eld. Jacob Reiner, aged 81 years, 9 months and 22 days.

Deceased was married to Lydia Harley, Nov. 28, 1833, and their union was blessed with five children, three of whom are still living, namely, Joel K., a minister in the Brethren church in Philadelphia, Isaiah H. and Samuel. Bro. Reiner had been failing for several years, and kept his bed the several last months of his life. He was an exemplary Christian, and served the church in the ministry nearly forty-five years. He was an able speaker in the English language, and was often called to preach at funerals for people of other denominations. He will undoubtedly have a diadem on his brow in that day when the Lord gathers his jewels!

Jas. Y. Heckler.

FITZ.—In the Antietam church, Franklin Co., Pa., Feb. 2, Bro. Daniel R. Fitz, aged 37 years, 9 months and 2 days.

Deceased met with a sudden and instantaneous death. He went to work at Frick & Co's. works, where he had been employed for years in the boiler department. He was asked to leave his work and help to lay a gangway on the new building, the height being 41 feet. He did so, and in the course of a few hours he stepped on a faulty board and it broke, and he was precipitated to the ground 41 feet, landed on his head, with his neck broken, causing instant death. He leaves a widow and four little children, three having preceded him to the spirit world. Our brother joined the church one year ago. He was one among the twenty four that joined during the series of meetings, held at Waynesboro, by Bro. H. C. Early. He was a faithful member, and very attentive to the services of the house of the Lord. He leaves a sorrowing widow, but she gave her heart to the Lord early in life, and is thus enabled to look on the right side of this bereavement, and is bearing it with Christian fortitude. This is a loud call to his brothers who are out of the church. It is a warning to us all to be prepared to meet our God in peace, for death is ever near. Services conducted by J. F. Oller, assisted by brethren Jacob Snider and B. E. Price, from Matt. 24: 44.

BARTLEY.—In Cleveland, Ohio, March 4, Jacob W., son of Bro. A. C. and sister Mary A. Bartley, aged 3 weeks and 1 day. Services by Z. Hornberger, from Gen. 37: 30. C. McFarlin.

BLEDSOE.—In the Osceola church, St. Clair Co., Mo., sister Janie, wife of Bro. John Bledsoe, aged 14 years, 11 months and 5 days.

Deceased was a member of the Brethren church for about five years. She was the mother of eleven children, five of whom preceded her to the spirit world. Services by elders Jacob Yost and T. J. Simmons. Josh. Cripe.

BARKLOW.—At the residence of Bro. Peter Wise, in Myrtle Point, Ore., Feb. 5, of typhoid pneumonia, Eld. David Barklow, aged 67 years, 8 months and 27 days.

Bro. David had been called to Myrtle Point to solemnize the marriage of Mr. Perkins and Miss Flentge, when he was taken sick. He remained in the house of Dr. Flentge several days. Then he was taken to Bro. Wise's, where he remained until his death. He lingered on his bed of sickness for twenty-six days. Jan. 20 he called for the elders and was anointed, and after the anointing he expressed himself as being willing to die.

He was born in Union Co., Pa., Nov. 8, 1821. He emigrated to Stephenson Co., Ill., in 1848, with his parents, where he resided until 1865. While in Illinois he was elected to the ministry. In 1863 he married Elizabeth Miller in Bedford Co., Pa., and immediately thereafter moved to Keokuk Co., Iowa, where he lived until 1867. From there he moved to Boone County, same State, residing there four years. He established a church here, and was ordained as elder of the congregation. In 1871, in company with twenty others, he started for California. From there he went to Myrtle Point, where he arrived in August, 1871. In 1873 he helped to organize a church, now known as the Coquille church. Here he labored till the Lord saw fit to call him home. He leaves a wife, one daughter, a son in-law, and two grandchildren, with many relatives and friends, to mourn the loss of a father in Israel. Services by the Brethren, in the Brethren's meeting-house. Interment at Norway cemetery. Thos. Barklow.

GARDNER.—At the home of her brother, Hammon Pryor, in Brown Tp., Knox Co., Ohio, Dec. 16, 1888, Mary Gardner, aged 64 years, 11 months and 16 days.

Deceased was born in Belmont Co., O., Jan. 31, 1824; moved with her parents, W. M. and Mary Pryor, to Knox Co., Ohio, about the year 1828. She was married to Joseph Gardner in 1852, and was the mother of seven children, four of whom survive her. Funeral services by Bro. James Workman, from Ezek. 8: 8. B. W. DeWitt.

WYSONG.—In Upper Twin Creek church, Preble Co., Ohio, Feb. 28, Sarah Wysong, aged 77 years, 4 months and 10 days.

Deceased was born in Highland Co., O., Oct. 18, 1811; soon after she moved with her parents to Montgomery County, same State. She was married to Henry Wysong when about 20 years old, and soon after moved on the farm on which she died. She was a consistent member of the church about 45 years. With her husband she was permitted to share the blessings and enjoyments of life for about 33 years, when she was left a widow. She was the mother of twelve children, five sons and seven daughters. Eight children and four grandchildren preceded her to the spirit world. Services by John Bowman, Jonas Horning and the writer, from Rev. 14: 13, 14. Samuel Miller.

MORT.—In the bounds of the Elk Lick congregation, Somerset Co., Pa., March 9, Martha, daughter of Bro. Abraham and sister Maria Mort, aged 11 years, 9 months and 24 days. Services by Silas Hoover.

REED.—In the Pleasant Valley church, Augusta Co., Va., March 4, sister Sarah F. Reed, aged 43 years, 5 months and 16 days.

Deceased was sorely afflicted for the last six months, and during that time she did not speak above a whisper. She bore her affliction with fortitude and sincerity. She did not neglect to call the elders to be anointed. In her dying hour she expressed a willingness to go to rest, and appealed to her husband to meet her in heaven. She was a devoted sister for many years, and a kind and affectionate mother to her children, of whom five were left to mourn their loss, ranging in age from four to twelve. Services by elders Daniel Miller and Levi Garber, from 1 Thess. 4: 18. Samuel A. Driver.

GARVER.—In the Pipe Creek church, near Uniontown, Md., Feb. 27, of gangrene, sister Susanna, wife of Bro. Martin Garver, aged 67 years, 1 month and 17 days.

"Death enters and there is no defense," and it has invaded this quiet family circle and severed the silken cord of affection which bound a devoted wife to her husband, a faithful sister to the church she had served so long, and who was to all around her an unwavering friend.

The high esteem in which she was held by the church and the entire community was clearly evinced by the attention given from the first to the last during her illness and after her decease. Her funeral was largely attended. Many sympathizing members and friends followed her remains to the place of interment. Services by the home brethren, from Is. 25: 6-9.

"The graves of our friends are preachers; they are so silent, and yet speak so forcibly; they utter no words, but they awaken recollections which make the heart bleed," and these recollections will touch the heart as no human sermon ever can. They are like the very voice of him who speaks from the eternal world, "Dust thou art and unto dust shalt thou return." A Brother.

Advice to Mothers.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. THE GOSPEL MESSENGER.

"Set for the Defense of the Gospel."

Vol. 27. Old Series. Mt. Morris, Ill., and Huntingdon, Pa., April 2, 1889. No. 14.

The Gospel Messenger.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH, Editor,
And Business Manager of the Eastern House, Box 50, Huntingdon, Pa.

OUR aged brother Kauffman, of this place, is in feeble health, and is waiting for the call of the Master. The promises of the Lord grow in spiritual sweetness as the weary and life-worn traveler nears the gates of eternal deliverance.

THE money that was foolishly spent, in Washington, to be present at the inauguration of the new President, if spent in missionary work, might have enabled many precious souls to be joyfully present at the inauguration of Christ as the King of heaven. How much better it will be to be present there where the joy will be unending, and where every one will receive a position and a mansion that will be fully commensurate with his possibilities of enjoying and doing!

A MAN well grounded on convictions of right is like the tree by the river-side,—not easily moved. Those who are most ready to attack those who honestly differ from them, as a rule, are most unstable in their own ways, as convictions of right are not included in the estimate. If we are sincere and well grounded in our own views, that sincerity will enable us to respect the sincerity of others. And no man's views should be treated with disrespect until thoroughly tested and found wanting. To impugn another man's motives is not argument. Any tyro can do that. A man should not speak until he is sure he has something to say.

"THE Gospel Chimes" is a new music book being prepared by Bro. Beery, who has made the service of song his life-work. It will be a small work of over one hundred pages, and is intended to be used in our Sunday-schools, series of meetings, prayer-meetings and the home circle. The first five or six pages will be taken up with the "rudiments," which will adapt it to use in singing-schools, and for the purpose of teaching this most beautiful science or art, whichever you may be pleased to call it. The character notes will be used, as the large majority of our patrons prefer this kind of musical notation. The selection will be the best that can be had, and we advise all in want of new music books for the purposes named, to hold their orders.

PROHIBITION.

As, on the 18th day of next June, the people of the State of Pennsylvania will have the privilege of saying, by their vote, whether or not the Prohibitory Amendment shall be added to the Constitution of our State, we have been urged upon by a number to give our views on the subject. So far we have held back for want of time, as we consider it a subject of more than ordinary importance, especially to us as residents of the State.

The Prohibitory Amendment, if passed, will mean the prohibition, on the part of any citizen of this commonwealth, of the manufacturing and selling any spiritous or vinous liquors as a beverage. This includes all distilled or fermented drinks that contain alcohol or are intoxicants,—that make drunk.

In treating the subject we shall have reference to our own church and people, and what we believe to be our religious duty as to how we shall decide.

Although the church has always advised against taking pledges and uniting with secret temperance organizations, on the subject of temperance the record is a good one. The following is the latest decision we have on the subject by our Annual Conference:

Resolved, That we, assembled in Annual Meeting, re-affirm our strict adherence to the principles of temperance, as laid down in the Gospel, and repeatedly affirmed by our beloved Brotherhood, heretofore, beginning as far back as 1783, when our Brethren took a decided stand against the manufacture and sale of intoxicants, and we will use all lawful Gospel means to suppress and eradicate this great evil from our land.

This resolution, as to the question before us, is strong and comprehensive. The "decided stand against the manufacture and sale of intoxicants," is all that the "Amendment" calls for, and, therefore, every loyal member of the church must be in harmony with its requirements. The law or amendment that it will be our privilege to vote for, is only a verification of a prohibitory amendment made by our church over one hundred years ago, and re-affirmed from time to time, up to the year 1885, the last time the subject was considered before our Conference. So it is plainly seen that the Amendment is fully in harmony with both the principles and actions of our church. And, therefore, there can be no possible ground whereby any of our members can oppose its adoption without violating the principles of the Gospel and the church as expressed in her Conference.

As to the moral bearing of the subject there can be no question. The contest can have but two sides. On the side of prohibition will be all Christian, moral and order-loving people; while against it will be the great distilling and brewing monopolies, the whiskey merchants, the portly hotel-keepers who have grown, financially, fat on the earnings and homes of their customers whom they have impoverished, degraded and ruined, over whom hangs the curse of a beneficent God as he hears the wails and groans of broken-hearted mothers and the cries of wretched and starving children. O, blessed God, how long shall this terrible work of devastation and misery be continued? Can a child of thine stand on the side of such men who, for the love of money, will close their ears to the cries of the thousands of people they are daily destroying, body and soul, and entailing on their parents, wives and children untold wretchedness and misery? No, my brethren, you can not afford, at the risk of a drunkard's hell, to identify yourselves on the side of such men. They are rich. Their coffers are full of ill-gotten wealth, and millions of it will be spent to defeat the Amendment, and that their privileges of impoverishing and ruining the lives and souls of men and women may not be taken away from them. Whiskey and rum are the source whence come their unholy gains. It is worse than the blood-money of Judas Iscariot. It is fire-blood-money, the money that these wretched despoilers get for killing the body, and after that, causing the soul to be cast into hell.

On the side of these men will stand those who run the low and debauching groggeries, saloons, gambling houses and houses of ill-fame, with their thousands of miserable and deluded patrons. That a man of ordinary Christian pretensions should think of identifying himself with this motley crew of sin-workers seems too preposterous to contemplate. There is not a single redeeming feature about the whole nefarious business. It is evil without a shadow of good.

Some men of brains, but without feeling hearts, have sold their service to these men to speak and write in vindication of their despicable occupation. With fair words and fine speeches they labor to deceive. They say that prohibition takes away men's liberties, and, by removing temptation, would weaken their moral powers and thus make us a nation of children—as if sin and temptation were necessary to the developing of moral and Christian character. If such is so, our blessed Lord was mistaken when he taught his disciples to pray, "Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil." Why should we pray the Lord not to lead us into temptation, and then lead ourselves into it, by voting for the worst of all temptations to remain right among us? Why should we ask God to deliver us from evil and then push ourselves into it? The best way to keep out of temptation and out of evil, is to put temptation and evil away from us as far as possible. This is what we want to do in voting for prohibition. It is on the same principle as we sign remonstrances against having a licensed house to sell whiskey along-side of us, or in our town. We recognize it as an evil and vote it away as far as possible.

The argument thus produced in favor of temptation to develop character and true manhood, is too shallow and unreasonable to be entertained for a moment. It carries defeat on its own face by recognizing intemperance as an evil and a temptation to sin, and must be blasphemous in the eyes of a pure and holy God. To intimate that God, who wills that all men may be saved, is well pleased in having set before his creatures a temptation that jeopardizes the salvation of thousands of souls whom he sent his Son into the world to save, is, to say the best, the logic of a Judas or an infidel.

But the question is again asked, Is prohibition morally right? Is it morally right for a man to do as he pleases? It is, if he pleases to do right.

ESSAYS.

"Study to show thyself approved unto God; a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth."

WASH ME FROM MINE INIQUITIES.

Wash me, dear Savior, wash me clean;
Wash me, for mine thou art.
Wash me, but not my feet alone,—
My hands, my head, my heart.

Wash me till I am purified,
And cleansed from every sin.
I'll shelter in thy wounded side,
If thou wilt take me in.

Wash me, that I be like the dove
Among the rocky clefts,
And there to learn a Savior's love,
And be forever blessed.

Wash me, that I no more shall roam
Amidst the giddy crowd,
But in thy side may find a home,
And spread thy praise abroad.

Wash me, that when my days are past,
And I from time remove,
That I may ever be at rest
In blissful climes above.

"SET FOR THE DEFENSE OF THE GOSPEL." Phil. 1: 17.

BY WM. M. LYON.

Our Brethren could not have selected a more fitting motto for our church paper. Do you ask, "What is the true mission of the Gospel Messenger?" Read its motto, the above caption, and you have the answer. "But," says one, "I thought that the main object of the church paper was the dissemination of truth, the prosperity and edification of the church." Your idea is a good one, but it is all embodied in the sentence of Inspiration, "Set for the defense of the gospel."

If we carry the messages of salvation to a foreign land and deliver them to the dying sons of Adam, we defend the Gospel. How? We do it (defend the Gospel) from the fact that we are commanded to go and publish the glad tidings of salvation to all nations. If we labor to build each other up "in the most holy faith," striving to advance the interests of our holy religion, we do it in defense of the Gospel. The ablest defense of the Gospel that we can possibly make, is to obey it. Obedience is the only legal test.

Error is the result of disobedience. Truth came into the world to destroy error. Our blessed Savior has given the affairs of his spiritual household over into the hands of his disciples here on earth. He says, "Occupy till I come." His Word virtually says to us, "If you are my true subjects, you will not suffer error to take the place of truth, neither will you allow my enemies to trample upon the truth which I brought from heaven to set you free. If you are my disciples, in deed and in truth, you will earnestly contend for all the laws of my kingdom and thus defend the cause from the assaults of the enemy. Remember that you are 'set for the defense of the Gospel,'—that is your mission—defend the truth by contending for it." With these remarks we will now proceed to make the application.

Please get our church paper now. At the top of the first page you see its name, "The Gospel Messenger," which, according to my definition, means a truth-bearer. Directly beneath the name is the inscription referred to, "Set for the defense of the Gospel." Now read the first page, turn over and examine the second, third, and so on, till you get through. When you are done, if you are honest, you will say, "Truly, this paper has the proper name and motto. How nobly does it stand up in defense of the Gospel! It is the voice of our Great Brotherhood speaking to us in words of cheer and edification."

But supposing, instead of finding its pages thus filled with the "truth as it is in Jesus," we should find them filled with articles in defense of Mohammedanism, Mormonism, or some other ism of the devil, we would at once commit them to the flames, saying, "This paper is not 'true to name.'"

Now let us make this an individual matter. We are glad that we have a fair number among us who are "true to name." They pass through the world, bearing the label of the Christian: turn over the leaves of their lives and you will see that every page proves that they are "true to name."

Now we will turn to another class. The name and motto are all right, but turn a few pages and examine the contents, and you will find them not "true to name." To prove it, we simply refer to those who are opposed to obeying that last and great command of the Lord Jesus Christ, "Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations," etc.

Yes, they are "set for the defense of the Gospel," but unhappily they are so much "set in their own ways" as to be willing to contend for and thus defend only that part of the Gospel that suits them. They blame other denominations for throwing away some of the plain commands of the Bible, while they are guilty themselves. They are not "true to name."

Do we have such as these among us? Would to God we could answer this question with No, instead of Yes. It would be bad enough to count them by the dozen or score, but O, how much worse, how heart-rending it is, when they can be numbered by the hundreds!

Many there are in our ranks who openly tell us, "I am opposed to giving for the spread and support of the Gospel." This class deserves more credit than those who will confess to their duty, and then refuse to do it,—who say, "I believe it should be done," but will not give substantial proof of their belief in dollars and cents. They virtually say, "Yes, I'm a missionary, but just keep out of my pocket." They are "set for the defense of the Gospel," but they would defend it by placing the bushel over it. They virtually say that when Jesus told his disciples to wash one another's feet, he meant that they should DO it, but when he told them to go and preach to everybody, that he did not mean what he said.

Now, if I understand anything at all of the Gospel, it requires us to defend it all alike. Don't "pet" one command and throw away another. Let us not teach others that we must obey all the Gospel in order to be saved, and then make a selection for ourselves, throwing away passages here and there as we may see fit.

My reasoning on this subject has been with special reference to those who are unwilling to obey Matt. 28: 19, but I wish to say that it will apply with equal force to any other command. If we are going to defend the Gospel, let us do it in full.

O, what a pity, what a shame, that there are so many who claim to be "living epistles," defenders of the Gospel; they bear these inscriptions, they read all right at the head of the first page,—the outside—but turn a leaf, look on the inside, read the heart pages, and they are not "true to name," because you will find written there in plain language, "I am opposed to obeying Matt. 28: 19. I know that Jesus said so, but he did'nt mean it."

Such soldiers believe in defending the Bible, but their defense is a very peculiar one. How will this do for an illustration? Take the Bible, put it into an iron chest, turn the key upon it, arm yourself, take your stand by its side, and suffer no one to take your position. How the devil rejoices to see such demonstrations! Such defenses give the "old man" easy times. What is our defense? How is it?

FEET-WASHING.

BY A. W. REESE.

"If she have washed the saints' feet."—1 Tim. 5: 10.

Yes! If she have washed the feet of the saints! The cynic may sneer, the skeptic deride, the unbeliever scoff, the worldly laugh, the fashionable "professor" ridicule, and the "smart Alecks," on all sides, crack their jests—yet there stands the mighty Word of God!

Yes! "If she have washed the saints' feet!" Simple thing, is it not? Easy to do! Nothing mysterious or complicated about this! No need of a dictionary to understand it, nor a learned D. D. to explain it!

No necessity to go back to the "original Greek" to find out what is meant! It is about as plain as language can make it! What, then, ought to be "the conclusion of the whole matter"?

Surely this—that every follower of Christ is under obligations to obey it. "Ye also ought to wash one another's feet." This is the language of Christ himself, and lest some of the great, the learned, the wise, who profess to preach his Gospel, might not exactly understand what he meant, our Lord and Master also says, "For I have given you an example"—in other words, "I have showed you how it is done—how you are to wash your brother's feet, and also how to wipe them.

The serious and thoughtful mind cannot fail to perceive the importance attached to this duty in the Word of God. It is significantly classified with other paramount "good works." A brief review of these, so classified, may show the relative obligation of this "if she have washed the saints' feet", all equally binding upon the follower of Christ.

"If she have brought up children." Every well-balanced mind admits the force of a duty like this. How important the proper training of the young! How responsible, and how sacred the trust! The celebrated Madame De Stael, the most brilliant and gifted woman in France, once asked Napoleon Bonaparte, then in the zenith of his fame, "Who is the greatest woman in the Empire?" The great warrior replied, with more candor than gallantry, "She that hath borne the most children!"

In the further consideration of the moral character and Christian standing of the widow, referred to in the text, it is specified, "If she have lodged strangers." The duty of hospitality is every-where urged in the pages of Divine Truth. It is, besides, one of the spontaneous impulses of a kind and noble heart. It is the "Touch of nature,

That makes the world akin;"

that binds the heart of man to his brother-man. "Welcome the coming, speed the parting, guest." It is one of the redeeming traits of humanity that survived the fall. It even adds a ray of lustre to savage life. No wonder that it finds a prominent place in the Gospel that proclaims, "Peace on earth, good will to men!" "Use hospitality without grudging." No wonder that such a virtue should be classed among the other "good works" that should adorn the Christian character and life!

"If she have relieved the afflicted." The afflicted! Yes, whether in body or mind. And what a long and sorrowful list it is! These have a special claim upon every kind and Christian heart. These we "have always with us;" the opportunities to do them good are ever present to us. The lesson is plain, the duty unavoidable, the reward sure.

One of the professors in the medical school in which I was a pupil, remarked, in his lecture to the class: "Gentlemen, in the future exercise of your professional duties, don't neglect the poor, for God Almighty is their paymaster!" It was but a reiteration of the same noble lesson, taught by our Savior, in the story of the Good Samaritan.

"If she have diligently followed every good work." This is the concluding summary of her standing in the church of Christ, and the final test of her profession of faith in the Redeemer of the world.

It has been urged, not infrequently, against our people, that we lay too much stress on our peculiar denominational belief and practices—notably, the washing of one another's feet. It has been also asserted that the tenacious adherence to these denominational features leads, ultimately, to sectarianism, bigotry, and a dead formalism in religious life.

It is further alleged that these so-called duties tend to dwarf the grand, central feature in the work of human salvation, to wit: faith, to exalt the symbol above the thing signified, and to clutch at the shadow, while the substance eludes our grasp.

In short, it is claimed that these things are "the mint, the cummin, and the anise," while we neglect "the weightier matters of the law."

Let us look at this. If this be true, it is a serious charge indeed. We hold that there is but one infallible rule of faith and practice, to wit: the Word of God. All things, whatsoever, outside of this, whether ancient or modern, whether old or new, whether venerable by age, or sanctioned by the customs of later times, are but "the commandments and traditions of men." Because these have been formularized into the various creeds of religious sects, and accepted as orthodox by the popular mind, is, by no means, prima facia evidence of their truth.

We hold that the Word of God is "steadfast"—immutable as God himself. He is the Supreme Lawgiver and Sovereign Ruler of the Universe. It is, therefore, to God alone that man is responsible for his conduct in this life. God's Word thus becomes the only rule of Christian life. We most firmly believe that there can be no such thing, in the Divine arrangement, as that a part of His Word must be accepted, while another part may be rejected by man. It is either all binding on us, or none of it. The Word of God can not be cut up into convenient "essentials," and inconvenient, or disagreeable "non-essentials," at the whim and caprice of man.

Obedience to that Word—full, unreserved, complete—is the consummation, and the only proof of faith. "Abraham believed God, and it was accounted unto him for righteousness." How did Abraham show his faith? In the only way it could possibly be done—by his obedience—by his works. It was a great trial of his faith. The command, to sacrifice his son Isaac, was utterly inconsistent, to all human view, with God's own promises to Abraham concerning Isaac, yet how instantly, how unhesitatingly, how trustingly he set out to do the will of God!

Now, this single example would be abundantly sufficient, in itself, to prove all that need be claimed, in the definition of the much-vexed question of faith. But, if more were required, a "great cloud of witnesses," patriarch, prophet, martyr and saint, may be found in the eleventh chapter of Paul's Epistle to the Hebrews. Illustrious names! Sacred on earth, and written in the Lamb's Book of Life!

In this view of the case, how can the Brethren church ignore any part of God's Word, much less one of the plainest commands recorded therein, and, moreover, re-inforced, as it were, by the example of Christ himself. We can not "pick and cull" through the Word of God, and then claim a perfect obedience to that Word. Nothing could be more inconsistent than this. The ordinance of feet-washing is as obligatory, upon the church of Christ, as the Eucharist itself.

"In the same night, in which he was betrayed," he established both, and he put as much stress on the one as on the other. He said of the one, "As oft as ye do this, ye do show forth my death till I come;" of the other, "If I, then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet, YE, also, ought to wash one another's feet." By what authority, then, is the one to be observed to the exclusion of the other? Certainly not by the authority of God. God says you ought to do it; man says you need not mind what God says. "True, he said you ought to wash one another's feet, but then he did not mean what he said—he meant something else. It was a lesson to teach us humility, to show kindness and love to our brother, a willingness to serve our brother, even in a menial capacity. If we would be willing to black his boots or curry his horse, it would show the same spirit and would answer God's purpose quite as well. We need not go so far even as to do any of these, if we have the disposition to do them. God looks on the heart, and he will accept the will for the deed."

What trifling with the Word—yea, with the name of God! Nay, rather, what shocking blasphemy is this! How like the scene in the garden of old! God said to Adam, "In the day thou eatest thereof, thou shalt surely die." "Ah," says the subtle tempter, "did God say this? Surely he could not mean that! No, listen to me! I will tell you why God does not want you to eat that fruit; in the very day you do that you shall not die, but you shall become as God himself, knowing all things." How prone is man now even, as in the sad, dark day of his fall, to trifle with the Word of God!

But in spite of the sophistries of human philosophy, in the face of all man-made creeds, the Word of God stands firmer than the granite hills, eternal, immutable, "the same yesterday, to-day, and forever." And you, my brethren, "Be not deceived, God is not mocked!" His Word and his purpose shall stand when "Heaven and earth shall pass away with a great noise," and the very elements shall melt with fervent heat.

When you, my brother, shall stoop down and wash your brother's feet, and wipe them with the towel wherewith you are girded, in the temple of the Living God, you will do just what your Lord and Master did, on the sorrowful night of his betrayal, and what he declared his followers "ought" to do in all succeeding ages of time.

The command is on record, and the example given. We must obey God rather than man. Can we come up to that example and command, without our own personal participation in every detail of this solemn ordinance of God? I am fully persuaded that we can not. If we merely sit in a line, on the bench with our brethren, and have our own feet washed, and wash no one's feet ourselves, we have not "washed one another's feet." If we wash one or more, and have wiped no one's feet, we have not met the example—we have not done as Christ did.

We dare not say, as do some, that God "will take the will for the deed," and consider that we have discharged our duty in the case. If so in this instance, why not in all others, and thus the advocates of "faith alone" doctrine have gained their point.

This we can not concede! We must earnestly contend for "that form of doctrine once delivered to the saints." We must declare "the whole counsel of God." "For the prophecy came not in old time by the will of man: but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost."

THE KERNEL.

BY C. H. BALSBAUGH.

To Sister J. B. Brumbaugh:—

WHEN I replied last summer to your friendly missive, I knew perfectly well that I was dealing in ideas that were too spiritually delicate for publication. The application of Christianity to natural generation is believed by many to be Utopian. But Emmanuel began where all human life begins, and He claims the genesis no less than the terminus of our being. But we will waive, for the time, this radical fact, and go on to the conceded doctrine of holiness in all who have been born again—born of God. How much has been lost by sin, and God's estimate of it, is revealed in the awful truth that nothing could replace it but the Incarnation of God Himself, and the death of very Deity to close the breach of transgression. It is this that gives point and weight to the solemn injunction to "work out our own salvation with fear and trembling." God spared not His best, and if we spare, His love and self-sacrifice will only make our Hell the deeper and more terrible. Rom. 8: 32; Matt. 10: 37-39. God needed not the assumption of a human body for His own sake. "It pleased the Father that in the body of His Son should dwell all the fulness of the Godhead." And all that is thus contained in that Divine-Human Person is for us sinners to use for our redemption and joy and glory. O, if we could but see what is in that Elder Brother for us sin-cursed, sin-fettered, Hell-doomed "children of wrath"! We are "of the earth, earthy," and how few rise above the natural, and live their daily life in the blessed realities of the more substantial unseen! Not only is the death of God our ransom, making salvation possible to the vilest, meanest, most devilish soul on earth, but the eternal, spotless, ever-blessed life of the Holy Trinity must be ours as the native, conscious, joyous experience of our being. Rom. 5: 10. Our salvation from first to last is in His blood, which is the blood of God. But the realized salvation is the actual living of His Life. Acts 20: 28; John 14: 19. Doctrines are forms of truth, and ordinances are shadows or symbols of truth: but Christ is Himself the Truth, and the Life. "This is Eternal Life, that they might KNOW THEE the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom Thou hast sent." John 17: 3.

How many can honestly witness to themselves and others of the reality of John 17: 21-23? And is anything less than this the satisfaction for which Jesus yearns as the travail of his soul? Isa. 53: 11. Are we not grieving Him daily by our traditional standard, and our selfish aims and low enjoyments? Look at God in the flesh as the Source and Model of all right life, and then compare our carnal, dwarfed, unsightly Christianity! I AM: this Name above any name is the Key to the great mystery of life. "I am Jesus," Acts 9: 5. "To me to live is Christ." "I, yet not I, but Christ in me." This is not a metaphor, but as real as the Incarnation itself. "I in thee, and Thou in Me." Where is our Amen of heart and life? "That the world may know." John 17: 23. Let us take these wonderful words into our heart of hearts.

Union Deposit, Pa.

"SEEKING wisdom when you are old, is like writing in the water; seeking it when you are young is like graving on stone."

MEDITATIONS.

BY G. G. LEHMER.

It was on a bleak February morning, while standing in the Union Depot in the great city of Chicago, awaiting the departure of our train, that I set to meditating as I viewed the great mass of human forms coming in and going out of this great metropolis of the West.

What a turmoil! Old and young, rich and poor, strong and weak, eagerly seeking some objective destination! Some eastward bound and some westward,—all trusting in the arm of flesh for their safe conveyance to the haven of their choice! Not a few in the mighty throng tottering on the verge of the grave! Dread disease gnawing at their vitals they are hieing to the mountains, hoping there to restore their physical man to his former vigor. What anxiety is portrayed in every countenance! The picture tells of fortunes lost and fortunes won, of honesty in business and creditors defrauded, of life of joy, and life of sorrow, of marriage feast and bed of death.

In these busy marts, with their scores of trains, their elevated railroads, their electric lights, their myriad factories, their mass of busy humanity surging to and fro, one is made to wonder whether the dawn of the millennial day in the physical world may not be near at hand. Or should, perchance, the index on the world's great dial be pointing but to the hour of twelve, we contemplate upon the height to which the genius of man may yet soar ere the sun of that illustrious day shall appear above the world's horizon and the Son of Righteousness shall come in the clouds of heaven and say to a turbulent world, "It is enough."

Here our meditations are interrupted by the conductor's, "All aboard," and we speed away to other parts, there to observe a repetition of the same busy panorama. How bracing to once more breathe the unadulterated puffs of air as they come sweeping over the boundless prairie, bearing the life-giving oxygen, bringing new energy to the inner man. As we pass along, station by station, what anxiety do we witness at every stop! Friends meeting and friends parting! What laughing! What weeping! Tears of joy and tears of sorrow, until the cup is full and running over! Friend parting with friend! The last kiss is given, the last farewell is spoken, and, as the train starts, we hear the familiar words, "Will write you when I get home."

"Get home!" That is the most pleasing thought of all the trip. There father or some other dear soul awaits the arrival of your train. Your seat in the old familiar carriage seems to have an extra cushion. The faithful span, more lively than usual, hurry you forward with a speed that seems to say, we, too, bid you "welcome home." Going down the rustic lane you pass by the meadow which recalls to mind the sports of your early childhood. You cross the silvery brook where you loved to snare the unwary "son of fins" in days long gone by. Now you spy the old farmhouse, and upon the porch an anxious group, among which you see, perhaps, the familiar form of mother, brother, sister, who have long been waiting to say, "Welcome home."

Yes, home! Thou dearest name on earth! What life, what peace, what joy, what comfort thou dost bring to the tired, care-worn soul! Thine is a sure retreat from the cares and turmoils of life.

Dear reader, we are all traveling. There is a station in life where two roads meet,—the one the highway of holiness, the other the broad way of destruction. The one, under the direction of Christ and his holy angels, leads to lands of bliss, of sunshine, of fair deliverance; the other, manned by Satan and his rebellious host, to depths of gloom, of desolation, of despair. What a contrast! Songs, prayers and rejoicings abound on the one, while reveling, rioting and debauchery are the portion of the other. Who would not be on this highway of holiness? Be this your fortune, dear reader! Then beware of the side tracks which lead to the camp of Satan. Stick to the main line, for it alone leads to God's celestial mountain. Having once tasted of the good word of the Lord, look not back again upon the vain allurements of the world. Have you any departed ones whose loss you have mourned in bitter tears, whose hearts were regenerated by the precious blood of Jesus? Then take courage. They are only a few coaches in advance of you in this mighty train, and, by continuing in obedience to the mandates of heaven, you shall soon strike glad hands in that celestial city where parting is no more.

"Will write you when I get home." O, blessed thought, that even in our separation we may send missives of love to those who are near and dear, yet absent in the body! If the theory, that the spirits of our departed dead remain as ministering angels to the living, be true, then how sacred should be the tie that binds us to those gone before!

Dear sinner, tarry no longer on your dark and dismal road. Sin, that soul-destroying monster, has seized upon your every vital and is gnawing as doth a canker. If you would be whole, take yonder side track and flee to the mountain of the Living God. Soon the whistle, "Down brakes" will remind you that the end of your journey is nigh at hand, and, by continuing in your present course, destruction alone can mark your final resting-place!

WORK.

BY J. H. MILLER.

In my last I promised to say something about singing. Our singing in some localities, is not what it should be. Paul admonishes the brethren to be fervent in their Christian work. "I will sing with the spirit, and I will sing with the understanding also." 1 Cor. 14: 15. Paul's motto in all his work was to do that work thoroughly. He had his mind fully engaged in what he sang, and put life into his singing.

Paul admonishes the Ephesian brethren to speak "in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing and making melody in your heart to the Lord." Eph. 5: 19. "Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly in all wisdom; teaching and admonishing one another in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing with grace in your hearts to the Lord." Col. 3: 16. James would have us to sing psalms when we are merry. Paul and Silas sang praises unto God at midnight, and the prisoners heard them.

I notice wherever our Brethren have good singing in their worship, their meetings are lively, the young people are interested, and congregations are large. Paul, in church work, seemed to be very zealous,—"not slothful in business, but fervent in spirit, serving the Lord." I imagine if the apostle were here in person, and would see us in some of our song services, he would say, "Brethren, be not so slothful; let us have more spirit!"

There are two extremes in music. In some places the singing is too fast,—at other places it is too slow. "Let your moderation be known to all men." Music is a branch of education, and not, by all, a religious exercise. Thousands of people are good singers, and have splendid musical talents, but no religion in their heart.

Music should be sung according to time. Singing is something like reading. If we read without noticing pauses, our reading is not very interesting to those who hear us. I have often noticed, in reading a Scripture, that much depends upon how we read.

The same may be said of singing. If we have no life in our song service, and do not "sing with the spirit and understanding," the life power is lost in our song service. In singing it is necessary that we try and understand how to sing, so our singing may have harmony, and all parts are properly noticed. We must get the sense or meaning of the words expressed, always having at heart the salvation of precious souls. If our young people had some one to teach music, and often gather, both old and young, together, our singing might be much improved.

In some places our meetings are rather lightly attended by the young people. Most always the reason assigned is, "Singing is too dull." Other denominations, near by, have better singing, and thereby draw the young folks there. After a while their minds are drawn away and, to our sorrow, they leave us and join other churches. I know of several such cases. Why all of this? Because we do not work hard enough to hold our children to our own meetings. If we only would work half as hard to interest our children in the service of God, as we do in training up the minds, for wealth and honorable position in the world, many of them would be drawn away from the world, and find a home in the church. King David, the sweet singer of Israel, was a man whose heart was filled with music,—"Sing praises to God, sing praises: sing praises unto our King, sing praises. For God is the King of all the earth: sing ye praises with understanding." Ps. 47: 6, 7.

David, like Paul, was full of music, and he wanted the singing done with an understanding head. At our Sabbath-schools we could do much to interest our young people. In some places our dear Brethren have not yet fully rallied to Sunday-school work. At some such places I noticed that the children are joining other churches, and parents are mourning over such a state of affairs.

My dear Brethren, allow me to kindly say unto you, that our children have minds, and those minds can not easily be kept quiet. It is a part of their nature to work,—do something. The reading of the Scriptures and singing is sweet to our children's ears, and if we do not give them opportunity at our homes and churches, they will stray away.

Another power for good to keep our members alive and full of Christian zeal and work, is to have a Bible class, and take our children there, and read to them, and pray with them. Here you can have them select something to sing, and get them interested. By so doing, there need not be much danger of their wandering away.

In the evening before we retire, we should get the "Hymnal" and sing with our children and teach them how to sing. Thus their little minds would be moulded for church work, and soon our regular meetings would have better singing, and a general interest would be awakened. In faith and prayer so let us work!

FRIENDLY CRITICISM ENDORSED.

BY J. H. MOORE.

I am very much interested in the friendly exchange of views passing between brethren J. S. Flory and S. S. Mohler. Such articles are not only edifying, but very instructive, and will tend to unity in the end. While I do not fully agree with these brethren in all their statements respecting our doctrine, still I enjoy their efforts, and gather material for reflection from these articles.

As a general thing our people are a unit in their faith and practice, but in many instances they do not have the best way of expressing their views concerning the various shades of doctrines and theories that naturally enter into our religion.

Much has been said concerning faith and belief, repentance and conversion, and yet as much more might be said to equally as good advantage. I do not mean to take sides on these questions, in this article, for my views have been repeatedly expressed in former articles, but I want to encourage these and other brethren to take up similar points of our doctrine and carefully examine them with a view of information and a better way of expressing our views. There are perhaps a score of questions that might be examined to good advantage. I will suggest a few:

1. What is regeneration?

2. What part does the Holy Spirit take in conversion?

3. In what way does the Holy Spirit aid the preacher in his preaching? Here is a subject that needs a good deal of careful ventilation.

4. What part does the Written Word perform in the work of conversion?

On this question I will present a few remarks that may have a slight bearing on the questions that are being considered by brethren Flory and Mohler. The Written Word is a seed that came from God himself, and contains a living germ. That germ is divine. This seed is designed to be planted in the heart. If the heart will permit it, this seed will grow, and take hold of the heart, and the heart will take hold of the growing seed. The commencing of the taking hold is the commencement of faith. If the growth stops, the faith is dead, or inactive, if it continues, it will bring about repentance. If the growth still continues, it will result in the new birth. Now that seed, with the divine germ in it, has produced a new creature that possesses a divine nature. This divine nature came from the divinity that was in the seed. If this new creature is fed on divine food, the more he grows, the more he will resemble God. Being begotten by a divine principle, it will require divine food to sustain him. The Written Word is this food as well as the seed.

All living things come from seeds, and partake of the nature of the seeds. Some seeds are made for the ground, others for the body, others for the mind, but the Word of God is seed intended for the heart of the soul. Plant Gospel seed and it will produce Christians, but plant Mormon seed and it will produce Mormons. Whatever you plant that will be produced. This is true in Revelation as well as in nature. He who masters the book of Nature will see new beauties in the Bible, for God made both books.

The Word—seed—is the power of God unto salvation. There can be no conversion without the seed. Neither can there be faith or repentance without it. It therefore follows that faith, repentance and conversion are effects produced by a cause. That cause is the Word, and in that Word is the power of God. Hence all of these conditions are brought about by the power of God, using the Word as an instrument. The preacher can plant the seed in the sinner's heart, and even water it, but the living principle that grows is the divine germ that God has placed in the seed. He who handles the Word is handling a divine and living principle. God has placed life in natural seed; he has also placed life in the seed that is from above. The seed that is from heaven produces heavenly things, while that which is of earth produces earthly things.

In nature the climate, soil and care aid the seed in growing. In Revelation many things also aid the Word of God to grow in the heart. Different stages of this growth are called by different names: 1st, faith; 2nd, godly sorrow; 3rd, repentance; 4th, new birth, consequently a new creature. The new creature is now ready to be fed upon the very Word that produced it. Step by step it may be led to a higher life.

Of course, the Holy Spirit aids, but it never works in conversion without the Word. I do not mean, in this article, to point out the work of the Spirit; my aim has been to impress on the mind of the reader the fact that the divine power is in the Word, that there can be no conversion without it, and that the Word is the cause or means that produces Christians and sustains them.

ARE WE EVERY-DAY CHRISTIANS?

BY FLORIDA J. E. ETTER.

THIS question is one of great importance. It is no hard matter to be a Christian on Sunday, but to take every day throughout, it is not so easy. One might ask the question, Why? Well, during the week we have all of our temporal affairs to attend to. We get tired and worn out, and at the end of the evening we are, perhaps, hardly able to call our family around the altar to pray and have a little talk about our spiritual affairs, or to exhort each other to live nearer Christ.

How, then, can we expect to be Christians on Sunday, if we do not guard ourselves well during the week? We can not expect to be fit for spiritual work on Sunday unless we make preparations during the week. We should speak more of Christ during the week, and try in whatever way we can to do the most good for him, instead of slandering our neighbors, or speaking evil of our brethren and sisters, and engaging in foolish and idle talk. We should try each day to renew our covenant vows, be more resolute in our determinations what we have promised to do for Christ! Let us pray more, and talk less evil about our friends, and try to build up instead of pulling down what has been built up. Let us try to work more for Christ, instead of heaping up malice in our hearts towards each other, and we will be whole Christians, and not half. We can not reach heaven on half terms. We must serve God at all times,—with our whole heart, or not at all! BE TRUE!

JEPHTHAH.

BY LIZZIE H. DELP.

JEPHTHAH, the Gileadite, has a strange, sad history. He was thrust out from the home of his boyhood, and, in foreign lands, his exploits won for him fame and renown. But the Ammonites make war upon Israel. They have encamped before the city, and, realizing the full extent of their peril, the men of Gilead appeal to Jephtha. They wish him to be commander-in-chief of the army. His heart seems to be fired with enthusiasm, and he accepts the trust. He has but a few men with which to combat an army vastly their superior in numbers. But the Lord will crush the most powerful army when directed against his people. Jephtha remembers that the enemies of Israel have been subdued by the God of his fathers in the past, and he trusts God for the future. Yet he vows to offer as a sacrifice whatever shall first meet him, when he comes home in peace.

It was a mighty battle, and the Ammonites fell that day, "for he smote them from Aroer even till thou come to Minnith, even twenty cities, and unto the plains of the vineyards, with a very great slaughter." God has given Jephthah the victory.

The sun has gone down upon Gilead. Its last rays fall upon the gray, chalky cliffs that rise from a sea of grain, and feathery palms. The summits of the hills are darkened by the mass of people anxiously waiting for tidings from the field of battle. Away in the distance, the blast of the trumpet declares them victors. The army is nearing Gilead. Their return march is a triumphant one. Jephthah, the hero of many battles, is applauded and welcomed by the people as their deliverer.

He turned his steps to Mizpeh, his own home; and his daughter comes out to meet him. Oh, the bitter pain that rends his heart as memory cruelly recalls his vow! The victor's triumph has ended in the blackest woe. No wonder that the genius of Dore produces the scene in two of his masterpieces. Handel was so affected by this tragedy, that he strove to weave it into an oratorio, the last and grandest of his works,—a piece of music almost majestic in its grandeur; the fierce, quick notes of martial music blending and contrasting with the low, solemn tremble of utter despair.

The records of our race do not present another such a scene. The pitiful agony of the father, as he falters, "Alas, my daughter," and the submissive spirit that enabled her to say, "My father, do to me according to that which hath proceeded out of thy mouth." We do not read much of the bitter grief that shrouded the remaining years of the father's life. Yet we know that it could not be otherwise.

"Be not rash with thy mouth, and let not thine heart be hasty to utter anything before God."

VISITING.

BY I. N. CROSSWAIT.

WHEN we visit our friends, it is very pleasant to find them in a good state of health, because it is the only condition in which they can enjoy a visit or have the ability to entertain a guest in the most enjoyable way. When we find our friends suffering affliction of body or mind, and we are not able to do anything to alleviate their sufferings, it is then tedious to be in their society, which, in health and vigor of life, would be most enjoyable.

The foregoing remarks are applicable to our condition in natural life. Let us see how it is when we visit the Father's children. If we find them alive and in the enjoyment of true spiritual life, we are then sure that our visit to such a branch of the Lord's family will be very enjoyable. We find, in such a place, it is all peace and good will toward all. The younger members are growing up toward the stature of men and women in Christ, through the influence of proper example and precept, received from the older. All together are going onward and upward, striving to attain the joys that are promised the faithful.

I long to see the chosen people of God awake and arise from a dead state, that we may walk in the light and be a light unto the world; then, when we visit other parts of the family, our visits will be, to us and them, a pleasant and joyful intercourse with each other, like a bright oasis in the desert, but, alas, when we find them in a weak and dying condition, it causes a deep sorrow!

May the Lord arouse his people to a full and true sense of duty, that all may become alive to the great work before them!

"TUNKER OR DUNKARD."

BY J. J. EMMERT.

THE above name was given by the world, perhaps vulgarly or maliciously, to the German Baptist church, and was never recognized by the church as our name. The name adopted by the Annual Meeting is "German Baptist," and hence the name at the head of this article should not be used by our members, privately or publicly, for several reasons:

It is not becoming for us, as members of the church of Christ, to adopt a vulgar term or name, used by the world, and reflecting on our own beloved Fraternity. If those who have not the proper regard for the church, use the name, that is no reason why we should do so.

We should not use the name, because, in doing so, we sanction the title, and encourage those who are not members, and also members, in the use of it.

I have seen the name used in the GOSPEL MESSENGER, and it never impressed me favorably. And I have lately seen the name "Dunkard" used at the head of an advertisement, which does not seem proper for Brethren.

Now, since the church has adopted the present name, "German Baptist," so far back as 1836, and as it was re-adopted by our last Annual Meeting, I would say, Let us use the proper name. If we do not use the name given by the world, and cease to encourage them in it, the use of it will soon die out.

BLIND SAMSON AND HIS ENEMIES.

BY I. J. ROSENBERGER.

"But the Philistines took him, and put out his eyes, and brought him down to Gaza, and bound him with fetters of brass; and he did grind in the prison house."—Judg. 16: 21.

SAMSON was a peculiar child of prophecy. His history is a marvel, and has no parallel. Samson's mission in the world was clearly stated by prophecy. "He shall begin to deliver Israel out of the hands of the Philistines." By sad experience Samson learned, that "the way of the transgressor is hard."

1. Samson's treatment from his enemies. It was common, in ancient times, when an enemy was captured, to put his eyes out to render him safe. This was the sad and cruel treatment that poor Samson received from the hand of his merciless enemies.

This is the devil's great aim to-day. It is his stronghold, to smite his subjects with blindness; blot out their vision. Then they are safely his. Christ, in John 12: 40, alludes to these unfortunates when he says, "He both blinded their eyes, and hardened their heart that they should not see with their eyes." The apostle Paul refers to this class when he says, "In whom the god of this world hath blinded the minds of them that believe not.

2. Evidence of blindness. I hold a book in my hand, and inquire of a friend by my side, "Do you see this book?" "I see no book," replies my friend. The facts are, it is a case of blindness. I read in Jas. 5: 14, "The sick should be anointed with oil." "I cannot see that the above is a command," say the masses of professed Christians of to-day.

I read again, "Salute one another with an holy kiss." I am confronted again with my opponents whose name is "legion." "I cannot see that the salutation of the holy kiss is a command now." However painful it may seem, I am compelled to pronounce the above as being cases of pure blindness. We read we should not wear gold, yet men will teach, "We see no harm in wearing gold." I suppose it is the truth that they see no harm in wearing forbidden articles and it is because they are blind.

You see a man walking down street, feeling his way with his cane. He is led by feeling; hence he is blind. Scores of people are wandering and wending their way through this world, led by feeling. They are going to be baptized, going to wash feet, etc., when they feel to do so. They are led by feeling; hence they are blind. "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path," says David. "God is light, and in him is no darkness at all." 1 John 1: 5.

In nature it is not uncommon to meet with sight failing, and even unconscious blindness. St. John, the Divine, alludes to this class and says, "Thou sayest, I am rich, and increased with goods, and have need of nothing; and knowest not that thou art wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind and naked." Rev. 3: 17. Of this class Christ once said, "Let them alone; they be blind leaders of the blind." Matt. 15: 14. Prophecy indicates that this number will be lamentably great. See Matt. 7: 22. Reader, beware!

3. Blindness is sometimes inflicted as punishment when means and talent have been allowed to pass unimproved. In nature, certain animals, the mole for instance, spend their time burrowing beneath the surface of the ground, not using their eyes. As a penalty nature has smitten them with blindness. So, likewise, it is with fish, that spend their time in dark caves and caverns of the seashore, where the same sad penalty occurs. So with any member of our natural body,—its life can only be maintained by use. Hence Christ's well-known teaching, "From him that hath not, shall be taken away even that which he hath." "Take therefore the talent from him." Many persons have been blessed with the faculty or talent of spiritual vision, but, failing to use and improve it, have been "smitten with blindness." "God shall send them strong delusion, that they should believe a lie: and be damned who believe not the truth, but had pleasure in unrighteousness." 2 Thess. 2: 11, 12.

The matter of our subject above, revives many cases in our mind with which we have met. A son of more than ordinary talent was raised by devoted parents; he grew up a warm and an able defender of the humble doctrine of the Brethren. But while attending one of our popular colleges during a revival, the religious influence of the school was brought to bear upon him. Like Samson's enemies, their first efforts were to darken his vision upon his faith in the ordinances,—to smite him with blindness. Sad to relate, in this they succeeded. They led him to see that the Greek preposition eis, means near, close by, etc., as well as into: hence he cannot tell how Christ was baptized. Feet-washing he used to defend ably, but now his vision is so cloudy, he only sees it as a Jewish custom.

The salutation of the holy kiss, and the principles, as taught by the church on the dress question, he now tells his grieved parents, are immaterial.

How sad is the loss of our natural vision! Much more sad is the loss of our spiritual vision. The former simply relates to time, but the latter to that long, long period we call eternity!

"A CERTAIN amount of opposition is a great help to a man. Kites rise against, and not with, the wind. No man ever worked his passage anywhere in a dead calm. Let no man wax pale, therefore, because of opposition."

"AGE is the night of life, as night is the old age of day. Still night is full of magnificence, and for many it is more brilliant than day."

In Memoriam.

The hand of death has again visited this city and stricken the home of one of our respected citizens.

Annie M. (Kurtz) Keefer was born in Lancaster Co., Penn., Jan. 22, 1845. When a child, her parents removed to Franklin County. There she married Mr. Keefer, Sept. 11, 1866, and in the fall of that year, they removed to Sterling, where they have since resided, except for a period of a few years, when they occupied a farm near town. She leaves a kind and loving husband and family, whose attentions have ever been most patient. They have the sympathy of their large circle of friends in their sad bereavement.—The Sterling Gazette.

ON Friday, January 11, I was called to visit the subject of the above notice, and found the hand of affliction resting heavily upon her. She was entirely helpless. Although surrounded by all that earth could afford, and loving hands administer, she realized that there was one thing lacking. That one thing was adoption into the family of God.

Her condition was such that to administer baptism was not only questionable, but by some considered impossible. She herself thought that it was too late for her to obey the Savior in baptism. After several seasons of devotion we commended her to God and the word of his grace, promising to return at any time that she felt she could be baptized. One week later her husband wrote, "Come, my wife wants to be baptized." On my arrival I found her so strong in the faith, that she would be baptized, even though she should die in the act. The ordinance was administered without any apparent difficulty. It is needless for me to say that there was great joy in the hearts of all who were present. Our sister, a helpless sufferer, scarcely able to speak, so as to be understood, now enjoyed a peace of soul that burst forth in words distinct and clear, "I feel I never was so near heaven before." In a little less than a month (Feb. 16) her spirit vacated the paralyzed body to dwell with her blessed Savior. Here again we have verified the truth, "Happy are they who die in the Lord." Her parents were members of the Brethren church, her father having been an elder.

That early religious instruction is not forgotten was manifest, when, after having read the Savior's rule of conduct for his disciples (Matt. 18: 10–22), I said, "Sister Anna, did you ever hear this Scripture before?" She replied, "Many a time; and I remember the questions my father used to ask applicants." Parents, do not fail to instruct your children in the Holy Scriptures.

The Lord bless the dear husband and kind daughters, and may this bereavement lead them to attend speedily to that which the devoted wife and mother found so indispensable to bring peace to her dying pillow. J. G. ROYER.

From Brookfield, Las Animas Co., Colo.

THIS place is situated forty miles south-west of Lamar, which is the Unites States land office for Eastern Colorado on the Atchison Topeka & Santa Fe railroad. The Butte Creek, near Brookfield, is a beautiful, ever running-stream, fed by innumerable springs that never go dry.

I came here in the fall or latter part of the summer of 1887, and have been here ever since. Last winter was warmer than any I ever saw in Central Kansas where I lived for eight years.

Cattle live here all winter on the rich buffalo grass, which keeps growing and pushing up all all winter, so that stock get green grass all the time. I think this is a very healthy country. It rolling enough so no water stands stagnant.

None of the Brethren live within sixty miles of here. Some live in the south-eastern part of the State. All the preaching I have heard is through the GOSPEL MESSENGER I read it and then give it to my neighbors to read, hoping thereby to do them good. I hope some minister, passing through on the Sante Fe railroad, will remember us. Those coming, should stop off at Lamar, and take the stage for Brookfield. Your visits will be welcomed by me and the whole community. I am the only brother here, and live two miles and a half due south of town. CHAS. A. KEIGLEY.

From Beatrice, Nebr.

JUST two months ago yesterday we dedicated our new church in Beatrice. Since then we have had a continuous meeting, with the exception of about two weeks in February.

Our dear brother, W. C. Teeter, has labored hard for the cause here since Feb. 23. Much of the seed that had been sown, was watered and nourished, and much more sown. The meetings were well attended. A singular coincident was, that sixteen were added when Bro. Mohler was here, and the same number when Bro. Teeter was with us. We think the church was praying for more laborers, and the Lord has sent them. It seemed at times that every believer in the house was earnestly concerned about the return of the straying ones to our Shepherd. Some who were not members of our Fraternity rejoiced with us to see the Lord's cause prosper. The Lord has blessed us with much love for each other; may we ever abide in his love, so "he will never leave us nor forsake us." Everything looks now as though we might accomplish much good here for Zion.

We ought to be very thankful to hear such encouraging reports from many places. However the Lord can not do many mighty works among us, if we lack faith and works.

Bro. Teeter formed many friends in Beatrice who will not forget him soon. He bids fair to make a very efficient evangelist. When the church exercises in all the useful gifts that God has promised to bestow, and is bestowing, her power will be felt, and many will be converted to the Lord. So many talents are dormant, and so much power is latent, that in many places the church's influences are not what they ought to be.

"Church of God awake! arise!
Christ your Head and Master cries,
Send the Gospel's joyful sound
Unto earth's remotest bound."

We had a love-feast the last evening of our meeting. It was an impressive occasion. Some who had not witnessed such ordinances for years, confessed that it carried them away to the "old home." J. E. YOUNG.

The Children's Mission.

Dear Children:—

APRIL 10 will be my thirty-ninth birthday. Just three years ago from that day, while upon my bed of affliction, I wrote my first article on our Children's Mission.

Through the grace and love of our dear Lord we have continued to work, and I now give you the full amount we have received from the first of our work. We will give it as we reported, so you will understand it: June, 1886, $23.00; October, 1886, $17.00; December, 1886, $10.00; July, 1887, $23.00; December, 1887, $24.00; June, 1888, $14.74; December, 1888, $83 00; total, $194.74.

Dear children, do you feel like praising God, to know we are engaged in such a good and noble work? God alone can tell the good that may come out of it. The amount I now state was sent to Bro. Miller. Although the list may fall a little short, I always add enough to make it come out even, and pay all expenses besides, excepting in one instance, while I was at the Sanatorium, when my daughter Carrie sent it for me, just as it was. Our box is not empty, for we now have more than seven dollars for our next report. Add that to the $194.74, and it will make $202.53.

I hope when our Sunday-schools start up again, we will have a larger report than we have ever given in June, about the time of our Annual Meeting, so that Bro. Miller can give in our report with his other mission reports. If every Sunday-school in our Brotherhood were represented, what an increase there would be! If all Superintendents would give the children of the different schools the opportunity to contribute, they would be wonderfully surprised to see how anxious they are to give for Jesus' sake. Or if some one else would only push the work and assist the Superintendents a little, they would not object. If we will take hold with might and power to do his will, God will help us. We will sometimes meet with opposition, I know, but we should not falter, for there are but few good works but what have their opposition. The adversary will tempt us sometimes to give it up, but we must aim high, with steady nerve, that we may drink more of Christ's spiritual knowledge, so that the world may yet be turned from darkness to the marvelous light. Oh, may God speed the day when Christ may reign the thousand years, so that all may be love, peace, and good-will among men, for he is all and in all! How many, oh, how many of us are ready to exclaim, Thou art mine, and I am thine! When we live in this element, we are truly blest and happy, and can see beauty in all of God's creation, from the largest oak down to the tiniest mite. O God, how wonderful and majestic are thy works! How we ought to praise thy high and holy name! We pray thee to help us do all the good we can in the holy name of Jesus, thine only Son, for he will reward us openly, when our work here is ended!

I can not tell you, dear children, how my heart rejoices when I read in the GOSPEL MESSENGER that so many of you are giving your souls to Jesus, to work for his glorious cause in its fullest sense! Oh may peace ever be yours!

I noticed that at one place quite a number of young people have enlisted in the service of King Jesus. May God hold them in the hollow of his hand! May he guide and protect them by his holy and divine influence to do his whole will, and keep them near the foot of the cross, for Jesus' sake!

My health is gradually improving, for which I truly feel to praise my dear Jesus.

MARY M. GIBSON.

From Lingleville, Erath Co., Texas.

OUR little band numbers only four, and we feel very lonely in our isolated condition. Bro. A. W. Vaniman came in our midst July 29, 1888, and preached seven sermons in all. The preaching was well attended and much interest manifested. Our doctrine was something new. All seemed to want to know something about the Dunkards, as we are called. We have had many calls for GOSPEL MESSENGERS since then. We send them out as we get them, and also distribute "The House We Live In." Our doctrine has taken so favorably here that I think if we could get some brethren to locate with us, a church could soon be built up here. We trust to see Bro. Vaniman again in the summer.

I often read of brethren going to different points in this State, and I hope they will remember us. We would be glad to have them come and preach for us. Many precious lambs that we would like to see in the fold of Christ, are going the downward road. MANIE HALL.

Field Notes.

WE have just closed our winter campaign. A week ago Bro. Deardorff closed a series of meetings of over four weeks' duration, unabated interest and crowded houses, in his own neighborhood. Bro. Diehl had then just commenced at Dale, Bro. Myers in Audubon County, and the writer in Greene County. All these meetings were well attended, but it seems to be seed-time now, and we must look for the harvest later on. We now enter upon our regular summer work. This week Bro. Brower goes to Adair County, Bro. Myers to Dale, Bro. Diehl attends the home work, and the writer avails himself of the chance to visit a neighboring congregation. "We'll work till Jesus comes." J. D. HAUGHTELIN.

From the Bear Creek Church, Montgomery Co., O.

THE brethren and sisters of the above named church have had a season of great rejoicing during the past week. Bro. Jesse Stutsman came to us and commenced meetings, March 2, and continued until the 13th. He preached sixteen sermons in all. As an immediate result, twelve precious souls were made willing to forsake sin and join in with the people of God. Many others are "almost persuaded," and we hope will soon make the good choice. All were sorry the meetings closed, but Bro. Jesse had to leave for other fields of labor. May the Lord bless his labors in the future, as in the past, is our earnest prayer!

HETTIE A. LONG.

From Rockton, Pa.

AT one of our councils we decided to hold a series of meetings, to be conducted by Bro. James Sell. For some time we all looked forward to the time when he should help us to feed our souls on the pure Word of God. The time of appointment came, but, as Bro. Sell was not here, Bro. Harvey Beer filled one appointment after another. He wielded the Sword of the Spirit with might, and one soul was made to rejoice in the new and living way. Our little meeting continued for two weeks, and was conducted entirely by our home laborers. There was an awakening among the dry bones, Ezekiel 37, and besides the one soul that was gained, the church was much revived.

JOHN A. BRILHART.

From Greene County, Iowa.

BRO. J. D. HAUGHTELIN, from Panora, Iowa, came here March 2, and preached eleven sermons in the No. 8 school house, to good congregations. At the close the standing-room was all occupied, and some had to remain outside. I noticed people going to the place of meeting before dark.

This was the first series of meetings the Brethren had in the county for over six years. Why should we not have a church here? We have a good, thinking people. Some said, "We never heard so much in a few words." Others regretted that the meetings closed so soon. Bro. J. L. Myers, of Yale, preached one sermon for us while on his way to an appointment at Dedham. We have good weather; dry and dusty roads. Brethren, come again! C. K. BURKHOLDER.

OUR self-love revolts much more against the condemnation of our tastes and habits than of our opinions.

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

The Miller and Sommer Debate.

THE debate between Bro. R. H. Miller, of North Manchester, Ind., and Eld. Daniel Sommer, of the Christian, or Disciple, Church, was opened in the Brethren's meeting-house, near Rockingham, Ray County, Mo., on Wednesday, March 20, at 10 A. M. Much to our regret, we did not reach the place of debate until Friday, the third day of the discussion. We were compelled to go to Wawaka, Ind., on the 20th, to look after the interest of the General Missionary Committee in a bequest made by sister Bowman for the missionary work of the church; but brethren J. G. Royer and I. M. Gibson took notes, and very kindly placed them at our disposal.

A number of brethren and sisters were present from a distance, among whom were Enoch Eby, S. S. Mohler, J. G. Royer, G. E. Studebaker, J. M. Snyder, I. M. Gibson, and G. G. Lehmer. The large meeting-house was crowded by an interested audience, who paid the closest attention to the points discussed. The Rev. M. M. Spurlock was chosen as chief Moderator. Bro. R. H. Miller selected Bro. J. G. Royer as his special Moderator. Eld. Sommer chose Rev. Owens, of his church, to assist him.

Bro. Gibson wrote out his notes and placed them at our disposal, and we use them for the first proposition discussed:

"The Scriptures teach that the kingdom of Christ was set up on the day of Pentecost, spoken of in the second chapter of Acts."

Eld. Daniel Sommer, of Cincinnati, O., affirms.

Bro. R. H. Miller, of North Manchester, Ind., denies.

ELD. SOMMER'S FIRST SPEECH.

1. The Foundation Argument. Christ is the foundation of the church, 1 Cor. 2: 11; Matt. 16: 18; Rom. 9: 33; 1 Cor. 10: 4; Eph. 2: 20; Psalm 18, Christ the rock. The idea we wish to teach in these Scriptures is, Christ the Head of the church.

2. The Will Argument. Christ's will or testament was of no effect until after his death, Matt. 28: 18; Luke 24: 49; John 16: 7. They, the apostles, had to tarry at Jerusalem until they were endued with power from on high; on that day they for the first time began to execute the "will," by speaking many languages and teaching both Jew and Gentile, and receiving them into the church.

3. The Historical Argument. Matt. 16: 18; Col. 1: 13. In this latter Scripture we find the translation into the kingdom. . . Before Pentecost was there a church? No. Moses was in authority. We find none in Matt. 23. We hunt on through the Scripture for the church, and we don't find it until the 2nd chapter of Acts. We find it again in the 5th chapter. If you find a church before this time you find one with no Christ in it, and no Spirit in it. This is the result of history.

BRO. MILLER'S FIRST SPEECH.

This proposition says "set up" on a certain day, therefore it kills all on or before that day. It ignores all after that day. If you buy a machine and go to set it up, you must have it all before you can set it up. If one wheel is lacking, it is not perfect, and therefore can not be fully set up. . . A great amount of Scripture is not demanded; one Scripture to the point, showing the church was fully organized on Pentecost, will be sufficient.

As to the foundation argument, ten days before Pentecost Christ had gone to heaven; so how could the church have been built upon him that day? Our difference is, that while he builds his church upon one chapter, we build ours upon the whole Gospel.

In reply to the will argument, we have this to say, that the will must be made before the death of the testator, hence reaches back. And we accept the entire will, more than he does, because he cuts it in two and won't take any part if it is not re-affirmed by the apostles on Pentecost, while we take it all, every particle of it.

Our first negative argument is, that God always had a people, that is, he always had a kingdom, so it could not have been confined to Pentecost.

Second, that the setting up of the kingdom was a gradual work, as given in revelation to man. . It was in its infant state long before Pentecost, in the beginning of the world's history. There was a gradual progress in shadows and types. The law and prophets were until John. Since that time the kingdom is preached, and every man presseth into it. Here we have men pressing into the kingdom. It could not have been done if it was not in existence.

Third, Dan. 2: 44, "In the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom." "In the days" is plural; the day of Pentecost was one day; so either those who affirm that the kingdom was set up on that one day are wrong or Daniel is. We have our choice between them.

Our fourth argument is drawn from the fact that our opponent will not accept his own position. There were several things on that day that he won't have.

Fifth, that his (or the) idea of setting up a kingdom on that day is schismatical, and therefore dangerous. He should unite the five churches that claim to build on that day before he tries to convert those who do not confine themselves to that day, but take all of God's Word as their guide. The people who build upon the day of Pentecost are, the Roman Catholic, the Mormon, the Shaker, the Communist, and the followers of Alexander Campbell. When they unite, even on the teaching of one chapter, let them then begin to complain of the rest of Christendom for not believing as they do.

Sixth, that Eph. 2: 19, 20 tells how we are builded, and is directly opposed to the proposition.

MAY WOMEN PUBLICLY PROPHESY?

[IN a recent issue of the MESSENGER we referred to the examination given the above-named subject by our late, beloved Editor-in-Chief, Eld. James Quinter, and stated that, if it was desired, the articles might be republished. A number of requests have come in, asking that we give them again to our readers, and this we now do. We suggest to those who do not preserve files of the MESSENGER, that they carefully preserve the numbers of the MESSENGER containing Bro. Quinter's exposition, for future reference.—ED.]

NUMBER III.

IN closing our discussion of the question, "May Women Publicly Prophesy?" we shall collect what seem to be the ideas contained in, at least some, of the passages of Scripture we have quoted, and concentrate them, and make a somewhat closer and more direct application of them to the question discussed, than we have yet done.

The general bearing of Scriptural teaching, and of the examples of the holy women, mentioned in both the Old and the New Testament, is plainly and strongly in favor of the position that woman may prophesy publicly. We have seen that Miriam was chosen by the Lord himself, to be a leader, with Moses and Aaron, of the Israelites out of Egypt into the land of Canaan. This was surely giving to a woman a public position, and one of great honor and trust.

And we have the case of Deborah—a case that presents a strong argument in favor of the position that women may prophesy publicly. She was a judge in Israel, and we have reason to believe she was directed to fill that high and responsible position by the call or providence of God. She was also a prophetess, and there is no doubt but what God communicated his will to her, to be communicated to his people. In our first article we have given the Scriptural testimonies to her noble character.

In the example of Anna, the prophetess, we have seen that we have a woman that prophesied publicly, for she spake of Christ in the temple "to all them that looked for redemption in Jerusalem." Luke 2: 38.

In the life of this pious, self-denying, zealous and devoted woman, we have a plain, strong argument in favor of the position that women may prophesy publicly.

In the cases we have referred to in the Old Testament, we have ample proof to sustain the position that women may prophesy publicly. For the women who did so were women of God, and their piety of a high type, according to the rule under which they lived.

But while we have many references in the Scriptures to women's work in the church, which seem to contain testimony in proof of the position that women may prophesy publicly, the apostle Paul is thought by many to prohibit it.

We shall now look at his language that is thought to do so, and we shall first notice 1 Cor. 14: 34: "Let your women keep silence in the churches; for it is not permitted unto them to speak; but they are commanded to be under obedience, as also saith the law. And if they will learn anything, let them ask their husbands at home; for it is a shame for women to speak in the church."

In ascertaining the true meaning of the apostle's language as here used, we would first say, Let it be carefully observed that the apostle refers to "the law," and he makes this reference to "the law" to show that there had been a command given before that time, of the same prohibitory character as that which he then gave, for the observance of women.

Now "the law" to which he refers is understood to be the law in Gen. 3: 16, "Thy desire shall be to thy husband, and he shall rule over thee." We must, then, regard the apostle's command as containing the same in substance as that in Genesis, as he referred to that in Genesis to justify or strengthen his own command requiring women to "keep silence in the churches." But we have seen that under "the law" in Genesis, women filled public and official positions, and spoke publicly in the service of God. So did Miriam, Deborah and Anna. The apostle's prohibitory law, then, for women does not prohibit them from speaking or prophesying publicly. For we can not, by any means, entertain the thought, that those devoted women, whom God so highly honored, disobeyed the law to which the apostle referred.

This point—we mean the apostle's reference to "the law" in Genesis—we regard of great importance in the discussion of the question, "May women prophesy publicly?" We regard it of great importance, because it affords us a key in obtaining the true meaning of the apostle's language, which is thought to prohibit women from prophesying publicly. It is because we regard Paul's reference to the law in Genesis of importance in understanding his language, that we have so fully noticed the liberty enjoyed by holy women under the Jewish dispensation, for they were under "the law" referred to by Paul, and they obeyed that law.

It was only after we obtained the idea in regard to "the law" that we have, in the above remarks, tried to explain, that we could reconcile Paul's language in 1 Cor. 14: 34, 35, with language used by him elsewhere in his writings, and with what seemed to be the general tenor of Scriptural teaching upon the subject we are examining. But with the help of that idea, we have been enabled to reconcile 1 Cor. 14: 34, 35 with other passages of Scripture referring to women's work in the church, in a manner that is satisfactory, at least to our own mind.

We, therefore, understand the apostle to teach in 1 Cor. 14: 34, 35, no further restriction of woman's liberty than the general Scriptural doctrine of woman's subjection to man, as that was the meaning of "the law" in Genesis, and it was in harmony with that law that Paul evidently taught, as he refers to it to confirm the correctness of his teaching, as we have already seen.

We should notice, in the second place, that the meaning of Paul's language in 1 Cor. 14: 34, 35, as we have explained it, is in harmony with the meaning of the other passage in which it is thought that his language is against the idea that women may prophesy publicly. It occurs in 1 Tim. 5: 11-13, "Let the woman learn in silence with all subjection. But I suffer not a woman to teach, nor to usurp authority over the man, but to be in silence. For Adam was first formed, then Eve." The main truth taught in this passage is, that woman is not to teach, nor usurp authority over the man.

If, then, woman observes the general law which requires her subjection to man, and seeks not to place herself above him in authority, nor to teach him in those things of a temporal or business character, that it is to be presumed he understands better than she, and if she then feels it to be her duty to prophesy, even publicly, and seeks the privilege or liberty in a proper manner, which will be by consulting the church, we believe she may do so without violating the apostle's teaching, when that teaching is properly understood. Those faithful and devoted women of old, to whom we have referred, and who exercised publicly and officially in the service of God, did not teach nor usurp authority over the man, in the true sense of the apostle's language, when his language is understood, as it should be, according to the general tenor of Scriptural teaching.

In the third place we would say that it does seem necessary to put a construction upon Paul's language in which he has been thought to prohibit woman from prophesying in public, somewhat like we have done to harmonize the different passages of Scripture bearing on the subject under consideration. If we take the case of prophesying, we find that Paul, at considerable length, reproved the women of the church of Corinth for praying and prophesying with their heads uncovered. See 1 Cor. 11. They, no doubt, exercised in prayer and prophesying publicly, as we have already remarked. Now, it is not at all likely that the apostle would have dwelt upon the subject at such length, and disposed of it in the way he did in the eleventh chapter of his first epistle to the Corinthians, if he designed to prohibit women from exercising in public altogether. In the eleventh chapter he merely corrected what was wrong, and that was not their women praying and prophesying publicly, but their doing so with their heads uncovered. This he reproved them for, and instructed them to have their heads covered when they pray or prophesy publicly.

In the fourteenth chapter, where the apostle says it is not permitted unto women to speak in the churches, he does not say it is not permitted unto them to prophesy. And we conclude, in comparing the different passages of Scripture upon the subject, that it was not prophesying in the sense of speaking "to edification, and exhortation and comfort," that the apostle prohibited the women from doing, but speaking in those meetings in which such a variety of spiritual gifts was exercised, and in which there was much disorder. It was in these meetings that women were to keep silent, and not in the ordinary meetings for worship. In these they could pray and prophesy, if they would observe the custom of the churches, and cover their heads when they did so.

And to make the passage in 1 Tim. 2: 11, 12, harmonize with other passages in Paul's writings, we must modify it. In the passage in Timothy, referred to, he says woman is not "to teach." In Titus 2: 3, he says women are to be "teachers of good things." And Priscilla, with her husband, expounded unto Apollos "the way of God more perfectly." Acts 18: 26. Here woman taught. In 1 Peter 3: 1-6, Christian women are admonished to be faithful, that they may win their husbands to the Lord by their "chaste conversation." And surely it was not only permitted to Christian wives to teach their heathen husbands, but it was their duty to do so. They were not "to teach nor to usurp authority over the man," in such affairs as the husband was presumed to know. But with discretion they were to teach Christian truth. And when they did so, in a certain sense, it was not they that taught, but God.

Then, in examining the question, "May women prophesy publicly?" in the light of the Bible, an affirmative answer will best agree with the spirit of Christianity, and the general teachings of the Scriptures, but she should exercise the liberty discreetly, and in accordance with the relation she sustains to man. He is her head, and she is not to usurp his authority.

It was not designed, as is very apparent, that women were to be the common bearers of the glad tidings of salvation to the world. But where there is a woman who possesses the qualifications of a public witness for Christ, and if she feels like bearing public testimony to him and his doctrine, according to the Gospel, liberty should be granted her.

Christian denominations have not been very consistent in regard to women's prophesying publicly. Many of those denominations that construe Paul's teaching against it, have had women among them who have labored publicly in various ways in promoting religious and moral enterprises in the world. The position that we, as a Christian body, occupy at present, in regard to this matter, is expressed in the 7th Article of the Minutes of 1859, which reads as follows: "Does the Gospel admit of female preaching? And if it does, shall they not have authority from the church under whose jurisdiction they are? Ans.—As Paul recognizes a distinction, in Rom. 12: 6, 7, between teaching, ministering and prophesying, and as he evidently approves of females' prophesying (1 Cor. 11: 5), we think that a female can not teach or preach, according to 1 Cor. 14: 34; 1 Tim. 2: 12, in the ordinary acceptation of those terms; yet we can not, under all circumstances, forbid them to prophesy." Public prophesying was here meant.

Our Brethren had occasion to consider the subject. We had a sister, by the name of Sarah Major, nee Sarah Riter, who, while yet quite a young woman, felt it to be her duty, though a great cross to her, to bear public testimony to Christ and his Truth. She was a woman of more than ordinary ability, of high Christian culture, and of a most exemplary character. Owing to the limited views that many brethren took of Paul's teaching concerning the liberty that women have in the church, she had considerable opposition to encounter at first, but that diminished as her profitable and edifying labors became known by the churches, so that, after she had exercised awhile in public, she had more calls from the churches than she could fill, and she had many friends outside of the Brotherhood.

Missionary and Tract Work Department.

"Upon the first day of the week, let every one of you lay by him in store as God hath prospered him, that there be no gatherings when I come" 1 Cor. 16: 2.

"Every man as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give. Not grudgingly or of necessity, for the Lord loveth a cheerful giver" 2 Cor. 9: 7.

HOW MUCH SHALL WE GIVE?

"Every man according to his ability." "Every one as God hath prospered him." "Every man, according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give." "For if there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not." 2 Cor. 8: 12.

MISSIONARY, CHURCH ERECTION, BOOK AND TRACT WORK.

BY W. R. DEETER.

A BROTHER propounded the question to me recently, "Would it not be better to have the above works controlled by the same Committee?"

The plan struck me favorably, because, first, they properly belong together. The missionary should always be well supplied with tracts, and the first thing for him to do in a new field is to distribute tracts, setting forth the principles of the Gospel, as taught and practiced by our people, and then follow up with preaching. The Missionary Committee could more easily supply our missionaries with tracts, if they had the work in their own hands. Second, it would dispense with one set of canvassers. Canvassing under the most favorable circumstances is not pleasant, but it is especially unpleasant for the second canvasser. People are apt to become irritated if solicitors follow in close succession. Third, it must be apparent to all who are acquainted with the growth of these works that a Secretary will have to be employed soon to do the recording and corresponding, that will be necessarily connected with them, and one Secretary can take charge of the whole work. Fourth, it avoids the confusion that will necessarily arise by having one committee at Dayton Ohio, and the other at Mt. Morris, Ill. Fifth, it can be done cheaper. Much of the expense of the Committees is railroad fare. This would be cut down about one-half.

We hope neither of the Committees will think I am reflecting upon them, for I think they have done well. May God bless every good work!

KEY TO THE APOSTOLIC SUCCESS.

Selected by Eliza J. McGaughey from "Triumphs of Faith."

THE apostolic attitude and success,—what was it? In 2nd Cor. 11: 23-28, we have a long list of infirmities, reproaches, necessities, persecutions, and distresses, which came upon Paul and some of his fellow-workers. How were they received? Paul expressly declares (2 Cor. 12: 10) that he received each one with pleasure! Took pleasure in sitting down under them? No, no! Pleasure in submitting them to God,—rejoicing in them as fresh opportunities for God to show himself the deliverer. "Most gladly therefore will I glory" in them "that the power of Christ may rest upon me, verse 9. Glad to have a stake, (see verse 7, Revised Version, margin; also Alford) driven through the flesh or self-hood. The spiritual self, which was in danger of exaltation through the abundance of visions and revelations, thus impaled, for that is the figure, thrust to death. He was glad of this spiritual weakness which made Christ's opportunity, it was, henceforth, not an experience, even a third-heaven experience, but a living Christ,—His strength. He was glad of "a day and a night in the deep," for it gave opportunity for the mighty power of Christ, and nothing short of it in resuscitation! He was glad of "prisons oft," for they showed how prison walls and doors were nothing to the power of Christ,—his people's deliverer! He was glad of weariness, painfulness, and hunger, for it gave God a chance to strengthen, heal, and feed, giving the living commentary upon the words, "My God shall supply all your needs!"

Thus also did Paul wed "the power of Christ" to cold and nakedness: to perils by land and sea, from wild beasts and wild men. Thus we see him at Philippi surrounded by the fierce rabble "taking pleasure" in Christ whose "power" was yet to find, among these blood-thirsty ones, material for a Philippian church. Stripped naked, rejoicing that "the power of Christ" was to reclothe him. Beaten with many stripes he rejoiced in Christ, who was to care for and heal the wounds. Imprisoned, with his feet in the stocks, Paul commends all to God, and praises him that the devil's rage, inner prisons, impassable walls, give a grand chance for the "the power of Christ" to set at liberty. "The power of Christ does not disappoint him, though an earthquake is necessary to give the victory his faith has taken!

God thinks it a little thing to make all the laws of nature subservient to the prayer of his believing children. Psalm 18: 6-19. But the moral earthquake is greater than the physical one. The power of Christ, through the converted Roman jailer, washed the wounds,—fed and cared for the bodies of Paul and Silas! No wonder they "take pleasure" in persecutions and necessities which give "the power of Christ" such opportunities!

We can now understand Paul at Lystra. Acts 14: 19. The stones of the infuriated mob cut deep into his flesh, the blood gushed forth, but there was a deeper gush from the well-spring of praise in his soul. "Most gladly therefore will I glory in these distresses" that the power of Christ may rest upon me." Paul was thoroughly persuaded that the power of Christ over all the devil's work was now to have a fresh exhibition. Again he was not disappointed. Truly they stoned him to death, and dragged his inanimate form out of the city. Howbeit as his Christian companions stood around his dead body, "he rose up and came into the city." God, who could raise the dead, could not disappoint his child's faith. "And the next day he (Paul) departed with Barnabas to Derbe." "Out of weakness he was made strong," certainly, thus to rise up for a twenty or forty miles' journey, followed by continuous preaching. Acts 14: 21, 22. We hear his soul's song through those tempestuous days on the Mediterranean. Acts 27: 14-20.

Triumphant faith makes melody to the Lord. "I take pleasure" in "perils of waters" "that the power of Christ may rest upon me." Now "I am weak, . . . I am strong." The mighty response from the heart of the Infinite is, "Lo, God hath given thee all them that sail with thee." Was not the whole precious cargo of living souls plucked out of the enemy's power by being brought face to face with the mightiest "power of Christ;" and made recipients of his power and his grace? Cast on the island of Melita, a deadly viper fastened on Paul's hand. He begins to feel the pain of the venom run up his arm. "Most gladly," he whispers to Jesus, "will I glory" in this infirmity, "that the power of Christ may rest upon me," and these barbarians may see thy grace and might! Even while he sings, he shakes off the beast into the fire and feels no harm. They who look on to see the death of a murderer, whom vengeance suffers not to live, now change their minds and apply to him for supernatural aid. He introduces Jesus, the Great Healer. Publius, "a chief man of the island," and others also, which had diseases, came and were healed." Paul counted that Jesus' "name, through faith in his name," had all power equally among Christians, barbarians, men or devils.

Glorious truth! The God of the apostles still lives! Apostolic successes are still consequent upon the apostolic attitude. "These signs shall follow them that believe: In my name shall they cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues; they shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover." Mark 16: 17, 18. "Behold I give unto you power over all the power of the enemy." Luke 10: 19.

Beloved brethren and sisters, shall the time past of our lives suffice for discounting our God, his character, and his word? Shall we to-day accept what our gracious God freely gives,—Christ, a victorious power through all our spirit, soul and body, our circumstances and labors? Shall Jesus have the joy of putting us in that list of Heb. 11, —those who, "through faith," . . . . . obtained promises? "Amen, even so, come, Lord Jesus."

Notes from our Correspondents.

"As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country."

—Bro. Silas Hoover, of Boynton, Pa., commenced a series of meetings in the city of Altoona, March 14, and the increasing congregations will, no doubt, lead to good results.

—Under date of March 18, Bro. John Barnhart, of Mansfield, Ill., writes: "We had a time of rejoicing yesterday in the Blue Ridge church. Five souls made the good confession, and were added to the church by baptism. May the good work go on!"

—While a letter, now and then, censures the appearance of so many articles against the use of tobacco, sister Emeline Herbster, of La Paz, Ind., writes: "I wonder how so many brethren and sisters can have the heart to find fault with the MESSENGER because it contains articles against that hurtful habit,—the using of tobacco! May the MESSENGER never cease to admonish both young and old, to 'touch not, taste not, handle not the unclean thing.'"

—Bro. A. Berkeybile wishes to call the special attention of the members in the State of Nebraska to the following: "It was decided at our last District Meeting that elders who have charge of local churches should counsel with their members as to the advisability of dividing the State District into two Districts, in place of the one, as we now have it. The time is now near at hand, and it is hoped that attention will be given to the matter, so that the delegates will be prepared to make the required report."

—Bro. Jacob Tinkle, of Landess, Ind., who has been under the hand of affliction for about four weeks, desires the prayers of the brethren and sisters in his behalf. He realizes that there is great power in the prayer of faith, and that he will be restored again, if it be the Lord's will to grant the petitions brought before him.

—Bro. J. C. Chavers, of Hedrich, Ind., writes of the isolated condition of the members at that place, and their lack of an adequate place of worship. He expresses his willingness to contribute $200 towards such an enterprise, and it is to be hoped that others of like mind will come to his aid in building up the cause of Christ.

—Bro. Joseph Weaver, of the Springfield church, Ind., writes: "March 3, Bro. Crume and the writer commenced a series of meetings at the Brush College school-house, and continued until the 10th. Two precious souls came tc Christ, and there are others who have confessed to the truth of the Gospel, and are near the kingdom. May they accept the offers of the Gospel while in a time of grace!"

—Bro. I. B. Wike, of Mooreland, Henry Co., Ind., writes: "Bro. William Harshberger, of Ladoga, Ind., commenced a series of meetings for us at the Buck Creek church, Feb. 19. He preached ten sermons in all. Two were added to the church by baptism, and others were almost persuaded. I feel that Bro. William's presence has been appreciated by us. May we treasure up what we have heard and profit thereby!"

—Bro. J. C. Bashor, of Bashor's Mills, Tenn., in sending for a number of books, writes: "These books I am getting for my grandfather, now in his ninety-second year. Notwithstanding his great age he can still walk a distance of three or four miles without any trouble, and he takes great interest in church matters. These books he intends to circulate among the young members, in order to provide them with something that will improve their minds and make them better."

—After expressing thanks to the kind donor, though unknown to him, who sent him the MESSENGER, Bro. D. L. Lake, of Rockton, Ill., writes: "Only those who are deprived of church privileges can fully appreciate the benefit to be derived from reading the MESSENGER. In my isolation it is very precious. I should be glad to know the nearest organized church of the Brethren, so that, if possible, I might meet with those of like precious faith."

—Bro. J. J. Wright, of Baden, Kans., writes: "In MESSENGER of Feb. 5, Bro. A. Hutchison has given us a good plan how social or prayer-meetings should be conducted. The Brethren at this place organized a meeting of this kind about three months ago. Since that time we have met once each week, and our gatherings are increasing in interest and attendance. These meetings are of immeasurable value to the church, since they afford a means of giving a part of the work to each one. The subjects that are chosen from week to week induce all to search diligently after the hidden truths in God's Word."

—Bro. Jonathan Hahn, of Van Wert Co., Ohio, gives us his experience in coming to the church of God. He had belonged to an organization which taught infant baptism and man-made creeds instead of the Living Word. The "Sword of the Spirit," which is "quick and powerful," penetrated his soul, and he anxiously inquired for the true way of salvation. He found it, like many others, by obedience to all the commandments of God,—his works and his faith united in producing "fruits meet for repentance." In the church of the Living God he has found the peace which this world can neither give nor take away!

—Bro. M. S. Harshbarger, of Painter, Scott Co., Kans., writes: "A great work might be done here by a thorough distribution of tracts. Financial losses prevent me from procuring as many as I should like, and if those kind brethren and sisters, who have the cause at heart, would send me a supply of good tracts, some little good, at least, might be done by the help of God."

—Bro. G. W. Teeter, from the Bear Creek church, Montgomery Co., Ohio, writes: "Bro. Jesse Stutsman, of Pitsburgh, Ohio, commenced a series of meetings March 2, and continued until the 13th. Bro. Jesse declared the Truth with power. As an immediate result, twelve precious souls were buried with Christ in baptism. The meetings were closed too soon, as the interest was just aroused when Bro. Jesse was called to other fields of labor."

—Concerning railroad arrangements for those desiring to attend the District Meeting, Bro. John Forney, of Abilene, Kans., writes: "We can have reduced rates,—one and one-third fare,—for the round trip, provided one hundred or more persons, attending the meeting, come by rail. We can not get any rates for a smaller number. All must pay the usual fare coming to the meeting, and take a RECEIPT, so that I may be enabled to sign a certificate entitling the owner to return at reduced rates."

—Sister Sarah E. Renner, of Hanback, Norton Co., Kans., writes: "Again we were made glad by the coming of our elder, D. Bechtelheimer, and J. P. Nofziger to our place, on Feb. 13, who continued the meetings until over Sunday, preaching, in all, eight sermons. The preaching, we trust, was much appreciated, and we humbly pray the Lord to bestow his blessing on the good seed sown, that it may yield an abundant harvest! We were made to rejoice to see one more precious soul come out on the Lord's side, to be buried with Christ in baptism."

—Mr. W. H. Greegor, Traveling Passenger Agent of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway, writes: "In your issue of Jan. 1, it was announced by G. L. McDonaugh that the Baltimore & Ohio Railway would make one fare rates to the Annual Meeting to be held at Harrisonburg, Va., in June next. I would state that the Chesapeake & Ohio route will meet any rate authorized, but are awaiting action of the different Railway Traffic Associations before making official announcement. The matter will be determined early in April and due notice given through these columns."

Wabash Notes.

OUR council-meeting passed off pleasantly March 9. A considerable amount of business was done, we trust, to the general satisfaction of all. Our delegates to District Meeting are brethren N. W. and J. K. Crumrine. We also appointed our love-feast for June 15. Several ministers from adjoining congregations were present at our council.

C. C. ARNOLD.

From Butler, De Kalb Co., Ind.

BRO. JOHN STAFFORD, of the Little St. Joe church, came to us Feb. 11, and continued the meetings till the 12th, preaching in all three sermons. We had good congregations, and the best of order and attention. As school was in session, and we could not get the school-house, he had to return home again. He held forth the Word of Life in its primitive purity.

Feb. 25 Bro. David Baker, of the New Haven church, Clinton Co., Mich., came to us, and preached four sermons. He, also, had to close on account of school that week. Finally, when school closed, he came again, March 3, and preached ten sermons. March 9 Bro. Samuel Williams, of Cedar Lake district, came and helped him. Bro. Baker handled the Word with great power and demonstration of the Spirit. On account of bad roads, the congregations at first were small, but after the roads got better, the congregations got larger. While there were no additions to the church, some promised to come soon. We hope and pray that they may soon choose the good part, which can not be taken away, and live! In this world life is uncertain, and death is sure. The members felt encouraged and built up. Although they have passed through some dark clouds of discouragement, they are not ready to despair, but are willing to try, by the grace of God, to stand firm upon the foundation of Christ and the apostles.

JOHN H. TOPPER.

From Somerset Church, Ind.

BRO. MICHAEL FLORY, of Cambria, Clinton Co., Ind., came to us March 2 and preached one sermon at the Mt. Vernon church-house. He then went to the Cart Creek school-house, where he preached nine sermons to eager listeners. On account of very muddy roads, and sickness in the neighborhood near by, the congregations were small at first, but meetings closed with good attendance and the best of interest. Although we had no accessions to the church, we are much encouraged to press onward, and we hope the good seed sown will be as bread cast on the waters, to be gathered not many days hence! May God help those that are seeking an interest in their soul's salvation to see that they are working either for or against God. Sinner, where are you going? You are on a march to one place or the other! Which will you choose?

Railroad Arrangements for District Meeting at Milford, Ind.

THOSE coming on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, to attend the District Meeting at Milford, Ind., April 7, 1889, can take advantage of their regular party rates,—two cents per mile each way, for parties of ten or more.

Arrangements have been made with C., W. & M. R. R. so that persons attending our District Meetings will purchase tickets to the Meetings, and receive Central Traffic Association Certificates, which will entitle them to one-third fare return, making fare two cents per mile each way.

W. R. DEETER.

From the Highways and Hedges.

I LEFT home March 7, to visit the members in the Indian Territory.—Choctaw Nation. I passed through the cities of Pine Bluff and Little Rock. Upon arriving at Ft. Smith, I took the 'Frisco Railroad to Genson, sixteen miles distant—near the Territory line. Then I walked about four miles west, to the home of Bro. James A. Brickey, where I was kindly received. This place is about 250 miles from Stuttgart. On account of an all-night lay-over at Little Rock and at Ft. Smith, I did not arrive until Saturday noon, but things were soon set in motion, and arrangements made for meeting that evening. We had a fair attendance of attentive hearers. We continued meetings each day and evening until Tuesday, when the members met in council. At the annual visit all were found in peace. We organized the little band into a Bible Class, to meet, read the Scripture, sing, pray and encourage one another as best they can. We then arranged for a love-feast, on Wednesday evening, at the house of Bro. James A. Brickey. Ten hungry souls were once more permitted to partake of the broken body and shed blood of the Redeemer. They had been deprived of this privilege for about nine years. Here, in this vicinity, live nine members, and four other poor, starved lambs are out in the wilderness, whom I did not get to see. They may be devoured by the wolves, like poor sheep, without food or shepherd.

It does seem to me that if our ministering brethren could realize the destitution and the great need of preaching the true Gospel all over this Southern country, they would wake up to a greater sense of duty. We have had some good admonitions about missionary work. What we need is the WORK,—ACTUAL WORK. That we will never get, unless our ministers go out to "Preach the kingdom of God," and stop spending all their time visiting among the old and established churches. It sometimes seems that the larger the the church, and the abler the home ministry, the more visits they get from missionary brethren. No doubt this is the most pleasant for the present, but will it satisfy Him who said, "To the poor the Gospel is preached," and "Preach the Gospel to every creature?" We talk of sending the Gospel to Germany. That is all right; but what about this vast Southern country? Let them starve? No, never! Brethren, step across the line, and go to work! Build up churches where there are none. Then I will believe that you mean missionary work.

If any ministering brethren should pass on the 'Frisco Railroad, from St. Louis, via VanBuren and Ft. Smith, or to Paris, Tex., or from Paris, Tex., to St. Louis, they will please stop at Jenson, fifteen miles south of Ft. Smith. They will then be within about four miles of Bro. James A. Brickey's home. He will be glad to meet any of the Brethren who will write to him in time, or they can walk out, if able. Address, James A. Brickey, Jenson, Sebastian Co., Ark.

Jenson is about on the Territory line. A person can rent land upon fair terms, for cash, in the Territory. We had six meetings, one council-meeting and one communion, while with them. After an absence of ten days, I arrived at home on Saturday evening, March 16. I found all well, and thank the Lord for his protecting care over us! JAS. R. GISH.

Attendance at District Meetings.

I NOTICE in the MESSENGER correspondence that there is in some places a lack of attendance at District Meetings, and to aid in overcoming this, I send the following:

There may be proper and reasonable excuses in many cases for non-attendance, on account of poor health, great distance, old age and other hinderances that can not well be overcome, but I do feel that if age, health and other circumstances will allow it at all, our brethren and sisters, with their sons and daughters, should, if possible, attend their District Meetings.

I name some of the advantages and benefits to be gained by attending them:

1. It is a council of congregations and those who attend will there learn many things as to church rule and management, besides the order of council-meetings that will be of value to them in their home councils, and this we all need.

2. They there learn that the work is for the churches, and not for one congregation only. This gives them a wider view of the field to be worked, and of the work to be done, than they can have by non-attendance.

3. It gives to all a good opportunity of forming many pleasant acquaintances, and this leads them to love the Brotherhood much more than they would by staying away.

4. The meetings are large, but still in proportion to a man's voice and also of his hearing, so that all can hear what is said and see what is done, and on this account the attention and interest of the whole assembly is better than at the Annual Meetings.

5. The meetings do not continue so long, but that all can enjoy them without weariness or impatience, and this affords an opportunity for all to take part in all that is done.

6. The business before District Meetings is not for individuals, but for churches, and while it is for the Bratherhood, it is yet in the hands of the home congregations, where the facts are best known, where all are most concerned, and where all can and will take most interest in its disposal.

7. The distance to our District Meetings, in most cases, is much less than to our Annual Meetings, and hence the time and expense are small when compared with attendance at the Annual Meeting, hence the sacrifice is small, while the benefit of attending a District council is more in proportion to the sacrifice made than is the case with any other council-meeting that we hold.

8. Our sons and daughters, and our neighbors even, if not members, can, without much time or expense, be taken to District Meetings and there learn lessons and form attachments for the church that will never be lost. These will mould their minds for years, and fit them for the work to come, for the words and faces of the old veterans of to-day will never be forgotten by the young and tender spectators and silent listeners who sit now in our District council-meetings.

9. And I notice, too, that those churches which do not hold or attend the District Councils are falling behind both in power and zeal for the spread of the Truth, hence I would urge upon all who can, to attend their District Councils, and thus aid in every way possible to move the great work along.

10. To increase the attendance at District Meetings is to decrease the number in the class termed "murmurers," "grumblers," etc., which are but poorly represented at District Councils, and to cure these is to enlarge at a rapid rate both peace and good feeling in their home congregations.

Do not let it be said that increased attendance will also increase the burden and expense for the churches holding the District Meetings, for the congregation, which calls for the District Meeting, in every case wants a large meeting,—the larger the better, and will prepare for all who come, and be glad to receive and entertain them.

LANDON WEST.

Notes by the Way.

DECEMBER 1 I went to the White church, Montgomery Co., Ind., and began to tell the old story of the cross to an attentive congregation. This church is presided over by Eld. Martin Bowers, who is assisted in the ministry by Lewis Dunbar and D. C. Campbell. Since that time Bro. Jacob Frederick, of West Lebanon, has moved in. Here there is also an efficient corps of deacons, who are ready to do work for the Lord, to the great encouragement of the ministry. I only staid over two Sundays, as I had promised to go to the Monticello church, White Co., Ind. As is too often the case, I left the above place too soon.

Dec. 11, I went to Patton, Carroll Co., Ind., and began meetings the same evening. Eld. Andrew Culp has the oversight of this church, and is assisted by an able board of ministers and deacons. Bro. Culp was engaged in his Father's business, and Bro. Lewis W. Teeter was also laboring at another point. Their membership is much scattered, but I saw they were trying to care for their scattered members in the way of giving them regular meetings once a month, and a series of meetings every year, if possible. Many of our local churches would do well to pattern after these laudable efforts. As the result of these meetings has been reported, we pass on.

Upon returning home Dec. 22, we found Bro. Daniel Shively, of Peru, Ind., preaching for us in our home church, much to our joy, as some were made to believe.

Later came Bro. Daniel Wysong, of Nappanee, Ind., and began to preach at Edna Mills, Clinton County,—one of our preaching points. He commenced the meetings Jan. 12, and continued for two weeks. Six were baptized, two of whom were our own daughters. Now I realize what it is to see our children come home to Jesus. Praise the Lord!

Feb. 6 I returned to the White church, where I remained until the 19th. Three came out during the meetings, who were since baptized, causing hearts to rejoice. God be praised that their lives are thus spared.

From this place I was called home by a dispatch, announcing that death had entered into a loving family, and taken the husband and father. This brought sorrow and weeping, but they weep not as those who have no hope.

March 2, 1889, I went to Sweetser's, Grant Co., Ind., in the Somerset church. [A report of this meeting is given elsewhere in this issue, by Bro. W. L. Pulley.]

This church is presided over by Eld. D. S. Caylor, who lives in the Wabash church, at a distance of only about a mile from the church-house at Mt. Vernon, and some eight miles from the school-house where the meetings were held. Bro. David is much loved by the members of the Somerset church. The home ministers are J. D. Rife, M. M. Miller and John Strawsburg. Their labors are appreciated by the church and people, so far as we could learn. They have an able board of deacons. I say to all, Let us make full proof of our work! Elders, ministers, deacons and lay-members,—all combined are destined to do a great work, if we stand united.

To the young in the church I would say, Live out your profession, adorn it! Whatever you do, do not bring reproach upon it! May God's choicest blessings abide with all to the furtherance of the cause, is my prayer!

MICHAEL FLORY.

To the Brethren of Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska.

WE hope that the District Meetings, now in the near future, will pay attention to our request in regard to the "Old Folks' Home." If you desire to unite with us, let each District appoint a committee to draw up a plan, etc., and at some time in the near future we can meet, at as nearly a central place as may be agreed upon by the committees, to submit our plans, and then take the best out of all.

Furthermore, if you can see anything in it as to saving time and expense, by giving your committees authority to act as locating committees, do so, for when we come together to submit our plans, and agree upon the best, much time and expense might be saved by also considering the location.

LEMUEL HILLERY.

Hutchinson, Kans., March 18.

From Ludlow, Darke Co., Ohio.

After closing a short but pleasant series of meetings with the Father's family in the Bear Creek church, Montgomery Co, Ohio, I returned home to add my little mite to the interest of the good cause, and to enjoy the meetings in progress at Georgetown.

Eld. I. J. Rosenberger commenced preaching at the above point on the evening of March 5, and continued until the evening of the 24th. Bro. Isaac preached the Word in his usual, earnest manner. He "cried aloud and spared not." As may be expected, some "would not go to hear any more," and manifested the old spirit, "Away with him!" Lovers of the Truth, however, continued to come until the last meeting, when scores were unable to gain admittance.

As an immediate result, forty-five wanderers were gathered into the fold! Many of them are well advanced in years. The above place of meeting is on the line between the Ludlow and Salem churches. Eighteen of those received are in the Ludlow church, and twenty-seven in the Salem church. No "camp meeting songs" were sung, nor did we resort to any undue measures, to excite the feelings. A steady Gospel work produced the above results! Jesse Stutsman.

Railroad Arrangements for District Meeting.

For those going to District Meeting of Southern Indiana, by way of Indianapolis, I have the promise of excursion rates if a party of ten or more buy tickets. Tickets are good for five days. All that will go by the way of Indianapolis will please notify me soon by postal card. Try, if possible, to get to Indianapolis in the forenoon of April 16. Daniel Bock.

Ridgeway, Howard Co., Ind.

From Rock Creek, Kans.

This church is moving along slowly. We can not report large additions to the church like others, but we had two additions by baptism during last fall. We had a very good series of meetings before the Holidays. While there were no immediate additions, good results may yet follow, for a great deal of good seed was sown.

We organized a Sunday-school March 10, which will open April 7. We decided to use the Brethren's Quarterly this year. At our late council, to prepare for District Meeting, Bro E. Cover was elected delegate. No queries were sent from this church. We decided to hold a series of meetings sometime before Sept. 15. We decided to hold a love-feast Sept. 7. E. J. Beeghly.

"Every promise of God rests on four pillars; his holiness and justice, which will not suffer him to deceive; his grace and goodness, which will not suffer him to forget; his truth, which will not suffer him to change; and his power, which makes him able to accomplish."

From the Slate Creek Church, Kans.

The Brethren of the Slate Creek church met in council-meeting, Feb. 17. Considerable business came before the meeting, and passed off pleasantly. In connection with our regular church work, we have a Bible class at three different places in the Slate Creek church, which has been a great benefit to the members, and also to the Brethren's children, who are taking an active part. Brethren, I think some good has been done amongst us. I think if the Brethren would do this every-where, we would do much good for the cause of Christ. We are in the midst of a series of meetings. Eld. John Wise is doing the preaching. He has delivered eleven sermons up to this time, and eight souls have made the good choice, and were baptized to walk in newness of life. Among those baptized were the son and daughter-in-law of Bro J. Wise. The meetings are held in the Brethren's meeting-house in town, with growing interest and the very best of order. We ask the prayers of the Brotherhood in our behalf!

Peter Fouts.

Conway Springs, Kans.

From Middle District Church, Ohio.

This church is in peace and union. We have just closed a series of meetings, held by Bro. Benjamin Honeyman, of Oakland church, Ohio, from March 8 to 14. The Word of God was preached with zeal and power. Our brother did not shun to declare the whole counsel of God. There were no immediate additions, but we hope the good seed sown will be the medium in turning souls to God. Our members had their spiritual strength renewed, and feel more than ever the necessity of working for the Master's cause. There are some who are counting the cost of living a life of sin, and considering the pleasure of living the life of a Christian. May God help such to see where they stand, and to comply with the easy terms of the Gospel while it is called to-day! John Karns.

From Mt. Zion Church, Page Co., Va.

Bro. Jos. M. Kagey, of Dayton, Va., came to our place March 9. He preached eleven sermons, and explained the Gospel in a plain but impressive way. One came out upon the Lord's side. We think other good impressions were made upon some of the people. Brethren, we invite you to come and help build up the great work of Zion in the Page Valley. Whatever you do for the Lord, he will reward you for it with the choicest of blessings, and when our toils are over in this life, we may all meet Jesus in that heaven above, which has been prepared by our Heavenly Father for his people!

PROHIBITION.

But when individual passions induce men to disregard the rights of other men, and invade the freedom of the commonwealth by putting in jeopardy, the property, the morals, the health, the happiness, and the lives of others, by any occupation or manufacture, the State authority is righteously exerted in effectually putting a stop to the whole business. This may apply to anything by which the public peace is endangered. And as the manufacture and sale of intoxicants does this, to license their sale to this end, and there can be no other end, is a moral wrong, and should be prohibited.

But again, it is said by these emissaries of the whiskey monopolies, that if the Prohibitory Amendment is passed, our farmers might as well cut their orchards down and grub out their vineyards. If the orchards are intended to make apple-jack, and the vineyards to make wine to sell, to make our neighbors drunk, the sooner they are cut down the better, because the Lord has said, "Cursed is the man that putteth the bottle to his neighbor's lips." But orchards and vineyards can be utilized in a better way. The making of cider and wine for all such purposes as our Brethren or any other Christian people can use them, will in no way be circumscribed by the prohibitory law. This kind of argument is all a fudge, gotten up to scare the simple. As said before, the prohibitory law gotten up by our church, founded on the Gospel, is as strong and as complete as the Amendment proposed by the State, and when we vote for it, we only ask the State to give to our neighbors and citizens what we already have by a higher authority,—by the decision of the church, "when our Brethren took a decided stand against the manufacture and sale of intoxicants."

The issue is before us, and we will soon be called upon to decide on which side our influence will be cast. The issue is not a political one, but it is between the moral and religious men of our State, and the distillers, brewers and whiskey traffickers — the godless and the Christless. There can be no doubt as to the character of those who favor and deal in these beverages which poison and destroy both body and soul, because it is declared that no drunkard shall enter the kingdom of heaven, and surely those who make them are no better. They are on the side of the world and the devil, and therefore no Christian can vote on that side. Let us not be deceived by the craftiness of the hired emissaries of the evil crew, but let us all stand up manfully for the right, for our principles, as a church, for our homes, for our wives, for our children, our neighbors and our neighbors' children, and, above all, for our holy Christianity. Let us pity, as God pities, the widows, who have been made widows through the curse of strong drink. As the cries and prayers ascend to heaven from thousands of broken-hearted mothers and hunger-stricken children, for husbands and fathers, enslaved through the craftiness of the rum advocates, let our hearts be melted and go to their rescue by exercising, on the 18th day of June, the privileges so graciously afforded us. Let us do what we can, and the result we can afford to leave to the Lord. Let us pray and then let us work, and the blessing will follow, let the majority fall where it may. We don't care for the popular side. It is on the right side and among the good that we want to cast our lot.

Whether or not prohibition has proved a success where established, we shall not now discuss. But this we know: Our Brethren, in going West, prefer to locate in the States where prohibition has become the law of the land. Kansas is a prohibition State, and it is filling up with our Brethren. They set it forth as one of the inducements to go there, and it is a good one, too, as we don't enjoy ourselves among drinking houses, saloons, groggeries and brothels. The drunkard's songs and oaths have no music for our ears. We shun them as we do contagion. And, therefore, when the opportunity comes we will go forth as an army for Jesus and say, The cities, towns, the beautiful valleys, and our lovely homes of Pennsylvania shall be freed from the power of King Alcohol! H. B. B.

In Memoriam.

ELDER Jacob Mohler was born Aug. 25, 1802, and died March 7th 1889, aged eighty-six years, six months and twelve days.

Thus, after an eventful and useful life, passed away one of our most beloved and respected members. Bro. Mohler was called to the eldership of the Lewistown church, and faithfully served the church until declining age unfitted him for the arduous duties, when he called, through the church, Bro. Wm. Howe to his assistance. Bro. Mohler, although bowed down with age, enjoyed comparatively good health until the last, and he had often expressed his desire that he might pass away without long suffering. The summons came to him suddenly. He ate his breakfast with the family as usual, and by noon he was not, for "God took him." He was gathered home as a ripe sheaf for the Master's garner. When we looked upon his saintly face as he lay in the narrow coffin, we thought of his wise council, his loving admonition and his mild rebuke when we did wrong. We feel the truth of the Scriptures, "He shall rest from his labor and his works shall follow him." Bro. Mohler, though perhaps not an eloquent public speaker, preached loud by his chaste walk in life and his labor of love. He was "rich in good works" and has left a kind companion, who is also waiting the Master's call. Being an invalid, life has few joys for sister Mohler, and she has a strong desire to depart and be with Jesus.

The funeral was largely attended. The services were conducted by the home brethren. S. J. SWIGART.

Notes by the Way.

I AM still here in the valley doing some preaching in the old Donald's Creek church, Clark Co., Ohio, in New Carlisle. Bro. Geo. L. Studebaker came over one night, from West Charleston, in the Grove district, where he was holding a series of meetings. Our meeting with him was agreeable. Sister Phebe Yount, wife of O. F. Yount (deceased), was also present at the meeting. What a sad countenance the monster Death can make! I was here one year ago and then met brother and sister Yount. How joyful and pleasant our associations were then! Bro. Yount aided us much in our meetings, but his presence and his melodious voice can be heard no more here below. Southern Ohio has lost one of her strong pillars and Christian workers.

One year and a half before his death he dreamed that he saw the sun when only one hour and a half high, with a beautiful sky, going down the western horizon. He told his wife he would not live long. She tried to get away from the influence of the dream, yet it troubled her. Six months before he died, he saw in a dream the sun only one-half hour high. He told his wife that his time was drawing to a close. We can only imagine how sister Yount felt. When the fatal hour came, Bro. Yount's sun set in the western horizon of his life, while yet in the prime of life, and while he was preparing himself more fully for the work. Our prayers and sympathies go with sister Phebe Yount. Her loss with that of the churches in Ohio, we trust is his gain "over there."

A dear sister,—Bro. Isaac Frantz's mother,—has taken her leave from loved ones, and gone home. We see them crossing the river, one by one. A few years more, and the hand that moves this pen will cease to write for the MESSENGER. Pray on, brethren! Let us be faithful until death. Soon we will meet in the "great beyond."

MATRIMONIAL.

"What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder."

CHRISTMAN—HUFFMAN.—At the residence of L. Huffman, March 24, Mr. Alvah P. Christman and sister Octavia J. Huffman, all of Wells Co., Ind.

MUDD—SHORT.—At the residence of the bride's parents, R. C. and sister Short, Feb. 24, by John S. Snowberger, Mr. Charles M. Mudd and Miss Mary E. Short.

LONG—WOLF.—At the home of brother and sister John Wolf, Tropico, Los Angeles Co., Cal., March 9, by Eld. J. S. Flory, Mr. David E. Long and Miss Eva Wolf.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

ZIMMERMAN.—At Limestone, Tenn., Jan. 31, sister Katherine Zimmerman, aged 84 years, 1 month and 6 days.

Deceased was born Dec. 25, 1804; raised on Boon's Creek, Washington Co., Tenn., on the farm belonging to the heirs of the late Wm Reeves; then owned by her father, Jacob Miller.

In this delightful rural home she passed her youthful days in filial duty and affection. Untaught of the fashionable methods of killing time, her "hands held the distaff," and all the day long she added to the busy hum of her wheel the melody of song. The voice is hushed, but the songs still live. Vibrating across the chasm of nearly three-quarters of a century, those melodies still echo in the hearts of her surviving brother and sisters.

Sister Katherine was married to Daniel Zimmerman, and there were born to them four children, three sons and one daughter, who all preceded her.

About 1842 they emigrated to Missouri, where she resided for thirty-three years.

Bereft of her husband and also of her children, like Naomi of old, she returned to her native country, where she spent the remainder of her days in peace among her kindred and friends.

Soon after her removal to Missouri, she, together with her husband, attached herself to the Brethren church, of which she remained an active and devoted member to the end of her pilgrimage. She was a woman of exalted piety, and justly distinguished for her fervent devotion to her high calling of faith in Christ.

After her return from Missouri, in 1875, she made her home for about four years with her only surviving brother, John Miller, of Limestone, and the remainder of her days with her sister, Mrs. W. F. Reser.

During the last ten years her eyesight steadily failed, until, finally, she had to be led. She was ever cheerful and resigned, manifesting that contented, hopeful frame of mind so characteristic of her nature. She still visited her relatives and friends, scattering sunshine and gladness wherever she went.

Her remains were laid to rest in the cemetery of Bethel church on the morning of Feb 2. Funeral services by Bro. G. F. Pence and the writer, from Luke 20: 35, 36.

J. B. PENCE.

WORMAN.—At her residence in Frederick City, Md., March 7, sister Mary S. Worman, aged 75 years and 11 days.

While our departed sister gave much of her wealth to the church, she could also say, "These hands of mine have administered to the necessities of the saints." She was afflicted, yet very active in the good cause She bore her affliction with the meekness of a saint, and said she was only waiting to go home. HANNAH L. ROOP.

MARSHALL.—In the Big Creek church, Richland Co., Ill., March 8, of typhoid fever, Lucinda Marshall, aged 55 years, 7 months and 27 days.

Her companion died nearly five years ago. She was a faithful sister in the church. She lived in White Co., Ill., at the time of her death. Services by J. J. Cordier, G. W. Eavey and others, from Matt. 24: 42–44.

J. M. FORNEY.

CLEAVER.—In the Rockton church, Pa., March 12, Samuel, son of Bro. George and sister Emma Cleaver, aged 6 years.

He was very intelligent for his age. Scarlet rash finished its deadly work in three days. Services by the writer, from John 11: 28 PETER BEER.

NICEWARNER.—In Baltimore, Md., at the home of her son, E. R. Nicewarner, sister Eliza, wife of Jacob Nicewarner, deceased, aged 79 years and 4 months.

She was a consistent member of the Brethren church for more than fifty years. "As the outward man perished, the inward man was renewed day by day." May she have a sweet rest in Jesus! Interment and funeral in Brownsville. Services by the writer.

YOURTEE.—In Brownsville, Md., Mrs. Catharine Yourtee, wife of friend A. B. Yourtee, aged 74 years. She was a faithful wife, deserving of the highest praise.

DEENER.—Jan. 14, of consumption, Simon P. Deener. Interment and funeral at Brownsville. Services by Eld. Philhour, of the Winebrennarian church, of which he was a zealous member. He was a good citizen and neighbor and very companionable. DAVID AUSHERMAN.

KINDELL.—Near Covington, Ohio, Feb. 24, Theodore Clifford, son of E. and Sarah J. Kindell, aged 14 years.

Clifford went to church in the morning, and helped his mother to get dinner after coming home. "Have you anything more for me to do, Mamma?" he asked, as he started from the house. They called him to dinner, but he did not come. They searched for him, and found his hat near a broken place in the ice. They soon found his body in eight feet of water, and carried it home to his broken-hearted parents. May God comfort them! Services at the Covington church, by J. W. Wine. M. K. DICKEY.

WHETSTONE.—In the Maple Grove congregation, Norton Co., Kans., Feb. 27, Bro. John Whetstone, aged 58 years, 5 months and 28 days.

Deceased was one of the first settlers of the Maple Grove Colony, having come from South Bend, Ind., early in the spring of 1879. He united with the Brethren church early in life, and lived a consistent member until death. He leaves a wife and eight children to mourn their loss, but not as those who have no hope. Services by the writer and M. Lichty, from Job 14: 14 and 1 Thess. 4: 14, to a large and sympathetic audience.

HUMRICH.—At the same place, Feb. 27, infant son of Philip and Cyrena Humrich, aged 4 months.

Our prayer is that the parents will prepare to meet their loved one on the evergreen shore, where sorrow and separation are not known. J. W. JARBOE.

HOOVER.—In the Bethel church, Knox Co., Ind., Aug. 19, 1888, Bro. Jacob Hoover, aged 81 years, 5 months and 6 days.

Bro. Hoover raised nine children, two of whom preceded him to the spiritual world. He had sixty-four grandchildren, sixteen of whom preceded him, and fifty one great-grandchildren, seven of whom preceded him. In his last days he seemed much concerned about his spiritual welfare. Services by the writer, from 2 Cor. 5: 1, to a large audience.

W. R. DEETER.

CLICK.—Near Bridgewater, Va., March 13, after an illness of seven days, Geo. Frank, son of Bro. Joseph and sister Susannah Click, aged 23 years, 6 months and 19 days.

How sad to see one taken off in the prime of life! He had resolved to unite with the church in the spring, but, alas, he was called away ere spring arrived. Services by Bro. H. C. Early, from Heb. 12: 5, to a very large congregation of deeply-affected persons.

S. F. SANGER.

SNOWBERGER.—In Snake Spring Valley, Bedford Co., Pa., May 23, 1888, Rosanna (Snider) Snowberger, aged 82 years, 10 months and 16 days.

Deceased was born July 7, 1805, in the Snake Spring Valley, Bedford Co., Pa.; was married to Andrew Snowberger March 23, 1824, with whom she lived happy until his death, in September, 1874. Then she lived with her youngest daughter, Leannah Sollenberger, on the same place and in the same house in which she was raised. She lived in that house about seventy-five years.

Soon after their marriage, father and mother united with the Brethren church. Shortly after, father was chosen deacon, which office he filled for many years, when he was chosen to the ministry, which office he filled in the different degrees, until he became the elder of the Snake Spring Valley church. In all these different callings sister Snowberger was a faithful helpmate. She assisted father wherever she could, to further the cause of their Master.

She was the mother of fourteen children, thirteen of whom grew up to maturity. All were members of the Brethren church, and eleven of them are yet living. Two of the sons are in the ministry,—Joseph S. and the writer. At her death she was grandmother of ninety-six children, and great-grandmother of sixty children. She was a mother in Israel.

On the same day that our worthy elder, James Quinter, was buried, she was more than usually well, and made preparations to once more go to the love-feast in the old meeting-house in the Snake Spring Valley church, May 25, but when the time arrived, she was taken in,—a corpse. Services by Eld. Jacob Miller and John B. Fluke, from Acts 9.

JOHN S. SNOWBERGER.

CARTER.—At his home in Decatur Co., Iowa, Feb. 26, Bro. Jacob Carter, aged 52 years, 10 months and 22 days.

Our departed brother was a worthy deacon for a number of years; also a Sunday-school worker of more than ordinary influence. Their home was ever a place of rest for the weary pilgrim,—for the home minister as well as the stranger. In his last affliction he lingered some months, with lung trouble, patiently enduring all, without a murmur. He availed himself of the benefits of James 5: 14, and expressed himself as being ready to go. He leaves a wife (a sister) and five children (one of whom is in the church), to mourn the loss of a loving husband and father. The funeral was largely attended. Services by the writer and Eld. Wm. J. Stout, from 2 Cor. 5: 1.

Advice to Mothers.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle 28y1

Church Register.

To those who would wish to collect and to preserve a complete history of their congregation and biography of each of their members, with names, dates of baptism or letter, dates of death or letter, and also dates of election, ordination of all the official members, and all events of importance occurring in each congregation, we would say, buy a copy of the Church Register. Price, containing sample pages and instructions, well bound, and sent by mail, $1.00 per copy Address this office

Manuscript Tablets.

THOSE who write for the press, should be provided with the proper material to do it neatly, and without incurring too great an expense in mailing the production to the publisher, when completed. Our manuscript paper is made to meet that want,—just thick enough to write well, and thin enough to send a great number of sheets in a letter, without increasing the postage. Price, only 20 cents per tablet. Address this office.

EUROPE AND BIBLE LANDS!

BY D. L. MILLER.

THE large sale of this work gives abundant proof of its popularity. The eighth edition is almost exhausted, and a new edition will be necessary to supply the demand. The following partial list will give an idea of the contents of the work:

Life in Germany.—Berlin.—The King's Palace.—Dresden.—The Crown Jewels.—Women in Germany.—The City of Prague.—The Martyrdom of John Huss.—The Habits and Customs of the People.—Bro. Hope's Work in Denmark.—Old Castles and Prisons of the Middle Ages.—Paul's Preaching at Mars' Hill.—Old Temples at Athens.—The Seven Churches of Asia.—Ephesus, and the Temple of Diana.—Jaffa.—The House of Simon, the Tanner.—Plain of Sharon.—Lepers and Leprosy.—Mountains of Judea.—Jerusalem.—Place of Crucifixion.—Mount Moriah.—Solomon's Temple.—Mount Zion.—David's Tomb.—Bethlehem.—The Fields Where the Shepherds Watched their Flocks by Night.—Rachel's Tomb.—Mount of Olives.—The Garden of Gethsemane.—Jericho.—The Dead Sea.—River of Jordan.—Bethel.—The Mountains of Blessing and Cursing.—Nazareth.—Cana of Galilee.—The Sea of Galilee.—Capernaum.—Damascus.—Ruins of Baalbec.—Customs, Manners, Habits and Home Life of the Arabs.

Bro. Miller visited the places he describes, and tells about them in an easy, pleasant manner, which makes the book exceedingly interesting. It contains 439 pages, and 40 engravings, among which are a number of full-page illustrations of Palestine scenery. It is printed on heavy, tinted paper, in clear-faced type, bound in a good, substantial manner, and will be sold at the very low price of $1.50 per copy, cloth binding, postage prepaid.

SPECIAL RATES TO MINISTERS.—In order to have a copy of the book placed in the hands of all our ministers, we make them the following liberal offer: Send one dollar for the book, and sixteen cents to pay postage, and you will receive a copy by return mail.

Texas State Lands—Conditions of Sale.

The public lands in the Pan Handle of Texas are owned by the State of Texas, and have been classified as pasture, agricultural, and timber lands. These may be settled upon and purchased at from $2 to $3 per acre, by actual settlers, in quantities not less than 160 acres nor more than 640 acres of agricultural lands, nor more than four sections of grazing or pasture lands. County clerks will give information as to the value placed upon each section of land in the county, and from whom also blank applications to purchase can be procured. To secure these lands the purchaser makes his selection and describes the same in his application. The whole sum to be paid is divided into forty annual payments. The first payment in cash, with thirty-nine notes drawing five per cent interest per annum, are forwarded to R. M. Hall, State Land Commissioner, Austin, Texas. Sale is held as effected when this application to purchase, together with the first payment and the notes properly executed covering the deferred payments, shall have been received, and filed with the commissioner.

How to secure Texas State Lands. Forty years' time, five per cent interest.

The purchaser is required to reside upon the land for three consecutive years and make proper proof of such residence and occupancy. He has the option of paying the whole amount and receive patent from the State after three years' occupancy. He may also, at any time after application is filed as above provided, sell his claim and transfer the obligation, but in no case can full title be secured until the land shall be occupied and resided upon for three consecutive years.

In addition to the above, there are thousands of acres in Hartley County subject to pre-emption or homestead. Parties wishing to pre-empt the above land have to reside on the same, improve it, and within twelve months pay the State $1.00 per acre. Should they prefer to homestead it, they will have to reside on land and improve it for three years. In either case there is a filing and surveying fee of $12.00 to $15.00. This land lies within a radius of ten miles of the town of Hartley. There are some fine bodies of land of from 160 to 4,000 acres on reasonable terms, which investors would do well to look after.

Homes and Homesteads.

There is no other State in the Union where so liberal provisions are made by law for the protection of the homes of the people from loss through debt or financial trouble as in Texas. It is a part of the Constitution of the State (and therefore unchangeable by legislation) that the "homestead" of a family in the county may embrace 200 acres of land and all improvements thereon, and this may be in one or more parcels. This cannot be seized for debt, except for taxes or for the purchase money, or for improvements thereon, and in the latter case only where the work or materials have been contracted for in writing, with the consent of the wife. In a city or town the homestead may embrace a lot or lots up to $5,000 in value, exclusive of improvements, provided the property is used as a home or as a place to exercise the calling or business of the head of the family. In case of the death of the husband the widow and children have one year's support from the estate, and if the property specially named in the law as exempt does not exist, then enough of such property as does exist may be sold for cash to raise not exceeding $5,500—that is, $5,000 as an allowance for homestead, and $500 as an allowance for other exempt property.

Among the things which are exempt from any execution are all household and kitchen furniture, all implements of husbandry, all tools and apparatus belonging to any trade or profession, all books, five cows and calves, two yoke of work oxen, two horses and one wagon, one carriage or buggy, twenty hogs, twenty sheep, all provisions and forage on hand for consumption, and sundry other articles. It will thus be seen that not only is the farmer and the workman sure that he will not be deprived of his means of support through execution, but that the family of an actual settler will not have their home sold from under them if the husband and father is taken away.

Especially favorable laws protecting wives and children from loss of homestead.

Moreover, the laws are specially favorable for the protection of the rights of women. A married woman retains absolute ownership and control of property owned by her before marriage, or acquired afterward by gift, legacy, or descent. Her separate estate is not liable for her husband's debts, nor for her own contracts, except for expenses incurred for its benefit, or for necessaries for herself or children. Nor can her estate be liable for her making or endorsement of negotiable instruments. The importance of such provisions for the welfare of wives and children cannot be overestimated, and they have had large influence in inducing the tide of emigration which is pouring into the State.

Interest.

The legal rate of interest, where no other rate is specified in a contract, is eight per cent, but if so specified, any rate up to twelve per cent is allowable. In open accounts, if interest is not otherwise agreed upon, the legal rate is calculated from the following January 1st. In case of suit upon contracts, and judgment being obtained, it carries interest at the rate named in contract sued upon. In case of usorious interest being charged, all interest becomes void, an important protection against extortion on the part of money lenders.

Taxes and Tax Sales.

Taxes for any given year are due and payable by the 1st of January next after assessment, and on the 1st of the following March become "delinquent," and the land may be sold.

The owner may redeem the land at any time within two years, by paying to the purchaser double the amount paid by him at the sale. Two years' crops are thus available with which to retrieve any temporary disaster.

All household and kitchen furniture, not to exceed $250 in value, including one sewing-machine, is exempt from taxation.

Taxation is limited by the Constitution of the State to two per cent on the $100, and can only be levied for certain designated purposes — such as roads, bridges, county buildings, etc.

Any information desired will be given with pleasure.

S. M. Larkins,
Hartley, Texas.

We want men who are willing to come here and work and wait for results. The land is here and must be put under cultivation, and now is the time to secure a cheap home. Millions of acres in this section of Texas are now open for settlement at from $2.00 to $5.00 per acre on long time—from three to forty years — with interest at from five to seven per cent on deferred payments. Here is the only land that is in easy reach of eastern markets, and now is the time to secure a bargain.

Sherman County has more smooth sections of land than any other County in the Pan Handle. If you doubt the assertion, come and be convinced, before you locate elsewhere, and you will never regret it.

The Pan Handle of Texas

Some Information in regard to Its Location, Soil, Water, and Inducements to Home Seekers.

The Pan Handle is that part of Texas lying north of the Staked Plain, south of No Man's Land, west of the Indian Territory, and east of the Territory of New Mexico. This tract of land is composed of twenty-seven counties thirty miles square, a majority of which are yet unorganized. This country has been made accessible to home seekers within the past two years by the building of two railroads, the Santa Fe (Pan Handle Extension) and the Fort Worth & Denver. The latter cuts the Pan Handle from south-east to north-west. The Santa Fe is an extension of the great Santa Fe Route, and enters the Pan Handle on the north-east and runs south-west through Lipscomb, Hemphill, Roberts and Gray counties, and makes its present terminus at Pan Handle City, in Carson County, and connects with the Fort Worth & Denver road at Washburn by a branch of the latter road.

Among the first things asked about in regard to new localities by prospective settlers are,

1. What about water facilities?
2. What kind of soil?
3. What kind of people?
4. Have you churches and schools?
5. What prospect have you for railroads?
6. How about your towns?
7. What are your mail facilities?
8. What is your rate of taxation?
9. Is the country healthy?
10. What are your products?
11. What can I do to make a living?

These questions we will proceed to answer.

1. Lipscomb County has about twenty small streams of living water, Wolf Creek being the longest, runs east through the county; the others are mostly tributaries to this. These streams furnish an abundance of pure, clear water for stock, and in the valleys of these streams abundance of pure, soft water may be obtained by digging from ten to fifty feet, further back on the highlands the depth varies from fifty to two hundred feet.

2. The soil varies from a sandy loam to black mold. In the valleys it is usually somewhat sandy, but not enough to render it unfit for cultivation. On the contrary, some of the largest crops have been raised on this ground.

3. The people are mostly from the North and East, some are from the South, and as a class are honest, frugal and industrious, and are here for the purpose of making for themselves a home.

4. There is a church of the Brethren organized in Lipscomb County, with a meeting-house completed in Lipscomb. The M. E. church (North) has a house under way in Lipscomb, one in Timm City, and purposes building one in Ochiltree, Ochiltree County. The M. E. church (South) contemplates building in Timm City at an early day. All the denominations named, with the Christian Union and Missionary Baptists, hold services throughout the County. There are at present eight schools in successful operation in the county, and this is the first school year.

5. As to railroads, our expectations are great; it remains to be seen whether they will materialize. We expect the great Santa Fe to build a branch road up Wolf Creek, through Lipscomb, Ochiltree, Hansford, Sherman and Oldham counties, and on west, to connect with their overland route, and also to extend their line from Englewood south-west through the Pan Handle. We also expect the 'Frisco road to build west from Sapulpa, Indian Territory, through Oklahoma, the Pan Handle of Texas, and New Mexico, to Albuquerque, and also to extend their branch from Bluff City, in a south-west direction through the Pan Handle, to connect with their east and west line. We also expect the Rock Island to build south and west through the Pan Handle. We also expect a new road south from Dodge City, in Kansas, through the Pan Handle, which road is to connect at Dodge City with a road from Omaha, Nebraska, which road is now under contract, to be completed from Omaha to Dodge City by December 1, 1889.

6. There are three good towns in the county—Higgins, on the railroad; Lipscomb, the county seat, and Timm City, in the north-west part of the county. They contain from 100 to 250 inhabitants each.

7. We have a daily mail from Higgins to Lipscomb, and a tri-weekly from Lipscomb west through Ochiltree, Hansford, Farwell and Zulu and intermediate points; also a tri-weekly mail from Lipscomb to Timm City, in the north-west part of the county; also a mail to Mitchell, in the south-west part of the county.

8. The rate of taxation, for all purposes, is one mill on the dollar.

9. Is it a healthy country? We answer, Yes, and especially for lung troubles. The writer came here in December, 1887, troubled with asthma,— so much so that he was often compelled to sleep in his chair during the night, and was unable to engage in any active employment. He has improved in health so much that he has been enabled to engage in ordinary work, and has not lost a night's rest on account of asthma, while at home, since February, 1888. Consumptives are benefited in coming here, as also persons afflicted with bronchitis or catarrh in the head.

10. What do you produce? All that usually grows in this latitude will grow in the Pan Handle—corn, wheat, oats, sorghum or sugar cane, Kaffir corn, millet, Johnson grass, alfalfa. Wheat and oats have not been tried to any great extent, there being no harvesting machines here as yet, and no mills to grind or machinery to thresh, but people have sown considerable this last fall, which at this time looks well. Rye also is expected to do well.

11. What can I do to make a living while improving my farm? In the first place, very poor people had better not come here, for the reason that nearly all the settlers are comparatively poor people, and all do their own work, so there is not much work to do. Again, a man can work every day in the year, so one can do much more here than in some other places. Again, there is no timber to work into mills or lumber, and no land to clear, consequently there is not the amount of labor here there is in some other countries. Again, this is a very new country; people are just making a beginning. Again, last year was very dry here, crops did not do very well, consequently people are going slow—not making many debts.

Finally, we saw that if a man has a little means, sufficient to live on for a year or two, and enough to get him a team, build a sod house, file on a quarter section of land and make a couple of payments thereon, or seven or eight hundred dollars in cash, then, we say, let him come to this land, and he can do well in a mixed agriculture, that is, farming and stock-raising.

In conclusion we say, Come here and see for yourselves; and when you come, come prepared to stay long enough to see how you like the country, and then, if you move into this or any other country, you won't have any one to blame.

Any further questions will be answered if stamps are enclosed.

WASHINGTON WYLAND.

THE RAIN-FALL.

It is a fact well known to all who have investigated the subject, that the rain-fall in every country is controlled by fixed laws, many of which are well understood. For example, the precipitation in any location on land, is not so much the result of the evaporation going on at that place as of the moisture carried there by the winds from the sea or some great lake. It is equally well known that close proximity to the sea does not necessarily insure a great rain-fall throughout the year. Southern California borders on the sea as well as Florida, yet the former has no rain for many months in the year and must depend largely upon irrigation, because of the lack of rain, while the latter has an abundance of rain throughout the year. This difference in the quantity of rain in these two States is owing to the prevailing winds which carry the moisture from the sea over the one State throughout the year, but not over the other.

A very important factor in determining the amount of rain-fall of a country is the presence and direction of high mountains. The Sahara Desert and the Desert of Gobi are the result of lofty mountains which intercept the rain clouds from the sea, and precipitate the greater amount of water on the plains, and on that side of the mountain in the direction from which the prevailing winds come.

A third factor to be considered in estimating the rain-fall of a country, is the proximity of a large river or lakes, or the large number of small streams. Evaporation must always take place from an exposed surface of water; and the greater the amount of such surface, the greater the contribution of moisture to the rain clouds which come from a distance.

A fourth reason why there is less rain in one locality than in another, is the character of the country, and its adaptation to the retention of the water that falls upon it.

Knowing the distance from the sea, location, direction, and distance from nearest mountains, direction of prevailing winds, proximity to lake, river or numerous small streams, and character of the country to retain moisture, we can estimate the rain-fall.

Taking the above data as a guide, we may account for the variations in the rain-fall in the different parts of Kansas and Texas.

The greatest rain-fall in Kansas is along the Missouri River, where the amount is not far different from that at Galveston, Texas. From the Mississippi and its great branch, the Missouri, the rain-fall as we go westward is modified by the prevailing winds, location and direction of nearest mountains and streams of water.

A look at the map of Texas will reveal the fact that the Cimarron, the Canadian, and their innumerable branches, all contributing to the great Arkansas, have their source in the Pan Handle, or a little farther west, while the Red River also has its origin near the source of the South Fork of the Arkansas. Why should so many streams rise in the Pan Handle, making it the stockman's paradise? is a question that has often been asked. The high hills, or mountains, to the northwest of this section of country, in New Mexico, form a barrier to the lower stratum of clouds as they come, heavily laden with moisture from the Gulf of Mexico, and precipitation takes place on their south-east sides, producing the numerous streams that we find.

The peculiarity of the rains in this part of Texas is, that they do not come in winter, when they would injure the grass and the stock that feeds on it. From 1880 to 1888, during the months of January, February, and March, only twice was the rain-fall equal to one inch in any one month, while in May, June, July, and August, when the rain is most needed for maturing the corn and reducing the temperature, then the country is most favored with rain. We take the above facts from the official report made at Ft. Elliot from observations taken during a period of eight years.

From the close proximity to the Gulf of Mexico, compared with Nebraska and Colorado, the prevailing winds, the numerous small streams, all prove the fact that the Pan Handle of Texas is favored with moisture.

PAN HANDLE NOTES.

As we are getting a good many letters relative to this part of the country, we concluded to pen these lines. We arrived here last November (the 20th), and we are now pleasantly located on our new farm, in the northwest corner of Lipscomb County. There has been considerable written about this country already by the brethren, which statements have been doubted by some at least; but right here we wish to say that what Bro. S. Z. Sharp and others have written, in our opinion did not overdraw the picture. Just now we remember what Bro. Lemuel Hillery wrote that it was the nicest part he had seen in the West, which accords with our opinion and vision, especially this part and the northern part of Ochiltree County. But while this is all true, for beauty and, we believe, advantages, we also believe it has disadvantages, as every other country has; but so far we are highly pleased with the country called the "Sunny South."

We believe it to be very healthy here as the altitude is high and dry, and the water is very good, being soft. As to soil, we do not think it can be surpassed anywhere, being a black, sandy loam, varying in depth from six to nine feet. And what is called hard pan, which is so common in Kansas and other prairie countries, especially on the level land, is not known here on our level land. Instead of it, the soil is very porous, admitting the rainfall to be quickly absorbed, which will be a great advantage in retaining moisture when once broken up. And as to breaking, we would say that it breaks easy, as there is not a root of any size to hinder, the ground being covered with a carpet of buffalo grass. I have been breaking this winter, and stirring and fencing, etc.

So far as timber is concerned, it is rather scarce; still there is enough on the creeks to last the settlers for a few years, until they can grow their fuel. We are also looking forward to the time when the Santa Fe railroad shall build through this part of the country from Englewood, Kansas, and then the fuel question will be settled.

As to fruit, we believe this country is destined to become a fruitful land. As proof of our faith, this spring we are going to set out 112 apple-trees, 21 apricot-trees, 50 budded peach-trees, 60 grape-vines, 25 cherry-trees, besides plums, pears and other fruits.

The question is asked, How deep do you go for water? The depth to water varies considerable in this country, owing to location and elevation. Near the streams, one need dig only ten or twelve feet. As you go further back, it runs from 60 to 200 feet. Over on our high flats, the better the land the deeper to water.

The question is generally asked, Can a man of limited means do well here? To all such we would say, If you have not much money, you had better not come here, as there are too many of that kind here now. Our experience is, the more money you have to start with the better, for it takes money to live, to build up and improve, to pay your taxes, interest, and payments. Still we know of no nicer place for Brethren to locate than here, owing to good climate, good health and many other advantages.

Bro. D. C. Cripe and family, and Bro. Fager and others will locate near us this spring. We hope the day is not far distant when we will have a flourishing church here. Those coming to a new country must expect to endure some hardships and disadvantages.

As to what we can most successfully grow here, we do not claim to know, as the country is yet new and, to some extent, undeveloped. Those farming here say corn, millet, oats and sorghum grow best. Wheat has also been raised by those who tried it, and we were told of a fine quality. We do not see why this should not be a good country for wheat, and flax also. We predict a good future for this country, and our opinion is that the man who comes here now will do well. We would say to our Brethren who are thinking of changing their location from a cold to a warm climate, Look this way. But do not come because of what I have written. Come first and see for yourselves, and be satisfied. We hope we have satisfactorily answered the questions asked.

LAWS OF TEXAS.

The laws most interesting to immigrants, in brief, are as follows:

1. All school lands shall be sold at not less than two dollars an acre, and all lands having permanent water, at not less than three dollars an acre.

2. All purchasers of school land may purchase not less than one quarter nor more than one section of watered land, nor more than three sections of dry land.

3. No land can be purchased for any corporation as speculators in land. Only actual settlers can buy school land.

4. The terms of purchase are one-fortieth at the time of purchase and one-fortieth each year with accrued interest on the remainder at five per cent.

5. A failure to pay up the payment or the interest causes the land to revert back to the State.

6. Any one can pay the entire amount for his land at any time, but can not obtain a deed until he has resided on his land three consecutive years.

7. Purchasers can sell their claim at any time to other parties who will agree to comply with the Texas land laws.

8. Sections on which towns are built are not subject to the above provisions, but a title for those can be obtained when twenty houses are built and occupied.

To protect religion and morality, the laws of Texas prohibit Sunday labor or gaming, carrying weapons of defense, unlawfully selling intoxicants, selling of "futures," or engaging in "bucket shops," and all similar gambling.

The Consumptive's Paradise.

Real happiness is the glittering goal in human existence that mankind in all ages has sought to reach, and it is conceded by both wise men and fools that what of happiness has been permitted to Adam and his posterity on earth, since the gates of Eden were closed against a sin-cursed world, has only been found when perfect health has shed its brightness along the pathway blighted by disease and its dark shadow—death. So closely have disease and sorrow woven their fetters about mankind, that, were it not for the bright glimpses of happiness, like "oases in the desert," witnessed in those enjoying good health, many would sink and perish in the surrounding gloom, made doubly so by hopeless despair.

Grim and gaunt disease stalks through the land in oppressive certitude; stooping anon to kiss the bloom from the cheek of youth, grasping with strong hand at the throat of manhood, and torturing with fiendish glee the feeble, tottering steps of age, until his work is done, and loved ones are laid away in solemn sadness beneath the sod of Death's dark valley. The sad moan of the afflicted carries sorrow, through common sympathy, to hearts buoyant with health. Humanity calls in tones of pity for a panacea that will unloose and extract the poisonous fangs—a country and climate with the balm that will heal the wounds inflicted by the hideous monster. Science and learning both fly to the rescue and contribute perseveringly of their skill and research—ofttimes in vain—to discover an antidote for the pain and sorrows of disease. Faith and hope become the ministering angels of mercy that cheer the drooping spirits and point to a clime where an all-wise Creator has provided the avenue of escape and opened up Nature's relief for the particular ailment flesh is heir to.

OUR SPECIALTY

Being consumption, we wish to notice that there are some things set down as undoubted facts by the public that grow out of a wide range of special experience, long before any logical reasons why are given; among which is the one that there is a region in the heart of this Continent which is high, dry, full of pure air, abundant in sunshine, and moderately cool in summer, where gaunt, insidious consumption does not originate. This region embraces Northern New Mexico, Northern Arizona, Nevada, Utah, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, and pre-eminently the PAN HANDLE OF TEXAS. The first knowledge the public had of this anti-consumptive Eden came about the time of the war with Mexico, and after we had taken possession of Santa Fe and other military posts in this part of the American Continent.

Up to that time extreme southern latitudes were the resorts for suffering consumptives; now it is known that warm, low latitudes only seductively retard the disease, but do not make a cure. The protraction and the extending of the existence of a consumptive in warm climates, on the sea coast, is no doubt due to the lessened effort required of the digestive and nutritive functions, which for a time raises cheering hope and flattering expectation, which are not always, if ever, realized.

Direct Testimony.

By careful investigation of numerous cases, we find that in the Pan Handle of Texas most aggravated cases of lung diseases have been and are still being cured. We have not the time or space to enter into a scientific analysis of the subject, but the facts were shown us in a multitude of reliable certificates, given by consumptive persons whose health was restored by the unexcelled and adapted climate of Northern Texas. The latitude and altitude are perfectly suited to the cure of all phases of pulmonary diseases. We met and conversed with many who went to the Pan Handle perfect wrecks from lung diseases: phthisic, asthma, hay fever, catarrh, and in the extreme low stages of consumption, who pronounce themselves cured and now perfectly sound, and able to do as much hard work as in the palmiest days of their greatest vigor. We have in hand a large number of testimonials from persons now residing in the Pan Handle and elsewhere, who claim that they were "snatched from the consumptive's grave" by consequence of their going into this God-prepared, magic, natural climate for the consumptive. These are facts.

The points which the learned Dr. Denison makes, on which he thinks exemption from consumption in this region depends, are: 1, dryness; 2, coolness; 3, rarification (altitude); 4, sunshine; 5, variability. We do not see how any one who has thought wisely on the matter at all, can widely differ from the conclusions of the Doctor. Just here let it not be understood by "dryness" we mean drouth, or deficiency in rainfall; for in the Pan Handle, according to the United States Signal Service, the annual rainfall reaches as high as twenty-seven inches and five-hundredths; and twenty inches precludes the damaging drouth. This section is in the scientifically demonstrated "clear belt"—sunlit, warmth-kissed, and the air made salubrious and pure by every natural agency found in air and climate adapted to the cure of consumption. There is little necessity of advocating the utility of sunshine, through a pure and balmy atmosphere; that alone is proof enough—and such the consumptive finds the Pan Handle of Texas. Those afflicted by this delusive ailment should not delay action, as some have done, going to this properly-adapted climate as a dernier ressort, after flattering physicians have drugged and "bled" them until five per cent of a chance of living six months does not remain, but go as soon as you can get there, and stop tampering with patent nostrums—God has there prepared a healing balm, within the reach of rich and poor.

FROM COLDWATER, TEX.

We emigrated from Grundy County, Iowa, to this country in January, arriving here the 10th. There are ten of us, and up to this date we all like it very well. First, because the face of the country is very beautiful in the northern tier of Counties, and especially the western Counties. Ninety-five per cent of the land can be farmed; the soil is rich and fertile. Of course there has not been much grown here yet, though I saw enough last summer to convince me of its productiveness. I visited this County twice, once in May and once in September. Everything looked fresh and green in September. The soil was in excellent condition for farming. Vines of all kinds do well. Some corn planted on sod made twenty-five bushels to the acre; but all was not so good. I have not seen any wheat yet, but my opinion is that it will do well here, the soil being adapted to it, being mixed a little with sand. It is of a solid nature, not spouty, and does not heave up when freezing. The reports are that wheat looks well wherever it has been sown.

The climate is mild, the weather most of the time since we have been here has been pleasant. Mercury was down twice to 12° above zero. We could have plowed a good deal of the time.

Water is good and sweet. Wife says it is very good for washing. It lies deep, from 60 to 150 feet, but plenty when found. There is also living water in the canyons. There was a company of us, about twenty in number, went to see the Hartley Springs: G. L. McDonaugh and son, Dr. Nair and wife, Bro. Larkins, Bro. Schaffer and family, and others. The springs are about six miles from the town of Hartley. There are thousands of cattle kept in the canyons, because of the living water and natural shelter. Many of the cattle get nothing but the natural grass, and still they are looking well.

So far as church privileges are concerned, it looks encouraging. We have a church in Lipscomb, also in Farwell, and good prospects for one in Coldwater and Hartley.

After having visited various other portions of the Pan Handle, we settled in Coldwater, Sherman County, believing it to be the most desirable location we could find in the Pan Handle. Having come to this conclusion, we would be pleased to have our friends and Brethren, who come West, share its advantages with us, hence we wish to call special attention to some of the features which made us decide to locate here.

We have a County thirty miles square—land all good for farming and stock raising—under a uniform survey, leaving each alternate section, or nearly 300,000 acres, of land for sale by the State, on forty years' time, at five per cent interest, which gives us a great advantage over many Counties, where large bodies of land, in solid blocks, are owned by foreign syndicates. The native grasses all make a better growth here than we have seen elsewhere, giving us plenty of fine hay, as well as good grazing, which seems to indicate better soil. Good building stone is also easily obtained along Coldwater Creek.

Other features, very attractive to us, are the great natural beauty of the location of Coldwater, with the favorable prospect for good society, churches and schools, which seem assured, through the liberality and willingness manifested by the gentlemen interested in the town, to aid in securing them.

We are also on the direct line of the extension of the Rock Island R. R., which has reached Liberal, in Southern Kansas, and is now preparing to build through to El Paso, Texas, passing directly through Coldwater, thence in a direct line via Fort Sumner and White Oaks, New Mexico, to El Paso. This will make Coldwater the next stopping-place of any importance for the road after leaving Liberal, Kansas, as can be readily seen by referring to any County Map of the United States.

I will now close this communication by extending a hearty invitation to all to come and see for themselves.

H. P. STRICKLER.

SOME INFORMATION ABOUT THE PAN HANDLE.

Having resided in the Pan Handle of Texas for the past six months, I can cheerfully say I never lived in a place where I enjoyed life more.

THE SOIL.

As to soil, I think it equally as good as Southern Kansas, and everybody that has seen Southern Kansas knows that the soil is good.

CLIMATE.

The climate of Hansford County, Texas, is all that can be desired. At least such was the case for the six months we lived there. I have been in Lipscomb, Ochiltree, Hansford, Sherman, Moore, and Hartley Counties in the north part of the Pan Handle of Texas, and I consider them all good Counties, as far as my observations extend. The soil is not uniform. There is a good opportunity to select to suit the purchaser's fancy. I therefore recommned to all to examine and choose what will suit them best.

WATER.

In Lipscomb County there are the most running streams; and water is nearer the surface in the low lands; but on the plateau or upland it is about like the other Counties further west.

TIMBER.

Lipscomb County has more timber, owing to the fact that there are more streams of water, for the timber is found along the water courses. There is a good supply of timber along the Paladora River, in Hansford County.

WATER.

The water on the plains is generally deep, but there is an inexhaustible supply of good water when it is reached. In Ochiltree, Hansford, Sherman, Moore, and Hartley counties there is a large area of the finest agricultural land, and all can be bought for $2.00 per acre, on forty years' time, with five per cent interest. I have no personal interest in the matter, but I think the soil in Hansford County is a little better than that of any other place I visited.

CHURCH PRIVILEGES.

There is a church edifice, or meeting-house of the Brethren, at Lipscomb; also one at Farwell, Hansford County. There will be one erected at Coldwater, in Sherman County, and also one at Hartley, in Hartley County, in the near future.

Brethren, and others wishing to avail themselves of the advantages of good, cheap land in localities where the Brethren live and worship, will do well to see the country and make their selections soon, for there will doubtless be a strong emigration to those localities the coming spring.

I am still in receipt of letters of inquiry about Texas. I can only answer such as are accompanied with stamps. I will cheerfully give information if a stamp accompanies the request.

JOHN WISE.

Conway Springs, Kans.

FROM HARTLEY, TEXAS.

In giving these items for the press, we do not wish to be understood as advertising the Pan Handle of Texas, or any special portion thereof, or that we are engaged in the real estate business, although we have had much experience in that line and think that men can follow it as well as anything else.

WHY I CAME TO TEXAS.

It was not because I was not doing well in the place where I was located in Kansas; but having visited the Pan Handle about one year ago, and having looked over quite a good portion of it, I came to the conclusion that it was the best section of country then open for settlement, and that the advantages offered by the State were better than had ever been offered by any party, the Government not excepted.

HOMES FOR ALL.

We see no reason why we can not make as good homes here, if not better, as where we came from. I find, on my return to the Pan Handle, what one year ago looked like a vast unoccupied plain is now being rapidly filled up with good people. Railroads have been built, depots set up, houses erected, trees planted, and the virgin soil turned ready for the spring seed. Yet the country is ready for thousands more who are willing to work and wait.

While we are not in the real estate business, we have hundreds of parcels of real estate listed, many of which are special bargains, and you can find such as are suited to the purses of all, the poorest as well as the richest. We can show you the choice in location, climate, soil, and business. And, as hundreds of men want to make a change, we feel at liberty to say that we wanted a change, and think we found just what we were looking for. If men want to invest in real estate, here is the place to find cheap lands, easy of access to markets, on every side, and at such prices that there is perfect safety in investing.

CAPITAL NECESSARY.

The question has often been asked me as regards the smallest sum considered necessary for a new comer to start with. I will give my idea on the question, while others may think and even act differently. Those who come here to make homes for themselves should have at least from $400 to $800 to start with, even if they should locate on State or school land, which can be had at from $1.00 to $2.00 per acre, on forty years' time on school land, with interest at five per cent per annum on all deferred payments.

There will be some years of close effort to make all ends meet. Men must live, everything will be to buy—living for a family, feed for stock, seed to plant, a team, a few implements will be needed to commence with, and many things to be taken into consideration to begin in a new country. It will be important for a man to keep one or two cows, a few hogs, raise poultry, vegetables, do odd jobs for his neighbors, and so, with even a small capital, a valuable property can be developed in a few years.

PRIVATE LANDS.

If one wants private land, which to some is preferable, it is always safe and best to purchase only as much as can certainly be paid for. One hundred and sixty acres of good land, paid for, is much better than one hundred or more sections on which there are heavy debts and high interest. Develop a small farm and make it profitable, and more land can be had at some future time. Many failures have arisen by attempting to reach too far. New settlers who deserve success always begin on the safe plan, buy but little, pay as they go, wear their old clothes, work early and late, plant trees, vines, leave whiskey and tobacco alone. Such men this country wants, and must have, and they are already coming.

THOSE WHO ARE CONTENTED

to work and be patient undoubtedly will find the reward that they are looking for. In our opinion, those who are looking for a new location should not overlook the Pan Handle, because of its cheap land and high altitude, as well as its southern latitude.

MARKETS.

So many people are very anxious to know whether they can sell what they raise, should they locate here in the Pan Handle. It was a question with me one time, but I have settled that for myself. I have just returned from a trip to Trinidad, 186 miles north, on the Fort Worth & Denver R. R. I find 25,000 inhabitants now engaged in business, such as mining ore of various kinds, coal, etc., and lumbering in the mountains. These people must be fed from Kansas and Texas.

We can sell anything we raise in the line of grain, hay, or garden vegetables. I also find a good market where we can get lumber at low prices; also coal, the best in the market, free on board at Trinidad, for $1.50 per ton. So one can see that we can get the best of prices for our produce, and lumber and coal in exchange very cheap. We also have New Mexico on our west and Southern Texas on the south. We are, so to speak, in the midst of a good market. We will have no trouble to sell all we raise. All we want is willing hearts, and hands to the plow, and the market is sure.

In conclusion we will say that, whatever portion of the State or Pan Handle you make up your minds to locate in, we shall be glad to hear from you, and we are ready to lend you all aid in our possession, to help you select a home. We have now gained considerable information in regard to the country, and are better able to decide than when we first visited the State. T. J. NAIR.

Hartley, Texas.

MY VIEWS.

As I have been written to frequently to describe the Pan Handle of Texas more fully, I take this method of doing so, that one writing may answer the purpose of many letters. I therefore beg space in the GOSPEL MESSENGER SUPPLEMENT to more fully express my views of this new country. As I am not a real estate agent, nor working on a salary, I trust what I write will have its merited credit.

I have, with my family, traveled by team over a portion of the Pan Handle and have had every opportunity of seeing the country just as it is.

First, I rejoice to know that it is settling up with our Brethren and other good people, and will not be occupied by the border ruffian. We, as a people, have generally been too slow to occupy the new countries, and have waited until the garden spots were taken and settled up by others, they planting their schools and churches and holding the public influence, and then we usually come in and often pay fancy prices for land, throwing the profits greatly into other hands, that we, as a people, could have reserved to ourselves and our children, and the church we love so well.

Our Brethren, who have moved and are going to move to the Pan Handle, have determined to go into this great new country first, establish our church and have their children grow up under the Christian influence which elevates and exalts the name of God and his holy religion. This being accomplished, parents need not grieve over seeing their children led astray by the cunning craftiness of men of reprobate minds. We then conclude that our location and surroundings have much to do in the weal or woe of our posterity, and for which parents are largely accountable.

It is hard to train up a child in the way he should go if his surroundings are evil. The geographical location of this country gives it many advantages. It is far enough south to avoid the cold winters of more northern parts, and yet far enough north to avoid the pestilential diseases of the South. Westward it is indirectly sheltered by the great Rocky Mountains, and receives the sub-irrigation of the melting snow of their eternal snow-banks. It is far enough east to share in exports of her products to the great marts of trade; while from this portion of country there is easy and quick transportation to the southern markets, as well as to the mining districts of the West, with railroad facilities already in operation to all points of the compass from Hartley, a growing new town in the Pan Handle, on the Fort Worth & Denver R. R., where the Rock Island R. R. is expected soon to cross to El Paso.

The soil of this country is a black, sandy loam, easily cultivated and of great fertility. The surface is almost level, but a little undulating. In fact, we who are from the mountain regions of the East would call it a dead level, so level and nice that one can run a furrow with a plow for thirty miles, or across a whole county, without breaking the furrow or skipping a rod, in one continuous straight line. When there I took a spade and ran it straight down the length of the blade with my foot, in the prairie soil never yet cultivated.

I believe this is destined to become one of the greatest wheat-growing countries in the world. It will equal California or Minnesota, and has a better climate than either of them, no rainy season of months and then months of dust, as in California; nor need one half freeze six months to enjoy the other six of the year, as in Minnesota. California and Minnesota are good countries, but this is superior to them both.

The water of the Pan Handle is clear, soft and free of alkali.

Now, as a health resort, I wish to speak as a physician of twenty-six years' practical experience. All things taken into consideration, I regard the Pan Handle, and especially the Hartley Springs, as far superior, as a location for the visiting invalid, to Colorado, California, Florida, or any other portion of the United States. Its altitude is not so great as that of Colorado, hence the change to the invalid from the East is not so great or sudden as to check the vital forces or overexcite them. The great altitude of Colorado has caused the death of many an invalid from the East.

Neither does this country have the long, tedious rainy season for months, as does California; nor the mud and slush, so undesirable for the sick. As compared with Florida, it does not contain the marshes and damp atmosphere, to say nothing of the tormenting insects and pests of that southern country, with its crocodiles, and yellow fever in some of its towns; to say nothing of the general type of fevers so common in some portions of the South. And right here I wish to state that all fevers in the South are more severe than in the North or West. At least this is my experience in the treatment of the sick.

In the Pan Handle I can see as healthy a climate as ever the sun shone on—no malaria, no ague or low grade fever; dry and rarified atmosphere, and yet there is rain enough to raise bountiful crops. The soil is of that formation that absorbs the rain as it falls and holds it in reserve in the substrata for the growing crops.

is just the thing for the invalid, revitalizing his entire system, while he breathes in the pure oxygen, throwing off the carbonic acid gas, and physically soon becoming a new creature; he avoids the pains and aches of other places, as well as the continuous taking medicine and paying doctor bills; if he comes here he does not transmit to his posterity a feeble state of body and mind, so that they, in turn, groan out a miserable existence, and go to premature graves before they have half lived out the days allotted to man.

Persons of small means can do well in this country if industrious and prudent. No fertilizers are ever needed in the Pan Handle. There are no Indians, a few buffalo, some antelope and other small game. There is an abundance of fish, wild plums, and grapes, and the people are clever.

I trust this may answer the inquiries of many, as I have stated what I believe to be facts, without coloring. Reader, go and see the country for yourself, and you will know more about it than I can write in a week.

While at Coldwater I was insisted upon to give the people an appointment, which I did, and in a few hours we had a respectable audience, that seemed much interested, and gave good attention to the Word preached. They urged us to come to Hartley and start a school for the Brethren, and we thanked the people for their appreciation of our humble efforts, but had to decline the offer, my home duties requiring my presence.

I close, with many good wishes for our members and friends of the Pan Handle of Texas. P. R. WRIGHTSMAN.

Navarre, Kansas.

A TRIP TO THE PAN HANDLE.

Myself and daughter, Mary Henricks, left Cerro Gordo the morning of Nov. 7, 1888. We went to St. Louis, Kansas City, and McPherson, and spent some time in Kansas. Then we went to Wellington. At that place we took the Pan Handle road. We passed through the Indian Nation; saw some smooth land and some rough land in the Nation. We stopped off at Higgins, and then went to Lipscomb, where we met Eld. Washington Wyland and family.

On the 17th there was a communion meeting in the new church at Lipscomb.

There we found some good land, and good water in plenty can be had at from eighteen to twenty-five feet. We left Lipscomb, and went west, passing through the country around Timm City. The country here is pleasant, and there are some Brethren in that place, and more will move there this spring.

From there we went to Ochiltree, through a delightful country, where there is a good opening for Brethren to locate and get cheap farms. Then we went to Farwell, a distance of thirty or thirty-five miles, where we met Eld. John Wise and wife. Here is as good a country as could be desired. The Brethren's new meeting-house at Farwell is nearly completed. Here, also, is a good opening for Brethren to get cheap homes.

We would have liked very much to go to Coldwater, but we had to return our team to Lipscomb. From what the Brethren and many friends told us, we were well satisfied that the country around Coldwater was as good as any we had seen. Some Brethren have bought land at Coldwater.

We traveled about two hundred miles by private conveyance, and a good portion of the land had the same general appearance. The land is generally dry, the lay of the country very pleasant, and, from all appearances, the country will be healthy. The air is very pure.

As much as we were pleased with Texas, we would advise all to go and see for themselves and be their own judges. The country is new, and there is not much land under cultivation, and so one can't tell just what the soil is adapted to; but the soil looks all right. We saw some sod corn, and millet on sod that was broken last spring, and both looked well. JOHN METZGER.

CLIMATE OF THE PAN HANDLE.

At the invitation of Bro. S. M. Larkins, and in company with J. A. Hudson, Geo. L. McDonaugh and Dr. T. J. Nair I had the pleasure of visiting the now rapidly becoming famous Hartley Springs.

The Springs, five in number, are about six miles from the town of Hartley, in the Rita Blanco Canyon. Protected as they are by nature's breastwork, the canyon, the temperature is always even and mild; and at an altitude of thirty-three hundred feet above the level of the sea malaria is unknown, and has proved to be the altitude par excellence for all lung troubles. Persons suffering from asthma will be relieved at once and consumptives will be greatly benefited.

Besides the tonic effect of the light, bracing air, the medicinal properties of the springs will prove highly beneficial in many ailments. A hotel and cottages will soon be built and invalids and others can have all the comforts of a home, and enjoy the beautiful scenery of the Rita Blanco. I have no doubt but that it will soon be the great health resort of the West. J. J. BROWN, M. D.

TO HOME-SEEKERS.

Herewith I will try and give you a few thoughts on seeking homes.

The married man who starts out to carry his family and fortunes into a new farming country does something that he would do well to consider beforehand. He takes upon himself responsibilities that can not be shaken off, except by sacrifice of money and time, by a change of location, or by retracing his steps to the starting-point.

This is the very error he should avoid. The chances are that he does not want to prolong the search. If he is an honest man, he desires to find a favorable location, and at once commence the business of life, to support his family and to gather around them permanent comforts and sources of supply.

The single man and the city man can seek their own fields and locations after their own fashion. There is more time for the single man, because he can live at very little expense; and the city man is so particular as to what he wants that he can decide as to his location only after he has figured upon some special line of business. Both these men can shift a little without great expense, and take some time to find the very thing they are after. But the family man can not carry himself, family and outfit from place to place while upon expense, because every day lost in fruitless search is good time and money wasted, while it is of the utmost importance that the capital the emigrant has in his possession be kept intact.

Very few prospectors have money enough, and nine-tenths of the emigrants moving West have not half enough money, to make a settlement clear of debt. If, however, an intelligent man, who contemplates moving to new fields, will take the proper course, he can almost select his new home before he leaves the old one. He can first determine what he wants, or very nearly so, and can come just as near to finding it by studying the literature sent out of any country he has in mind. An intelligent man can come very near to picturing in mind the actual appearance, condition and character of a district, ascertain the price and the terms of several tracts of land, and be so sure of all the facts as to move into the new country ready to inspect the locality, and within a day or two be able to say, Upon this ground will I construct my house, and in this country I will build my fortune.

My object in writing this letter is to help immigrants and investors to form a general idea of the great Pan Handle of Texas. There are twenty-seven counties in what is known as the Pan Handle, and a finer body of land can not be found anywhere under the open canopies of heaven. The climate is good, the water very good, and game plenty. The cattle kings have given up the country to settlement, and a great number of immigrants are coming in from Iowa, Illinois, Missouri, Kansas and other States, and the settlers have begun work in earnest; they are plowing the beautiful prairie, and intend to raise large crops of oats and sorghum.

The Pan Handle is a vast extent of country, with the best natural roads in America, without the necessity of bridging or grading, in very large portions of the country, and guaranteed forever against overflows.

During the last eight years observations have been kept at Fort Elliot, which show an average of over twenty-five inches of rainfall annually. If twenty-four inches is estimated to be sufficient, twenty-five ought to be enough.

It has been demonstrated that the high lands of the Pan Handle are better for fruit and small grain than the low lands. Right here is the place and right now is the time to locate. Why? Because you can buy better and cheaper lands here than anywhere else in the United States. Just think! land for two dollars per acre, and forty years to pay it in, with five per cent intereset on deferred payments! After you have been an actual settler for three years, and have improved the land, you can pay all and stop the interest.

Hartley County, Texas, is located on the Denver, Texas & Fort Worth R. R., midway between Denver and Fort Worth, and will be the county seat when the county is organized. It is now the railroad station for supplies for several counties.

Come, and you will be welcome.

D. J. SHAFFER.

APPENDIX. — Parties from the East can purchase through tickets to Pan Handle City over the Santa Fe R. R., and at the Union Depot at Pan Handle City purchase a ticket to Hartley for $2.95.

G. L. MCDONAUGH.

HARTLEY, TEXAS.

It will be the Seat of Hartley County when the County is organized. It is now the railroad station for all points in Hartley, Sherman, Hansford and Moore Counties.

To answer the many queries relative to the Pan Handle of Texas, we would say we think we have as fine a country here as can be found anywhere in the United States; and, judging by the actions of the many persons who have been here and examined for themselves, and invested their money in this section, the verdict is unanimously with us.

Eld. H. P. Strickler, of Eldora, Iowa, came out here last fall and spent several weeks in looking over the country, which resulted in his moving with his family and that of his son and son-in-law to Sherman County, which joins us on the north-east.

Eld. T. J. Nair, S. M. Larkins, and D. J. Shaffer, from Herington, Kansas, and their families, have also moved in here.

Elders S. Z. Sharp, Paul Wetzel, Henry Frantz, P. R. Wrightsman, F. Bradley, J. M. Snyder, and quite a number of brethren from different States, have visited this country, and many of them have invested their money, most of them with the intention of making their future home here.

There will, in all probability, be a Brethren's church completed here before midsummer, as an entire block of ground has been set aside for that purpose, and already the subscriptions have reached quite a respectable amount, and the railroad company have not been behindhand with their promises of assistance in getting material here for the church.

Should any wish to come here to see for themselves, they can secure a ticket at their nearest ticket office, via Kansas City or Atchison, to Pan Handle City, Texas, over the Santa Fe R. R. (the rate from either Kansas City or Atchison to Pan Handle City is $10.60), and at Pan Handle City Union Depot Ticket Office purchase a ticket to Hartley for $2.95. On arrival here some of the brethren will be only too glad to show them around; or if they want further information about the country, they should write to any of the brethren mentioned above, or to my father, George L. McDonaugh, General Railroad Agent, 116 North Fourth Street, St. Louis, Mo., and he will render them all the assistance and information in his power, and I will be pleased to try and answer any questions they may see fit to ask me.

E. L. McDONAUGH.

COLDWATER.

The Center of Sherman County, Texas.

Around Coldwater for miles in every direction lies the prettiest and most fertile body of land in the West. The soil is a dark loam and from two to ten feet in depth, and the surface is thickly matted over with buffalo grass. Here and there over this beautiful prairie is a lake of fine water, fringed with a luxuriant and nutritious growth of grass, which makes the best of hay. These lakes furnish an abundance of wholesome water for stock. The soil is rich and produces well oats, corn, wheat, alfalfa, potatoes, fruit, and garden vegetables of all kinds.

Patent lands can be bought at various prices, on terms to suit purchasers. Come and see for yourself. We are willing to risk the consequences of your judgment and take our chances among all the new Counties and countries to be populated, organized and developed.—Coldwater Clarion.

All public land in the Pan Handle belongs to the State and is open for settlement. They have five medicinal springs, six miles north-west of here, that are attracting much attention. They are called the Hartley Springs and are situated in the Rita Blanca Canyon — a most singular formation; you might be driving along over the rolling prairie for miles, and all at once come to the Canyon, which is about 200 feet deep and a mile wide, with abrupt rock cliffs on each side, which for twelve miles you would find impossible to drive a team down to the valley, but when you reach it you would find almost tropical temperature, with a soil that will raise anything. Parties were sowing oats down here in the Pan Handle along about the 25th of February, and other crops are now going in.

We think the nursery business will be in order, as we must have nursery stock of all kinds at an early day. Now is your time to make a move in this direction.—Coldwater Clarion.

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER.

"Set for the Defense of the Gospel."

Vol. 27. Old Series. Mt. Morris, Ill., and Huntingdon, Pa., April 9, 1889. No. 15.

The Gospel Messenger.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH, Editor,
And Business Manager of the Eastern House, Box 50, Huntingdon, Pa.

TOBIAS KUNKLE would like to have the address of a brother farmer living on the line of the Chicago and Alton railroad, from twenty to forty miles east of Kansas City. Address, Bermudian, Adams Co., Pa.

ALL those wanting music books for Sunday-school purposes will please wait till "Gospel Chimes" are completed, which will be very soon. They will be just what we want for our schools and people, having the character notes and the necessary elementary instructions.

THE Clover Creek, Pa., church reports three additions lately. This is the church in which our District Meeting will be held, on the 15th of May. The Brethren there will arrange for a full meeting, and we hope every church in the District will make it a point to represent.

PROHIBITION AND TAXES.

THE anti-prohibitionists are trying to make some of our people believe that prohibition will increase their taxes. They show up to them the large amount of revenue that is paid in by the whiskey men and dealers, and say that prohibition will cut this all off. So it will, but with it the crime and the expense of this terrible business will also be cut off,—which exceeds all the revenue it pays in by a hundredfold. Across the river from us stands the Reformatory, that has already cost the State over eight hundred thousand dollars, which is only the beginning, if the sale of whiskey is continued. Besides this, we have a Penitentiary at Pittsburg and one at Philadelphia, that cost fully as much each, with an expense of thousands a year to run them. Every County has her jails, courts and almshouses, which represent thousands of cost every year, all the result of crime, three-fourths—yes, four-fifths,—of which comes directly or indirectly as a result of the liquor traffic. Stop this source of crime and expense to the Counties and State, and the taxes will be decreased a hundredfold.

No, the State and Counties don't want money that is given as the price of ruined homes and ruined souls. If a man who sells whiskey pays a license fee of five hundred dollars, where does he get the money? It is a very plain case. It is from those who buy his whiskey and beer. Our poor men, out of their hard-earned wages, pay the money to the saloon-keepers, and a small portion of the profits is given to the State and Counties in the shape of license. It is not the whiskey sellers that pay this money, but the whiskey drinkers.

No, brother, don't allow yourself to be deceived with such arguments. The taxes are enlarged by the whiskey men, and not by those who are laboring and praying to get it out of the way. Drunkenness makes criminals, and they make expense, and this expense must be met by taxes. If all people were Christians, we would have no criminals, and as a result there would be no costs to try them in our courts, no criminal suits to pay for, no jails to keep them in until convicted, and no penitentiaries and reformatories in which to feed them after conviction.

This, of course, has reference only to our financial loss. And if that was all, we could bear it. But when we take into consideration the ruined homes and ruined souls, the loss caused by intemperance is beyond computation.

IS IT RIGHT?

A BROTHER asks us, "Is it right for brethren to move away from well-established churches where they can enjoy the religious meetings of the Brethren, and move west where there are no Brethren, and then complain of their isolated condition and call for the church, at a heavy expense, to send them ministers to preach for them?"

There are several things involved in this question that must be considered in order to determine the right or wrong in it. According to the moral philosophy, right is an a priori intuition which must be determined through the motive as exemplified through action.

The motive in making the move is the first thing for consideration. If the motive is that of right, the action will be justifiable. If a brother, or family of members, moves away from acceptable church privileges, it is presumed that they do it for a cause that is sufficient in their estimation. And if that removal be to a place where desirable church privileges, for the time being, can not be enjoyed, the cause must be a better one than simply that of financial advantage.

A brother has a large family of children, and where he now lives, though he has excellent religious advantages, he says he can not make a desirable provision for his children, financially. To remedy this, he severs his home and church relations and moves into a place where the land is cheap, and where he can get good homes for his children, but there is no church there, no religious privileges, and as a result he and his family experience a spiritual loss. Both himself and family are exposed to a spiritual famine that is more destructive and dangerous than a famine for bread could possibly be. Is it right for brethren to thus expose themselves and families for no higher consideration than that of financial gain? And, after placing themselves in a condition of this kind, is it right for them to call on the church to send them ministers to remove from them a loss and a danger in which they have of their own accord and voluntarily placed themselves? We believe that, if financial gain were the only motive, the general answer of all would be, "Not right."

Lot made a bad mistake in choosing the beautiful and fertile plains down by Sodom. Though wealth flowed into his coffers, and his daughters married well, the end of the experiment was extremely disastrous to the happiness and well-being of his family.

But it is not at all necessary that financial gain should be the only cause or motive in such removals. If such brethren are well grounded in the faith, and have a proper love for the church, such removals may be made desirable missionary stations, wherefrom the Gospel may shine, enlighten and save those around and about them. Many very desirable openings have been made in this way. And because many of our brethren were willing to make the attending sacrifices of frontier life, the Great West is now dotted over with Brethren churches, so that right has grown out of that which, at first, seemed to be a wrong.

Brethren often, in thus moving away from church privileges, do not appreciate them until they are lost to them. But we are glad that this loss is afterwards felt, and that they then send for ministers to come and preach the Gospel for themselves and their neighbors as well. In this way this isolated home is made a missionary post, where our ministers are gladly received and cared for while the Gospel is being preached to the people,—a nucleus is formed around which large churches have been built, and to-day our success in having the Gospel preached, as we believe it, must be attributed more to removals of this kind than to any direct missionary work that has been done by the church. Therefore, in determining the right of this question, all these things must be taken into consideration.

That there is danger in brethren isolating themselves from church privileges, there can be no question, and men have suffered great loss therefrom. But this danger is greatly modified by faithfulness on the part of such members. If brethren stand firm in their faith and live out the principles of their profession, they will be a light in any community that can not be hid—the greater the darkness, the brighter the true light will shine.

The calls from such brethren, as far as possible, should always be responded to, even if the motives, in the first place, were not what they should have been. Man's extremities are thus made the Lord's opportunities, and the church his instrument. We should never turn a deaf ear to a sincere call for spiritual help. The love of our homes and the attachment to our downy nests are too strong, and these are some of the ways in which the Lord stirs us out and drives us into other fields. It would be a great thing for us if our brethren would make a break for the South, as they have done for the West, and then follow them with our ministry. Let them go as forerunners to a grand opening in fields that have not as yet been occupied, and the Lord's blessings will follow. But in all these removals this one grand truth should ever be kept in view, "Whatsoever ye do, do it all to the glory of God."

An unusual amount of good news has been coming in from series of meetings being held in different sections of the Brotherhood. As we have been reading these reports, the question has come to us in this way, If from one hundred meetings thus held we have an average increase of ten for each meeting, or an aggregate of one thousand, what a glorious thing it would be for the church and souls unsaved, if three or five hundred such meetings could be held! And why not? Such fields for labor are numerous, and there is much land yet to be possessed. There are thousands and millions in our towns and cities that are waiting for the pure and simple truth. These are right around and about us And besides these we have the New England States and the great South that know nothing about us as a Christian people.

Every accessible room in the Normal Building is engaged for the Spring Term, and still they come. We bid welcome to all, as outside accommodations will be arranged for, so that all will be comfortably entertained. We are now arranging to erect another four-story building, 40x100 feet, and hope to be able, by another year, to have accommodations of our own for all who may come. Our object is to add to our present courses a Bible and a Commercial Department. This we do to meet a demand that seems to be pressing upon us, and we hope thereby to meet the hearty co-operation of the church. Our schools can not fill their mission fully until the Bible is made conspicuously one of their text-books. It is the Book of books, and the foundation of all true science.

LEAVES FROM OUR NOTE-BOOK.

During the first quarter we wrote, each week, an article on the Sunday-school lesson. We do not know whether our readers were benefited by these articles or not, but the writing of them was an advantage and a great pleasure to us, and we would have continued them had not other duties crowded upon us. If spared awhile longer to work for God, we hope to continue this line of work some time in the future.

Last week, in company with Bro. Swigart, we made a flying trip to Somerset County, in behalf of the Brethren's Normal College. The first point visited was the Myersdale congregation, over which Eld. C. G. Lint presides. Appointments were made on Monday and Tuesday evenings, and Bro. Swigart preached to very fair congregations. Here is one among the most commodious and best arranged meeting-houses we know of in the Brotherhood. But this is not all. From what we could learn, the church here is in a flourishing condition. We knew this church had its trials in days gone by, and we wondered how it so successfully overcame them, and is now marching on to victory. A little conversation with Eld. Lint gave us the secret of the matter. In the first place, he paid no attention to the violent attacks made upon him and his membership, but went on in the even tenor of his way, trying to do the right.

Such a course will always produce the best results, as is fully illustrated in the Myersdale church. A sarcastic, antagonistic spirit is never productive of good, and those who are actuated by it are always the losers.

Another reason why this church succeeds is, its elder is a live, wide-awake man. He knows every member in his church and his standing financially and spiritually. This shows an intimacy between him and his membership which is the mark of a good shepherd. Then, too, he knows the young men and women of his church, and seems to be much interested in their future course. Especially were we impressed with his interest in the young men. "Brethren —— —— are teaching; they are bright young men; I would like to see them educate themselves, as I believe they will make useful men in the church." Such an interest in the young men will draw them closer to him and make them feel that they are auxiliaries in the church's work.

It is the suspicion and mistrust on the part of the aged ministry in our church, in many places, that are discouraging and driving away our young men. But there is nothing of this feeling at Myersdale, and we predict that when the older laborers fall out of the ranks, there will be those willing to step in and fill their places. In short, we were pleased with the church at Myersdale. We are under many obligations to Eld. Lint for his kindness, and to the brethren who aided, in a substantial way, our school. Here we also enjoyed the hospitality of Bro. and sister Linda Griffith. Sister Griffith is a graduate of the Normal, and we are glad to learn that she is making a good record. When we inquired of her the answer was, "A first-rate sister, an active worker in the Sunday-school."

Not far from Myersdale lives Bro. S. J. Miller; and when the brethren and sisters enter his home they will at once feel that they are with kindred spirits. The mother, several years ago, passed through the "chillness that precedes the dawn," and is now basking in "the sunshine of the other life." The home, darkened by Death's relentless hand, is, however, being lighted by the duteous daughters and sons. How Christianity lightens up the home, and what a joy and comfort it is to a father's heart when his children consecrate themselves to Christ!

We also visited three other congregations in this county, of which we can not write definitely. Every-where we were received with marked kindness, and we feel truly grateful to the elders for their assistance in getting the cause we represented before the churches. Then, too, notwithstanding the roads were very muddy, and, on account of snow-drifts, in places almost impassable, yet we were freely conveyed from place to place. This is no little help in a work like ours. The sugar season had just set in, and we found many of the Brethren busy in their camps. Bro. W. G. Schrock who, with his wife and daughter Emma, attended the Normal several years ago, has a fair camp and makes first-class sugar and syrup. They sent us away laden with sweetness, and our families are now enjoying it. Bro. Schrock and Bro. S. F. Rieman are ministers in the Berlin congregation. There may be others, but we did not meet them. Bro. Schrock's father is the elder, but is aged and can not get out much any more. We visited him at his home, and found him strong in the faith and perfectly resigned to the will of the Lord in all things. We have in these brethren warm friends of the school, and through their influence patronage will come to the school by and by.

Bro. P. Cupp, near Somerset, is another strong supporter of the Normal. His daughter graduated here two years ago, and a son is now in the graduating class for 1890. Besides all this, he has given us help in a substantial way. He prefers to give his children an education rather than a fortune in houses and lands, and he is right. A good Christian education is more than dollars and cents. Bro. Swigart preached in a church near his place on Friday evening to an attentive congregation. Elders Blough and Schrock were present, and we remember with pleasure their very warm reception.

The next point visited was Scalp Level, Pa. Here is where Eld. Hiram Musselman lives. It was not just the place we expected to get to, but after we got there we were not the least bit sorry. Bro. Musselman is one of the kind of men that likes to have the brethren come to see him, and if they come near him, he will get them there, even if he has to stop a train to do it. Bro. Swigart preached in the little village of Scalp Level, on Saturday evening and Sunday morning, to good congregations. A more kind and hospitable set of brethren and sisters we never met, and we will remember our short visit there with pleasure.

On Sunday afternoon Eld. Jacob Holsopple took us to his home, where we spent a short time very pleasantly with his kind family. He is a strong supporter of the school. Two of his daughters have attended the Normal, and will be present again this summer. Just here we note one fact. Brethren Holsopple, Musselman and Berkey are all elders in the Shade congregation. They seem to work in perfect harmony, and, as a result, the church is prosperous.

Sunday evening Bro. Swigart preached at Walnut Grove meeting-house, in the suburbs of Johnstown. After services we made a very pleasant call with Bro. E. Strayer, in Johnstown. Here we met sister Sadie Brallier, a correspondent to our paper, and a sister to sister Strayer. We spent the time very pleasantly with these Christian friends until the 11 o'clock train, which we took for home. From what we could see and learn of the church here, we would suppose it to be in a good condition. We formed the acquaintance of some of the members who seemed to be earnest workers. They have a weekly prayer-meeting and a well-attended Sunday-school. Bro. C. F. Detweiler lives near the church, and ministers to them as his strength permits. At present his health is on the decline, and he is not able to preach much.

As we have stated in our notes that we were soliciting for the school, we will yet say that we purpose, during the coming summer, to erect an additional building, 40x100 feet. This has become necessary, to supply the demands of our school. And, further, that we may add some new departments, and especially one so prominently in the mind of our aged elder Quinter before his death. The Normal College at Huntingdon has come up from a very small beginning, and has surmounted many obstacles and discouragements. Among these was, first, the removal by death of its founder, Bro. Zuck; and, more recently, the death of its President, Eld. Quinter. All this has often caused us to falter, but, in harmony with the spirit of the men who have left us, we feel that we must take up the work and push it forward.

We kindly ask our brethren and sisters to give us their sympathy and aid in this work. We feel that too much hard work has been done here to let the school fail. Then, too, the motives of its founder and its deceased President were so unselfish that we can not help but believe that, if we work on in their spirit, God will bless our efforts. It is our prayer that we may have this spirit, and we ask our Brethren, every-where, to unite with us in this prayer, that the school may be an auxiliary to the church we love so well, and an honor and glory to God!

ESSAYS.

"Study to show thyself approved unto God; a workman that needeth not be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth."

"THE WAY OF ALL THE EARTH."

"The way of all the earth;' sadly we hear
These words pronounced. The unavailing tear
Falls fast and long above the lowly bier.
Ambition crushed; fond hopes now withered lie,
And as the wreaths which only bloom to fade,
So are they gathered reverently and laid
With those whom Providence has called to die.

"The way of all the earth." How far that way
Which travelers take when fades this mortal day?
Whence is their light, what bright, celestial ray
Lights those far realms where stars shall never burn?
What hope is theirs within that wide domain?
What is our loss, what their eternal gain,
When they are gone? Ah, never to return!

"The way of all the earth." Since Eden's crime
All that partakes of life, in age or prime,
Shall taste of death, until the end of time.
Yet from the very dust on which we tread
Springs life—an emblem of what is to be
In that near, closing time, when we Shall know and greet the living from the dead.

SIN IS CONTAGIOUS.

BY SAMUEL WEIMER.

CONTAGIOUS diseases have affected numbers of people, and some, or all of them, have carried, and are still carrying with them, their disastrous results.

Past experience of those results have taught many people wisdom, so that they throw safeguards or protection around those infectious, disastrous diseases to keep them from spreading, when they make their appearance in any locality. Rigid laws have been enacted for the protection and safety of the people. Even friends and near kindred can not be allowed to visit those affected with such contagious, disastrous diseases. Though it may seem cruel, for the safety of the people no deviation can be allowed. Some of these contagious diseases are also epidemic, affecting all races of people without natural causes.

Such is sin in its full extent. It is said that as is the company in which the boy associates, so will the boy be. Such being the case, past experience also ought to teach us wisdom, but, oh, how sad, when we reflect, that the children of this world are in their generation wiser than the children of light! Luke 16: 8. Let a few boys who are addicted to the bad habit of using profane language, go to a school where the teacher has no rule in force to prohibit such language, and protect the children of the school; it will not be long until the greater number of them are affected. Though the parents may talk to their children at home, it is like exposing the children to some contagious disease, and telling them not to inhale any of the poisonous atmosphere. If the teacher has the proper rule and enforces it, being supported by the officers and citizens of the school district, the sin of profanity will be abated. When our children are sent from home to school, we should see to it that they are protected from vice and sin, for their safety and eternal welfare.

Novels and other fictitious reading have ruined many a child. Fathers and mothers, watch with the eye of an eagle over your children! See and know what they read, and put before them pure literature.

As sin is so very contagious, and spreads so rapidly, if not counteracted, past experience should teach us, as a church, to use wisdom, so that provisions be made for the safety of her members, to hem in those contagious and epidemic sins.

Those rules, at a glance, may seem stringent and harsh, but for protection and safety from the spreading of this evil among her members, they have to be so. And those who are set as officers, and whose duty it is to oversee this matter, can not be too careful. Once in a while some one has come into contact with this contagion, and the disease has broken out on them. Experience ought to teach us that the sooner the fire is quenched, the better it is, and the less the damage.

The congregations of the Brotherhood that were the most careful to guard against infectious sins, suffered the least loss and damage, and are the most prosperous to-day. Those that were not so careful, had to suffer great loss and damage. They probably thought, "It is but a little thing," and thought it would die out. Yes, it did die out like fire, when it has consumed all in its reach! This has been the experience of many. Popular Christianity, is full of epidemic sins, and they are contagious. Little do they care whose temple or building they set on fire—the more the merrier! It takes close and careful watching, much patience and gentleness, with firmness and boldness, to guard against these sins. "Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation."

Harbor Springs, Mich.

TO OUR DEAR BROTHER, ANDREW HUTCHISON.

BY C. H. BALSBAUGH.

I HAVE just been looking over the MESSENGER issued March 19, and was deeply touched with the recital of your sufferings. I know what it is to have body and soul rent with agony which no lexicographer has ever defined in words. Nothing but God in the flesh can bear up under the terrible strains, when nervous torture is at its acme. But I must restrain my pen, and confess that I know not yet what it means to suffer to the utmost limit of endurance. I only know what I have suffered, and am daily suffering; but all this may be only a ripple on the surface, compared with what is possible to human nature when its deepest and highest capacity is taxed with agony.

Well, my dear Brother, I will not forget to put my handful of incense on the censer for you when I bow before the awful Mercy-seat. Please do the same for me. How many of God's Elect will join in earnest, trusting supplication in our behalf?

First of all, let us pray for power to pray. And this means such an honest, whole-hearted acceptance of Gal. 6: 14, as to allow no shadow of variation between our will and God's. To pray in the Name of Jesus is to pray as Jesus prayed on earth, and as He now prays in Heaven. O, that we knew how to die with Him, then would we also "know the power of His resurrection," and the dominion and sovereignty of His sin-conquering, death-abolishing Life!

Look well unto the Cross, my dear Brother, and fasten all your hope there, for body and soul, for time and eternity. I know that if there is any help for my poor, feeble, pain-quivering body, it must come straight out of the Glorified Body of my sympathizing, interceding Advocate, Jesus Christ the Righteous. I know that in all my sufferings I am sustained by Him according to my faith, beyond the powers of nature. Nothing tries faith like pain that plows through bone and marrow, nerve and muscle, tearing through brain and mind like a very cyclone of agony. But Jesus was there before you and I, and "is touched with a feeling" of all that harrows our being, and is able to succor us in the sevenfold-heated furnace of affliction.

It is here we learn, as nowhere else, to bow low and pray, and wait. To drain the deepest, blackest dregs, and then say out of a full heart of love and trust, "Even so, Father, for so it seemeth good in Thy sight," is to have fulfilled in us the Great High-Priest's Prayer for us. John 17: 3. Let us get the wonderful, thrilling, Heaven-palpitating meaning of "BUT," in Heb. 12: 10, coupled with 2 Cor. 4: 17.

Farewell. May God help you to sing the Nightingale Song of Faith! Ps. 2: 3 and Ps. 42 and Is. 12.

"BAPTIZING THEM IN THE NAME OF THE FATHER, AND OF THE SON, AND OF THE HOLY GHOST."—Matt. 28: 19.

BY S. N. M'CANN.

The Word Teaches Forward Action in Baptism.

IT is clear from the Word of God that the "one baptism" of the "one Lord" is an immersion into the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, and not in the name of Father, Son, and Holy Ghost. That immersion may be performed backward, sidewise, or forward, and still represent a burial, still be an immersion, is also true; but it is not true that it represents a burial by baptism into Christ's death, until our wills are submitted to his divine will and authority; not true that we are planted in the likeness of his death, until we willingly bow by a forward action, "by baptism into death."

The word burial implies a hiding away, a covering up, and does not imply the manner of hiding or covering. The word burial could not signify a manner of hiding to the Romans, for they burned their dead and buried the ashes. Other ancient nations buried their dead, some in a sitting posture, some in a standing posture, and some in a kneeling posture (see any ancient mummies).

If the Word did not tell us in what likeness the individual was planted in baptism, we, as Americans, might infer as the English Baptists did, that it signified a backward action, because the word burial is used. But we find that the Word says, "If we have been planted together in the likeness of his death," notice, in the "LIKENESS OF HIS DEATH," Rom. 6: 5, and not in the likeness of his burial. How did he die? Not in the grave, but on the CROSS, and then not by throwing his head back, but by BOWING, for "when Jesus therefore had received the vinegar, he said, It is finished: and he bowed his head, and gave up the ghost." John 19: 30. Can a man be planted by baptism in the likeness of Christ's death, and not bow the head in the act of baptism? It is evident that we get the likeness when we bow in the act of baptism.

But some say this planting in the likeness of his death does not have reference to Christ's death on the cross, but to his suffering in the garden, when "his sweat was as it were great drops of blood falling down to the ground," and his soul was "exceeding sorrowful, even unto death." True, his suffering in the garden is often called a baptism of suffering, a sorrowing "even unto death;" but he knelt and fell on his face, not on his back; he bowed to the ground, not once, but three times. Matt. 26: 39–44; Luke 22: 41–46. Christ's submitting his will entirely to his Father's, in the garden, is very significant of the kind of death that is signified by baptism. We die to our own wills in baptism, just as Christ fully dropped his will for his Father's in his agony in the garden, saying, "O my Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me: nevertheless, not as I will, but as thou wilt." When he fell on his face the second time, he showed a will completely submissive, for he said, "O my Father, if this cup may not pass away from me, except I drink it, thy will be done."

Bowing the third time, we find him saying the same words, giving us a complete likeness of the kind of death that we represent in our baptism, that is, a death to our own wills; also a complete likeness for the planting by baptism if we take the commission of Christ our Lord.

Paul says, "Brethren, I would not that ye should be ignorant, how that all our fathers were under the cloud, and all passed through the sea; and were all baptized unto Moses in the cloud and in the sea. Was this a backward action, or did our fathers march forward with the cloud overshadowing, and a wall of water on either side? Ex. 14: 22.

It is evident that Christ bowed on the cross; it is also evident that he bowed in his baptism of suffering in the garden, and it is just as evident that we must bow in the act of baptism if we are planted in the likeness of his death. Rom. 6: 5. It is a fact that Moses and the children of Israel performed a forward action in their baptism "in the cloud and in the sea," and it is also a fact that we perform a forward action in our baptism, if we bow in the ordinance of baptism "in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost."

Lot's wife got into trouble for even looking back; and Jesus said, "No man, having put his hand to the plough, and looking back is fit for the kingdom of God." And is it not a fact that every professing individual, who refuses to be planted in the likeness of Christ's death in the ordinance of baptism, not only looks back but is going back? What has become of many of Christ's commands, once held sacred — feet-washing, non-swearing, the prayer-covering, non-conformity, and others? Lost by looking back! God's commands all urge us forward, and when we keep them, we are not looking backward or going backward, but we are going forward. Baptism is one of his commands, and if we obey him we will go forward, bowing in the likeness of Christ's death.

Let us imitate our great Redeemer in our baptism, as expressed by the poet when he said,

> "Down to the sacred wave,
> The Lord of life was led,
> And he who came our souls to save,
> In Jordan bowed his head.

Judge in yourselves, Is it not more in accord with the general tenor of the Gospel to bow in baptism than to be thrown backward? Aside from what is recorded on the subject, is not a forward action more indicative of the willingness to throw off the old man of sin and put on the new man, Christ Jesus? Is not a forward action more indicative of the true spirit of submission that an individual must have, before he can be baptized according to the Gospel, than a backward action? If an individual is truly penitent, or submissive to God, does he not naturally feel like bowing and falling upon his face to implore mercy? The Psalmist gives the natural expression of the penitent heart when he says, "O come, let us worship and bow down: let us kneel before the Lord our maker." Paul, speaking of an individual who is convinced, says, "And so falling down on his face he will worship God." 2 Cor. 14: 25.

The Word speaks of a backward action, but not in connection with worship. Jesus said to his betrayer's band, "I am he," and "they went backward and fell to the ground." It is clear that he is "born again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the will of God," who in humble penitence and faith goes, not only to much water, but down into it, and is there buried in the likeness of Christ's death, by Christ's authority, in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost.

DIVORCES.

BY LANDON WEST.

FROM a report upon "Marriages and Divorces in the United States," by Carrol D. Wright, Commissioner of Labor, Washington, D. C., we learn the following facts:

The increase in divorces in the United States from 1870 to 1880 was 79 per cent, while the increase in marriages for the same period was but 29.4 per cent, giving us a surplus of 50 per cent more in favor of sin and Mormonism than in support of Christianity. The number of divorces granted in nine of the States, in twenty years, from 1867 to 1886, is reported as follows:

Illinois,	36,072
Ohio,	26,367
Indiana,	25,193
Michigan,	16,020
New York,	15,355
Missouri,	15,278
California,	12,118
Texas,	11,472
Kentucky,	10,248
Total,	168,123

This is the army of families broken up, in the nine States; and, allowing one child to each couple, we have over half a million in these leading States of the Union with whom the most sacred tie is severed forever. Surely heathenism can not be far in advance of us at the rate we are now going!

AN EXPOSITION OF REV. 14: 15.—No. 2.

BY JAMES EVANS.

IN a former article we treated of that special class of men called first fruits, elect of God, a chosen race, the bride of the Lamb, etc. Right here we would enter our earnest protest against those systems of theology which fail to recognize the ages to come in which God will exhibit the exceeding riches of his grace to men. Eph. 2: 7. The wisdom of the theological world will come to naught and their systems will perish. Paul teaches that as in Adam all die, so in Christ shall all be made alive, but every man in his own order. Jesus is the first fruits, then those who are Christ's at his coming. Those who are Christ's are redeemed from among men, being the first fruits of a great harvest, to be gathered in when the whole earth is reaped.

It is a mistaken idea that the present age is the final one, and that no future dispensation of grace and mercy shall come in which a countless multitude will be saved as the outcome of the future work of Jesus and the redeemed church, who will reign over the earth and rule it in righteousness.

The first five verses of Rev. 14 describe the "daughter of the King," the Lamb's wife, all glorious within. The most precious wrought gold is the symbol of her royal spotless robe; the beautiful embroidery of needle work represents her bridal garment. Ps. 45: 13, 14. The vail which conceals the invisible is taken away and the Lamb in the midst of the throne is seen. The door is opened in heaven, chapter 4: 1, and the Lamb like jasper and sardine is seen, not armed with wrath to annihilate the material universe and to dissolve existing nature. A rainbow like an emerald is round about the throne on which he sits, and with him the twenty-four elders in white raiment and crowns of gold. This is re-assuring to every Christian. The earth will endure even if mighty changes occur on it. That no such world-wide destruction, as many suppose, will take place when Jesus comes, is evident from two considerations, viz.: the rainbow around the throne, and the proclamation of the Age Gospel which follows the visible appearance of the Lamb and his chosen ones on Mount Zion.

The angel flying in the midst of heaven, preaching the Age Gospel to every nation, kindred and tongue, represents the agency whereby all the nations of the earth will hear of God's grace in Christ. The word gospel (evangelism) means good tidings, glad news. That this gospel of glad tidings differs in some respects from what has been preached, is clear from what is added, "the hour of his judgment is come." The present dispensation has ended, and in connection with the manifestation of the hour of judgment is the glad tidings of love and mercy to all nations.

It is folly to assert that every nation, kindred and tongue has heard the gospel. The few that have heard the Gospel in heathen lands are a mere speck compared with the millions who sit in darkness and the shadow of death. The door opened in heaven reveals the love, mercy and grace of God to the human race. His ways are past finding out, but his impartial love to all ought not to be a matter of dispute. True, sin has been permitted for wise and gracious purposes to enter the world, and for just, wise and benevolent purposes death has passed on all men. But all men will be redeemed from death by a resurrection from the dead, and it is resurrection alone that can justify the ways of God to men. Resurrection is necessarily redemptive in its nature, growing out of the mediatorial work of Christ. That the unjust will be raised as well as the just, was Paul's hope. Acts 23: 6. The resurrection of the unjust does not confer eternal life on them. It delivers them from the penalty of death under which they died as being in Adam. They fell in him, and shared in the universal corruption of mankind. Resurrection lifts all to a plane of judgment or trial in which every man will die for his own sin, and thus God's ways will be equal.

Countless millions have died sitting in darkness and the shadow of death. From this darkness they will be delivered by coming forth to a resurrection of judgment (Greek, Krisis, German, Gericht) in which the Age Gospel will be made known to all, so that no man will or can say that he is condemned for what he could not help.

All pre-millennialists believe that Jesus comes before the will of God is done on the earth. Jesus will reign over the earth, when all nations will remember and turn to the Lord; when Israel shall return not only to the Lord, but also to their own land. Satan will be bound, consigned to the deeps of infinite space, and deceive the nations no more, until a thousand years are expired. But if the earth is destroyed at the close of this dispensation, and all unsaved men are swept away, how can these promises to Israel and the nations ever be fulfilled? No thinking man can hold both positions.

This Age Gospel pertains to the millennial age, and is to introduce it. Then the Spirit will be poured on all flesh, and all nations will hear the good news of good will to all men. Isaiah declares that nations and isles afar off, that have not heard of God's fame nor seen his glory, shall come to know and understand, 66: 19. When God arises on Zion, darkness shall cover the earth and gross darkness the people, 60: 1, 2. All nations will be blessed by the rising Son of Righteousness, and under his peaceful reign they will beat their swords to plowshares.

In case we may have misunderstood the sure word of prophecy, we will ask an inspired apostle to teach us what is the divine order of future events. In the first council held in Jerusalem, James thus discourses. Simon (Peter) has declared how God visited the Gentiles to take out of them a people for his name. But was this all? When this people are taken out, may we not look for the door of mercy to be closed, and the dread hour of judgment to begin? Will not the Lamb appear as the stern, inexorable Judge of all? Will not all mercy be extinguished in him and only wrath remain? Will not all, outside this people, taken out for his name, stand afar off to meet their fearful doom? But hear James further: After this I will return to burn the earth, and a yawning gulf will receive forever the balance of mankind. It does not read thus, but, blessed be God, it reads, "After this I will return and build again the fallen tabernacle of David, that is, restore Israel and set up the ancient ruins. But there is more to follow, "that the residue of men might seek after the Lord, and all the nations upon whom my name is called." God's name was called on Israel, and when all nations will be grafted into the good olive tree, then all will become one great Israel of God.

The foregoing ideas are not advanced thought, but thought as old as the counsels of the eternal God. Known unto God are all his works from the foundation of the world. He has arranged all things after the counsel of his will, and his revealed will is that all men should be saved from death and come to the knowledge of the Truth.

We are not informed what will be the special conditions of the Age Gospel, but of its general character there can be no doubt. It will be a development of God so loved the world.

THE BRITISH FLAG.*

BY M. W. SPENCER.

Second Paper.

"WE will rejoice at thy salvation and in the name of our God, we will set up our banners." The Hebrews had an ensign or standard for each of the four divisions of the army, and possibly one for each of the tribes. The Talmudists were wont to define the colors and the figures or arms of each thus: The tribe of Judah's ensign was a lion and a painted inscription, "Rise, Lord, let thine enemies be dispersed, and let those that hate thee flee before thee." To Dan they gave the figure of a serpent, though others gave him an eagle. To Ephraim they assign the Unicorn. In short, they followed the figures of animals as described by Jacob and Moses. Gen. 49.

There are two national flags of Great Britain, having marks of Israelitish origin. The Royal Flag, as it is called, has the same figures as the Coat-of-Arms, which has been noticed. The other, the Banner of the Crosses, is composed wholly of straight lines. In the use of the words "straight" and "crooked," the Bible significantly indicates the difference between good and evil. These lines look like "paths," narrow, indeed, but wide enough to be emblems of Christian discipleship. Israel was to be the "Restorer of paths to dwell in," which British-Israel certainly is to-day, and it need not be thought strange that they are emblazoned on her banner. In this respect the American flag is not unlike, as it, too, has the stripes, and its stars do not even admit any other lines, no curves.

Moreover these paths or lines in the "Union Jack" all diverge from a common center. The Isles have long been such a center, military, commercial and religious. And under the reign of the Cross, the Prince of Peace, "by whose stripes we are healed," the true Gospel of peace is settling down on the world. This is deeply in harmony with predictions concerning Israel, when God had "cast us off." Ps. 60: 1–4. "Thou hast given a banner to them that fear thee, that it may be displayed because of the truth." This, the Psalmist adds, was done "that thy beloved may be delivered." Under this banner (Israel's), God has made "the earth to tremble, and has healed the breaches thereof," which can be said of no nation more truly than of Briton, under the Banner of the Crosses.

The "Union Jack," of British fame, is a combination of three (a trinity of) Crosses. When King James I, of England, came to the throne in 1603 A. D., all the tribes of Jacob were united in his government. The Cross of St. George represented England, and that of St. Andrew represented Scotland, after which was added that of St. Patrick for Ireland. "Jack," at first was written "Jacque," which is French, and corresponds to Jacobus in Latin, and Jacob in Hebrew. Hence "Union Jack" is simply Union Jacob. The doctrine of the Trinity is the great theme of the Bible, and this "Union Jack" has a trinity of colors, white, blue and red, similarly arranged to the red, white and blue of the American flag. The "field," or margin, of St. George's Cross was white, St. Andrew's was blue, and the red diagonal Cross of St. Patrick is shown over the white Cross of the Scotch banner. St. George's Cross was also red. The white may indicate purity. The blue suggests to our minds "the paths of the sea," or the sky-tints denote Heaven's protection. Britain's colonies are in every sea under the blue dome of heaven. The red Crosses of St. George and St. Patrick remind us of Calvary, of blood, thus of death, life, energy. The "sticks" or beams of the cross united indicate the union of Judah and Israel, which are foretold to be united as "one stick" in the hand of the Lord. Ezek. 37: 19.

The red Cross of St. George is superimposed on a Roman ten to indicate that Christianity was to cover the ten-tribed kingdom of Israel. In this "Union Jack" we may discover four pyramids, each with its base outward and with the apex toward the center, and having two faces visible. The camp of Israel was also divided into four parts, having a common center in the Tabernacle, over which rested the "cloud of glory," or of fire, being red, as above described. This same form of pyramid, with two faces, more distinctly appears in the great seal of the United States.

It is placed at the upper corner of the banner, near the flag-staff, to indicate its importance, and, viewed as a whole, it has all the appearance of a star of the first magnitude, spangled with rays, beaming upon the earth; and here, again, we seem to read the story of the Bright and Morning Star, or the Guide of Wisdom to the Christ in Bethlehem. This Star, like the one great Star, composed, as it is, of a group of thirteen smaller ones, on the American banner, and the blazing star on the helmet of the British soldiery, remind us of the promised Star of Jacob.

The never-to-be-forgotten story of Jacob's blessing the two sons of Joseph, Ephraim and Manasseh, the most conspicuous of the ten tribes, is now fulfilled in act as well as word. The words of the dying patriarch in national and spiritual blessings, are literally accomplished in our prosperity. And his act of crossing his arms in pronouncing his blessings, gives us the literal sign of the Cross, now wrought into the famous Union Jack. Though here are a trinity of crosses, yet there is but one—the Cross of Christ, of Calvary. It is not a little remarkable that the crosses appeared on the British banner at the very time the foretold blessings are realized in national wealth and greatness.

The crossing of one's arms as in the attitude assumed by Jacob, exactly represents the Cross of St. Andrew, naturally. And this, in the sacred trio, constitutes the central one, representing Scotland, and the only one represented in white, each of the others being of red color. The white light of the Gospel, which is a perfect blending of all colors, was thus received in a figure, while the sons of Joseph were bowed under the cross. Gen. 48: 14.

The public recognition, on the national banner, of such events in Jacob's life, who "guided his hands willingly," are truly remarkable. Surely God has given a banner to them that fear him, that the truth of God may therein be displayed.

BEAR YE ONE ANOTHER'S BURDENS.

BY ROSIE S. MYERS.

THE language of the subject of this essay was a command to the Galatian brethren, just after they had been instructed how to deal with erring members. Human nature is ever the same, and the enemy of souls is always on the alert, tempting and trying to lead astray those who have renounced his service, and sometimes, in an unguarded moment, some are conquered and fall into condemnation.

The voice of the Lord, through the inspired apostle, says unto us, Do not despise or treat with harsh rebuke, that brother or sister who has, through weakness, been ensnared by the tempter. Do not criticise every little fault or mistake, or tell the matter to every one you meet. Christ died for them as well as for you, and he is now sitting at God's right hand, interceding and pleading in their behalf.

Although God can not make the least allowance for sin, he is "nigh unto them that are of a broken heart." He will save such as are of a "contrite spirit." Brethren, if a man be overtaken in a fault, you that are spiritual must not compromise with sin, nor look with indifference upon his faults, but you ought to make every effort to show him his error, and try to bring him unto repentance. Give him the proper counsel and encouragement, that he may be restored, like a dislocated limb, to his place, "considering yourselves, lest ye also be tempted." "Bear ye one another's burdens and so fulfill the law of Christ." "We, then, that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not please ourselves."

The load of guilt will not be so heavy, if we, as fellow-travelers, assist one another in bearing our burdens. Kind words from a sympathetic heart, when in distress or trouble, will take away a good portion of the load, while, on the other hand, a harsh rebuke increases the burden until the bearer finally sinks beneath its weight.

If we, as the apostle says to his Roman brethren, have "gifts differing according to the grace that is given to us," our inclinations and besetting sins are not the same. Our burdens are often various in their nature. Sometimes they are allotted unto us by Providence, and again they may be the result of errors that we commit. What may be a cross to one, may not be a burden to another. If we, then, try to encourage and sympathize with one another in these trials in life, the weight of the burden will be distributed, and be more easily borne. But if, in these times of trial, we should not have the needed sympathy from those around us, let us not despair, for Christ says, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." If our brethren and sisters forsake us, we have a Friend that "sticketh closer than a brother," who will never leave nor forsake us, if we put our trust in him.

He has passed through many trials and temptations before us. When agonizing in the garden of Gethsemane, some of his disciples were so indifferent that they fell asleep. Thomas lacked faith in his Lord. Peter denied him and Judas betrayed him. It seems that while his life was ebbing out on the cross, he was, for the time being, "doomed to stand alone," for "at the ninth hour, Jesus cried with a loud voice, saying, My God, my God, why hast THOU forsaken me?"

"Must Jesus bear the cross alone,
And all the world go free?
No, there's a cross for every one,
And there's a cross for me."

STRIVE TO ENTER IN AT THE STRAIT GATE.

Luke 13: 24; Matt. 7: 13.

BY D. T. MOOMAW.

THE leading thought, connected with our subject, is, the difficulties that are in the way, that must be overcome, to get into the narrow way by the strait gate. There are a great many enemies at the gate,—the agencies of Satan, that are using every means within their scope to prevent an entrance.

In the broad way that leadeth to destruction, human depravity, the popular current of the world and the churches, with their broad views and liberal ideas, in many things are converted to the world, instead of converting the world to the "principles of the doctrine of Christ," Heb. 6: 1, "perfecting holiness in the fear of the Lord," 2 Cor. 7: 1.

Floating down this broad stream, there is no difficulty. Like the man in the boat, we float with the current. You may lay down your oars, recline on your lees, and sail smoothly along without an effort. But, alas, if not awakened in time to turn the boat, it will be like the vessel in the resistless current of the Falls of Niagara,—the end is death and destruction!

To enter in at the strait gate (strait means difficult), you must strive, which requires effort, decision, determination, sacrifice and energy to overcome the enemies, and they are many. Some of the most prominent are represented by our carnal nature, vanity, pride, ambition, sinful pleasures, avarice, "the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eye, and the pride of life, which is not of the Father, but of the world."

The many religious theories, with the pretended liberal ideas of to-day, are embraced by many of the different denominations, professing the Christian name. We are told even that it is the special favor of God's providence and goodness, that among the many churches with the varied rules, regulations, opinions, practices and privileges, men and women with different inclinations and desires can find a home in which they can enjoy themselves and be happy.

It is true that almost, if not altogether, everybody can find such a home among the churches of to-day. If they want to indulge in any sinful practice, they may purchase the privilege to be absolved from its penalties, by finding a home with the Roman Catholics. If they want to live in adultery and polygamy, they find a home with the Mormons. If they want to indulge in the manufacture, selling and using of beer and other intoxicants, connected even with their church work, they can find such a home with the churches in Europe, and also in America where it is not prohibited. (See D. L. Miller's "Letters from Europe," pages 97, 98.)

If they want to be found on the popular side of other questions, such as taking oaths, buckling on the armor of carnal warfare, encouraging by preaching and practice such things, they can find a home in any of the churches on the broad way. If they want to indulge in any or all the superfluous fashions of the world in dress or other things, as the dance and other trifling amusements, and church gambling, they can find a home with a large majority of the churches of to-day.

Can we believe that such things can be by God's providence? Are they not rather the natural outgrowth of the different humors and inclinations of depraved humanity, and thus antagonistic to the entrance at the strait gate and the passage on the "narrow way"? Because of our congenial nature we are inclined to be like the people around us. 1 Sam. 10: 20. It is as impossible to overcome without true conversion, as it is to stop the current of a living stream by the insertion of your foot, or to row the boat up the stream without the use of both oars, and the application of your muscles. In the meantime those upon the current of the broad way, with their smooth sailing, are pointing the finger of scorn because of your singularity. If we do not guard carefully and contend earnestly for the faith once delivered to the saints, and keep at a safe distance from the line, there is great danger of drifting into the broad way and losing our influence and usefulness for the accomplishing of good, and our own attainment of a higher Christian life. If not watchful, we may become instrumental in causing the church to drift away and lose its identity with the apostolic pattern.

Especially are we warned against false prophets, as they are the most dangerous enemies to true religion. Nothing prevents men from entering in at the strait gate and becoming true Christians so much as the soothing, flattering doctrine of those who oppose or pervert the Truth. They will come with great appearance of sanctity and love for souls, and at the same time teach things which they ought not, "for filthy lucre's sake," and they are ready to devour all such as oppose their pernicious principles. Isa. 56: 9-12.

We have this exemplified in the history of Jeroboam, the man of God, and the living prophet. 1 Kings 13: 1-18. The man of God prophesied against the altar at Bethel. The altar fell! The king ordered his arrest; his arm was paralyzed. He importuned the man of God. Like a true child of God he was ready to return good for evil. He prayed for him, and his arm was restored. He invited him to his house for refreshment and a reward, but, like all of God's faithful servants, he would not do anything contrary to what he "was told by the Word of the Lord," for any consideration, though he was requested by the king notwithstanding. But when imposed upon by the old prophet, who pretended to have a revelation by an angel, he took all for granted. Yielding to the delusion, he believed a lie, did contrary to the Word of the Lord, and reaped the bitter fruits. We should profit by this lesson, and when any man, pretending to be a prophet, would set aside any ordinance or command, or teach anything that comes in conflict with the Word of the Lord, "beware" of him, he is a brother to that old prophet in Bethel. There are many such in these days who say, "It is not necessary to be so particular." This, that and the other commandment, is not essential to salvation, while the Bible teaches us that righteousness before God is to walk in all his "ordinances and commandments blameless." Luke 1: 6.

It is a "narrow way," not ways, to get into heaven, and to travel on it, much must be left behind, broken off, overcome, which is very difficult. The gauge is so very narrow, compared with the broad gauge upon which the vast multitudes are traveling, and using their influence in many ways to stop the trains, tear up the rails, burn the cross ties, and wash away the road bed, that it requires nothing less than the courage of a martyr to contend for and travel on this "narrow way." Every true Christian needs to have the spirit of a martyr, whether he is ever put to the test or not.

"Are there few that be saved?" was a question asked of the Savior. He did not choose to answer, but rather to give the instruction and advice which, to every one, is of vastly greater importance, "Strive to enter in at the strait gate."

This question is very frequently asked in these days, with the appearance of some prejudice, because of our apparent straitness, but we do not propose to answer it. That is with God, and will be decided under our own observation at the final day. Our business is (led by Christ's example) to tell you what you must do to obtain the happy end.

Many will seek to enter in by other ways, but must fail, as is clearly indicated by the text. We can only get in by God's appointed way. "Stand ye in the ways, and see, and ask for the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein, and ye shall find rest for your souls."

We must make no reverse for interest, reputation, sinful pleasures, or on account of reproach or persecution. Procrastination is exceedingly dangerous. It is one of Satan's most ingenious devices,—his last resort. If you accept the Truth as it is in Jesus, and, like the prodigal son, break off your sins, riotous living, dissipation, lewdness, profanity, etc., and even become honest, truthful, charitable and benevolent, however high you may set your standard of morality, if you neglect to come to Christ, "take his yoke upon you and learn of him," you can not be numbered with the wise virgins and have part in the first resurrection.

While life lasts, the blessed Jesus sits at mercy's gate, but the time is coming when mercy ends, and wrath begins. "He rises up and shuts to the door," and bars it forever! Many at that day who have heard his word from time to time, and hardened their hearts, will then, with remorse and anguish, think of the glorious advantages and golden opportunities that they failed to improve, and then it will be too late,—forever too late.

In that day many who professed the name of Christ and to have done wonderful things, but who have been on the broad way, will be driven away as workers of iniquity.

O, think of the anguish then, at beholding the happiness of others, and they cast out!" Then the momentous question will be decided! How awful to think of the immense multitude and the very few saved!

Let us look to ourselves. The loss of others will not preserve us. We can be one of the number saved. If we strive lawfully, we shall assuredly get in, and walking and working in the narrow way, in the use of the means of grace, we will make our calling and election sure.

Let us beware of partial seeking. In vain will we say, "Lord, open unto us!"

In conclusion, dear brethren and sisters, let us be steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord. Let us maintain the time-honored principles of our blessed Christianity, guarding the danger of gliding into the broad road and losing our identity with the apostolic church, and a home in the mansions of the blest!

THE HOLY SPIRIT.

BY W. R. DEETER.

THE Holy Spirit is just as truly a person in the Godhead as either the Father or the Son. We do not so readily apprehend him as we do either of the others. He is now the representative of the Godhead upon the earth. "I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you forever; even the spirit of truth." John 14: 16, 17.

That he is a person, there can be no doubt, because, (a) he moved upon the face of the waters at the time of creation, see Gen. 1: 2; (b) he assumed a bodily shape at the baptism of Jesus and on Pentecost, Matt. 3: 16; Acts 2: 3, 4; (c) Jesus applies the personal pronouns he and him to the Spirit. See John 14: 16, 17. "That he may abide with you forever; even the Spirit of truth; whom the world can not receive, because it seeth him not, neither knoweth him: but ye know him; for he dwelleth with you, and shall be in you." Remember that he and him are not applied to emanation or to an influence.

The office of the Spirit was (a) "to guide into all truth," John 15: 13; not guide independent of the Gospel, as "sanctify them through thy truth, thy word is truth;" (b) to testify of Jesus. See John 15: 26. This the Spirit did on the day of Pentecost. Acts 2: 7. (c) "Holy men of old spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost." Moses wrote the Pentateuch, David the Psalms, Solomon the Proverbs, and the prophets prophesied under his divine influence. (d) The Spirit invites sinners to Christ. "The Spirit and the Bride say come." Rev. 11: 12. (e) The Spirit will be instrumental in the Christian's resurrection. "If the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you, he that raised up Christ from the dead shall also quicken your mortal bodies by his Spirit that dwelleth in you." Rom. 8: 11. (f) The Spirit is a Comforter. See John 16: 16, 26; 15: 26. While Christ was here he would comfort his disciples in their hours of distress, but he calls the Spirit "another Comforter." He is not "a miserable comforter" as Job's were, but a true, faithful, ever-present, unwearied, loving Comforter.

The Spirit can be grieved,—"Grieve not the Holy Spirit of God." Eph. 4: 30. It can be vexed. "But they rebelled and vexed his Holy Spirit." Is. 63: 10. It can be resisted. "Ye do always resist the Holy Ghost: as your fathers did so do ye." Acts 7: 51. It can be tempted. "Then Peter said unto her, How is it that ye have agreed together to tempt the Spirit of the Lord?" Acts 5: 9.

To sin against this holy character is unpardonable. See Matt. 12: 31, 32. How do men and women receive the Holy Spirit now? Evidently as they did in the days of the apostles. On Pentecost Peter said, "Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." Acts 2: 38. When the Samaritans were baptized, Peter and John laid their hands on them that they might receive the Holy Ghost. See Acts 8: 17. "When they heard this, they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. And when Paul had laid his hands upon them, the Holy Ghost came on them." Acts. 19: 5, 6.

THE LOVE OF GOD.

BY SADIE C. BRALLIER.

"Behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God."—1 John 3: 1.

DEAR reader, can our finite minds comprehend the fulness and magnitude of God's great love? No; it is boundless as the ocean, high as the heavens, vast as the universe. It is grand, beautiful, mighty, infinite and eternal. It embraces all that is pure and lovely; is so surpassing exquisite that it can not be defined by mortal tongue or pen. And yet, in our text we learn that he has bestowed this wondrous love on us, we, who, by nature, are wholly unworthy of anything so pure and good!

Yes, it is nothing but the love of God that supplies our earth with beauty, and cheers our lives with so many blessings and so much joy! O, can we ever thank and praise him as we ought?

We are his chosen people, and he regards us with all the tenderness of his sweet, expanding love. Yet, as an earthly parent rebukes his wayward children, so must our Heavenly Father rebuke and sometimes chasten us. We are not always obedient to his will, hence he visits us with divers calamities and distress. In grave reproof he lifts the cup of sorrow to our lips, and oh, how many times it holds the bitter dregs of death! A father or mother, a husband or wife, a brother or sister, a precious child or darling friend, is taken from our midst. Indifferent to God's mighty object, we close our eyes to everything except our present grief. We can not, can not have it so, but press our throbbing brows and cry, "Oh, let the cruel cup be dashed aside!" But no, the all-wise Father sees there is no other way, and in tender sympathy he bids us drink. Rebellious still, we drain the galling dregs, whose bitterness transforms our very soul to tears. Then comes a dark and dismal season when we seem to be altogether friendless and alone. O, the anguish of such trying hours! With trembling lips and aching, bursting hearts we wail, "My God, my God! why hast thou forsaken me?" Blind and ungrateful mortals that we are! We will not realize that selfishness has marred our souls, or that, for very love, our Father holds us in the purifying flames to make us fit for heaven!

Ah, dear fellow-sufferer, we are not alone! Our pitying Father has not ceased to care for us. Nay, verily, nay. "Whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth, and scourgeth every one that he receiveth." We are still his children, and he beholds us with a kind and watchful eye; but as gold is purified in the refiner's fire, so must we be purged of dross and purified in the flesh-consuming flames of his eternal love. "I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee," is just as true to-day as when spoken long years ago. How many times we feel that God has deserted us! This should not be; for it is only dark clouds of unbelief that hide his glorious presence from our vision. From everlasting unto everlasting he is the same tender, omnipotent and omnipresent Father. Behold, what manner of love! Divine mercy can be traced through all his dealings. He loves so much that he wants our souls to be absolutely spotless, even if he must afflict to make them so.

God is a merciful and tender Being, whose great heart beats with each pulsation of our own, in sorrow. All nature shouts in rapture, "God is love" Even the birds and brooklets echo back his praise. Then, why should we oppose his will, and murmur, since he knoweth best and worketh only for our good? Ah, let us learn to bow in meek submission, and when he calls us to pass through affliction's ordeal, may we direct our eyes to heaven and kiss the rod that deals the blow; ever trusting in the loving God "who feeleth our distress!" Verily he is not deaf to our fervent cries, nor will he suffer us to agonize forever.

Our Heavenly Father is so rich that he possesses everything; so wise that he knows everything; so mighty that he can accomplish everything; and so merciful that he will not withhold from us anything conducive to our eternal good! O, let us thank him for what we have, trust him for what we desire and need, and in child-like simplicity let us exclaim: "Here, blessed Father, I am! Take my hand and lead me whithersoever thou wouldst have me go. Whatever thy all-wise love deems best, I will accept with grateful thanks. Not even the scourging flames of the hottest crucible would I evade, if thou wilt only speak the word. In everything, O righteous Father, shall my will submit to thine, for thou art God, and I am dust!"

"Behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us,"—and why? "That we should be called the sons of God." This explains the mystery. O blessed, GLORIOUS, EVERLASTING TRUTH! How wonderful that the King of Heaven should send his only Son,—Prince Jesus,—to bleed and die, that we, through his death, might live, enjoy his heirship, and be, indeed, God's own dear children for evermore!

Behold, what manner of love! Oh, my brother, my sister, do we fully realize its worth? Is it our desire to reciprocate, and abide in, his love? Do we appreciate it to such an extent that we will retain it at any cost or sacrifice? Then let us close our eyes to the pleasures of the world, and press forward in our "high calling" with a zeal unknown before! Let it be our one aim—our one aspiration—to love and serve him from the pure affection of the soul, and I know we will be blessed. "And the peace of God which passeth all understanding shall keep our hearts and minds through Christ Jesus." Be it even so!

REMEMBER THEY ARE CHILDREN!

BY C. P. WALKER.

How easy it is to forget that the little folks are only little folks after all, and to treat them as if they had grown up, and ought to know as much about behavior and self-control as ourselves! The plea for the children that follows ought not to be necessary, but who can conscientiously say it is not?

Do not expect too much of the children. It has taken forty years, it may be, to make you what you are, with all your lessons of experience, and I dare say you are a faulty being at best. Above all, do not expect judgment in children, or patience under trials. Sympathize with them, and in their mistakes and troubles, do not ridicule them. Do not measure a child's trials by your standard.

"As one whom his mother comforteth," says the inspired writer, and beautifully does he convey to us the deep, faithful love that ought to be found in every woman's heart, the unfailing sympathy with all her children's griefs.

Let the memories of childhood be as bright as you can make them. Grant them every innocent pleasure in your power. I have often felt sorry to see how carelessly their little plans were thwarted by older persons, when a little trouble on their part would have given the children a pleasure, the memory of which, perhaps, would have lasted a life-time.

Lastly, do not think a child hopeless because it betrays some very bad habits. I have known children who seemed to have been born thieves and liars, so early did they display these undesirable traits. Yet I have lived to see these same children become noble men and women, and ornaments to society. I must confess, however, that they had wise, affectionate parents. Whatever else you may be compelled to deny your child by your circumstances in life, give it what it most values—plenty of love.

ONLY A LITTLE WORM.—A number of people were once assembled in a grand park; and the owner pointed to a magnificent sycamore tree, which was dead and decayed in the core. "That tree," he said, "was killed by a single worm." Two years before, it was as healthy as any tree in the park; but, one day, a worm was seen to be forcing its way under the bark. A naturalist saw it and told the owner that, if left alone, it would kill the tree. The master of the park scarcely believed it possible; but next summer, the leaves of the sycamore fell very early, and in the following year, it was a dead, rotten thing. One worm can kill a whole tree. One sin or evil habit persisted in can ruin a whole child.—Sel.

"A MAN can not always be correct, but he can always be sincere. He can not always do the wise thing, but he can always do the right thing. He will err but he need not sin. He will be defective in judgment, he need not be in heart."

BRO. C. D. REED, of the Pleasant Valley church, Floyd Co., Va., says two were received into the church by baptism March 24.

PLEASE note the change in the time for holding the District Meeting of Western Maryland, from April 14 to the 18th. The notice first sent to this office read April 14, hence the error.

BRO. JACOB J. KINDIG, of Roanoke, Woodford Co., Ill., started for Nebraska on the 2nd inst., where he expects to spend from four to six months in laboring among the churches. May the Lord bless his labors!

BRO. DANIEL VANIMAN is well pleased with his new home at McPherson, Kans., and is ready now to go to work as Business Manager of the school at that place. We wish him abundant success in his new field of labor.

OUR Sunday-school Quarterlies should be introduced into all our Sunday-schools. Sample copies furnished free to all who may want to examine the Quarterly with a view of introducing it. Send in your orders.

AFTER the 15th inst. Bro. Jas. R. Gish's address will be Roanoke, Ill., instead of Stuttgart, Ark. Bro. Gish has spent several years away from his home in the Arkansas Mission, and has succeeded in establishing a church.

WE are receiving letters inquiring as to railroad arrangements to the Annual Meeting. We publish this week a letter from Mr. G. L. McDonaugh, our General Railroad Agent, showing that requests have been made of the Railroad Associations for rates. As soon as these are received, they will be published. The B. & O. has made a rate of one fare for the round trip.

HE that loves the Lord will love the church, and he that loves the church much, will be found doing much for her. The measure is in God's hand, and we will be measured according to our ability and opportunities.

THE fact that we need to pray every day, "Forgive us our trespasses," should give us a spirit of forbearance for our brethren and sisters who are weak like ourselves. The truth is that, were God to deal with us as we are sometimes disposed to deal with each other, none of us would be able to stand before him.

BRO. WILLIAM JOHNSON, of Conway Springs, Kans., says: "Eight were added to the Slate Creek church during a two weeks' meeting conducted by Bro. John Wise. Eli Wise (son of Bro. John) and his wife were among the number who made the good choice. May they all prove faithful workers in the cause of the Master!"

WE believe that it is absolutely necessary for the Christian to have the form of godliness; but while this is true we should not forget that we may have the form without the spirit. The letter killeth, but the spirit maketh alive. The spirit and the form are both necessary, and must go together, otherwise there will be no growth in the divine life.

BRO. A. W. VANIMAN'S address is now McPherson, Kansas. As before stated in these columns, he will visit a number of churches on his way to Annual Meeting. His work in the Texas mission field has been, under God's blessing, successful, fifty-four having been received into the church during his sojourn in the Lone Star State.

"CHRIST gives peace by healing the diseases of the soul. Instead of the wretched device of attempting to sanctify restless and unholy cravings, he expels them and brings in the new sources of joy. The world's false peace begins in delusion, goes on in sin and ends in perdition, Christ's peace begins in pardoning grace, goes on in quiet trust, and ends in glory."

THE most serious troubles that come to us in this life result from our efforts to uphold errors and blunders after we have made them. We have known the peace of an entire church to be broken because some one, having committed an error, instead of simply confessing the fault, tried to uphold it. What at first was but a small thing grew until the peace of the church was destroyed.

THE General Missionary Committee met at this place on the 2nd inst. A considerable amount of business was transacted, all of which, we trust, will result in good to the cause of Christ. Many calls for preaching were considered, and efforts made as far as possible to have them supplied, but it is found a difficult matter to get men to go. Many of our brethren are willing to go to a new field for a few months, but experience has shown that money and labor spent in this way do not result in permanent good. Men are wanted who will go and stay until success is assured.

THE DEBATE.

THE debate in Ray County, Missouri, closed on Thursday afternoon, March 28, having continued eight days. Our Brethren were all well pleased with the result, and were more fully confirmed in their faith. Bro. Miller ably defended the Truth, and the general sentiment of the community appeared to be that the cause did not suffer in his hands. The Lord sustained him in the work, and he was able to say, at the close of the long discussion, that he had grown stronger, in bodily health, with each day of the debate. Our brethren secured the services of Mr. Abbott, our Annual Meeting reporter, and a full report of the debate will be published in book form. The profits coming from the sale of the book will be turned over to the General Mission Fund of the church. The importance of this work, to our people, can not be overestimated. It will contain much that is entirely new in the way of arguments, showing conclusively that our position on the points discussed is impregnable. The discussion on the setting up of the kingdom will be especially interesting, as it is entirely new. A copy of the book should find a place in every family in our Brotherhood. To show the interest taken in the matter where the debate was held, we only need to say that nearly one hundred copies of the book were subscribed for before the close of the discussion. The book will be about the size of "Europe and Bible Lands," containing about 400 pages, and will be sold at $1.50 per copy, postage prepaid. Those who desire a copy, may order from this office at once, as the book will be published in a short time. Remember, the profits go to the mission fund, and that while you are getting a valuable book you are also helping in a good cause. We are glad that we are able to have this addition to the somewhat meagre literature of our church.

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

ELD. SOMMER'S SECOND SPEECH.

CHRIST'S ministry was under the law. He was not made King until he was seated upon his throne in heaven. Will elder Miller take all of Christ's words and teachings, or will he not? If so, the consequences are, he must take many absurd things. If not, he is found guilty of doing the very thing he accuses us of. . . I will go back to the commission, and no farther.

From this point onward until the close of the first proposition, elder Sommer reiterated his three arguments, and labored to show that no Scripture was binding upon us before the day of Pentecost, but was continually shown by Bro. Miller that he did take Scriptures taught before that time.

To Christ's not being made King before he was seated in heaven, it was said, "Lift up . . ye gates and the King of glory shall come in." Ps. 24: 7. "All power is given unto me," not will be given. Matt. 28: 18.

BRO. MILLER'S SECOND SPEECH.

7. That God set officers in the church after Pentecost, consequently it could not have been completed on that day.

8. That there was no new doctrine taught that day.

9. That the disciples on Pentecost had all things common. Acts 2: 44.

10. This doctrine sets aside the teachings of Christ unless re-affirmed after Pentecost. This sets aside his name, virtually, and we have no right, if we do this, to call ourselves by his name. Yes, we will take all that Christ said, and apply it just as Christ applied it!

11. That God's great plan of man's salvation is founded upon giving his Son, to die for the remission of sin.

12. The Gentiles were not brought into the church on Pentecost, but in the tenth chapter of Acts, we learn how and when they were taken in, long after Pentecost.

13. The Holy Spirit revealed the Gospel, or brought to their remembrance, inspired them to write and teach the whole Gospel after the day of Pentecost.

Paul, the greatest man the world ever knew, except Jesus, did just as we must do, in our preaching—that is, he went back to Jesus, and did'nt pretend to stop, and cut the Gospel in two at the day of Pentecost.

SECOND PROPOSITION.—"The Scriptures teach Trine Immersion, as it is observed in the German Baptist Brethren church."

Bro. R. H. Miller affirms.

Eld. Daniel Sommer denies.

BRO. MILLER'S FIRST SPEECH.

1. My first argument is drawn from the three persons in the Godhead, as taught in Matt. 28: 19, Mark 3: 16, and 2 Cor. 13: 14 Campbell's Christian System: 16—Rules 3 and 4.

2. The import of name in the commission . . "name" means or stands for the persons themselves. Ps. 34: 3; 29: 2; 18: 10; 1 John 11: 12; John 20: 31; Matt. 12: 21. Campbell, 290. We are also said to be in the Father, in the Son and in the Spirit. Gal. 5: 5; 2 Thess. 1: 1; Romans 8: 9. In Matt. 28: 19 eis to onoma means into the name—that is, into the person. Campbell-Rice Debate, 441-2; Scott's Commentary, on the Commission. Errett, Hobson, Burgess and others taught that we are baptized into the names, not name. Tertullian, The Apostolical Constitutions, Milligan, Purves and others were cited upon the plurality of names.

3. The meaning of the commission, according to the rules of our language. Here Bro. Miller analyzed the commission, showing that it required three actions to complete the meaning of the construction, and gave quite a number of practical illustrations upon sentences of like construction. He also offered that if his opponent could find one sentence of like construction in the Word of God that meant one action, he would surrender, and admit himself beaten on the proposition.

The Greek and Latin Fathers understood the commission to teach trine immersion. . . These men read the Scriptures in their native tongue. They could undoubtedly understand the Greek language better than any modern interpreter of it. Alexander Campbell says of the Greeks, "Their testimony on the subject outweighs the world." He then read, in proof of the above, Chrysostom, in Bingham's Antiquities, Theodoret, Pelagius, Cyril of Jerusalem, Austin and others. "We will surrender trine immersion if our opponent will show just one Greek Father who says that the commission teaches single immersion." Cathcart says, on page 16 of his "Baptisms of the Ages," that trine immersion was universal from the second to the end of the twelfth century, and that the proof of the above is overwhelming. . . Monulus said that trine immersion had always been with them. Chrystal's "History of Baptism" supports trine immersion.

5. The fifth argument was drawn from the history of baptism. In Robinson's History it was found that the Romans, Nestorians, Asian Jacobins, Apucians, Armenians and many others taught trine immersion. Bro. Miller read from Bingham's "Antiquities," pages 482-540, in which it was seen that Tertullian, Cyprian, Chrysostom, Theodoret, Pelagius, Cyril, Athenagarus, Austin, and Leo, taught trine immersion. In Chrystal's "History of the Modes of Baptism," pages 60, 69, 71, 89, 74, 76, 77, 78, we find the same thing taught. Robinson, 514. Pengilly, in Quinter, 218, and Whiston, 219. The above and many other authorities were quoted to show that the history of the rite traces the trine act to the time of the apostles.

6. The sixth argument was drawn from the fact that single immersion is not found nearer the apostles than the fourth century. From Chrystal and others it was shown that Eunomius, an Arian heretic, invented single immersion, and Pope Gregory first made it lawful baptism in the church, A. D. 633. Therefore it could not have been the baptism of Christ, because it is too modern, and does not go to his time.

7. The seventh argument was drawn from the fact that single immersionists also changed the bowing in baptism to a backward action. Robinson's History, pages 546-7, 549-50, 448. The above proves that not until the sixteenth century did the single backward action originate. Hence, we find that the baptism of the church represented by Daniel Sommer is about fifteen hundred years too young to be the baptism commanded by Christ or practiced by the apostles.

ELDER SOMMER'S FIRST SPEECH.

The reply to Bro. Miller's arguments, and in favor of single immersion, by Eld. Sommer, was, in substance, about as follows:

He tried to break the force of the historical argument by claiming that they represented a corrupt period of the church. This he repeated over and over again through the entire discussion.

1. The prohibition argument. Deut. 4; Rev. 22: 19; Prov. 20: 6.

2. General principle argument. Matt. 19.

3. Perfect revelation. 2 Tim. 3: 16, 17. There can not be found any specific act in the Spirit.

4. John the Baptist argument. It can not be shown that John the Baptist baptized with three actions.

5. The Red Sea argument. 1 Cor. 12: 1.

6. The birth argument. John 3: 5. Why did he not say, born three times?

7. The burial argument. Rom. 6: 4, 5; Col. 2: 12. Christ did'n't die three times, was not buried three times, nor was he raised three times.

8. If trine immersion is right, there is no one in the world who has been baptized correctly, because those who claim to baptize that way take the candidate down into the water waist deep, and simply dip the head and shoulders three times under the water.

Why did not Eld. Miller give us the missing link between Tertullian and Christ? It can not be done.

Eph. 4: 5 says, "One Lord, one faith, one baptism." This may be read "one immersion," or "one dip." Hence we have our single immersion, and we might safely rest our case here.

We find a parallel to the commission in Luke 9: 26, where Christ shall "come in his own glory, and in his Father's and of the holy angels." Also, "Many shall come from the East and the West and shall sit down with Abraham and Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of Heaven." Now, will he give it up?

The word "name," in the commission, means the Godhead complete, and does not mean to designate or distinguish the three separately.

The above arguments represent the most he produced, and were repeated again and again.

BRO. MILLER'S SECOND SPEECH.

In replying to these arguments, Bro. Miller referred first to the Greek Fathers, many of whom, he said, suffered martyrdom for the cause of Christ, and stated that they were not touched with the corruptions referred to by his opponent. Many of them stood firmly against the innovations of the Latins, who introduced into the church single immersion and many other practices contrary to the teaching of Christ. He then took up the arguments of Eld. Sommer, and replied to them, in substance, as follows:

1-3. The prohibition argument, or taking from or adding to the Word of God, is not applicable to us, for all grammarians and lexicographers of any note agree with us that the commission is elliptical, and simply supplying those ellipsee is not adding to the Word of God.

4. As to John the Baptist, he has not shown that he baptized by single immersion, nor can he show it. The history of baptism says he baptized by trine immersion.

5. The baptism unto Moses in the cloud and in the sea was clearly two baptisms, as is shown by the reading.

6. The birth, death, burial and resurrection argument, based upon the fact that Christ died but once, was buried but once, and rose but once, and that a person is born but once, is founded upon a misconception of what the figures are supposed to teach. They do not teach a perfect identity with the thing they typify. For instance, the Paschal lamb was slain once a year to atone for the sins of the people, and it typified Christ, but Christ was slain but once. There is, as a general thing, simply one point of resemblance between a type or figure and its antitype. In baptism there is a birth, a burial and a resurrection.

As to his parallel to the commission in Luke 9: 26—Christ was already in his own glory, and his Father's glory and the glory of the angels before he started. He was not coming into his glory, and the Father's and the angels', but he came in their glory. Then it falls short in another particular. "Come" is intransitive, and has no object, while "baptizing" is an active, transitive participle, and has an object. Hence you see he fails in this.

"Coming from the East and from the West and sitting down with Abraham and Isaac and Jacob," is defective likewise. You see they were to sit down. Suppose they were to baptize Abraham and Isaac and Jacob, or to shake hands with them, or salute them, it would require three actions to do it. The proposition is still open for him (or any one) to find a sentence of like construction with the commission, that can be satisfied with one action, and we will surrender our position.

The missing link between Tertullian and the apostles is Dionysius, the Areopagite, who wrote in the first century, and said they baptized by three immersions in the water.

Ephesians 4: 5 can not possibly be rendered "one dip," as my opponent would have you believe, for in the original it is en baptisma—one dipping, and not en bapto, which it would have to be in order to be rendered one dip.

As to only dipping a part of the man,—Philip took the Ethiopian officer down into the water, and then baptized him—that is, after they were in the water. No one dips the entire man. So the accusation is illogical and does not at all militate against our practice.

THE FUTURE CHURCH.

BY WM. M. LYON.

Number One.

WHAT relation do we bear to it? A very important one, indeed, hence, one of great responsibility. Do we all fully realize the weight of accountability that rests upon us with regard to this matter? Fathers and mothers in Israel are passing over every day to the other shore; some of them, we are glad to know, leave children to take their places in the work of the Lord, while not a few have to close their eyes in death while some of their children are wandering far away in the paths of sin, and others belong, perhaps, to some religious denomination quite different from that of which the parents were members.

This then makes the matter a very serious one. It demands our prayerful attention and careful consideration. It is said that there are exceptions to all rules. It would also appear that there are some exceptions with reference to the fundamental laws and rules belonging to the system of Christianity, yet this does not argue that we have no general rule by which to be governed in the spiritual kingdom. We know of some parents who, from all appearances, have done all within their power, and are still using every means possible to gain their children, to bring them into the church, yet without the desired result; this seems to be the exception, not the rule. Admitting this as an exception, we pass to the rule. We all know that there are thousands of children, young men and ladies, who ought to be in the church to-day, and are not. Let us then search after some of the of these sad results.

First, let us look up some testimony from the children. Stand them all in one class; ask them why they are not in the church. Father and mother may stand by and hear the various reasons assigned, while I will write them down. Now we will proceed.

Mr. A. says: "Years ago I had an interest in the church. I then desired to be in the same fold with my parents. But I had an ambition to obtain a good education. I asked father and mother if I might attend one of the Brethren's high schools, then in its infancy. They replied with an emphatic 'No,' saying that they were opposed to such institutions of learning among the Brethren, etc. I yielded to their wishes, though with great discouragement, but I was not able to quench the burning desire in me to obtain an education. After while I became of age. Then I thought I would choose for myself, so I made up my mind to take a course in the ——— College at ———. The Brethren's high school, so far, had met with so much opposition in the church, that its progress had been greatly retarded. My college life at ——— was the first great step from father's and mother's church. The influences and surroundings were so different from those of the Brethren's College."

Parents.—"Yes, we see our mistake now, after it is too late. Andrew was determined to go to some college. If we can't trust the church with our children's training, will we trust the world? O, what a great mistake! We refused our friends, but trusted our enemies with the care of our son. We must now bear it."

Miss B. will now give us her strongest reason why she belongs to that fashionable church. Why are you so far from the church of your parents?

"My principal reason is this: In my younger years, like most people, I wanted to mingle among society. The Brethren's meetings were few and far between. I attended the ——— church at first simply because there were so few Dunkard meetings to attend. They also persuaded me to attend their Sunday-schools, and they were so very kind to me in every way that they soon got a deep hold on my affections. There were no Sunday-schools near us at that time, among the Brethren. My parents were very bitter against them. Time rolled on. Finally I came to the conclusion that the ——— church cared more for me, and was just as good, if not better, than the one to which father and mother belonged. I was made to doubt the sincerity of my father's and mother's religion, because of the many idle Sundays they passed while others were at work. I was thus led to believe that others were more concerned about my spiritual welfare than my parents."

Parents, what have you to say? If you possess the true faith and religion of the Bible, while others lack these things, is it possible for them to thus rob you of your own children? For every effort they make, can't you make one? If they can build a pretty house out of unsound material, can't you build a prettier one by its side out of sound material? If they can attend church two or three times every Sunday, for the sake of an unsafe religion, can't you go just as often for the sake of a safe one?

If they have enough zeal to lead their children and yours, too, to their Sunday-schools to teach them an imperfect knowledge of the Bible, haven't you enough interest in your own family to take them to the place to get the full and perfect knowledge of the Word of God? If they make sacrifices on account of a false religion, can't you make them for the true? If they can spend so much to gain nothing in the end, can't you spend the same to gain all things? In the fear of God answer all these questions.

Mr. C. will now give in his evidence: "I was made to believe long ago that the church was a poor place to go for peace and pleasure, and I'll tell you why. Father and mother are always telling about some great trouble in the church. To listen to their talk, you are made to believe that the church is a good place to go, if you want to quarrel and fuss with somebody. Indeed, I have sometimes wished that they would keep these things to themselves. But then I'm not the only one to hear such things. It has only been a few days since Cousin Frank was telling me something about a trouble in the church between some of the preachers, too, which makes bad worse. He got it from Uncle Tom and Aunt Mary (you know they are members, too). Do you wonder now that I stand where I do?"

I don't.

Fathers and mothers, or any of us, found "not guilty" of any of these things, will please hold up their right hand.

The class will now be dismissed till we have more time.

Union Bridge, Md.

IMPORTANCE OF MISSION WORK.

BY MARY M. COX.

THE Christian religion is ever a solace to the unfortunate and broken-hearted. It has kept thousands from despair. When life is bright and fair, we might possibly live without it, but let adversity and sorrows come,—as they almost invariably do,—at some period of our lives, and we feel the need of it.

Religion is a blessing to all classes of people! It promises the same pardon, the same blessings, and the same happy home, after the few years of our probation on earth are over,—to the beggar as to the millionaire. The Savior is no respecter of persons. All who believe and obey him, have the same blessed promise of eternal life in a world that is free from pain and sorrow!

Dear reader, you can not afford to do without the religion of Christ. It is profitable both for the life that now is and that which is to come. How can you do without it, when you stand by the death-bed of a loved one and remember that you have no promise but in Christ? To whom can you go for comfort in the awful hour of bereavement if you have no hope beyond this world? The Christian religion will cause you to look forward to a future meeting with your loved ones in a world that is free from pain and the agony of death.

How can you do without it when you, too, are called to cross the cold river of death? When earthly friends are powerless to aid you, you will then feel the need of Jesus. He has crossed the river before you. He knows all your suffering, for he too has suffered, and he can sympathize with you.

If, then, the Christian religion is such a help in adversity, if it gives comfort in bereavement, and hope and trust in our dying moments, why not embrace it in our prosperity?

If we seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, Christ has promised that all things needful shall be added unto us. He says our Heavenly Father knoweth what we have need of before we ask him. How often has the Christian been sustained and strengthened amid bitter trials and persecutions, by a loving Savior! We have only to read history to see what the Christian religion has done for the world. It is as a city set on a hill. Its light can not be hid. All the good there is in the world we owe to it. May we all accept it and secure our everlasting salvation, is my prayer!

"IT is not a question as to whether a man may or may not have objects of beauty; it is not required that a man should make himself a hermit in the desert. A man has a right to wealth and all that it produces, but no man has a right to hold them selfishly and shut others out from their enjoyment."

Notes from our Correspondents.

"As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country."

—Bro. David Minnich, of Union City, Ind., writes: "Bro. Lewis W. Teeter began a series of meetings at the Brick church March 8, and continued until the evening of March 24. The meetings were interesting, and three were added to the church by baptism."

—Under date of March 25, Bro. Henry Frantz, of New Carlisle, Ohio, writes: "The Lord willing, I expect to go to the Lower Fall Creek church, Ind., March 30, to commence a series of meetings. May the prayers of all ascend to the Fountain of Light, that those who are in darkness might be brought to realize the importance of coming to the Light!"

—Sister Nannie A. Harman, of Wright County, Mo., after expressing her appreciation of the MESSENGER, writes: "Our little band of members here is in love and union. Three were received at our last church council by letter. We have preaching three Sundays in each month, and two Sunday-schools are in successful operation. Brethren, pray for us, that we may continue faithful unto the end!"

—Sister Sarah A. Marshall, of Fisher Station, Kent County, Mich., writes of her isolated condition at that place. She feels much concerned in regard to her family, and would like to have some of the brethren do some preaching at that place, so that those outside of the fold might have an opportunity to turn to the Lord. We hope that the request of our sister may be responded to by some one.

—Bro. G. L. Jennings, of Sulphur Springs, Ind., writes: "Bro. Isaac Billheimer, of Heath, Tippecanoe County, Ind., was called here by the church to hold a series of meetings. March 17 our meetings commenced, and we realized that the presence of God blessed our gatherings. Much interest was manifested by all, and we fondly hope that ere long many will come out on the Lord's side."

—Sister Annie S. Partch, of Colby, Thomas County, Kans., writes: "Husband and I have been isolated from the church for over three years. During that time we have not heard a sermon by the brethren, excepting when Bro. Charles H. Brown, of Kuka, Kansas, came to us Feb. 9, and held a two weeks' series of meetings. We had good attendance, considering the inclemency of the weather. There were no additions to the church, but some, we think, are near the kingdom. Bro. Brown will visit us again soon, and we hope that, by the blessing of God, much good may yet be done here."

—From the Walnut church, Ind., Bro. J. S. Crider writes: "During the past year we had two accessions by baptism and a small number by letter. At this time we number about one hundred and ten members, with five ministers and six deacons. The church is in good working condition. Our last quarterly council was held on the third Saturday of March. There was considerable business before the meeting, but all was disposed of seemingly to the general satisfaction of all the members present. Brethren Aaron Swihart and Aaron Huffman were elected as delegates to District Meeting. By a unanimous vote, we concluded to have a Sunday-school this summer, to begin the first Sunday in April. Bro. Aaron Swihart was chosen Superintendent, and Bro. Edward Beckner, Assistant. Bro. Alexander Miller, of Nappanee, Ind., came to us March 23, and held three meetings for us. He is an earnest worker in the Lord's vineyard."

—Bro. J. R. Crumrine, of Landess, Ind., writes: "Our aged elder, John Baker, who is suffering from cancer of the stomach, asks the Brethren to remember him in their prayers, that petitions might ascend to the Throne on high in his behalf, and that he might be restored again to health and usefulness, if such be the Lord's will."

—From Falling Springs congregation, Pa., Bro. W. C. Koontz writes: "Our quarterly council was held March 23, at the Hade church. We had quite an amount of business to attend to, but everything seemed to be done to the satisfaction of all present. The right spirit appeared to reign predominant, therefore the church worked together in union. Our communion meeting will be held at the Hade church May 16 and 17. The usual invitation is extended to all who feel to be with us on that occasion. We send two delegates to District Meeting."

It seems a lamentable fact that there has been under all former dispensations, as well as the present, an utter reluctance upon the part of man to respond to the calls God has seen fit at different times to make upon him. God's call upon Moses, Ex. 3; Gideon's call in Judges 6; Jonah's call to go and warn Nineveh; Christ's call in Matt. 21, are examples. While "the harvest is great, the laborers are few." It is painful to have the Macedonian calls multiply upon us.

On the evening of March 5 we commenced our meeting at Georgetown, in a house built and occupied by the Pitsburgh, Painter Creek, and Phillipsburgh congregations. The congregations were large, and an encouraging interest soon developed in the meeting. We closed on the evening of the 24th, with forty-five additions; also several applications for restoration to membership. There were eight unmarried persons among the number received, the rest were heads of families. There seemed to be much interest awakened in the entire vicinity during the meetings. The former congregation, mentioned above, has recently sustained a loss in their ministry, in the person of Bro. Silas Gilbert, who has moved to an adjoining congregation. Bro. Silas was held in much esteem by the church; hence the loss is keenly felt. Their loss, we hope, will be a gain to the church to which he has gone.

On my return, among my mail I found a letter from the pen of our grief-stricken brother, J. H. Moore, in which, after alluding to the health and comforts of his family, he says:

"Of course we are lonely, but I can live much on the sweet memories of the past, but for little ones there is nothing like a mother's love and tenderness. Of course we are in this far-away land; yet I remember that Moses lived, without a word of complaint, forty years in a place far more lonely than this. Elijah spent three years without communicating with any one, save the widow woman with whom he boarded.

"In this sad loss of friends, there is perhaps one thing that people never think about. It is this: In taking care of the universe the Lord has on hand an immense business. He needs workers and persons to fill certain positions in his kingdom above; and he often comes to this world to get the servants desired. Of course he takes the best, for he needs them; and that is why we are left alone. It is not cruel, but it does seem unfortunate, and yet it is a matter of consolation to think that one of the most lovely of our family has been promoted to a higher position, near to the King himself. We are sad because of our loss, and yet have joy because of the promotion. I look not upon it as a visitation of displeasure, but rather as a help in disguise. I may not be able to see the meaning now; but will by and by."

We received the above in answer to some words of consolation that wife and I tried to pen to the lonely family. The entire letter was so touching that we read it through tears. We were glad to see the many points to which Bro. J. H. Moore looks for consolation. Our present wish for him and his family is, that they might be situated in an organization of the Brethren, for the Lord's cause is in need of his services.

From Portage Church, Wood Co., Ohio.

Bro. Jacob Hiestand, of Cary, Ohio, came among us by request, and preached for us in the M. E. church at Jerry City, commencing on the evening of Feb. 15. He continued the meetings each evening at the church, and also held a few meetings in the day-time at Bro. Samuel Newcomer's private house. He closed his meetings March 3. Bro. Hiestand preached the Word with power, yet in such a mild, pleasant way that those who differ from us in faith and practice did not become offended. Many of the people in the village had never heard the Brethren preach, and many said that it was the best that they had ever heard. As an immediate result three souls were received by baptism. Two others promised to come soon. We believe that others are near the kingdom.

Our little band of members was much encouraged in the cause of our blessed Master, and we feel like pressing on toward the mark for the prize of our high calling!

If we could only have regular preaching we think much good might be done here. We organized a Bible class here, to be held every Thursday night. We have been having good interest and good attendance. We believe if these meetings are carried on in the right way, much good may be accomplished through them. It should be our object in life to do all the good we can for the Master. How our hearts rejoice to see and hear of souls turning to God!

We just received a letter from our much-esteemed sister, Katie Bushong, stating that they had a very interesting series of meetings at Eagle Creek, Hancock County, our old home church. The meetings closed March 18, with one applicant. This truly filled our heart with joy.

Let us all hold out faithful until the Lord shall see fit to transmit them from the church militant to the church triumphant, is my prayer!

By request of the Mission Board of the Southern District of Iowa, and the isolated members of the Marion church, Iowa, we, the Brethren of the Middle Creek church, Mahaska Co., Iowa, held meetings in the Marion church. We had a good attendance and good interest. Three confessed Christ, and were baptized. Our prayer is that they may be faithful, and walk in newness of life!

A series of meetings is now in progress at our Grand Prairie church, since the return of Bro. Wm. C. Teeter from Beatrice. Seven have been received into the church by baptism. The meetings will continue for some days yet, and we think others will decide to become followers of Christ. Several are halting between two opinions. We trust they will not delay until it is too late, but come forward now, while the Spirit is striving with them! W. J. Maneely.

From Ceylon, Ind.

Our elder, S. Neher, of Wells County, came to us March 10 and held forth the words of eternal life until the 22nd, when he left us for other fields of labor. He did not shun to declare the whole counsel of God. Two were made willing to accept the offered terms of mercy, and will be baptized in the near future. Others were almost persuaded. We never before had a series of meetings at this place, therefore there was considerable prejudice to overcome, but we hope that the good seed sown will yet bring forth a copious harvest.

Rev. Aspby, living east of Ceylon, conducted a seven weeks' meeting in Portland, Jay County. He is a minister of the Disciple church, and tried to prove to his hearers that backward single immersion is the Christian mode of baptism, and could be traced nearer the apostolic age than any other. There seems to be no trouble in getting people to believe in Jesus, but how difficult it is to convince them that we must not only believe, but also obey his Word! Popular religious denominations are deceiving and being deceived, and we feel at times they are willing to be, as in their churches there is no sacrifice to be made, no need of becoming separate from the world. That is all old-fogyism, as this same minister at one time told me. May God help us all to be more devoted to his cause, that we may not be as the blind leading the blind! Emma Watson.

Home Again.

Dec. 13, 1888, I took leave of my family and started on a mission of love among my Brethren and friends.

My first stop was at Mt. Morris. As I stepped off the train, brother and sister D. L. Miller stepped on to leave their quiet little town for a few days. This was a disappointment to me, as I hoped to meet them, and spend an evening with them at their own home. I was, however, very agreeably entertained by brethren Royer, Amick, Young, Price and others. I also spent some time very agreeably with the professors and many of the students of the Mt. Morris school, who were all hard at work. The teachers seemed to be well qualified for the work before them. Here are over two hundred young men and women hard at work, each one striving to gain a store of knowledge. If our Brethren could only be brought to realize the religious benefits of this school, the number of students would be greatly swelled.

From Mt. Morris I went to Naperville, to fill a call for some meetings at that place. Here, also, I found many warm hearts and working hands. I made the acquaintance of nearly all the officials of the church who are working hard for the cause of Christ, and while the wheels seem to be clogged, yet we feel that time only is needed to remove the obstructions.

After preaching eleven discourses at Naperville, I closed on Christmas night. I felt that God had been with us, that the church had been much revived, and that some were almost persuaded to come to Christ.

On the morning of the 26th, I started for Chicago, and boarded the train for Dawson, Fayette Co., Pa. This was my birth-place, and many of my former associates and friends are yet living.

After visiting a few days, and making the necessary arrangements, I commenced a series of meetings in the Fayette County church, in the Jacob's Creek congregation, where I preached eighteen sermons. At this place I found many warm hearts for the Brethren and their faith, but, owing to the lack of attention to the welfare of the church at this place, the best that I could do for the people was to encourage the Brethren to make some move to organize themselves, and get some one to come to them and preach regularly. At this place I got the promise of some of the most prominent citizens, that, when the church is put in working order, they would unite their forces, and cast their lot with the people of God.

I then went to Uniontown, in the George's Creek congregation, where Eld. J. C. Johnson has the oversight of a large congregation. Bro. John is a live worker and full of zeal. He is doing a good work in Uniontown for the upbuilding of the cause in that city. This congregation is entirely too large and scattered over too much territory to prosper as it should. They have four regular appointments, and each one should be under a separate organization. Thus more would be set to work, and as a result there would be greater ingatherings. The work, if needs be, could still be easily controlled by the one housekeeper. The representation would thus be more on an equality with other smaller churches, besides there would be four communions a year instead of one, and thus all the members would be more readily accommodated. "The bees that swarm most frequently, gather the most honey."

After preaching two sermons in the Uniontown church, I made my way to the Mt. Joy church, where I preached five sermons. Then, by request of the Brethren, I went to the Laurel Run meeting-house, where I commenced to preach as the Spirit gave me utterance. Soon it was evident that the Lord was in the work, and thirteen precious souls came out on the Lord's side and made their wants known. March 2, nine precious souls went down into the water. Here these dear souls took the solemn vow to denounce Satan and his sinful practices, and live faithful until death.

While at this place we were called on to anoint sister Ritter, wife of Bro. J. M. Ritter, who had been sick for some time. We hope that, ere this, the good Lord has seen fit to again restore her to health. During my trip I preached sixty-five sermons. I greatly appreciated the hospitality and kindness which was so lavishly bestowed upon me by my many friends. I reached home March 16, and found my family well, for which I thank God. H. W. Strickler.

The Voice of the Reapers.

In response to the kindly invitation of the Huntingdon church, I came to assist them in a series of meetings, after finishing the work in the Broad Run congregation, Maryland. The meeting commenced here on the evening of Feb. 26, and continued until the 10th inst. We held services each evening during the week, and morning and evening on Sundays. They were fairly patronized by the people, and the brethren and sisters did "what they could" to secure God's blessings on the work. A fair interest was manifested, and we have cause to hope that good will ultimately result. There was only one who came over to the side of the Lord during the meetings, but eternity may reveal the fact that this did not represent the full measure of beneficial results. This may be the Lord's seed-time for the Huntingdon field, and we willingly labor and wait for the harvest. The members here are very active in all branches of church work, and exemplify many of those traits of character that distinguished our ancient brethren. In the active virtues of Christianity, such as humility, meekness, forbearance, brotherly love, faith and obedience, they are excelled by none with whom I have associated. To say they do not have a fair share of the weakness of human nature, would be to claim more for them than mortals are entitled to. They do not claim to be models, but seem to desire to model themselves after the Christian's perfect model,—Jesus the Christ.

I presume none of us would be so arrogant and presumptuous as to ask or expect that others should copy our example farther than we follow Christ. An assumption of that character would be fatal to that humility that we need, to develop a high standard of Christian character. The loving brethren and sisters there have endeared themselves to us, and their deeds of brotherly kindness will be held in long and sweet remembrance. As the years roll by, we will recall with pleasure the two short weeks of our restful and happy sojourn with the saints of Huntingdon. May our Father recompense them in the resurrection of the just!

We spent a fair share of our time while here with the dear household of our ascended brother, James Quinter. It consists of sister Francis Quinter, his lonely widow, sister Gracie, her daughter, sister Mamie, another daughter, now absent at school, and brother and sister Studebaker, parents of sister Francis. It was a source of great pleasure to be with them, and to look through our late brother's large library, from which he gleaned so much of that knowledge with which he instructed, warned and encouraged the church, which he loved so dearly, for nearly half a century. Though he was absent from the body, yet we could not but feel that his spirit lingered to bless the congregation over which he presided with so much care and solicitude when present in the flesh. Yes, our brother, though sleeping, yet speaketh, and his loving brethren are trying to walk in his apostolic counsels. We visited the place where rest the ashes of the greatest of all the soldiers of our Lord, of the past generation, and, while viewing the humble, lowly bed of our loving brother, we felt sad at death's conquests, but the thought that he shall rise again in the resurrection, at the last day, and put on the robes of a glorious immortality, made us feel to thank God and take courage.

With this work will close our revival labors for this season. We entered the field in Lunenburg, Va., Dec. 3, 1888, and have continued without interruption, except two short periods at home for rest, to March 10. The Lord of the harvest blessed greatly the labors of the loving Christians with whom we wrought, and the joyous experiences which were realized in the conversion of sinners, and the consequent happiness of Christian friends, will be a source of sweetest pleasure in the coming years. Oh, how sadly is the cause of the beloved Master suffering on account of the indifference of the church, and the secular character of our ministry! Oh, how we do need a consecrated ministry! Thousands are perishing for the Bread of Life, because our preachers must work six days of the seven to furnish bread for their families, and thousands, who now should be in the church, have been ruined by the unconsecrated wealth of over-indulgent parents.

More and more do I realize the crying need of revival work. If there ever was a time when special efforts should be put forth to counteract the extraordinary measures Satan is employing to deceive the people, that time is now.

I want now to thank each and all of the loving saints of Huntingdon for their boundless kindness to us while we sojourned with them. If any of our Father's children could spend two weeks there and not fall in love with them it would certainly not be their fault. To know them well, is enough. I know them, therefore I love them.

Our evening meeting of the 10th closed the series. After the service, Bro. H. B. Brumbaugh and his amiable wife, sister Susan, sister Wealthy Burkholder and others of the members and friends, accompanied us to the beautiful home of brother and sister Yoder, near the station. Sister Yoder served refreshments for the company in true Christian style, after which the pathetic farewell hymn, "God be With Us till We Meet Again!" was sung, and all the company bowed around Bro Yoder's family altar, and offered up prayers for one another, and praise to the Son for his blessings.

We then went to the station, our dear brethren and sisters accompanying us. After a few more fleeting moments, the dashing train severed the bond of affection that was entwining about our hearts, except by faith, and we were speeding to our sunny Southern home.

On the 11th, at 5 P. M., we reached Roanoke City, and a thirty-minute ride brought us to our temporary residence outside the city. All the loved ones at home were well, and a service of nearly three months in the field had only fitted us for continued work. For all these gifts we offer special praise. Wife and D. C. M., Jun., enjoyed the tour ever so much, and join in thanks to all with whom we were associated. Good-bye, till we meet again! D. C. Moomaw.

From Ilion, Rawlins Co., Kans.

The little band of isolated believers at this place have enjoyed a short series of meetings. Bro. B. B. Whitmer came among us the 21st, and preached four sermons. I think if he could have staid longer, much good might have been done. I know he has made good impressions upon the minds of some of the people, and the members were much encouraged in their most holy faith. I fear we, as brethren and sisters, do not fully appreciate the happy privilege of being so situated as to be able to attend our own meetings. Let us all try hard to get to the house of God, and encourage our ministers by our presence at least. Pray for us and all the isolated ones, that we may not grow cold, but continue steadfast in the faith once delivered unto the saints. May God's choicest blessings rest upon his dear people everywhere! Malinda Ott.

From Glendora, Cal

Bro Jacob Witmore commenced a two weeks' meeting at this place on the 10th. We occupied the Christian chapel. The meetings were well attended. Interest and attention were encouraging. The Gospel was preached earnestly and fearlessly, and in purity and simplicity. Bro. Witmore is certainly the right man in the right place, for wherever he has preached, he has not failed to faithfully warn the people. While there were no accessions to the church, yet we know that there were many deeply concerned, and even trembled under his plain and convincing teaching, though, like one of old, they had not the moral courage to come out from their present church relations and wholly follow the Lord. We had looked and hoped, yes, even prayed that some, ere the meeting closed, would confess the dear Redeemer's name, but at the very time when it seemed that some could no longer resist the Truth, we were notified that we could no longer occupy the chapel, but that we should announce an appointment for Rev. Young. Hence the meeting was brought to a close. While we are forgetful beings, and many things seem to pass from our memory, be assured that the congregations will never forget the last discourse delivered by Bro Witmore, for he shook their sandy foundation from center to circumference, leaving nothing to console them but a weak faith, repentance and confession. We still pray that the good seed of the kingdom may have found lodgment in their hearts, that the evil one shall not be able to steal it from them.

We can not expect to accomplish much in the work of the Lord while we depend on using other church buildings. When we were so abruptly brought to a halt in our earnest zeal for doing good, some persons suggested the idea of renting a hall, but we concluded it was not best to do so.

An infidel stated to me to-day that "if all denominations would teach the Bible as the Dunkards do, the voice of infidels would soon cease to be heard." He further said, "We have no war to make with those who teach and obey the Bible, but it is with those who claim to believe it and at the same time disregard much of its teaching, and if those who claim to love God and to be led by his spirit may disregard a part of God's Word and still be saved, we, as infidels, can disregard it all and be as safe as they are."

We are very sorry that our much loved Bro. Witmore can not remain longer with us. We feel that he is led by the good spirit, and that his whole heart and soul are in the work of the Lord, and that the good accomplished through him will be permanent, for it will be done in God's order. He certainly should be kept in the evangelistic work! D. A. Norcross.

Railroad Arrangements for Annual Meeting.

Geo. H. Daniels, Esq.,
Vice-Chairman, Central Traffic Ass'n.,
Chicago, Ill.,
Dear Sir:—

The Annual Meeting of the German Baptist (Dunkard) Brethren will be held at Harrisonburg, Va., on the Valley Branch of the B. & O., from June 11th to 18th inclusive. The B. & O. people have named a rate of one fare for the round trip, tickets to be on sale May 25th to June 10th, inclusive, limited for return passage to July 25th. They have agreed to place them on sale at all offices on their line east of Chicago and St. Louis. We respectfully ask that roads, members of your Association, place tickets on sale at same rates and on same dates, as many of the Dunkard Brethren will doubtless use these tickets for visiting east in lieu of tourists' tickets. And to guard against scalping we will have no objection to their being not only iron-clad, but descriptive if you see fit, as we do not wish to have it said that this Annual Meeting is the means of demoralizing rates by tickets getting in the hands of scalpers. Hoping you will take the matter up at your earliest convenience and grant the request so that I may be able to notify all interested, I remain, Yours truly, Geo. L McDonaugh,
Gen. R. R. Agt.

The above is a copy of the request made on the Central Traffic Association for rates to Annual Meeting. This Association covers all lines east of Chicago and St. Louis, and north of the Ohio River, and as far east as Buffalo, N. Y., and Pittsburg, Pa. Request has also been filed with Western Passenger Agents' Association for rates, in connection with the above. The Western Association covers all lines west of Chicago and St. Louis and east of the Missouri River. I mention this so all may know that the matter of rates to Annual Meeting is being looked after.

Geo. L. McDonaugh,
Gen. R. R. Agt.

From Yellow River Church, Marshall Co., Ind.

A series of meetings in the above church began Feb. 2 and continued until the evening of the 22nd. Bro. Amos Peters, of the Pine Creek church, did the preaching. He preached the Word with power and child-like simplicity, so that old and young could understand. We pray the Lord that he may open the hearts of all to the Truth, and may he also bless our faithful minister! We had large congregations and good interest. As an immediate result of the meetings eight precious souls were received by baptism. They were all young except one; their ages range from about twelve to seventeen years. May the Lord bless them, that they may put their trust in him, and, as they grow up, become ornaments to his church! Since the meetings closed, three more came out and were baptized March 17. Many more are counting the cost. May the Lord help them to forsake the old paths and walk with the children of God. The brethren and sisters were greatly encouraged and built up.

Brethren and sisters, as time passes along, let us not forget the good lessons learned, but show, by our actions, that we have truly learned of Christ. Let us awake to a sense of duty and push the work forward, that, when our work is ended on earth, we may come before the Great Judge with a clear title, and may not be obliged to stand on the outside and hear that doleful sound, "Depart from me, for I know you not."

Missionary Work in North-eastern Ohio.

Again I call attention to the missionary cause, and would request of the elders and churches of the North-eastern District of Ohio, that those who have not yet responded to the call of this work will please do so before our coming District Meeting. Those churches that can not respond to the call, will please inform their District Meeting delegates, stating the reason. The question may come up at our next District Meeting, and then the delegates would be able to answer the question, which would be a satisfaction to the meeting, I am sure. Now, brethren, out of love I will say to all, Try and send in your donations as soon as you can, so I will have time to make out my report to District Meeting.

Samuel Sprankle.

Notice.

The time for the District Meeting for the Middle District of Missouri, to be held in the Mineral Creek church, has, by consent of elders and churches, been changed from Thursday, May 23, to Thursday, May 9. Let us have a full attendance of delegates from all the churches, as the matter of holding the Annual Meeting in 1890 at Warrensburg, Johnson County, will come before the meeting. We request the churches to make a note of this, and come prepared to act on the subject. All coming east on the Missouri Pacific should be sure to be in Warrensburg on the 11 A. M. train on the 8th, and those coming west should come on the 4 P. M. train of the 8th. Those on the M. K. & T., at Calhoun, going east, should come on the morning train on the 8th, to meet conveyance. Write previous to coming.

S. S. Mohler.

Notes by the Way.

Wife and I made a short trip to Douglas Co., Ill., to visit a few isolated members at Chesterville. At Lexington we missed the train, so we had to lay over from Saturday evening until Monday morning. We had one meeting at Chesterville. On our return home we stopped all night at Lexington and had one meeting in the Methodist church.

On the morning of March 16 we started for Colfax, Ind. We stopped with the brethren and sisters until the 25th. I preached here to good congregations, and hope that the Lord will bless the work done, to his honor and glory!

John Metzger.

From Falls City Church, Nebr.

RECENTLY we were called to said church to assist in holding an election for two deacons. The lot fell on brethren H. Kuisely and C. Shafer,—two worthy brethren. May the Lord enable them to worthily fill so important a place in the church!

While we were there we were requested to fill several appointments in the vicinity of Salem, Nebr., in the limits of Falls City church. As a result, two more were added to the church, making, in all, thirteen in that vicinity. All these were added to the church in about four months.

A few years ago the Falls City church was nearly broken up, and only a few names were left. Under the gentle maungement of Eld. R. Berkeybile, the church is gradually building up. They now number nearly sixty members, with a growing interest, especially in the vicinity of Salem.

A steadfast, orderly, live minister is wanted in the vicinity of Salem, to assist Bro. Berkeybile.

J. S. MOHLER.

From Maria, Pa.

TO-DAY we had a good and interesting meeting at the Holsinger church, near Baker's Summit, Pa., in the Woodbury church, Bedford Co., Pa. Bro. J. L. Holsinger did the preaching, taking for his subject the return of the prodigal son. After services one dear sister came forward and was restored to the fold again! O, how glad we felt, when we saw her come!

Our Sunday-school at the Holsinger church, for the coming summer, will be re-organized April 7, at two o'clock. As there were quite a number of young members added to the church at this place, we hope we may have a good school. A Sunday-school is a very good place for young members to learn, and to become rooted and grounded in the Word of God.

At a late council-meeting we also appointed our love-feast, in the Woodbury church, for May 10, commencing at 4 P. M.,—just a few days prior to District Meeting of Middle Pennsylvania, which will be held with the Brethren at Clover Creek, Blair Co., Pa. Ministering brethren and others, desiring to be with us, can make a note of this and enjoy the benefits of both meetings.

We regret that our old elder, Jacob Miller, is in very feeble health at present. Fears are entertained that he may not be with us very long. May the Great Physician restore him to health again! There is a good deal of sickness among us at present, mostly among children. A good many old persons have crossed the river of death lately, and are now reaping what they have sown.

We are well pleased with the GOSPEL MESSENGER. It is full of good news and glad tidings to many precious souls throughout this land! May the grace of God be with the dear editors in their great work, is my prayer! D. S. REPLOGLE.

From West Alexandria, Ohio.

WHEN I last wrote I was at New Carlisle, Ohio. I commenced meetings at that place in town and held services for three weeks. We had fine weather, for March, to hold a meeting. Roads were dusty part of the time.

New Carlisle is located in the Donnel's Creek district. Ministers in that district are brethren Joseph Kauffman, Henry Frantz, David Leatherman, —— Trout and —— Sandy. They have a good working corps of ministers. Their field is large, extending into some three Counties.

Our meetings were well attended. A children's meeting drew a congregation so large that many could not enter the house. Some children came whose parents seldom attend church. This drew the parents, and our house was some nights packed, and all standing room was occupied.

A little girl of eleven summers told us she wished to live with Jesus. Others soon came, so eight in all made the good confession. I was held here some five days longer,—on account of sister Brubaker's funeral. She was the wife of John Brubaker, and had requested me to preach her funeral when I was to see her while sick. She died of typhoid fever. The Brethren's house was too small for a large congregation, so the funeral was preached in the M. E. house. This was on Sunday, and it was thought by some that 1,000 people were present.

While at New Carlisle, I formed many acquaintances. May God's blessing remain with the Donnel's Creek members for their liberalities and fidelity!

I was then taken to Dayton, and soon found myself in Bro. S. W. Hoover's pleasant home. I found Bro. Hoover busy in his nursery work. I stopped with Bro. Bock and secured some tracts. These I find to be a good help in my work, especially when I get into isolated parts of the Brotherhood.

I see that the wheat in Southern Ohio, generally, looks well, however a rain at present would be good. People are busy sowing oats. The weather here is very nice. May God's name be praised for his abundant goodness! J. H. MILLER.

"GOD guards him who takes care of himself."

Advice to Mothers.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain; relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. 28y1

EUROPE AND BIBLE LANDS!

BY D. L. MILLER.

THE large sale of this work gives abundant proof of its popularity. The eighth edition is almost exhausted, and a new edition will be necessary to supply the demand. The following partial list will give an idea of the contents of the work:

Life in Germany. — Berlin. — The King's Palace. — Dresden. — The Crown Jewels. — Women in Germany. — The City of Prague. — The Martyrdom of John Huss. — The Habits and Customs of the People. — Bro. Hope's Work in Denmark. — Old Castles and Prisons of the Middle Ages. — Paul's Preaching at Mars' Hill. — Old Temples at Athens. — The Seven Churches of Asia. — Ephesus, and the Temple of Diana. — Jaffa. — The House of Simon, the Tanner. — Plain of Sharon. — Lepers and Leprosy. — Mountains of Judea. — Jerusalem. — Place of Crucifixion. — Mount Moriah. — Solomon's Temple. — Mount Zion. — David's Tomb. — Bethlehem. — The Fields Where the Shepherds Watched their Flocks by Night. — Rachel's Tomb. — Mount of Olives. — The Garden of Gethsemane. — Jericho. — The Dead Sea. — River of Jordan. — Bethel. — The Mountains of Blessing and Cursing. — Nazareth. — Cana of Galilee. — The Sea of Galilee. — Capernaum. — Damascus. — Ruins of Baalbec. — Customs, Manners, Habits and Home Life of the Arabs.

Bro. Miller visited the places he describes, and tells about them in an easy, pleasant manner, which makes the book exceedingly interesting. It contains 439 pages, and 40 engravings, among which are a number of full-page illustrations of Palestine scenery. It is printed on heavy, tinted paper, in clear-faced type, bound in a good, substantial manner, and will be sold at the very low price of $1.50 per copy, cloth binding, postage prepaid.

SPECIAL RATES TO MINISTERS.—In order to have a copy of the book placed in the hands of all our ministers, we make them the following liberal offer: Send one dollar for the book, and sixteen cents to pay postage, and you will receive a copy by return mail.

The Gospel Messenger.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH, Editor,
And Business Manager of the Eastern House, Box 50, Huntingdon, Pa.

IN a few days the plates of "Gospel Chimes" will be completed and ready for the press; and in a short time the books will be ready for distribution. The price will be made as low as possible.

WE have had two more additions to the church, lately, by baptism, and have several applicants. May the Lord impress many others with the necessity of making the good choice while the door of mercy is yet open!

DURING the first week of the month our streets were filled with an unusual number of wagons, loaded with household goods. Why it is that so many people persist in having an annual flitting, we can not understand. To some it becomes a kind of chronic disease.

ELD. JAMES R. LANE, of the Aughwick, Pa., church, has retired from farming and located in Shirleysburg, Pa., where his correspondents will address him hereafter. This was the right thing for Bro. Lane to do, as he is in circumstances in life that he can well afford to give the church the benefit of his whole time and service.

WE are informed that there is a report being circulated in parts of the West, that Bro. Quinter, at the time of his death, held a life policy of ten thousand dollars. Such a report is entirely without foundation, as he never held a life policy of any kind or amount. We have charge of the settlement of his estate, and know whereof we speak.

THE question has been asked, How many of our Brethren will emigrate South for Jesus' sake? Is this a sufficient inducement? It should be. There is no higher calling than to save souls, and if there is such a call from a promising field, why should we not respond? Or, in other words, which is the more important call, a good opportunity to get lands and wealth, or a good opening to save souls? Shall our actions give the answer? Oklahoma is the center of attraction in the West to-day, not because it is considered an extra good place to save souls, but because a desirable land has been thrown open for occupation, and the chances are for great gain. This is a worldly fight, and we don't suppose our Brethren are mixed in it. But as the above question was asked we were made to think of the Oklahoma rush, and wondered how it would affect our church if the tidings were to come to us that the Great South has been thrown open to us, and that there are there thousands of anxious souls waiting to receive the Gospel? Would it stir us up as the Harrison proclamation stirred up our Western friends? The cause would be more worthy of our notice, and the inducements much greater, as to save souls is a greater work than to gain possessions. Yes, for Jesus' sake, we ought to go anywhere that the Lord may lead us—not only down South, but to the ends of the earth, if need be.

OUR congregations are considerably enlarged since the opening of the Spring term of the Normal. Every available space is filled, and a number are boarding outside. We hope to have a new building completed by the opening of the Fall and Winter terms, when we will have abundant and comfortable accommodations for all who may come.

TO-DAY, April 1, we laid the body of our aged brother Kauffman in its last resting-place. For a long time it was his desire that he might go home and be at rest. The Lord has now given him the wish of his heart, and has taken him over to the other side, there to enjoy a rest that is unending and glorious. What a happy meeting there must be in the "Heavenly Mansions," where the saints, one after another, meet to part no more! "Eye hath not seen, ear hath not heard, nor has it entered into the heart of man, the things that God hath prepared for them that love him."

THE time for holding our District Meetings will soon be here, through which meetings the subject matter for our Annual Meeting will pass. And in looking over the decisions already made, as they stand on our Minute-book, we would suppose that we have enough to meet every possible question that could arise about church government and kindred subjects,—and indeed we have, if we could only learn to know what we need. But it is probable that the rehashing will be continued, unless our District Meetings exercise more care as to what they read. It can not be expected that the church can have a verbatim ruling to meet every little question that may arise in the mind of the critical and curious. If we are to have this, our Minute-book will become as ponderous as an encyclopedia, and it will require so much time to study it that the Bible will be looked upon as being too small for serious consideration. Indeed, we are told that the Minutes of Annual Meeting are referred to so much more frequently than the New Testament. This is a real mistake, and may lead to grievous evils. Our District should think of this and encourage our churches everywhere to depend more on the Truth, as we have it in the Scriptures, and lessen the decisions of men. It is not best to be overwise in our own estimation, neither is it good to be so ignorant that we can not determine anything without seeking the opinion of others. If the Scriptures are so simple and plain as we try to make them, when preaching to others, it will be well for us to lean on them a little more ourselves. They are the rule which we have accepted for our faith and practice, and they are full enough and broad enough to meet our every want, if we are determined to be governed by them. It is our duty to learn just what the Scriptures teach, and not how much Scripture we can find that can be made, by careful manipulating, to harmonize with our peculiar notions. The major part of the religious dogmas of to-day are brain creations bolstered up by disconnected and irrelevant Scriptural quotations which carry on their face a plausibility sufficiently strong to make them acceptable. This is not the mission of the Brethren church, and therefore it becomes us, as much as possible, to guard against it.

GARNERED GRAINS.

Humility has in the beatitudes received the promise both of earth and heaven, and consequently it is out of all sight the most profitable state of mind for oneself.

Much attention is given to preparing to die. The voice of wisdom is: Prepare to live, and live right, and when death comes it will be the gate to everlasting life, in a better world.

The Gospel is the power, and will never fail. It can not fail, for God is in it. But our faith in it fails, and we resort to substitutes; and then it is powerless, for it requires faith to execute it.

The only life that is worth the living is that spent in worthy undertakings. "Idleness," said Jeremy Taylor, "is the burial of a living man." Goethe puts it in these words: "An idle life is death anticipated."

If it is hard to live a consistent, true life, so it is to live a concealed false one. The man who sets out on a course of deliberate deceit, hypocrisy, and evil-doing, usually runs a short course, being snared in his own traps.

The Bible is like a light-house. It took fifteen hundred years to build it, stone upon stone. The lantern, the New Testament, is put in its place, and the cap, the epistles. There are four plate-glass sides to it, the Gospels; and inside there is one intense glow of light, and from that light there is a radiancy flushing all over the world. That one light is he who said: "I am the Light of the World."

We are to despise none, however humble in ability, or weak in strength, or ignorant in intelligence, for God only knows how much the germ of faith within them may expand into the years and ages to come, and because the weakest saint here is honored more of God than the greatest sinner. All the feeble saints have the ministration of the angels of God. This should comfort weak Christians, that, though they may be despised of men, they are honored of God, and those who are for them are more than all who can be against them.

There are times when our sympathy and judgment seem to conflict. Our sympathy for a soul that has fallen into grievous sin, and repented, should lead us to forgive, as we expect forgiveness. But forgiveness is one thing, and restoration to public confidence is quite another. This can only be done by time, if at all; and will always be accompanied by true penitence and a forsaking of faults. Our charity is never to lead us to have a light estimate of the sinfulness of sin. There is never any conflict between true charity and duty; and a conscientious discharge of our duty will often be the truest charity. There are some people who are very injudicious in their sympathies.

SOME of our Sunday-schools are opening for the summer, and as a result orders are coming in for the Young Disciple. Those schools that have been using it feel that their schools can not be made a success without it. Sample copies sent free for examination.

A NUMBER of our brethren who have been active in mission work during the winter will soon leave the field for other duties. It seems to us that this ought not to be so, yet our ministers can not be blamed, as they have families to care for and support, and unless this is otherwise done, it becomes their duty, and they are justifiable in doing it.

A SISTER who has an unconverted husband asks the earnest prayers of the church in his behalf. This is a very proper request, and we admire the faith and earnestness of the dear sister. Will the church remember at a throne of grace this husband? We believe in direct and personal prayers. Ask God for what we want as directly as we ask favors from our friends, and we are sure that he will be quite as willing to hear us. So he has promised, and so he will do.

WE have on hand quite a number of queries asking for answers, which shall have our attention in the near future. We have some that can not be answered through the GOSPEL MESSENGER, as they would reflect on the private character of the brethren implicated. Such matters should be settled at home according to our ruling, as found in Matthew 18. If our brethren and sisters would always carefully apply this rule, much trouble could be saved in church government. H. B. B.

"ASK, and ye shall receive." What a gracious promise to encourage those who love to pray! The Word of the Lord never fails. All his pledges to his followers are fulfilled. And why have we not more signal answers to prayer? Is it not because they are so feeble and so dull? It seems sometimes as if Christians were addressing an iceberg, instead of a tender, loving parent—their prayers are so formal and cold. How slowly the words drag from the lips—and how lifeless! There is no warmth in the devotions; not one earnest appeal to the Father in heaven. Jeremy Taylor says: "Easiness of desire is a great enemy to the success of a good man's prayer. It must be an intent, zealous, busy, operative prayer. For, consider what a huge indecency it is, that a man shall speak to God for a thing he values not." Prayers that are lifeless, tame, icy, will not avail to draw a blessing from the skies. Would Jacob have succeeded had he not been earnest in wrestling with his Maker? Abraham fell on his face and talked with God; and Moses, with whom God spake as a man with his friend, was persistent at the throne of grace, or his prayers would not have been heard and answered. And yet, with your apologies for prayers, you expect to be heard. Never, until the fire has been kindled in your bosom, and your earnest cries go up to heaven. You may pray from morn to doomsday and your petition will not avail. It is only the fervent, earnest, effectual prayers that secure the blessing. Thus pray and you will never be led to ask, Why are not my prayers answered?—Sel.

A LEAF FROM OUR NOTE-BOOK.

WHEN Joshua died, the nations that inhabited Canaan were not fully subdued, and the design in leaving the land in this unconquered condition is fully set forth in the second chapter of Judges:

"I also will not henceforth drive out any from before them of the nations which Joshua left when he died: that through them I may prove Israel, whether they will keep the way of the Lord to walk therein, as their fathers did keep it, or not. Therefore the Lord left those nations, without driving them out hastily; neither delivered he them into the hand of Joshua."

That through them I may prove Israel was the design. Israel was submitted to the test and failed. First, instead of going on to conquer, as the Lord had commanded, they formed a league with the Canaanites, and finally drifted into outright idolatry. Thus it has always been, and always will be with God's people. They must be tested by temptation. It is necessary for their spiritual development. We are not strong against any sin until we are tested. They who are the most exposed to temptation, and yet stand firm, are the strong. God leads his people into temptation, not that they may fall, but to make them better, to cultivate the good and suppress the bad. Hence James says:

"My brethren, count it all joy when ye fall into divers temptations; knowing this, that the trying of your faith worketh patience."

From this we learn that temptations not only strengthen the inner and higher man, but they develop those graces which adorn the Christian character. In short, temptations, when overcome, are a blessing, rather than a curse.

But notice in what the temptation of Israel consisted, and what led them away from God. It was the example of the godless nations around them. Just so it is to-day; the evil influences by which we are surrounded, combined with our natural tendency to evil, lead us into sin. There is therefore a continued warfare, and one that must be waged in no indifferent, hap-hazard way. We must make no league with the enemy; we must utterly conquer him, or we will soon learn to conform to the world. "Come out from among them," saith the Lord; but the world says, "Come with us; be one of us; do like we do." There are a number of ways in which Christians are tempted to heed this call of the world, and a few of them we will notice.

First, in our actions and conversation. The tendency is to do like those with whom we associate. We knew a young man who always prayed before he retired at night. Finally he was thrown into the company of worldly associates, and after conforming to his custom on several occasions, he found that his companions were disposed to make light of it. Soon he concluded to do his praying at times when they were absent, and when he retired, threw himself into bed in the same careless, indifferent manner as did his worldly associates. Then, too, he jested, told stories, and engaged in all manner of foolish talking, just like his worldly companions. And so it is with so many Christians. When in the presence of worldly people, they act and talk just like them. You see no mark of distinction, no separation.

We are also tempted to heed the call of the world in the matter of business. Many Christians become just as anxious and labor just as hard to make money. In fact, their minds seem to be just as much absorbed in financial themes. They talk just as much about their business, are as much interested in it, and push it just as hard. In this the spirit of the world becomes as prominent as in anything else. A great many Christians' ideal of success in life is to become rich. No matter how honest persons may be, or how upright their conduct, if they are not successful in amassing wealth, they are regarded as a failure. Such is the spirit of the world, and Christians have become so closely allied with it, that there seems to be no distinguishing mark. Our young men are pretty thoroughly imbued with it, as a result are making haste to be rich. B rich is one of the cardinal doctrines of this and just in proportion as Christians ado creed, so closely are they allied to the god world. No wonder that so many of our men are being swallowed up in the whirlp business, and so few are consecrating them to the work of the church! The influence godly associates and the example of even who profess to be the Lord's people, an should bear the distinguishing mark, all tendency to give young men false views and prompt them to the service of mammon.

Another way in which Christians are temp heed the call of the world, is by imitating its habits and customs. We say sinful, becaus all that worldly people do is sinful. We are separate only in that which is sinful. And termining what is wrong, we have an infa test, the Word of God. Worldly people so reap, use the best machinery, drive horse buggies, and yet Christians may safely do very same things. Simply because worldly ple do certain things does not make them w but it is the foolish, silly and wicked things do that we are to avoid. For instance, the ish and sinful fashions. Imagine those women, Mary, Martha, Phebe, Eunice, Lois Dorcas clothed in the fashions of the day! agine Mary anointing the feet of Jesus w bustle on! Imagine those women, before out on their missions of love and charity, ba and frizzing their hair, or arranging a pompa Imagine Peter, and John, and James, and Apostle Paul going out on their mission ga attired,—with a plug hat, a mustache, and a These good women and men were doubtless fortably and decently attired, but they ha time nor disposition to gratify the lust of th by the ornamentation of their persons. were some women, one time, who, by the influ of their worldly associates, drifted into this and quickly the inspired apostle gave them mind about it. "Don't," says he, "do like worldly associates,—give your time and atte to adorning the body. Let your adorning b inner, the higher adorning."

But there are other things in which we sh be separate from the world. Imagine those men, before going out on their missions, pr ing themselves with cigars, pipe and tobacco! hear a great deal said about being separate the world, and that certain things are s simply because worldly people do them, yet n who thus argue do the very things that h jockies, thieves and liars do. Of course, if t co is food or medicine, simply because this cla men use it, does not make it wrong. But it is ther food nor medicine. It is a poison; it imp the body, deadens the intellect, and unfits ma his highest usefulness; it is a waste, a nasty, f habit. Should not Christians separate th selves from the world in this habit? Shoul be so wedded to this god of our appetite that say, We can't quit it? If so, it seems to u have sold ourselves to the enemy, just like follower of the vain fashions, or those who become wedded to other foolish and sinful ha There is idolatry in the world to-day, and many, like the Israelites, are forming a le with the idol worshipers. Let us become separate in all things that are useless, damag to body and soul, and hence sinful. J. B.

ESSAYS.

"Study to show thyself approved unto God; a workman that needeth not be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth."

FEET-WASHING HYMN.

L. M.

When Jesus knew his hour was come,
Then greater love was never shown.
He loved his own unto the end,
The meek and lowly, faithful friend.

He rose from supper each to greet,
And washed and wiped his brethren's feet.
He gave example that we may,
All know the precept, and obey.

Peter at first refused his Lord;
But learning from his holy Word,
That with him he should have no part,
He then complied with all his heart.

He that is washed, his words repeat,
Is clean except to wash his feet.
But Judas' soul was still unclean.
Because his heart was full of sin.

If I your Lord and Master too,
Have done what I would have you do,
Then my example you should keep,
By washing one another's feet.

O may this heavenly pattern be
Our guide in true humility;
And may that happiness and love,
Be ours below and ours above.

Daniel Hays.

CONSOLATORY.

BY H. W. STRICKLER.

To brother Daniel and sister Sophia Strickler, of Dawson, Pa.

THE sentence of death was pronounced upon man as a consequence of his transgression. It came as a result of his free, voluntary disobedience to a divine law. It came as an enemy,—as a terrible agent to work out the punishment due to sin. There is not a moment in which there is not some human heart filled with grief on account of the death of some dear one.

Bereavement is one of those universal wounds through which the heart of our common humanity bleeds.

The disciples of John, without a doubt, were overwhelmed with grief when they learned of the death of their beloved teacher and friend. They took up the body and buried it. After performing their last sad act of love and esteem, "they went and told Jesus." They had learned to love him.

How natural it is when one is in trouble to go to his best friend and pour out his soul to him in his grief!

This Jesus to whom the disciples of John came, had come into the world to change the relations between death and man,—to remove its terrors and make the future world yield prospects of happiness in death. This he did by pouring light upon the grave and the future state. He brought death into subjection by his own death, so that now death is changed from a tyrant to a servant. Christ now gives to all his people deliverance from its danger.

Faith in Christ entitles us to all the gracious benefits of his person, of his life, and of his death, in which are included a complete victory over death and the grave. As the believer approaches death he finds that the monster's sting has been removed, and he who was once the king of terrors has become the "boatman of the Lord" to bear his children across the dark and rapid river which separates us from our joyful inheritance.

Death will come to us as a kind friend, or as a terrible enemy. "Be ye, therefore, ready also; for the Son of Man cometh at an hour when ye think not." Luke 12: 40. "Oh death! soon for me thou shalt call! Soon, from the shores of the living, my spirit shall be summoned into the world unknown; but, thanks be to God, who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."

No anticipation can calculate the coming of the Son of Man. Man's mind can set no limit to the attainments of the human understanding. "They have found out the heights of the heavens, and the distance of the stars, calculated the weight of the atmosphere in the most distant planets, and arranged invisible animalculæ, discoverable only by the microscope, into their genera." We have dived into the depths of the ocean and brought up the treasures of the deep; into the bowels of the earth and ransacked the center of the globe for the wealth of our cities. We have discovered the origin of almost every disease, and traced to its source every kind of contagion. We have investigated the animal and vegetable kingdoms; found remedies for all disorders, and palliation for all pain, but we have never been able to determine when we shall die. Few as our days are, we know not their limit. Man, the creature of a day, must abide the coming of the Son of Man, as a little child who is to abide in a certain place till some one shall come for him, and then he must depart.

The Lord gave to you the little boy, Harry, and he reserved the right of calling him unto himself again,—

"Before his heart had learned
In waywardness to stray,
Before his feet had ever turned
The dark and downward way,
Ere sin had seared his breast,
Or sorrow woke the tear."

God saw fit to remove him from you, whose presence, smiles, and innocent prattle brought sunlight and joy into your hearts and home. His sickness and death brought gloom, darkness, and sorrow.

"Yes, he is gone! Yet do not thou
The goodness of the Lord distrust;
But meekly to his wisdom bow,
Who lays the loved one in the dust.
The form is there, but seek not there
The spirit born for light and love;
Look upward! Free from sin and care,
It rests in joy with God above."

In his death one of the centers, around which clustered the care, sympathy and love of the entire family, is removed. There is an aching void which alone can be filled in hope of a better world above. The grief-stricken soul cries, "Whither shall I go? Where shall I find refuge and comfort for my sorrowful heart?" Go not to human philosophy, for there all is cold and quiet as the grave. Go not to the pleasures of sin, lest you blunt the finer sense of your nature, and defeat the beneficent design of your Heavenly Father. Go to the Word of God which brought life and immortality to light. Go to God in prayer, where you can tell him the story of your grief, and he will speak words of comfort to your bereaved heart. Go to heaven to meet your darling boy, who has crossed to the opposite shore of the narrow sea that separates you but for a time, but which will be crossed by you at death, to meet your loved ones on the happy shore where tears and parting are unknown. 'Tis there you can meet that smiling face which has gone to behold the Father's face in heaven. 'Tis there that one more soul has gone to enjoy the full fruitions of heaven's glory.

Two more little eyes have gone to gaze upon the jasper walls and pearly gates of the city of God. Two more little feet have gone to tread the courts of heaven, and walk the golden streets of that New Jerusalem. Two more little hands have gone to play upon the golden harps of angel bands. One more little tongue has gone to sing God's praise forever. That voice should charm you up to heaven's gate, that will be opened for you by the three little ones who are waiting for you. Then,

"Burden not thy soul with sadness;
Make a wiser, better choice;
Drink the wine of life with gladness;
God doth bid thee, Man, 'rejoice!'
In to-day's bright sunlight basking,
Leave to-morrow's cares alone;
Spoil not present joys by asking,
Who shall roll away the stone?"

"That the body must die is certain. What lies beyond? No one who passes the charmed boundary comes to tell. The imagination visits the realm of shadow, sent out from some window of the soul over life's restless waters, but wings its way wearily back with no olive-leaf in its beak as a token of emerging life beyond the closely bending horizon. The great sun comes and goes in heaven, yet breathes no secret of the eternal world beyond. The crescent moon cleaves her nightly passage across the upper deep, but 'tosses overboard' no message, and displays no signals. The sentinel stars challenge each other as they walk their nightly rounds, but we catch no syllable of their countersign which gives passage to the heavenly camp. 'Shut in! Shut in!' Between this and the other life there is a gulf fixed, across which neither eye nor foot can cross."

The gentle boy whose eyes you closed, in their last sleep, a few weeks ago, died with rapture in his wonder-stricken eyes, a smile of ineffable joy upon his lips, and hands folded over a triumphant heart, but his lips were past speech, and intimated nothing of the vision that enthralled him as he launched into the sweet by and by!

THE REST BEYOND.

BY J. H. BEER.

"There remaineth therefore a rest to the people of God."—Heb. 4: 9.

How sweet to the weary soul is rest and repose from the weary burdens of this life! There is something sweet,—something sublime, that soothes the troubled breast. Behold the care-worn child, as he toils beneath the noon-day sun, or the blasts and storms of chilling winter. When he is almost exhausted, oh, how sweet the very thought,—rest, sweet rest! To the natural body rest is an invigorator. God has blessed man by giving the night for rest, and we all enjoy it, but the rest referred to by the apostle Paul, is only promised to God's people; hence he says, "Let us therefore fear, lest a promise being left us, any of us should seem to come short of that rest, for he declares that unto us was the Gospel preached, as well as to them, but it did not profit them, not being mixed with faith in them that heard it."

The rest spoken of by Paul is drawn from Israel's rest,—the land of Canaan,—a land flowing with milk and honey. God provided a deliverance from Egypt's bondage, and a release from the tyrannical rule of mortal man, when he, with an high arm, released them from Pharaoh's reign. May his spirit lead us in the plain path of duty and holiness, and may he shower his gentle dews of grace upon us until we have reached the harbor of God's everlasting love,—the home of the soul,—there, with the united hosts of God's everlasting kingdom, to sing the song of his redeeming love. There to enjoy the rest that remains for all the people of God. Toil on, thou scourged and smitten bride! Victory is grasped in the hand of Omnipotence. May you be clothed in clean white linen; see that, when the Bridegroom cometh, your vessels are filled, your lamps trimmed, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband!

THE GREAT SEAL.

BY M. W. SPENCER.

Third Paper.

THE emblems which now form the Great Seal of the United States of America have been gradually developed out of the elements along the march of the ages. Like the coat-of-arms for Great Britain they are purely of Hebrew origin, in numerals as well as its symbolic figures. This will appear evident as we proceed to analyze and compare its various parts. It may also be observed that in many of its features it bears a double significance, one looking to its ancient, and the other to its modern meaning, and both equally applicable to the history of the tribe of Manasseh.

This device was adopted by the Continental Congress, June 20, 1782, and was re-adopted by the new Congress, Sept. 15, 1789, having an obverse and a reverse side. The latter side is not used. The original seal having been worn out, it has been replaced by a second, differing from the first in that it has, by accident, seven arrows left out of the eagle's talon, six only remaining.

The reverse side is very significant and reveals the history of this tribe, particularly while they were in Egypt. The central figure is that of a pyramid, still unfinished. This indicates that Manasseh, the founder of the tribe, was brought up at the foot of the pyramids of Egypt. The "1776" on its base gives, as near as may be ascertained, the time that his adopted Father Jacob received the blessing from Isaac, B. C. 1776. It may also be observed that the patriarch, in crossing his arms in the act of blessing Manasseh, makes exactly the figure of St. Andrews cross, the form of the letter X. Now fold it twice, or cut it in two parts, following the lines of the cross, and you have four perfect pyramids. Thus, while Ephraim, England, appears under a system of crosses, which may, as we have seen, be resolved into four pyramids with two faces, we have in the central figure of the Great Seal of the United States, one pyramid with two faces visible, as there were two sons of Joseph, or the half tribe of Manasseh distinctly historical.

Under the pyramid we have written the motto, "Novus Ordo Seclorum,"—a new era in the ages, and over it the words, "Annuit Coeptis," —he prospers our beginning. The ever-watchful eye of Jehovah looks out from the over-hanging triangle, as if to mark the beginning of the new era, to be developed in the line of Joseph, the great people, who should spring from the Manasseh. The origin of this tribe is indicated in that these mottoes and figures are on the base of the seal, thus representing the foundation of our ancestral beginning.

The obverse side of the seal is, if possible, still more expressive. In this the central figure is the eagle. This emblem was long the cognizance of the tribe of Dan, whose navigators first discovered America from Iceland, landing in the United States. This emblem may have come by way of Greece to the Islands of the West, as indicated in the triple-headed standard of Neptune, the god of the sea, being surmounted by an eagle. While the British coat-of-arms bears the lion, the Great Seal for like reasons bears that of the eagle, both Hebrew characters portrayed by the prophet (Ezek. 1: 10) and in the Revelation of St. John, who describes the eagle as the protector of the church (the woman) in the wilderness, which, with great clearness, may be referred to Dan in the Isles as well as in the wilderness of America. Where our civil government has helped the church (Rev. 12: 14), the dragon, half eagle and half serpent, which guarded the "golden fleece" was the cognizance of their Hebrew craft. The eagle and serpent were engraved together on temples in Phœnicia, where Dan certainly was. The eagle was also engraved on the standard of our Saxon forefathers, while in Central Europe, led also by the tribe of Dan. It is not strange, therefore, that the eagle appears on our American seal. On the breast of the eagle is, what is commonly called, "a shield," though in reality it resembles quite as much the seat of the chair of state in Westminster Abbey, bearing six broad stripes and seven narrow ones, giving thirteen in all. In one talon of the eagle there are thirteen arrows, and in the other "the olive branch of peace," plucked from the olive tree, a native of Northern Palestine, the very country from which we have been taken, and indicates our powerful commercial relations with the other tribes. We say commercial, for the product of the olive was commonly used in ancient times as a medium of commerce, instead of coin, it having a standard value (1 Kings 5: 11). Above the eagle is the "starry" field, which reminds one of the promise, "As the stars of the sky for multitude," and on either side a pillar of cloud representing the pillars of cloud and fire which stood over the camp of Israel for forty years in the wilderness. On the scroll in the mouth of the eagle, in serpent form, are the words, "E pluribus Unum," signifying one from many, that is, one tribe from the many, the twelve.

The Hebrew numerals, one, three, four, the double trinity, seven, ten and thirteen, are easily defined and equally apply equally to us as Israelites and as citizens of the Republic. Thus, there is one eye of Jehovah figured in one triangle suspended over one pyramid on which is one date. There is also one eagle with one shield and one branch of the olive and one cluster of arrows. There are three inscriptions, one on each half of the seal, having three words, three sides to the triangle, a row of three stars in the constellation, and three colors indicated on the shield,—red, white and blue. There are four stars in one row in the group arranged in the form of a six pointed star thus giving a double trinity. There are four double trinities combined with the several number seven, thus, in the number of stone layers in the pyramid, of the arrows in the talons of the eagle, of the stripes on its breast, and of the stars in the constellation. Seven and ten are also combined in the number of letters in the motto under the pyramid. And finally we have thirteen, the exact number of the Hebrew tribes, Manasseh being the thirteenth, represented in the stars, stripes, arrows, in the courses of stones in the pyramid, and in the number of letters in the motto in the mouth of the eagle, and also above the eye of Jehovah, making a double trinity of thirteens.

The fact that the base of the Great Gezeh Pyramid has an area of about thirteen acres, may not seem strange, since the Hebrew measurements are not unlike the English.

Thus it is seen that the numerals on the American seal are substantially like those on the English coat-of-arms, and as they, being Anglo saxon, have adopted Hebrewistic symbols, it is highly presumable that the Saxons are of the Hebrew stock and have unwittingly, it may be, in token of our ancestral relation, thus recognized these national emblems. If the very hairs of our head are "all numbered," how much more does God care for the great national symbol of his chosen race!

The common interpretation of the seal, according to American history and ideas, is too familiar to need remarks here; all we claim is, that it has a double interpretation, and that one view looks to the Hebrew origin of the Anglo-saxon race.

Having placed the pyramid on our national seal, we may read with pleasure and profit what the Lord caused to be written twenty-five centuries ago, "In that day shall there be an altar to the Lord in the midst of the land of Egypt, and a pillar at the border thereof to the Lord. And it shall be for a sign and for a witness unto the Lord of hosts in the land of Egypt." Isa. 19: 19, 20.

SOLITUDE.

BY MARVIN M. SHERRICK.

WHO does not wishfully long for, and hail with exquisite joy, the hour, when, casting off the environments of physical assiduities, the intellectual and spiritual organism may roam unrestrained in realms of thought,—the hour which solitude alone can give!

The thought in the following stanza echoes the sentiment of every nature-loving soul:

> "I love to steal awhile away
> From every cumbering care,
> And spend an hour of closing day,
> In humble grateful prayer."

The foibles of mortality too much permeate our entire self to be long in contact with humanity, without becoming infected by its frailties. Few indeed are they who live and walk with the multitude and yet walk alone.

An old writer has said: "Whosoever delighteth in solitude is either a wild beast or a god." To delight in solitude, only as it serves as a hermitage, and secludes from our fellow-creatures, truly savors of a base and sordid nature; but to love it because of its magic spell, which drives away the vanities and cares that beset us, soothing and quieting the ruffled spirit, and elevating it to a higher plane, is to lay hold of one of God's means of grace. We are thus prepared to carry out more fully the work assigned us, filling our various stations in life more honorably.

Foot-sore, weary and perplexed; burdened, yet, empty, we enter nature's vast realm, and, after a fruitful excursion, emerge from her intricate chambers, from her mossy couches by her cooling fountains, and from her grand temples, bearing on our refreshed brow wreaths of laurel, and in our hands undying flowers, gathered by her living waters.

In nature "the invisible things of him, who existed before the creation of the world, are clearly seen."

The great leader of God's Israel found that which was necessary to his work in solitude. For forty years he ceased not to learn lessons given by this grand instructor. The sublime Apocalypse was penned while its author was enjoying solitary banishment. Who can say that those celestial visions manifested in the person of the Lord of glory, those glimpses of Beulah's landscape, those seraphic harpings and angelic melody were not a source of enjoyment?

On a December morning, I passed, on my way to my school, through a wood in which the quiet was so noticeable, that I stopped in wonder. The feathered songsters had long since sought warmer climes, and no animal life was visible. It was one of those rare days during this time of the year in which nature seems to shrink from all outward manifestations of life and activity, retreating within herself, and, seemingly, lost in pensive reverie. The distant sound of an ax, and the tinkling of a bell, served only to render more plaintive and impressive the surrounding stillness.

The congenial aspect at hand, agreeable to every child of nature, created within me a mood of mind which I was loath to cast off. I seemed alone, yet not alone. On every hand were tokens, mute and motionless, it was true, but tokens nevertheless of the Omnipotent wisdom and power. Go to farthest zone, to the barren, fruitless desert, and God is there. While the sun continues his wonted circle, and the stars hold their courses, so long will this "terrestrial ball" continue to be fruitful, producing abundant food for the mind, which may be gathered by the light of day, or garnered when the nightly visitants of the sky make "music as they roll."

From nature let me take an example. Like her will I, too, venture from this mortal shore, and strive to learn my weaknesses by close communion with him who often retired alone to the solitude of the mount or desert place, to seek the needed strength and hope. And though the mortal coil still brings the far-off murmuring of the busy world into that sweet retreat, the soul will bathe itself, and grow youthful and strong, in the still waters of immortality.

WORLDLY AMUSEMENTS.

BY FLORDIA ETTER.

CAN a true Christian engage in the sinful pleasures of this world with a clear conscience? I think not. We can not serve God and mammon. We surely love one or the other, and we can not love both. A true Christian has no desire to attend the dance or theater, or participate in anything that tends to lead him from the path of spiritual duty, or to destroy his influence.

How can we be a light to those who are yet in darkness, if we ratify their doings? We are not as good as the non-professor. They are of the world, and will pursue the elements of the same, but a Christian should oppose everything that does not tend to the glory of God. He can preach by actions as well as words. He professes to be a follower of Jesus. Let their conduct teach the same.

I once heard of a person who joined the church, but did not feel like giving up dancing, and told the minister so. We are inclined to think that in such a case something is lacking. Where there is no cross, there can be no crown. Let us be very careful that our portion may not be with the hypocrite. May none of us, like Judas, sell our souls for gold, and go to hell!

HONEST SYMPATHY.

SELECTED BY LIZZIE G. HUMMER.

ONE can endure privation, poverty, disappointment, trial in almost any form, if there is only one loyal human being to whom we can turn our tearful eyes, and say: "Isn't this hard?"

Nor need there be a verbal reply. The slightest hand pressure, a quick, responsive moistening of the eye; an echoing sigh; a touch of the lips to the throbbing forehead. What heaven is in these mute tokens! How they bridge over the yawning gulf of despair! How fair when the tempest lulls, do they span it with hope's rainbow! True, the clouds may return,—the chill mist—the darkness; but the bright, warm tints have been there! More than angelic are these soul-responses.

Eternity shall show it, when they, over whom the shadows of great trouble fell, till wrong almost seemed right, shall, with their earth-saviors, serenely untangle the life web,—every fiber of which is spun by the hand of Infinite Love.

A kind word! Don't begrudge it. Don't say: "It is a pity, but then it is no concern of mine." A kind look even,—don't withhold it. I remember once, when in great trouble, I was walking the crowded thoroughfare on some errand, in that state of utter hopelessness which must have told its story on my face, suddenly encountering a look from a stranger so full of compassionate tenderness that I, who had thought never again to shed a tear, so stony seemed my eyes, felt them overflowing. Oh, the hope and courage that look gave me! Some day I shall know more about it,—not here.

There are those heaven-ordained ones who shed this brightness as they glide past us, and there are others so flinty, yet so polished withal, that we clasp our hands tightly over our heart to still its cries, whispering, hush! — not there, anywhere but there! And as they pass us, a chill, like that from a newly-opened tomb, creeps over us, and the last flower of hope drops to the earth beneath it. I suppose such people have their place in the world, but they always seem to me like those artificial plants suspended in pots from drawing-room windows, perennial stiffness, mocking our reach, incapable of growth or expansion, without moisture, without fragrance, impervious alike to dew or sunshine,—fit only to accumulate the grime and dust of years.

REBAPTISM.

BY JOHN FOLNEY.

Why do we rebaptize those that come to us from other churches who were baptized by the immersion, such as Old Order Brethren, Progressive Brethren, Dunkers, Baptists, etc.?

I AM asked to explain the above through the MESSENGER, and for the information of the querist I will try to do so in the fear of God, as I understand from the Scriptures.

I base my first reason on 1 Cor. 12. 13, "For by one Spirit are we all baptized into one body, whether we be Jews or Gentiles, whether we be bond or free; and have been all made to drink into one Spirit. For the body is not one member, but many." Verse 25: "That there should be no schism in the body; but that the members should have the same care one for another."

Now there is surely a lack of oneness in those bodies, or they would have remained with us. They would not have organized themselves into two separate, distinct bodies, hence they are not by one Spirit baptized into one body.

Again, we notice that these different organizations caused schisms in the body, the church, and have been ever since working, both publicly and privately, against us. By this they manifest a different Spirit.

Of course, we do not understand that the three immersions in water alone will make us members of that one body of which Christ is the head. It becomes every man and every woman to form a union of sentiment with Christ's Spirit,—to become one with the church of which they are to be members, before they can be, by that Spirit, baptized into that one body.

My last reason for rebaptism is, the church, by Annual Meeting, has agreed and so decided that all should come into the church in regular order. See Minutes, page 161:

1883, ART. 3.—Will District Meeting petition Annual Meeting to consider the following [illegible] according to the Gospel and order of our Brotherhood [illegible] members into the church who have been baptized and [illegible] sister, or such as have left the church and [illegible] with the "Old Order" or Progressive churches, or [illegible] them? If this is understood to be right how will it be with those who have been baptized by ministers who have been baptized into our church and were never known as members of the body? The petition was considered. Annual Meeting and the following answer given: We decide that none can be received into the church without being baptized by a legally authorized minister of the German Baptist Brethren.

ARE YOU GOING TO ANNUAL MEETING?

BY A. HUTCHISON.

HOW common this question is now! We hear various answers. The answers are just in harmony with the interest which is felt. Some answer at once, that they are going, for they want to see their relatives and friends. Well, it is a lawful desire to see our friends, but we inquire, Is that the chief object? If so, then we may entertain some doubt whether such persons have a proper conception of the object of our Annual Meeting. I, too, have a desire to see my relatives, and while the social features of our Annual Meeting are worth much toward keeping us united, and endeared to each other as members of one common Brotherhood, yet this is not the prime object of these meetings.

Again, we do not need such meetings to determine a case where we have a direct "thus saith the Lord." The object of such a meeting is, to have the united counsel of the members, living in the different parts of the Brotherhood, on such questions as involve features upon which the letter of the Gospel is not so clear. In such a case as this, who dare go to Annual Meeting and feel no concern, while others are praying and worrying their brain to decide what is best in the case?

It has happened that those who were at the Annual Meeting and could see what anxiety the Brethren felt, and what labor they performed, to render the very best decision they could, after witnessing all this, would go home and say, "We can do as we please about obeying that decision It is only advice; it is not binding."

Now, as stated above, the principal object of these meetings is to do the best that can be done to decide questions upon which the Scripture is not expressed in so many words. We hear it said, "Such decisions are advisory, and, therefore, not obligatory upon individual members." Have you not heard it stated that way? Let us examine that position a little?

We all claim to be members of the body of Christ. We claim that the church is that body. Christ himself is represented as being the Head of that body, the church Now it stands to reason that if I am a member of that body, I must move as the body moves, otherwise I would fall out of line, and, as a natural consequence, I will lose my proper relationship to the body, and be no longer a member of the body. You might just as well talk about our physical organization keeping in good condition, and allow each member to take its own course, as to talk about each member in the church being independent of the rest of the members, and doing as he pleases.

Our relationship to Christ is the very same as it is to the church. If we rebel against the church, we also rebel against Christ. Christ tells the individual members that they must hear the church. We must hear the church where Jesus does not give us the plain word; therefore the brethren and sisters assemble in Annual Council to give advice on such questions as are not clearly defined by Christ or the apostles.

Then, I ask, Who can afford to go to the Annual Meeting without feeling a deep concern for the business part of the meeting? And, again, Who can afford to be indifferent as to accepting said advice when it is given? We hope that all the brethren and sisters will go to our forthcoming Annual Meeting, carrying with them a deep sense of the obligation they owe to the Lord, and to the church of which they claim to be members. May the Lord give his church a pleasant and profitable waiting before him at our prospective Annual Meeting!

AFFLICTION.

BY NOAH LONGANECKER.

"The souls that would to Jesus press,
Must fix this firm and sure,
That tribulation, more or less,
They all must and shall endure."

PAUL and Barnabas once said, "We must through much tribulation enter into the kingdom of God." Jesus once said, "In the world ye shall have tribulation, but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world." Of the glorified saints in heaven it will be said, "These are they which came out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb." Indeed, God's people have always been an afflicted people, so much so, that Peter once said, "Beloved, think it not strange concerning the fiery trial which is to try you, as though some strange thing happened unto you."

This rule is so universal that Paul once said, "Whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth, and scourgeth every son whom he receiveth." Indeed it does sometimes appear that the more devout, just, and holy men live, the more fiery their trials. When the Psalmist contrasted the prosperity of the wicked with the adversity of God's people in this life, he said, "My feet were almost gone; my steps had well nigh slipped. * * * When I thought to know this it was too painful for me. Until I went into the sanctuary of God; then understood I their end." Truly might he say, "so foolish was I and ignorant, I was as a beast before thee." "The Lord chasteneth us for our profit, that we might be partakers of his holiness. Now no chastening for the present seemeth to be joyous, but grievous; nevertheless afterward it yieldeth the peaceable fruit of righteousness unto them which are exercised thereby."

What a contrast is there between the prosperity of Dives and the adversity and afflictions of Lazarus! But how was it after this life? Then the language to Dives was, "Son, remember that thou in thy life-time receivedst thy good things, and likewise Lazarus evil things: but now he is comforted and thou art tormented." In eternity the contrast will be reversed, but it will be inexpressibly greater. How true the saying, "The Lord afflicts to heal." Indeed, the design of God is to counteract moral evil, or sin, by physical evil. Hence Christ came by this way. O how tender and sympathetic every line of Isa. 53! Indeed, it is the grandest of the Old Testament. Well might Peter say, "Rejoice, inasmuch as ye are partakers of Christ's sufferings; that, when his glory shall be revealed ye may be glad also with exceeding joy." The captain of our salvation was made "perfect through suffering." If we wish to make a success of any profession in life we must first well consider "what the end will be." Especially is this true of the intersts of our souls. Well could Paul say when he looked at the end of the afflictions of God's people, "Our light affliction, which is but for a moment, worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory." If afflictions are means in God's hand to lead us to seek, through Christ, grace to save our souls, they certainly will "work for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory."

What a consolation to the afflicted saint! Should their sufferings be the most grievous for seventeen or eighteen long years, yea, even more yet, when compared with the future, it is as a moment to eternity; as light affliction to a far MORE EXCEEDING AND ETERNAL WEIGHT OF GLORY. It is true, we are sometimes ready to conclude like the Patriarch Jacob, "All these things are against me." But Jacob, like ourselves, failed to see the end of God's ways. True, God had given his promise to Jacob, but he failed to see how it was being fulfilled. "Joseph is not, and Simeon is not, and ye will take Benjamin away: all these things are against me." But when Jacob learned what God designed by it all, he saw that it was all for his good; for the good of his family; for the good of thousands of his fellow-mortals. And as an ensample it does good to millions as they pass through their sore afflictions. Job might have reasoned like Jacob, "All these things are against me." We need comfort in our sore afflictions. So did Job. When all his friends turned against him and accused him of suffering for his many sins, he might well say, "Miserable comforters are ye all." Still he trusted God. Job was not afflicted more than his accusers, because he was the greater sinner. Certainly not; for God had declared, "There is none like him in the earth, a perfect and an upright man, one that feareth God, and escheweth evil." God blessed Job's latter end more than the beginning, and so he will yours, Christian sister. So he will yours, Christian brother, if you have the patience of Job.

But why did God permit such sore afflictions to come upon Job? We know not all; but if for no other purpose than as an ensample to all his afflicted people, it has not been in vain. As an ensample for suffering affliction it is second to none, neither ancient nor modern. There were those in ancient, as there are those in modern times, who had many sore trials. But seldom, if ever, do we find one who is tried with so many severe trials as Job was. We hope never to meet an afflicted pilgrim that has no earthly friend to comfort him. But should such be his lot, the ensamples of Abraham, Jacob, Job, and of all the faithful ones, and above all the ensample of our holy Savior, will be a wonderful power to comfort such an one. Afflicted ones we are, "strangers and pilgrims on the earth." We "desire a better country, that is an heavenly." "God hath prepared for us a city." "In the midst of the street of it, and on either side of the river was there the tree of life which bare twelve manner of fruits, and yielded her fruit every month: and the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations. And there shall be no more curse. And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away."

While Jesus, on the one hand, says to his people, "In the world ye shall have tribulation," on the other he says, "Be of good cheer; I have overcome the world. Let not your heart be troubled: ye believe in God, believe also in me. In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you; and if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also." Moses, also, once said, "Wherefore hast thou afflicted thy servant?"

Not long ago a noted merchant remarked about his partner in business, who was very sorely afflicted, "I can not see what the Lord means to afflict such a good man so sorely, while so many wicked men revel in sin, and are much less afflicted." The Bible only can give us light on such questions. Reason fails to solve the mystery. Moses walked by faith, and not by sight, and therefore "he chose rather to suffer affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season, esteeming the reproach of Christ greater riches than the treasures of Egypt; for he had respect unto the recompense of the reward."

Dear, afflicted pilgrim, your cup of suffering may be heavy; your heart may be in sore anguish; your soul may be exceeding sorrowful unto death! Look to your Jesus who passed by this way, and listen to his cheering voice, "Be of good cheer; I have overcome the world." "Weeping may dure for a night, but joy cometh in the morni "Blessed are ye that weep now: for ye s laugh." Look through your tears to the " yond" for your reward. It is prepared and up for you in the bright and glorious " there." It is an indescribable and far more ceeding and eternal weight of glory. "Be t faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crow life." "Is any among you afflicted? let him pr Read James 5: 13–15.

"O there's a better world on high;
Hope on, thou pious breast;
Faint not, thou traveler; on the sky
Thy weary feet shall rest."

THIS will inform the readers of the MESSENGER that my health is greatly improved since my last report, March 26. I commenced the use of "Swift's Specific," and in the course of twenty-four hours the change was very perceptible. The third day I could take a full inspiration,—a thing which I had not been able to do for eight weeks. Now I have been under that treatment just one week, and the pains have nearly all disappeared. Last Thursday, March 28, I was out at church,—at our council-meeting. Perhaps some will remember that the last time I tried to preach in Auburn, Ill., was Monday evening, Jan. 28, so I was away from the house of the Lord for two months. That was the longest period that I was absent from public meeting since I became a member of the church. I now feel very hopeful that I can soon be at the Master's work again. The Lord be praised for his love to me! A. HUTCHISON.

District Meeting.

THE East Pennsylvania District Meeting will be held with the Brethren of the Chiques Creek church, Lancaster Co., in their meeting-house in Elizabethtown, half way between Lancaster and Harrisburg, on the line of the Pennsylvania R. R., on May 15 and 16, the delegates to meet on the 15th at 4 P. M. for organization. A love-feast will also be held at the same place on May 17 and 18.

The ordained Elders are requested to meet at the same place on May 15 at 9 A. M. Those coming from a distance should come on the evening of the 14th, when they will be met and taken care of. Railroad arrangements have been effected for regular excursion rates over the following roads, Pennsylvania R. R. Division, United Railroads of New Jersey Division, Northern Central Railway, Philadelphia, Wilmington & Baltimore to Ridgely and Oxford, and Philadelphia and Erie Railroad Division, by presenting at any ticket office, of any of said roads, by any delegate or a member of their families (and, by the way, for a love-feast all members are delegates), a card order, which I can furnish to all applying in the proper way. Let all of each church, wishing to go, get the names on a list, with P. O. address of each, and send to me, and I will send the orders; but TAKE NOTICE, all card orders so sent, and not used, must positively be returned to me at the meeting, or very soon thereafter, as I have made myself responsible for their return. Tickets on said orders will be sold from May 12 to 18, inclusive and good to return on or before the 19th.

Fast line west, leaving Broad Street Philadelphia, at 11: 50 A. M., on the 15th, and day express east, leaving Harrisburg, at 3: 40 P. M., on the 16th, will stop at Elizabethtown, besides the other trains that always stop there.

Eastern Shore Brethren can use their orders from Baltimore via Harrisburg, or from home via Philadelphia, and New Jersey via Philadelphia. Chester and Montgomery County Brethren can use theirs on Schuylkill Valley Railroad via Phœnixville and Frazer.

Those coming by way of Reading should come to Lebanon and there take Cornwall & Lebanon Railroad and ask for return tickets to Elizabethtown meeting, on sale from May 12 to 18, inclusive, good until the 19th. The fare, round trip from Lebanon is 85 cents, Cornwall, 65 cents (less than two cents per mile).

I would here say, if any ministering brethren from the west wish to visit some in the east, prior to Annual Meeting, come to Derry love-feast, on the Lebanon Valley Railroad, Dauphin Co., May 13 and 14, District Meeting 15 and 16; and our love-feast 17 and 18. All who are in Christ are welcome. S. R. ZUG,

From Tulpehocken Church, Pa.

A FEW lines from the different churches occasionally have been a source of untold comfort and encouragement to many who try to follow their crucified Redeemer. Silence has been continued long enough, I think, from this church, and the time has fully come when the spell should be broken. We have some good news to report, which we are always glad to publish and hear. I must confess, however, that too many of us are not to be compared with the authors of the different books of the Bible, as they reported the bad also, although not in a slanderous way.

During the past year the waters were repeatedly disturbed, and saints and angels as often rejoiced to see sinners, who were standing idle, repent, and become obedient unto the faith. About eighteen or twenty were added unto the church, and we have an applicant for next Lord's Day—one whose dear and "good mother," as she called her, was lately laid into the cold and silent grave, asleep in Jesus. Oh, may they all be deeply impressed with the great truth that the crown is not in the beginning, nor in the middle, but he that endureth to the end, shall be saved!

During the last winter we had protracted efforts, continued over two Sundays, in seven of our eight places of worship. We had good attendance and good attention. We hope and pray that the seed sown will in due season take root and spring upward, and bring forth fruit to life everlasting!

Brethren Hiram Gibble, Amos Hottenstein, H. E. Light, Ben Hattel, David Smith, J. H. Longanecker and Reuben Graybill assisted us at different times with thoughts that spoke, and words that burned.

Now, if only every one of us who have named the name of Jesus, could fully comprehend the meaning of the Savior's words, "Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father in heaven!" Oh, how sad is the other side of the picture—"If therefore the light that is in thee be darkness, how great is that darkness!" GEO. BUCHER.

From the Manor Congregation, Pa.

THE brethren of the Manor congregation, Indiana Co., Pa., met in council March 23. All business passed off very pleasantly. We made arrangements to have a love-feast on Friday, June 14th, commencing at 3 o'clock. We found that the solicitors for the home mission have been more successful than heretofore, which is encouraging. We elected as delegates to District Meeting, Mark Minser and Frank Holsopple. For the first time under the present system, we elected a delegate from this congregation to Annual Meeting, to which position the writer was elected. We also made arrangements to have an election for two deacons, to take place at a council-meeting May 18th. May the good Lord direct all this to his honor and glory, and for the salvation of souls!

JOS. HOLSOPPLE.

Railroad Arrangements.

To the delegates and others who expect to attend the District Meeting of the Western District of Pennsylvania, to be held near Elderton, Pa., May 15, 1889, we wish to make the following announcement:

We failed in our effort to make arrangements with the Pennsylvania Railroad for excursion rates; but where the Brethren are so situated that they can travel together in groups of ten or more, they can get and travel on one ticket at the rate of two cents per mile each, which is the same as excursion rates.

We expect to make arrangements with the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, having received a letter from Mr. Cole, asking, "How long do you wish the tickets made good to return, and how many card orders will you need?" This I will answer to-day, and expect all will be right. I suppose the brethren who have experience on that line will understand fully. In the meantime, I wish full and early reports from those to whom I wrote a few weeks ago (who have not yet answered), as to the number of delegates and others who will come to Indiana, Pa., and the time, so that arrangements for conveyance may be completed. Do not come later than the 11 o'clock train from Blairsville intersection. JOSEPH HOLSOPPLE, Clerk.

From Buchanan, Mich.

IN my last I wrote from West Alexandria, Ohio. On my way home I noticed that the ground in North-western Ohio was quite dry, and that there were some fires in the timber. I met the Brethren in our home church in council-meeting. Our business meeting passed off very pleasantly.

In the evening of the 28th I went to the Berrien church, Mich., where we met in church council. One dear sister who had wandered away, was restored, and one brother was restored to the office of deacon. I see the enemy of souls is still busy, and does all he possibly can to destroy the union and peace of the church. While here, we had a fine rain, which was much needed.

BRO. S. Z. SHARP will represent the McPherson church as delegate at the Annual Meeting.

UNLESS the time for holding the Annual Meeting is changed, it will occur eight weeks from to-day.

BRO. E. F. GOOD has moved from Ashland, O., to South Bend, Ind., where he may now be addressed.

READ Bro. Wm. M. Lyon's article in the Missionary and Tract Department. It is good and to the point.

BRO. I. J. ROSENBERGER will labor in the interest of the Missionary Endowment Fund for the next few weeks.

BRO. S. Z. SHARP informs us that there are over one hundred students enrolled at McPherson College for the Spring Term.

BRO. OTIS D. LYON, who was for several years connected with this office as Mailing Clerk, has been called to the ministry. May the Lord bless him in this important work!

WE regret to learn of the serious illness of sister Bock, wife of Bro. Samuel Bock, Secretary of the Tract Work. Our prayer is that the Lord may restore her to health again!

BRO. J. C. LAHMAN visited and preached for us on Sunday, the 7th inst. He was so well pleased with his Florida trip that he purchased a small tract of land and has had it set in orange trees.

WE are informed upon good authority that one of the ministers who belongs to the church represented by Daniel Sommer, and who attended the recent debate in Ray County, Mo., says that Eld. Sommer was badly defeated in the discussion, and we are of the same opinion.

BRO. C. HOPE will attend the District Meeting in Nebraska.

BRO. AMICK, our Business Manager, visited his old home in Indiana last week.

HAVE you ordered a copy of the "Miller and Sommer Debate"? The profits go to the General Mission Fund.

WE shall be glad to receive copies of Minutes of District Meetings. Will the Clerks of such meetings make a note of this, and please forward to this office a copy of the Minutes of their meetings?

BRO. R. H. MILLER, we are sorry to say, contracted a severe cold on his return from Missouri, and was not able to meet some previous engagements. We hope he may soon be fully restored to health and usefulness.

THE first installment of the Miller and Sommer debate has been sent to the disputants for correction. From present indications, the book will contain over 500 pages, as the stenographic notes make more copy than was estimated. If possible, it is proposed to get the book out before the Annual Meeting. Orders for it are solicited. It will cost $1.50 by mail prepaid.

THE work in Chicago is moving along. Two were recently received, and several members have moved to the city during the last month, and have handed in their letters. Preaching every Lord's Day, at 3:30 P. M. at corner of Oakley Ave. and Jackson St. Social meeting Thursday evening at 7 P. M. Brethren visiting or passing through the city are cordially invited to attend the meetings.

THE Mt. Morris Sunday-school reported $22.61 for the General Mission Fund for the quarter ending April 6, 1889. At this rate, if it is kept up during the year, nearly $100 will be placed in the Missionary Treasury by one Sunday-school. Can not all of our Sunday-schools take part in helping on the great mission work of the church?

OWING to the large orders received of late for "Europe and Bible Lands," the eighth edition is entirely exhausted. A new edition is now being printed, and we shall be able to fill all orders, either for cloth or leather binding, in a short time again. In the meantime, we ask those who have sent in orders, which have not been filled, to have patience. We will fill the orders just as soon as it is possible to do so.

ACCORDING to the General Mission Plan, the Secretary is expected to make an annual report, and it is desirable to have embodied in said report the mission work of the several State District Committees. In order that this may be done, the various District Committees are requested to send in their reports of the work to D. L. Miller, Sec., Mt. Morris, Ill. Give account of boundaries, expenses for meeting-houses, number of churches organized, and the number received by baptism during the year, and such other items as may be of general interest.

A LETTER has been received from Henry M. Stanley, the great African Explorer. He had reached the south end of Central Africa, and was covered with dirt, mosquitoes and jungles, and finally, after many months of most incredible hardships, losing many of his men by sickness and starvation, he reached Emin Pey, who had gone to assist, but such was the unsettled condition of his little band of followers that they had to be succored by Emin. The letter was written last September, since which time nothing has been heard from the intrepid explorer. The Dark Continent still holds its secrets.

FROM Bro. L. H. Dickey, of Alvada, Ohio, we have the following sad news of the serious illness of our dear old brother, J. T. Ebersole. He is an old soldier of the Cross, and, although old and feeble, he will fall with the armor on, "not discouraged, still willing to work for the Master." Surely these are encouraging words. May God bless the dear old brother and sister, in their affliction! "Our beloved elder, J. T. Ebersole, is in a critical condition. Night before last, he had a slight stroke of apoplexy, rendering him partially blind. Yesterday he and the sister (his wife) were both anointed. This was truly a solemn meeting, a number being present. Bro. John says, 'My wife and I are old, but not discouraged, still willing to work for the Master while he sees fit for us to remain here.' We fear the end is near."

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

WE summarize the concluding arguments on trine immersion without following the sessions of debate.

Bro. Miller's sixth argument was drawn from the fact that we do not find single immersion nearer the apostles than the fourth century, having been introduced about the middle of that century by Eunomius. Ancient church history gives not a single word about single immersion until it is mentioned at this time as an innovation, and it was not recognized as legal until made so by the action of a council of the church of Rome. Authorities: Bingham's Antiquities, pp. 487-541; Robinson's Hist. Bap. 514.

In his seventh argument Bro. Miller charged that the single immersionists changed the bowing forward action in baptism to the backward action. By referring to church history he showed conclusively that the backward action in baptism is not yet four hundred years old, and he said that for the first fifteen hundred years of the Christian era no record can be found of this mode. The universal custom was to bow forward. The backward action was introduced by a body of Baptists who thought that in this way they might more closely represent the idea of a burial; but Bro. Miller showed that in this they were mistaken, because among the ancients many different methods of burial obtained. He quoted from the best church historians to prove the position taken in this argument.

The eighth argument was based on the fact that the bread and the cup of communion is taken in parts, and there are two actions in its administration, and these two actions complete one communion, just as the three dips of the great commission complete one baptism. He showed by Bingham, page 812, that at one time an attempt was made to introduce the custom of taking the communion in one action. The bread and wine were put together, and both were taken at the same time with a spoon. Later it was argued by the Roman church that it would be impossible to have the flesh of Christ without having the blood, and on this ground the cup was dispensed with, and the communion was reduced to a single act, just as the same church had taken hold of the commission of Christ, and made single immersion legal instead of trine immersion, which was the universal custom up to the time the change was made.

Eld. Sommer, in his reply and closing speech, admitted that the apostolic fathers and church historians all show that trine immersion was the practice of the church from the close of the second century to the beginning of the twelfth century, but he claimed that this was the period of corruption, and that Bro. Miller could not show that trine immersion was practiced during the second century. He referred again and again to the fact that Bro. Miller came to the debate with a lot of old musty documents to prove his position, whilst he, Sommer, depended on the Bible alone. He asked why, if the words of the commission mean repeated action, the Brethren do not dip the candidate more than three times. He called attention to the fact that the apostles baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. In concluding, he summarized his arguments, and held up the Bible as his only witness.

Bro. Miller, in closing the discussion, showed by reference to Cathcart's "Baptism of the Ages," and other authorities that trine immersion was the practice during the second century, and thus closed the gap between the death of St. John, A. D. 95 and A. D. 200. He referred to the Greek Fathers, showing that the corruptions and innovations were introduced by the Roman church, while the Fathers, many of them, sealed their faith with their blood, suffering at the stake for the cause of Christ, steadily opposed all innovations, and adhered strictly to the form of doctrine delivered to them by the apostles. He said that "Eld. Sommer comes here and reads from the Bible, putting his own construction upon the language, and then, without bringing any evidence in proof of his position, asks us to accept it. He says, by the position he takes, that he knows more than all the Fathers and learned men of the ages that have passed since the death of the apostles. I come here and read the commission given by our Lord, and tell you that it requires three actions in baptism, and I bring the learned men of the past and present, to show that I am right. And I am glad to know that the position held by the Brethren is such that we can bring in the learned Fathers of the early church, and the learned men of the centuries that have passed since then as witnesses that we stand where the apostles stood on this question." An earnest appeal to all to obey the Truth, closed the debate on trine immersion.

THIRD PROPOSITION. — The Scriptures teach feet-washing as an ancient custom, an act of hospitality or good works, as it is done in the church represented by Daniel Sommer.

Daniel Sommer affirms.

R. H. Miller denies.

Monday Morning, March 25.

Elder Sommer, in opening the discussion, expressed a desire that the time allotted for the debate might be cut down. He had made an effort to have the time shortened, but had failed. He then proceeded with his arguments, attempting to show that feet-washing is to be classed among good works. He found feet-washing in Luke 7: 27; John 13, and 1 Tim. 5: 10. He pointed out the fact that feet-washing is only found at this one place in the epistolary writings, and here it is found among good works.

In the church he represents, the rite is practiced as an act of hospitality. He said he once found himself washing a saint's feet, and referred to two other instances where members of his church had washed the feet of others. As people wore sandals in Bible times, it was necessary to wash feet; now there is no occasion for it, but if it is necessary, he expressed a willingness to engage in it.

In regard to feet-washing, he claimed that it was not a church ordinance, and said that an ordinance has a Godward bearing, whilst good works have a manward bearing, and that as feet-washing did not have a Godward bearing, it could not be considered as a church ordinance. As to the example given by Christ, he held that as only the apostles were present, it was not intended that feet-washing should be generally observed. He called attention again to his position taken on the first proposition, that the church was not organized until the day of Pentecost, therefore Christ's example and command in John 13 was not binding on the church. The object of Christ was to set before his disciples an act of hospitality and humility and not an ordinance. His language to Peter, "If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with me," refers to the washing of regeneration, and not especially to feet-washing.

He said that an order of worship, when it is revealed, must have time, and be divinely limited and set forth so that no mistakes need be made in observing it; but the New Testament sets forth no form for the observance of feet-washing, and hence it is not to be observed.

As the elder did not, in the discussion of this proposition, have his arguments arranged in order, we failed to gather all the points he attempted to make. At some points his remarks were somewhat irrelevant, and he indulged in repeated repetitions of his arguments. One of the ministers of his church, who was present, Rev. Norton, wrote several stanzas of doggerel, and handed them to the elder, who read them, without giving credit to the author. We tried to divest ourself of all prejudice in the matter, and judge the elder's arguments fairly. Whether we were able to do this or not, may be an open question; but we were forced to the conclusion that he had utterly failed in sustaining the proposition which he had affirmed.

NEGATIVE.

Bro. Miller, in his opening speech, said although he was on the negative he would present some arguments to show that feet-washing was a command, and, as such, ought to be observed by the followers of Christ.

His first argument was based on John 13, where we have the example and the command of the Lord, "If I then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet; ye also ought to wash one another's feet." He showed conclusively that the Greek words translated "ought" and "should," carried with them the full meaning of an obligation, necessity and command.

Second argument—feet-washing is enjoined upon believers only. It was given at a supper, at a table, to disciples only, and in connection with the Lord's Supper and communion, and the form for observing it is fully set forth in the example.

Third argument—the disciples were commanded to "wash one another's feet." No religious rite, based upon a commandment to have something done to one another, has ever been set aside. Examples,—"Pray for one another," "love one another," etc., etc.

Fourth argument—a penalty is attached to the non-observance of the ordinance of feet-washing. Peter could have no part with Christ unless he permitted him to wash his feet. The fact that Peter would lose his part with Christ unless he had his feet washed, shows the importance of the commandment. In regard to the widow, 1 Tim. 5: 10, it was only by obedience to the command of the Lord Jesus to wash feet, that gave a right to share all the privileges in the church. Here, also, a penalty was attached to the command. God gave a law to the Jews (Ex. 33: 19) to wash. The penalty for violation was death. The penalty for failing to observe feet-washing is to lose our part with Christ, and to be denied the complete privileges of the church.

Fifth argument—the spiritual nature and significance of feet-washing. The ordinance bears a spiritual significance. Peter did not know its meaning. Christ said, "Thou shalt know hereafter. It was a spiritual cleansing. After he had washed their feet he said, "Ye are clean, but not all."

Sixth argument—1 Tim. 5: 10, "If she have washed the saints' feet." If this had been simply a good action or work, why use the word "saint"? But it means more than a good work. There is in it an obligation to wash the feet, not of strangers, but of the saints, and it is thus separated from the good works named in the same connection.

Seventh argument is drawn from the difference between the feet-washing commanded by our Lord, and that of all other washings. Never before was a command given to any people to wash one another's feet. Jesus first gave this command. He gave baptism, the Supper, the communion and feet-washing not only by command, but also by example, and all are based upon the same authority, and are equally binding upon his followers. It is a positive command, and Christ told his disciples to teach all nations to "observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you."

Eighth argument—when the Lord instituted feet-washing, he also instituted a Supper and the communion. It was shown that the supper spoken of in John 13 is the same referred to by the other evangelists. It is claimed by some that the Supper of John 13 was eaten in Bethany. Bro. Miller at this point presented a map, showing the position of Jerusalem, the brook Cedron, the Mount of Olives and Bethany, referring to the words of John 18: 1, "He went forth with his disciples over the brook Cedron, where was a garden, into the which he entered." As the brook is between Jerusalem and the garden, and not between Bethany and Gethsemane, the proof is conclusive that the Supper was eaten in Jerusalem. In reply to this point, Eld. Sommer said he did not claim that the Supper was eaten in Bethany, and Bro. Miller, continuing, said he had been debating with the people, represented by the elder, for twenty years, and this was the first time any one of them had been willing to admit that the Supper of John 13 was in Jerusalem. He congratulated himself on the fact that his opponents were coming to his side of the question.

In conclusion, Bro. Miller showed by history that feet-washing was observed by the Greek Fathers, and that it was set aside as a church ordinance by the Spanish Catholics at the Council of Eliberis. From Robinson, page 331, he read that the washing of feet is still found in the Greek, the Roman and some of the Protestant churches, but that the Roman church had shorn the ordinance of its spiritual significance. Here, as in many other points, he said his opponent followed in the footsteps of Rome. He summed up his arguments, and asked the audience to search the Scriptures, and having found the Truth, to obey it.

THE FUTURE CHURCH.

BY WM. M. LYON.

Number Two.

WE will hear from our class again. Mr. D. says, "I must confess that I have often felt that I would like to be in the church, but no one has ever given me a single word of encouragement. Many of my relatives are members and they talk to me about everything else but the salvation of my soul. With sorrow I must say that even my parents have never once in my life asked me to seek Jesus. They do all within their power to get the things of this world for me, but they never talk to me about my spiritual duties. Father is trying, he says, to make enough money to buy each of the children a farm, but he has never once said that he was anxious about our souls' salvation."

Miss E., who is next in the class, says, "My parents are members; they go to church, they talk of the importance of doing all the commandments of the Lord, etc, but I have never known father or mother to pray in my life. They never have family worship, and, to be honest, what pains my heart most, is, they are often cross and unkind to each other and in the family, and from what I know, this is not the religion of Jesus."

Mr. F. is next, and testifies as follows: "I'm sorry to say that I do not think of religion as I once did. Of late I have almost come to the conclusion that the whole thing is a sham. I'll tell you why. Father has often talked about the worth of the soul; he says that one soul is worth more than the whole world, etc., and last week when Bro. A. was around soliciting money to spread the Gospel, he did not want to give a cent, but after a long begging, he finally had his name put down for a quarter. Father has three large farms, and money on interest. He spends his money for everything else, but gets out of fix every time he is asked for a little money to save souls. So I have come to the conclusion that he doesn't think as much of a soul as he pretends to. And there's Uncle Dave—why, he's worth more money than father, and he doesn't give anything toward helping to preach the Gospel to others. But then there is one of his tenants, Mr. Black, a very poor man—he put down his name just under father's, and when I looked, I felt ashamed to see that he had signed for one dollar—just four times as much as my father! The worst of all is, I fear that father is not honest about it. Let me relate an incident: Our neighbor, Mr. Allen, was sold out the same day that Bro. A. was at our house after missionary money. The same evening, at the supper table, when the question was asked, "What was the cause of Mr. Allen's failure?"—some one answered, "He spent all that he had for whiskey." My little seven-year-old brother now looked up and said, "Pa, what made Mr. Allen spend all his money for whiskey?" "Because he liked it," was the quick reply. "Why, pa, didn't you tell Bro. A. to-day that you liked souls; then why didn't you want to give him your money?" I need only to add that father soon changed the subject, but I'll never forget how he looked about that time!"

With these testimonials, the class is now excused.

What have these things to do with the future church? Let us see:

1. We re-state the sad fact with which we started out, viz: That there is a great departure among the children from the church of the parents.

2. For this there must be a cause.

3. May the children's testimonies not indicate some of these causes?

I am inclined to the belief that these testimonies contain much more truth than fiction. May they not be swift witnesses against some in that great day of reckoning? We are living in a wonderful age—an age, noted for great advancement and development in all the arts and sciences. The religious world, speaking in a general sense, is pushing ahead with great zeal, prosecuting with untiring energies its various claims and interests. We can not afford to live behind the age. "What," says one, "do you propose to keep abreast with the times?" Why not? Are we not required to live equal with our advantages? This, by no means, signifies that in any respect we should go beyond the true limits of the Gospel.

You will not suffer your children to be behind in many of the enjoyments of this world. Do you, then, want them to suffer for want of spiritual enjoyments?

"But is it not wrong to try to compete with other churches?" No, not in the true sense of the word. This does not mean that we must seek to rival them, except in the Gospel. Certainly, if they wish to beat us in a race outside of the Gospel course, just let them go.

But if those who do not possess all the elements of the true religion of Christ, have power and wisdom sufficient for their success, ought not we, then, do as much—yes, and a great deal more, if we have all the essential elements of the Gospel? With the full Gospel power at the head of all our missionary work, Sunday-schools and high schools, what is it that we could not do?

We need a better system and more united action. We avail ourselves of all modern methods and improvements in the business world; farmers still sow and reap but not in the same ways that they used to; they very well know that if they were to do so, they would soon get behind. Would that we were just as wise in the spiritual work as we are in temporal or financial matters! Men of business succeed only by working according to a good system, and upon business principles. If this is necessary to insure temporal success, by what means could we prove it unnecessary in order to meet with spiritual success? In our business we want all the system, best methods and improvements that we can possibly get, but in religion, almost anything will answer the purpose for some.

In the Gospel we have the whole system, together with all plans and rules and directions for successful work, if we will only be governed accordingly. The nearer we come living and acting out this Gospel order of things, the better we will please God, and the greater will be the prosperity of the church. This is the only way to have our labors crowned with success.

This, too, is the only way to increase numerically, as well as spiritually. How much, then, are we concerned about the future church? Present work largely determines the future church. Will we work for perpetuation and growth in the church, or shall our influence be toward spiritual declension and ruin? Which shall it be?

Union Bridge, Md.

CHIPS FROM THE WORK-HOUSE.

BY DANIEL VANIMAN.

WHILE waiting for the train now, I will say that at the meeting of the General Church Erection and Missionary Committee on April 2, it was found that the Endowment Fund is still growing. In the State of Illinois alone it has reached thirty-two thousand five hundred dollars, and the end is not yet. What is more surprising still is, that the donations for Church Erection and Missionary Work outside of the Endowment Interest, instead of falling off, as was supposed by many it would, is larger than ever before, for which we feel to thank God and take courage. While urgent calls are multiplying, and money is freely contributed for the noble work of saving souls and enlarging Zion's borders, the greatest pressure now felt by the Committee is the lack of suitable men,—young men, well qualified for the work, who are able to meet the hardships of these new fields,—men who will so consecrate themselves to the Lord's work that they are willing to be located and used as ministers and teachers as directed by our Brotherhood through the District Committees and the General Committee.

Plenty of men may be had to send out a few weeks or months, and then return to their homes, but this will not meet the pending issues. We must have men who can be located by the Committee and kept in the field until the work is established. To supply this urgent demand, Annual Meeting and the churches must come to the rescue. There are urgent calls that can not be met under existing circumstances for the want of suitable men. Before us are calls from Montana, Washington Territory, California, Arkansas, Eastern Texas, etc. What can the Committee do? Ans.—Recommend to Annual Meeting for approval a plan that will call out from the churches and place at the disposal of the Committee men for this work. A well-matured plan passed the Committee yesterday, on its way to Annual Meeting, which, it is hoped, will pass the meeting, and bring out the men needed or result in bringing out a better plan. Here it is. If any one is not in favor of it, let him come to Annual Meeting with a better one!

In order to meet the growing demand for suitable ministers and teachers, to be located and used as directed by the District Committees or by the General Church Erection and Missionary Committee, the General Committee recommends to Annual Meeting, for approval, the following:

1. Let churches, having suitable brethren for the above purpose, from time to time hold elections for the special purpose of securing the best talent possible for the various localities in the missionary field of the world.

2. Let such as have been elected either for the home work or for this special purpose, after being proven efficient workers who are willing to work under direction of the District or General Committee, be recommended by the churches in which their membership is, to the General Committee, specifying age, occupation, degree of office, number in family, etc.

It should be remembered that the Bible teaches the principle of selecting special men for special purposes. He gave some prophets, some apostles, some evangelists, some pastors, and teachers, etc. The apostles selected a special man for the special purpose of filling the place of Judas, and the seven to serve tables. The church in Northern Illinois selected a special one to go to Denmark, etc. All of this worked well.

REQUESTS AND SUGGESTIONS.

THE Tract Work already has an excellent list of tracts published and in circulation, but it is in need of a number more of good, live, fresh articles, that will equal the best of those already published. With such we feel that the list should be increased.

We need, especially, condensed articles, containing all the freshness and substance of the subject, with the points clear and distinctly presented, and, as much as possible, written in a plain, easy style, suited especially to the understanding of the common reader.

A considerable number of those we have are too lengthy and expensive for general distribution, and, furthermore, are not as freely and frequently read as those of smaller size.

Tracts containing four pages or less, we consider the best, and most suitable for general circulation. An equal sum of money invested in small tracts, as compared to pamphlets, will cover a much larger field, and find many times more readers.

Readers once interested in search of religious knowledge and true Bible doctrine, will find the way open to possess themselves with larger and more extensive publications setting forth the doctrine of the Brethren. Here is where the larger tracts will be sought after and found to be practical. Each has its especial uses and place to fill in this great work, the fruits of which are almost every day becoming more and more manifest as the work goes on in various parts of the country.

The following list of subjects suggest themselves as suitable for tracts. No one, however, is limited to it, but may write on any topic by him deemed suitable in this line of wants. All articles on doctrinal subjects go before the Examining Committee for investigation and approval before publication is authorized.

From Covino, Cal.

PERHAPS some of the readers of the GOSPEL MESSENGER are anxious to know the result of the meetings held in the Disciple church in the town of Glendora, Cal. (referred to in GOSPEL MESSENGER No. 12, page 188). We had the promise of their house three weeks, if we desired, but the second week of the meeting they saw their doctrine endangered by the Gospel hammer, and that their camp would get into trouble. One of their best members said to me one evening after church, "You have hit our boat so hard that it is badly racked, and our ship has sprung a leak." A few of their leading members sought to devise a plan by which to save their church from being badly shattered, and that was to send off and get one of their ministers to come and occupy the house, hence, on last Saturday evening, we were notified their minister would fill the pulpit on the following day and continue the meetings. It was quite a disappointment to our Brethren, as they felt quite sure our reaping time was near at hand. This again proves to our Brotherhood the necessity of having more church houses of our own. Where the Brethren want meetings and have no house of their own, I think it would be better to hire a hall, or some public building, so we could control the door. JACOB WITMORE.

McPherson Notes.

IN answer to the many inquiries about the religious advantages we here enjoy, I would say, they are similar to those enjoyed at Mt. Morris, as described in the MESSENGER a few weeks ago by Bro. Plate.

Every Sunday morning at 10 o'clock we have preaching in the College chapel, and at 11 o'clock Sunday-school, the members of the faculty, and others, performing the duties as teachers. As there are over one hundred members in the College and in the city, we have never lacked good congregations, even when the weather was somewhat inclement. Every Sunday evening the congregation meets in the College Chapel in the capacity of a religious social or prayer-meeting, or what our old Brethren in Eastern Pennsylvania used to call, "Erbauungsstunde." Meetings are also held each Sunday at a number of places in the country.

The students meet each Wednesday evening in the Chapel for prayer and religious improvement. The members of the school, who are members of the church, also meet about every two weeks for encouragement in divine life, and for correcting any mistakes into which young people are liable to fall. These meetings must be attended to be properly appreciated, and I believe Bro. Plate has not in the least overdrawn their value.

Every morning the work of the school begins with prayer, and in the evening the students meet for worship before retiring, and conduct the services among themselves; all members of the church taking their turn. Besides these various religious exercises and modes of training, the Bible is taught in the form of Old and New Testament History. A very interesting class just completed the Old Testament last term. There is also a class in New Testament Greek under the masterly hand of Prof. Huber, who has paid a great deal of attention to this subject. We have also had help from abroad. Our veteran, Eld. John Forney, spent some time at the College, and gave wholesome advice to the students, and preached in the College Chapel to the great satisfaction of his listeners. Bro. W. C. Teeter also favored us with a most earnest discourse before beginning his successful work at Beatrice. To enumerate all the visitors who called on us would take up too much space in the paper, so we will only say, Come again.

Eld. Daniel Vaniman has reached us with his family, and is putting up another house, having moved into the one he lately built for his son. He took charge of the business department of the College on the 1st of April, and we trust he will be as successful in the management of our school finances as he has been in getting the Church Endowment Fund. This reminds me of the fact that Silver Creek church, Illinois, in which a Brethren's school is located, gave $11,000 for missionary or church purposes. Would this have been done if the school had not been located there? What, then, are the influences of our schools in advancing the interests of Christ's kingdom? S. Z. SHARP.

IN reading the GOSPEL MESSENGER, I feel rejoiced to hear of so many good meetings, and precious souls being converted to God. I lived out in a cold and unfriendly world until I was sick and tired of sin. I was converted this winter, during a series of meetings held at Red Oak Grove church. Bro. John Naff, of Roanoke County, labored with us one week in January. He did not reap any immediate reward, but sowed good seed in the hearts of many. In February —one month from the time Bro Naff was here,— Bro. C. D. Hylton came to us on Friday and labored until Monday night. I could not stay back any longer. I went and three (two sisters and one brother) followed.

Bro. C. D. Hylton preached three more sermons and three more came forward. The last day of the meeting we all went down to the water, where three of the lambs were buried with Christ in baptism. March 10, our beloved brother came to our church again. We all repaired to the water once more, where the writer and two others were led into the water and buried with Christ in baptism, to rise in newness of life. Our brother preached nine sermons while with us and seven precious souls were converted. Brethren, pray for me that I may hold out faithful until the Lord calls for me! ELLA BOWMAN.

OUR quarterly council occurred March 23. We had a good meeting. Everything passed off pleasantly, and I think our little church is in better working order at present than it has been for a long time. Bro. James Switzer was elected Superintendent of the Oak Grove Sunday-school, and S. S. Holman, Assistant. SAMUEL HENRY.

WE expect to go to Ontario, Canada, April 22, in the interest of the Canada Mission field. We intend to stay three or four weeks, then come home, and after Annual Meeting wife and I will make Canada our home for some time. Our correspondents will still address us at Mulberry, Ind., until further notice is given. May we have the prayers of all the Lord's children!

D. L. MILLER, Treas.

A Pleasant District Meeting.

OUR District meeting of Northern Indiana was held April 4. It was a pleasant meeting indeed. To me it seemed to be one of the best I ever attended. There was a fair representation of delegates. The meeting was larger than usual. Everything passed off pleasantly. There was much love and Christian courtesy manifested. The meeting was organized by electing Bro. Jeremiah Gump, Moderator; Bro. D. Whitmer, Reading Clerk; and Bro. A. H. Puterbaugh, Writing Clerk. A territorial change was made. The brethren of Southern Michigan were rather isolated from the general body of members of Central Michigan, so Berrien and Pokagon districts petioned their own State District, also Northern Indiana, to be annexed to Northern Indiana because of so much more convenience. This petition was granted. The territory of "Christian" was also annexed to Northern Indiana. Christian district, however, at present stands disorganized, and is under the care of the adjoining districts. Our meeting lasted one and one-half days. Heretofore we were in too much of a hurry, and would crowd business, thereby leaving some important business half finished. I have concluded when we work for the Lord, we should not crowd our work too much.

Some important matters were brought before the church. The missionary question received due attention. One night was set apart for a missionary meeting. It was a pleasant and profitable occasion. Our missionary workers gave us some of their experience in missionary work. I do wish all of the members of Northern Indiana could have been present and heard what some of us heard. I presume the fund would be doubled in the next year. Brethren, let us donate freely! By so doing we will place our money where it draws compound interest. The faithful workers will some day realize how large the interest will be in the banking-house of heaven.

One query goes to Annual Meeting. The query calls for more united work in our Church Erection, Missionary and Tract Work. In canvassing, some of our solicitors meet with the following difficulties:

1. Whoever passes over a district first, will leave but little for the next canvasser to do. The Brethren say, "We gave all we can give now, and had we only known that two funds or donations would be called for, we would not have given so much. We would have divided our means."

2. So many calls our people do not like to respond to. It seems too much like begging.

3. If the work could be placed into one fund, or one committee, it would save expense.

4. The canvasser, or solicitor, can tell the brethren that he will take funds or endowment notes, for one or both,—just as they like. Try and have the means to go to one Treasurer of both the General Church Erection and Missionary Work, and Tract Work. I am glad our brethren are considering this important question.

Bro. Amos Peters was chosen a member on the Standing Committee. Bro. Thurston Miller was chosen on the General Missionary Work, and brethren J. V. Felthouse and Alexander Miller on the Home Mission Work. Our Missionary Work in Northern Indiana is only in its infancy as yet, but the present out-look is indeed encouraging. There are many calls for preaching, and we lack means and brethren who would, like Paul of old, deny themselves of some of the comforts of life, and go out to rescue the perishing. We have talent enough in Northern Indiana, and also the means, if only placed to the proper place, to have ten brethren in the mission field.

J. H. Miller.

From Sidney, Nebr.

Our beloved brother, W. C. Teeter, after an absence of four months,—during which time he preached at several places in Iowa, Illinois, and Kansas, and also at Beatrice, Nebr.,—was warmly welcomed by our people on his return home. On March 17th he preached an interesting discourse from the words "Wisdom hath builded her house: she hath hewn out her seven pillars." Prov. 9: 1. At the close of the service the church assembled and decided to have him hold a series of meetings for us before going East again. He began the same evening. The meetings increased in interest, the members all working harmoniously together, and we were greatly rejoiced in seeing nineteen precious souls added to the church,—sixteen by baptism, three by letter, and one other applicant for baptism. Our meetings closed Tuesday evening, April 2, with an impressive and enjoyable love-feast and communion service. There were about seventy communicants. About fourteen of our members could not be with us, from various hindering causes.

The members are greatly revived, and feel that Bro. Teeter has held forth the Word of God with great power for the good of our church here. Sitting under the sound of his voice and listening to his clear reasoning and earnest and pathetic appeals to the consciousness and reason of the sinner, and seeing the results of his labors during the last four months, especially, one can not help but believe that Bro. W. C. Teeter is an able evangelist, and, with the proper care and encouragement, would be very successful, if called specially into this line. His zeal seems unabating, and in this he fulfills "whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might." Eccl. 9: 10.

While so many of our dear brethren's children, and others, united with us, we believe many more were made to feel deeply impressed, and oh! may they not put off their souls' salvation until it is too late. Remember, dear people, we are rapidly traveling to a long, long home.

On Saturday, March 30th, was our quarterly council, which passed off very harmoniously, and, we believe, much good work was done. Important business called to us our beloved Elder J. S. Snowberger, and his son Audrew,—a minister. After the election of Bro. Teeter as delegate to our District Meeting, the church entered upon the sacred and solemn work of calling two brethren to the ministry. The lot fell on our much esteemed young brethren S. F. Brower, son of Eld. J. Brower, of South English, Iowa, and O. D. Lyon, son of Eld. Thomas D. Lyon, of Hudson, Ill. We hope and pray that the Lord may give them grace to fill their responsible position well-pleasing to our Heavenly Father, and to the good of this part of God's vineyard, and wherever they may be called. We read (Luke 10: 2), "The harvest truly is great, but the laborers are few: pray ye, therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he would send forth laborers into his harvest."

Henry Domer.

A Ripe Sheaf Garnered.

Some men work so modestly, pass through this world so evenly and live so humbly that it is only when the grave is filled over them and the people go to their homes that the full truth of the worth and usefulness of such men is realized.

Such was the life and character of Elder John Murray, who was recently gathered unto the fathers.

He was born in Huntingdon Co., Pa., March 31, 1808, and died in the Belleville church, Republic Co., Kansas, March 13th, 1889, lacking but a few days of being eighty-one years old.

When quite young, his father moved to the Miami Valley, Ohio, and from there the subject of this sketch moved to Marshall Co., Iowa. Here, as one of the pioneers, he built up a church and greatly aided in bringing surrounding churches up to an excellent standard of usefulness. He organized the first church in the State of Nebraska.

In 1831 he was married to Elizabeth Bollinger with whom he had eleven children, two of whom are yet living. She died in 1857. He next married Hannah Kurtz, formerly Landis, with whom he lived about nine years. His third and last companion was Mary Rogers, nee Garitson, with whom he lived twenty-two years, and who still survives him.

We have no data from which to say aught as to the length of time he was in the ministry, but he was an ordained Elder for upwards of twenty-five or thirty years, and as such was noted for his long-suffering kindness, patience and forbearance.

In 1884 he left Marshall Co., Iowa, and settled in Elk County, Kansas. Here he assisted in organizing the Cana church, the name being changed to Grenola. Up to the time of leaving Elk County, he traveled and preached a great deal, sometimes enduring hardships and privations such as faithful ministers can endure even without murmuring.

In January last he and his wife left Elk County, on the southern border of the State and in a buggy rode to Republic County, which borders Nebraska. He looked forward with eagerness and fond anticipation to his abode among the saints in Republic County, for a visit to them in 1888 had greatly endeared them to him. But, alas, man proposes but God disposes. About four weeks after his arrival he was interred in the church-yard here, being the first brother laid therein.

Having done quite a day's work on his son's new house, he returned to the home of Bro. R. E. Hillery and soon became ill, and in five days peacefully and without a sign of suffering, closed his eyes and fell asleep. Prior to this, however, he was heard speaking and being interrogated said, he was talking to the church. His thoughts were upon heavenly things and the works of the Lord.

Elder Murray had a fruitful memory up to the time of his death. He seemed to be ever ready with quotations from the Bible and from the poets. He stood in strange contrast with those who had heaps of books and knew little of that divine book,—the Bible. His sermons were frequently interspersed with quotations from the poets who wrote of heavenly things. His manner was that of a tender father in Israel,—a defender of the Truth—a soldier who feared and loved his Master. A ripe sheaf was he, and God has gathered him in.

Distressing Accident.

A sad occurrence happened in this community on Saturday evening, March 23, 1889. Aaron B. York put several pounds of dynamite in the oven of his cook-stove to thaw out for blasting purposes, and then went to the barn to attend to his feeding. His wife was in the kitchen, and had built a big fire preparatory to getting supper, when, it is supposed, the dynamite got too hot, and received a sudden jar by the stove-door. This caused an explosion, which killed the mother and little daughter. The mother was carried through the kitchen, striking the upper part of the door-frame and finally falling on the porch, where she was found, terribly mangled about her body and lower limbs. It is supposed that she was dead before she reached the floor. The little daughter, Maria, was found among the debris, not far from the stove, and was unconscious. All efforts to save her were unavailing. She lived about one-half hour. The sixteen-year-old son was sitting in the room, attending to a nine-months-old babe, which lay in a cab. The son was hurled through a door into the yard, and escaped with slight bruises. The force of the explosion upset the cab, and it fell on top of the infant. When found, it was not injured. Another little girl was in the yard and it, too, escaped injury. The kitchen was torn to pieces, and another room much damaged. All the furniture in both kitchen and room was destroyed.

The husband was wild with grief when he realized what had happened, for his family was near and dear to him. The dead bodies were removed to a house near by, where they were viewed by hundreds of people on the following day.

Sarah C. York was born in Cass County, Ind., June 12, 1851, and was thirty-seven years, nine months and eleven days old, at the time of her death. She was an exemplary member of the Brethren church. Always kind and generous, she will be greatly missed in the vicinity where she resided. The little daughter, Maria B., was born Nov. 16, 1881, aged seven years, four months and seven days. She was a bright and intelligent child. The bereaved husband has the sympathy of the entire community in his sad bereavement.

Sister Sarah was a daughter of Bro. Joseph and sister Maria Bennett, both now deceased. The funeral services were held at Pipe Creek church on Monday following, by Bro. Daniel P. Shively, assisted by brethren A. Rinehart and D. Bowser, from Rev. 6: 7, 8, to, perhaps, the largest assembly that ever gathered on a funeral occasion in this community.

Prayer is the pulse of the renewed soul and the constancy of its beat is the test and measure of the spiritual life. Let the young converts remember this.

From Belleville, Kans.

THE members of the Belleville church, Kansas, met in quarterly council March 30. A goodly number were present, and we had a pleasant meeting. All were happy to meet our elder again after his recent illness. The Lord is good to spare his life of usefulness a while longer.

While considerable business was transacted, all was done in love as a band of little children. The Sabbath-school was organized with brethren Albion Daggett, Superintendent; Rufus Hillery, Assistant; Henry Johnson, Secretary.

Six members were received by letter. We gladly welcome them all. Among the number was Bro. Charley Hillery. His help in the ministry will be appreciated by all. We were pleased when Father Murray moved among us, but, alas, his stay was of short duration. The Lord's ways are not our ways.

Bro. Rufus Hillery was elected delegate to the District Meeting. Our spring love-feast was appointed for May 18. To-day, March 31, Bro. Eshelman preached for us, with the assistance of Bro. Hillery. We received a rich lesson indeed. May we all live nearer the cross, and remember what our Savior suffered for us! We can not do or work too much for him!

The Great Rockingham Debate.

THIS debate by Eld. R. H. Miller, of the Brethren church, and Eld. Sommer, of a branch of the Christian or Campbellite church, named "Church of Christ," was held in the Rockingham meeting-house, in the Wakendah congregation, Ray Co., Mo., and continued eight days. There were sixty-four speeches in all, and the debate will stand as one of the most important debates ever held by any of our brethren. Mr. Abbott, of Chicago, was employed to take a report of the speeches, and his report may be relied on as correct. The debate will be published in book form as speedily as possible, and will be of special interest to our Brethren. One of the subjects discussed was, "The setting up of the kingdom, or church, on the day of Pentecost," on which we have nothing published in any previous debate held by our brethren. This subject will be interesting reading, as Bro. Miller's negation of the proposition was able, profound, and conclusive. The same ability marked all his affirmative and negative arguments.

Taken throughout, the line followed by Bro. Miller, which includes the faith and practice of the Brethren church on the several points discussed, was clear and logical, and our Brethren can not fail to be largely benefited by the publication of the debate, and we wish our Brethren every-where to make a note of this and solicit orders for the book, that it may be extensively distributed. I could wish that thousands of copies would be sold within six months of its publication.

Mr. Sommer's opinions on the subject of feet-washing are of a peculiar character, and he fully gives his views on the Lord's Supper as held by his church. Bro. Miller's responses and the line he set up will be equally interesting and instructive, as well as his other efforts in this discussion. As a whole, we know of no work outside of the Bible that contains so much of peculiar interest to our Brethren as Bro. Miller's speeches. The reading of his speeches can not fail to confirm the faith of our people in the Word of God, and every family in the Brotherhood should get a copy of the book.

The deep interest taken by our brethren and sisters where the discussion was held, manifested itself by their large attendance, and marked kindness and hospitality towards Brethren from other congregations who attended. For the time being, work on farms and business were largely suspended. The Lord bless the brethren and sisters for their Christian kindness towards those from a distance, which, we assure them, was highly appreciated, and is kindly remembered.

From the Saline Valley Church, Kans.

THIS church held her quarterly council March 30th. Everything passed off with good feeling. We sent Bro. L. W. Fitzwater as delegate to District Meeting, and Bro. Humphrey Tallhelm as delegate to Annual Meeting. One query was forwarded to District Meeting.

MARTHA FITZWATER.

From Primrose, Williams Co., O.

TO-DAY we, the Brethren of the Silver Creek church, organized our Sunday-school at the Hicks' Grove meeting-house, with a full corps of officers. Our Superintendent is Bro. Alford Throne, assisted by Bro. Jacob Riser. We hope, by the grace of God, that they will fill those places well, in the fear of the Lord, with his aid and assisting grace.

J. W. RITCHEY.

A Minister Wanted!

THE little band of Brethren, living about eight miles south of Joliet and thirty miles from Naperville, are much in need of a minister to move among them, so they may have more meetings, start a Sunday-school, and work up a better interest in church work. The few members there feel the need of help, and pray that the Lord may send a good shepherd to their assistance.

They have a good meeting-house, located as above described. Joliet is a city of about 20,000 inhabitants, and one of the greatest business cities of the West for its size. The country is equal to any and the market facilities excellent. For further information address Bro. Andrew Peterson, Manhattan, Will Co., Ill., or Abraham Geckley, Joliet, Ill.

BUSHONG—MUSSER.—At the residence of the bride's parents, March 24, by H. E. Light, Clayton R. Bushong and sister Mira F. Musser, both of Columbia, Pa.

GOCHENOUR—KEPLER.—At the residence of the officiator, Eld. Marcus Fowler, near Fredericksburg, Chickasaw Co., Iowa, March 19. Bro. Wm. E. Gochenour, of Viroqua, Wis., and Miss Emily Kepler, of Hampton, Iowa.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

PITTMAN.—At Loraine, Ill., March 2, Johnny L. son of brother and sister Lewis Pittman, aged 8 years and 6 days. Services by Bro. W. R. Lierlie, from 1 Cor. 13: 11.

B. H. STRICKLER.

WOLF.—Within the limits of the Lower Cumberland church, Cumberland Co., Pa., March 21, Aurora Wolf, aged 75 years, 1 month and 3 days. Services by Eld. David Neisley and the writer, from Heb. 4: 9.

HARRY BEELMAN.

BAKER.—In the bounds of the Upper Middletown Valley church, Frederick Co., Md., Jan. 23, Mrs. Catharine, wife of Bro. John Baker, aged 73 years, 7 months and 11 days.

HOOVER.—In the same church, Jan 24, after a protracted illness and intense suffering, Bro. Jacob Hoover, aged 78 years, 11 months and 9 days. Services by J. M. Bussard, from John 5: 24, 25. Interment in the Brethren's Cemetery.

STOTTELMYER.—In the same church, Feb. 28, after a four days' illness, Joseph Stottelmyer, aged 65 years, 6 months and 21 days.

Deceased was an inoffensive, good citizen, and leaves a wife (a sister) and three children to mourn his departure. Services by Rev. Santee, of the Reformed church.

STOTTELMYER.—In the same church, March 17, of pneumonia, friend Sarah Stottelmyer, aged 72 years, 8 months and 27 days.

Deceased was an exemplary member of the church to which she belonged. Services by Rev. I. O. Harne, of the Disciple church, assisted by J. M. Bussard, from Ps. 17: 15, to a very large concourse of people.

MARTIN GROSSNICKLE.

BAUMBAUGH.—In the James Creek congregation, Huntingdon Co., Pa., Feb. 18, sister Susan, daughter of Eld. Isaac Baumbaugh, deceased, aged 59 years and 15 days.

Deceased was a very exemplary, faithful and consistent member of the church for a number of years. She, with her younger maiden sister, lived close by the old James Creek meeting-house, where many of our brethren and sisters have frequently enjoyed their kind, Christian hospitality. Oh death, thy disastrous work is done! A home on earth is made desolate, but in spite of thy dreaded work here, we trust one is filled "over there." Services by the Brethren.

GEO. BRUMBAUGH.

LANDIS.—In Lower Cumberland church, Pa., March 6, sister Mary, wife of Bro. Michael Landis, aged 65 years, 5 months and 2 days.

DAVID NIESLEY.

FISHEL.—In the Libertyville church, Jefferson Co., Iowa, March 12, sister Rebecca Fishel, aged 81 years and 1 day.

FISHEL.—At the same place and time, Abraham Fishel, aged 45 years.

The aged sister lived with her son. Both were taken sick about the same time, and in one week death ended their sufferings. Sister Fishel had been a member of the church about forty years. Her husband died about ten years ago. Thus one by one the old soldiers of the cross pass away. A large concourse of people assembled at the funeral, where the services were conducted by Bro. Abram Wolff for mother and son at the same time, from 1 Cor. 15: 51.

JOHN H. ESHELMAN.

DEETER.—At Hill Grove, Ohio, March 18, Bro. Rudolph Deeter, aged 58 years, 10 months and 16 days.

A few days before his death he scratched his finger, which resulted in blood poison and death. How small a matter may take away our life at an hour when we think not! "Therefore be ye also ready." Bro. Deeter leaves a widow, one daughter and two grandchildren to mourn their loss. Funeral and interment at Pleasant Hill, O.

MUMA.—In the Newton church, O., March 23, Bro. Jacob H. Muma, aged 78 years, 2 months and 13 days.

Bro. Muma has been in declining health for several months, but bore his affliction with patient submission to the Master's will. Funeral services and interment at Lower Stillwater church, near Dayton, his former home.

D. D. WINE.

STRICKLER.—At the home of his parents, in Lower Tyrone Tp., Fayette Co., Pa., March 22, of diphtheritic croup, Harry D., son of Bro. Daniel and sister Sophia Strickler, aged 11 years.

He was loved by all who knew him. Though of tender years, he prepared himself to meet his Creator. The large circle of friends whom he had gained will unite in sympathy for the bereaved family, but they may all take consolation in his departing words, "Meet me in heaven." Services by Bro. J. C. Johnson. Interment at Cochran Cemetery.

ZUCK.—In Bushnell, Ill., Feb. 14, sister Elizabeth, widow of Eld. David Zuck, aged 78 years, 1 month and 4 days.

Her husband preceded her to the spirit world a few years ago. She was a mother in Israel, and a member of the church for over forty years. Services by the writer, from Heb. 11: 16, to a large concourse of friends and neighbors.

JOHN POOL.

MAHONEY.—In the Killbuck church, Delaware Co., Ind., March 15, after a lingering attack of asthma, Bro John Mahoney, aged 72 years, 1 month and 1 day.

Deceased was born in Rockingham Co., Va.; emigrated to Indiana when about seventeen years old. He joined the Brethren church in the Nettle Creek congregation, afterward moved to the Buck Creek congregation, where he was elected to the ministry. He moved from there to the Killbuck church, where he labored for his Master until his health failed him, so that he could preach no more. He leaves a wife and seven children, —five sons and two daughters,— three of whom belong to the Brethren church. May the bereaved ones not mourn as those who have no hope, but may they live so as to meet the departed one on that beautiful shore where there will be no more sickness, no more sorrow, pain and death. Think what a meeting that will be!

HENRY E. MILLSPAUGH.

MYERLY.—At the home of George and Hettie Wolfs, near Deep River, Ia., March 24, sister Emily (Little) Myerly, wife of John Myerly (deceased), aged 68 years, 7 months and 1 day.

Deceased was formerly from Westminster, Md. She had been a member of the Brethren church for more than fifty-four years, and died in the triumphs of a living faith. Services by the ministers of the Deep River congregation.

Advice to Mothers.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. 28y1

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER.

"Set for the Defense of the Gospel."

Vol. 27. Old Series. Mt. Morris, Ill., and Huntingdon, Pa., April 23, 1889. No. 17.

The Gospel Messenger.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH, Editor,
And Business Manager of the Eastern House, Box 50, Huntingdon, Pa.

WE are informed that the Altoona, Pa., church has closed a very interesting series of meetings with six additions by baptism. Bro. Silas Hoover was with the Brethren there about one week, when he was called away. But there seemed to be a growing interest, and the meetings were continued by Bro. Wilt, one of the home ministers, with the result named. This is the right thing to do. There is no reason why an interesting meeting should close when there are home ministers to continue it. We are glad to receive this good news from the Altoona church, and we hope we may have some more of the same kind.

AT our Normal Chapel opening on Tuesday morning, April 9, there were one hundred and twenty-one students, and a number yet to come in, and a more orderly school of ladies and young men can not be found anywhere. The school is divided into three Bible classes, which meet on Sunday morning before regular preaching services, in the class rooms, where they are under the charge of competent teachers. On Sunday evening, before preaching, a young folks' Bible meeting is held in the Chapel; also prayer-meeting on Wednesday evening of each week. These meetings are all well attended, and give ample religious privileges to all that are so inclined.

BRO. FOGG'S LETTER AND REPLY.

39 MERRIAM ST., MERIDEN, CONN., April 10, 1889.

Dear Brother:—

We had a lady in this city who lectured on Heaven, and she said that the vision John saw of heaven, as contained in Rev. 21: 10-22, is only to be taken in a figurative sense, not literal. I disagree with her, and hence I write this letter, asking you to please give your views on the above Scripture. I can not see that it can be taken in a figurative sense when John saw heaven in a vision, and he prophesied that it was as he saw it, for in Rev. 22: 19 he says, that, "if any man shall take away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God shall take away his part out of the book of life," etc. I hope you will give a full account of your views on this subject, and as much Scripture as you can. Hoping to receive a speedy reply, either through the MESSENGER or by letter, as there are others who wish to know your views, I remain,

Your Brother in Christ,
C. W. FOGG.

THE writings of John, as we have them in the Revelations, are the most interesting and sublime of anything we have in the New Testament writings. The book may properly be divided into three parts; and in the third part and seventh period is contained the chapter you name, giving a description of the New Jerusalem, described by the finest thoughts which can enter the human imagination. While the language used in the description may be somewhat figurative, you are right in accepting the thing described as real and literal.

There are different kinds of visions. Some come to us in dreams; others are creations of the imaginations or a disordered mind. But these, if we accept the book as being divine, were revelations of Jesus Christ, given by God himself, to his faithful, but banished, servant John, as we have it in the preface of the first chapter. These revelations were to be written by him, not as visions of his own creations, but as facts given by the Lord, for the instruction and comfort of his people. And while the description of the heavenly city is beautiful, grand and glorious beyond our comprehension, we need not stagger at it, as we have it declared that eye hath not seen, ear hath not heard, neither has it entered into the heart of man, the things the Lord hath prepared for those who love him. The description is as plain and as full as human language can give it, and by what our eyes have seen we form an idea of what it will be. But as we have nothing here that approaches the grandeur described, our estimation, no doubt, falls very far short of the real, as it will appear to those who shall enjoy the sight.

To accept the whole thing as a mere figure, or a vision of a thing that has no existence, would be doing great injustice to the integrity of the writer and destroy the intention of the author. If this part, or the description is figurative, it follows that the 24th verse must also be figurative, and those that follow, which is not at all reasonable to suppose.

THE POCKET-BOOK CONFLICT.

THE conflict of the world to-day is not that of flesh and blood, with sword and cannon, but between the pocket-book and right. It is not so strange that a conflict of this kind should be waged on the part of the world, because this is the world's vantage ground. But when such a conflict takes hold of the church, and is the hottest of all contests by such as claim to be disciples of the Master, it is a cause for wonder and surprise. Yet it seems to be a fact that, in every religious work or move presented to us, the first consideration is not that of the right, but how will it affect the pocket-book?

This conflict meets us almost daily and with unexpected force. The habit of consulting our pocket-book has become chronic, and we indulge without giving the matter thought. The appeals made to us are not weighed in the scale of right. Many of them we know are right and proper. They represent things that ought to be done— to which we ought to give our aid and encouragement, but we excuse ourselves because we value our money more than we do the performance of duty. The politician is called on to give his influence in favor of the cause of temperance. He knows it would be right to do so, but the question arises, How would it affect my business—my chances as a successful politician? If the decision is unfavorable to his chances, he declines, and throws his influences the other way, not because the other side is right, but because it is favorable to his financial interest. The conflict often is sharp, but money generally makes the man go, gains the victory. There are thousands to-day that are afraid to speak out their convictions of right. The baser elements and the undercurrents of sin have stilled their tongues and made them their slaves. It is the conflict between the right and the pocket-book. Judas knew that to stand by his Master was the right thing to do, but the thirty pieces of silver over-weighed the right, and he fell a victim. The conflict, no doubt, was a heated one, and the victory on the side of wrong proved as tragical as it was sad.

Pilate passed through a similar conflict. He found no fault in him. That he was an innocent man there was not a shadow of doubt in his mind. Yet the final decision was on the side of wrong. He was a candidate for popularity, and between his desire for this and his convictions of right, the conflict waged hotter and hotter, and the decision fell on the side of the people and against the Redeemer of the world. O, how sad must such victories be, and yet they are the victories of the times—the victory of the world and of sin.

These conflicts are not confined to the Judases and Pilates. They come up daily before the ministers, the officers and the laymen of the church of Christ. Too many of us are carrying Cesar's pocket-book, and we cling to it as if our life depended on its keeping. If we are carrying it for the Lord, we refuse to give it when he calls. We are not ignorant of the needs of the church, to carry on the great work given into our charge. We know that churches ought to be built and missionaries ought to be sent out, but—but what? Yes, here is the conflict. To do this, the Lord wants some of that which he has intrusted to our keeping. He appeals to our pocket-book, and we say, "No, Lord, not this. We are willing to do some talking, and, yes, we will do some praying, if necessary, but let our pocket-books alone. Any other way but this way." We accept the pieces of silver as our choice, and allow perishing souls, for whom Christ died, to save, run the risk.

Some of our Pennsylvania brethren are now in a conflict in regard to prohibition. On the one side is the whiskey traffic—men growing rich by impoverishing others. We are well aware of this great sin, and greatly lament the ruining of homes, pauperizing families and destroying souls. This, we say, is all wrong. But on the other side is the pocket-book, the precious pocket-book,—more precious than peaceful homes and saved souls—the conflict grows as we look at it. We are told, says the farmer and the landlord, if the whiskey traffic is stopped, the revenues will cease and our taxes will be higher. Now, what shall we do? Which, with us, is the more important consideration,—the saving of homes and souls, or the saving of our pocket-books? Even if such reports should be true—and they are not—where should the decision fall? If we have been made from the spirit of Herod, of Judas and of Pilate, of sin there can be no question. Money can hold no comparison to right when they come in conflict. The right, and the right only, is the side on which we, as Christians, must fall. In every phase of life's experience, when the conflict comes, as representatives of the Master, we must stand up for the right.

ESSAYS.

"Study to show thyself approved unto God; a workman that needeth not be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth."

MOTHER.

(On the death of Sister Conner, of Harleysville, Pa.)

Thy name will be cherished and blest
By all the dear inmates of home,
The love that our childhood caressed
We ever with pleasure shall own.

The smiles that consoled us in gloom,
The soft hand that dried up our tears,
The star that illumined our home,
We'll cherish through life's fleeting years.

Her humble devotion to God,
Her smiles and her tears and her prayers,
Her pilgrimage journey now trod,
Won freedom from time and its cares

Though dead, her example still lives,
To woo all her children to rest.
While death's parting power still grieves,
Remember, 'tis all for the best.

O think of her patience in pain,
When disease slowly wasted her life,
When sinking 'neath death's dismal reign,
And conquered at last in the strife.

Be ready to meet her again
Beyond the dark turmoils of time,
Where the sanctified children of men
With Christ in his glory shall shine'

RESURGAM.

BY LIZZIE H. DELP.

"Upon the hopeless earth the sun is risen.
Across the bitter sea its gold was spread;
Ye hearts that languish still in sin's grim prison,
Break off your chains! The dark-winged night is fled.
God's Word is verified, the angels sing.
The dead man liveth! He is Christ, the King."

BLESSED are they who mourn, in this anniversary of the resurrection of Christ, for surely the faith and hope in the life beyond the grave grows brighter and more real, as we read of the empty sepulchre and the risen Savior!

The angelic prelude, "Glory to God in the highest," made known the birth of Christ. When he died to save us, all nature was veiled in the deep darkness of night, as if in awe of the most sorrowful tragedy that has ever taken place in all time. But no human heart can picture the joy and triumph in heaven, the chords that were struck on the lyres there at the glad tidings, "The Lord is risen!"

The sweet, tender hope upspringing in the Easter carols, saved Faust from a suicide's grave. He had to contend with doubts and fears, and yet at last he found his way out of the labyrinth of doubt and sin to a useful life. The Easter message to all of us is the sweet hope of immortality. On this morning we can rejoice in the promise of a resurrection. They who mourn for the loved ones, who repose in the "city of the dead," shall be comforted. When the stone is rolled away from the sepulchre at which they kneel in their heart's anguish, and which they wet with their tears, they will find it empty. He is not there, but risen to everlasting life. Could we but realize how empty is the grave at which we linger, we would more surely look beyond, and strive to live so as to meet them there. Christ's victory over the grave is not for himself alone; it is for all humanity. It is for the innumerable host that have passed on into the great silence, for the countless numbers who must yet find a place in "God's acre." All shall arise on the great resurrection morn.

Among those who greet with joy another Easter morn, there are many for whom the graves of the past contain a lost hope, an exalted aspiration or a worthy ambition. Those who are striving to live a most earnest Christian life, will have to chronicle failure on many of their plans. They feel, on this Easter morn, that somewhere and sometime all that was best of the lost hope will be realized; that all that was noblest of the inspiration still survives; and our joy will be all the more complete for the darkness that preceded it.

Christ said of the little maid, "She is not dead, but sleepeth," and we shall awake from this sleep "in his likeness." This is the divine side of life's parable. Across the river of death we hear the voice of our Savior, saying, "I am the Resurrection."

REMARKS ON TITUS 3: 4-6.

BY NOAH LONGANECKER.

THE Bible everywhere declares man to be a depraved, fallen, and degenerated being. He was created in the image of God, which consisted of wisdom, or "knowledge, righteousness, and true holiness." Eph. 4: 24; Col. 3: 10.

Man's moral nature, his soul, was made after the perfect nature of God. God is holy. Man was holy in heart. God is wise. Man was wise in his intellectual powers, in his mind. God is righteous. Man was righteous in all his actions. When man issued from the hands of his Creator, there was nothing unholy, impure, vile, or evil in his nature. Ignorance and darkness were not associated with his being. Unrighteousness and injustice had no place in his actions, or thoughts, but this image he lost through transgression. He degenerated, and thus fell from his first state. Were the Bible silent on the question, a study of man and nature would reveal the fact that all are in a state of degeneration. All have degenerated from a wise, righteous, and holy state, to an ignorant, unrighteous, and unholy one; from a good state to a bad one, and are ever tending from a bad one to one still worse.

Permit a few quotations on this thought from the Bible: "God saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually." Gen. 6: 5. "The heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked: who can know it?" Jer. 17: 9. "There is none righteous, no not one: there is none that understandeth, there is none that seeketh after God. They are all gone out of the way, they are together become unprofitable, there is none that doeth good, no not one." Rom. 3: 10–12.

Such is the Bible picture of the degenerate state of man,—such a picture as God alone, who can search the heart and try the spirit, can possibly give. But, thanks to God, from this state of degeneration he will again redeem us. He will regenerate us; he will reproduce us; he will change us from our present evil state, and form us into a new and better one. Without this moral change we can not enjoy God, or good, on earth or in heaven; in time or in eternity.

How appropriate our text! "But after that the kindness and love of God our Savior toward man appeared, not by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to his mercy he saved us, by the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost; which he shed on us abundantly through Jesus Christ our Savior."

God generated, that is, begat or formed us, and gave us our being. He only can regenerate us. Being dead in trespasses and sins we must be born again; born of God. Man never did, nor could do anything to merit salvation. We did no works of righteousness to merit God's kindness and love. "According to his mercy he saved us." The word mercy implies that we were guilty, and deserved punishment, but that God withheld the same, and treated us better than we deserved. Justice was withheld, and through the kindness and love of God our Savior, mercy prevailed. God only can forgive our sins. He, only, can save us. Regeneration is God's work. But God works through means, and we must follow him in his work of regeneration. We must follow him wherever he will lead. When he says, "Come," we must go. What he commands we must believe and obey, or he will withhold his regenerating power. In this sense God is in his Word. In this sense the Word of God is the power of God unto salvation. God must convince or reprove the world of sin, and of righteousness, and of judgment. He must purify and convert. But this he does by leading us into his Truth, or Word. In his Word he is, according to his promise, with all his power to convict, convert, regenerate, and save. Regeneration is not placed in a single act of obedience to this or that command.

It is true, "Christ became the author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey him." But this does not mean that if we obey him in one thing that we shall be saved. Such a view would lead one to conclude that he would be saved by hope alone. He would refer us to Rom. 8: 24, "We are saved by hope." Another would conclude that he would be saved if he would only call on the name of the Lord. He would refer us to Acts 2: 21, and Rom. 10: 13, "Whosoever shall call on the name of the Lord shall be saved." Still another would conclude that he would be saved by faith alone. He would refer us to Acts 16: 31, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved." Still another would conclude that he would be saved by grace alone. He would refer us to Eph. 2: 5, "By grace ye are saved."

With the same manner of reasoning we might conclude from our text that God would save us by "the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost" alone. But such reasoning would be both futile and fatal.

As important as all these are in the work of regeneration, not one by itself is regeneration. Paul does not call baptism regeneration; but he does call it the washing of regeneration." We must, then, conclude that while faith, hope, prayer, repentance, etc., are all necessary to regeneration, so is Christian baptism. But while we admit that conviction, faith, repentance, prayer, etc., are all prerequisites to Christian baptism in the work of regeneration, we here wish merely to show the relation that Christian baptism, and the renewing of the Holy Ghost occupy in regeneration.

Christian baptism is a sign; but the thing signified should never be expected without the sign. As a sign it is called a washing, burial, planting, etc. Christ once said, "I have a baptism to be baptized with; and how am I straitened till it be accomplished!" Luke 12: 50. Christ here undoubtedly refers to his baptism of suffering. "Without shedding of blood is no remission." Heb. 9: 22. "The blood of Jesus Christ his son cleanseth us from all sin." 1 John 1: 7.

Christ and him crucified as the Savior of the world, is the sum and substance of the Bible, or at least of the Gospel. In his baptism of suffering on the cross, Christ offered his blood, his life, as an atonement for the sins of the whole world. By God's Word, through faith, conviction, repentance, etc., as prerequisites to Christian baptism, the old corrupt, degenerate man of sin must be crucified. The old man of sin having been crucified, having died to sin, is now to be put off, is to be buried to rise no more.

It being universally admitted that the blood of Christ alone can wash away our sins, Paul comes along now and tells us, "Know ye not, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death? Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death: like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life. For if we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection." Rom. 6: 3–5.

Paul does not say that we were baptized into Christ's burial, but into his death, for at his baptism of suffering his blood was shed. If Paul had said that we were baptized into his burial, there might be some cause for a backward action in baptism; but in his baptism of suffering he bowed his head, thus favoring a forward action. Likeness of his death, not his burial, for Christ nowhere referred to his burial as a baptism. As in the sign, baptism is said to be, for the remission of sins, we at once see why; for, being baptized into Christ's death, we receive an application of the blood of atonement, and thus our sins are washed away. The sign, or figure, further teaches us that as the old, degenerate man of sin is dead, we do not only put him off, but have him buried out of our sight, to rise no more. This teaches us that immersion is the mode of Christian baptism. Those who are unfavorable to immersion, by way of ridicule tell us that the term means to sink to rise no more; to dip, or plunge into a liquid, but not to take out again. The sign of Christian baptism teaches us the same. Truly there is a rising again to a newness of life, but certainly not of the old man of sin, as will appear further on. We want something in the sign or figure that will convey the idea of the washing away of our sins: the removing of the old man of sin from our sight, and his death and burial to rise no more forever. The figure of Christian baptism, as performed by immersion, certainly does all this. "The like figure whereunto even baptism doth also now save us (not the putting away of the filth of the flesh, but the answer of a good conscience toward God), by the resurrection of Jesus Christ." 1 Peter 3: 21.

"But," says one, "we admit the destruction and burial of the wicked, to rise no more in this world; yet Noah and his family through the power of God were saved in the ark." Peter does only say that they were saved in the ark, but further says, "by water." The figure is a grand one. But while immersion, as a figure, forcibly signifies the washing away of our sins, the burial of the old man of sin, to rise no more, it is not the renewing power. In Christ's own language, the house is now "empty, swept, and garnished." The new man must now be put on, or our last state will be worse than the first. This is the Holy Spirit, or God's work. Hence our text adds, "and the renewing of the Holy Ghost." So Christ taught Nicodemus, "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit." So also Peter said to the Pentecostians, "Be baptized, every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." Hence Paul adds, "For by one Spirit are we all baptized into one body."

When Paul gives the order of the principles of the doctrine of Christ, he mentions "the doctrine of baptisms." This order was seen at Christ's baptism. "It came to pass, that Jesus also being baptized, and praying, the heaven was opened, and the Holy Ghost descended in a bodily shape like a dove upon him." Luke 2: 21, 22.

When the convicted and penitent Saul was tarrying in prayer, Ananias told him, "and now why tarriest thou? Arise and be baptized and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord," Acts 22: 16, thus teaching Saul that while he was baptized for the remission of his sins, he should look to the Lord for the Holy Ghost. Here is where the great change takes place. "Born of God," God alone generated us, and he alone can regenerate us. Write what you please about conversion,—when the sinner puts off the old man and puts on the new, he has passed from one state or character to another. He has been changed from a sinner to a saint, and, therefore, has been converted. We do not believe that conversion is a continuous work all through life. True, a saint may grow in the divine life to a full stature in Christ. But he can not change from a saint to a god, or something else. There is, there MUST BE, a transit from one state or character to another, otherwise there is no conversion.

As shown before, this is the Holy Spirit's or God's work. "He saved us by the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost; which he shed on us abundantly through Jesus Christ our Savior." The blood of atonement was offered when Christ was put to death in the flesh; but he was quickened again by the Spirit. 1 Pet. 3: 18. So when "we are buried with him by baptism into death," God applies that blood of atonement, and washes away our sins, but quickens us by his spirit. Thus he begets us again and makes us new creatures in Christ Jesus. How forcible is the language of our text, "He saved us by the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost."

Every honest reader can at once see why the Bible presents the new birth in the order it does. "Born of water and of the Spirit. "Baptism of water and of the Spirit." "Washing of regeneration and renewing of the Holy Ghost." "The doctrine of baptisms." How important the question, "Have ye received the Holy Ghost since ye believed?"

Every watchman on the walls of Zion should not fail to teach all penitent applicants for Christian baptism, that while they are baptized for the remission of sin, they should not fail to call on the name of the Lord for the Holy Spirit. "Ye have not because ye ask not." Christ prayed when he was baptized. Saul was commanded to do so. "Ye have put off the old man with his deeds; and have put on the new man which is renewed in knowledge after the image of him that created him." Col. 3: 9, 10.

A CRUMB OF HEAVEN'S BREAD.

Psalm 42: 5-11.

BY C. H. BALSBAUGH.

My Dear Sister:—

I BRING you a "song in the night," sung thousands of years ago by "a man after God's own heart." It can make as sweet melody to-day in the hearts of the suffering and sorrowing, as in David's time. Take down your harp from the willows and tune it afresh to God's praise in your captivity. I am glad your hope of Heaven is growing stronger. It is a blessed hope indeed, and more than compensates for the want of health, and friends, and temporal comfort. Is Jesus your Friend and Portion? Then you are rich in spite of all your suffering and isolation. To know Jesus is to know God, and this knowledge unlocks continually both our wants, and capacities, and all the fulness of the exhaustless I am. It takes many a dreadful wrench, and many a long, long weary day and night, before we can wholly relinquish our confidence in man and self, and cease looking to circumstances for comfort. Before Jesus becomes every thing to us, at all times, and in all circumstances, our very souls must be pulverized in the mill of tribulation. When loved ones die, and the living become as though they were dead, and we can catch neither sight nor sound among visible things that convey sympathy and support to the lacerated heart, O, then we learn indeed to know what the dear, great, wonderful, blood-written, divine-human Name means, —Jesus, JESUS, JESUS.

Just read the amazing words of Paul in Philpp. 3: 8, 9, and then contemplate his object in verse 10: "that I may know HIM, and THE POWER OF HIS RESURRECTION, and THE FELLOWSHIP OF HIS SUFFERINGS." Now turn to Heb. 13: 6, and consider well the "boldly," found there; and then go back to Acts 20: 24, and see how gloriously the most difficult precepts of Jehovah may be exemplified. Now shut your eyes for a moment and recall Paul's trials and sufferings, and then repeat his jubilant words—"None of these things move me, neither count I my life dear to myself." Is it not enough to make the Christ-hidden soul laugh to think of the possibility of 2 Cor. 12: 9, 10? This is the response God gives to faith.

The sinner's laugh is the prelude of Hell, but the saint's laugh is the tearful, homesick sigh, that longs and hopes for Heaven. Better hang on the cross with Christ, than lie on the couch of the voluptuary. God is Love, and His sole object or discipline is to make us holy as He is holy. To hate and lose life, is to find and preserve it unto life eternal. This is the vital point that determines our eternal destiny.

How few are willing to live on the only terms possible for God to offer. "I am crucified with Christ." Here, and only here, life, eternal life, is found. Let us sit very still before God, so that the Holy Spirit may read the Word of Life in our inmost souls. Let our faith be great, for Jesus and His salvation are great. Sin abounds indeed, but grace abounds much more. Our sufferings may be excruciating, and our circumstances horrible, but "the peace of God which passeth all understanding keeps the heart and mind through Christ Jesus." "GOD is my salvation, I will TRUST and NOT BE AFRAID." Isaiah 12: 2. My crumb turns out to be the whole loaf.

WHAT ARE WE SOWING?

BY I. N. CROSSWAIT.

"Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."—Gal. 6: 7.

ARE we, as the children of God, truly sowing good seed? What fruits of the Spirit do we manifest in our daily walk and conversation? Is it evident in all our daily intercourse with mankind that our chief concern is the future? The lukewarm Christian, instead of sowing to the Spirit, is, to all intents, doing a work for the evil one, and it is a far more effectual work than the blatant skeptic can do. The worldling, seeing what a poor relish such Christians have for spiritual food, is naturally led to the conclusion that it is all a delusion.

Oh, that God would enable us to see the terrible influence of lukewarmness! Satan, doubtless, is better pleased with the lukewarm than he is with one making no pretension whatever, owing to the influence.

Are we sowing the Truth, when we live in careless unconcern as to the return of our blessed Master? Many that claim to believe in his personal reign of a thousand years, think that his coming will not take place yet for generations to come. I am sure they are blinded in some way, and do not see the plain teaching of Christ on the subject of his return. If we believe his words we can not fail to see of a certainty that our redemption is near at hand.

Then, of what great and vital importance it is to be ready, that we may receive him with true joy and gladness! I am willing to work and wait for his coming, as it is my greatest desire to see a people prepared to receive him.

Some may say, "I made that preparation long years ago." Well, have you kept in readiness for that great event? It is not often that the person is found who keeps his house always ready for the reception of a notable guest when least expected to come. It is said the children of God are to see, and not be in the dark as others. They should see the time is near at hand. If we sow to the Spirit, we shall be thereby enabled to reap light that will place us above being surprised and taken unawares. Oh, that God would awaken his children all to see that it is time to be ready and looking for our loving Lord to come soon!

FRIENDLY CRITICISMS.

Number Three.

Dear Brother:—

BELIEVING what has been said relative to faith and repentance, in former criticisms, will pass as orthodox according to Bible authority, we will call your attention to another fundamental principle of the doctrine of salvation, viz., that of water baptism.

You will no doubt agree with me that popular Christianity, so-called, has, by degrees, learned to almost entirely ignore this doctrine.

You will also, I think, agree with me that there is a tendency, by at least some of our Fraternity, to lay undue stress on this command. Evidently there is no doctrine so prominent in the Gospel as the doctrine that pardon and reconciliation are brought about through the atonement of Christ.

In 1 John 1: 7, we have this significant expression, "The blood of Jesus Christ, his Son, cleanses us from all sin." Remember, however, this is only upon certain conditions, as given in the first part of the verse. Matt. 26: 28. Christ says, This blood is (to be) shed for the remission of sins. Peter on the day of Pentecost (Acts 2: 38) wants them to be baptized for the remission of sins. Paul says, "By grace are ye saved through faith." Now to the point we wish to pass a few criticisms upon. Is there not sometimes, in our preaching, a tendency to lay too much stress on baptism, to the exclusion of the fact that there can be no remission of sins without a proper faith in the merits of Christ's blood to that end? God was in Christ, reconciling the world unto himself. The conditions of reconciliation were obedience on the part of the Son, even unto the shedding of his blood. The sinner must have Christ within, through faith, that is,—accept him. Then Christ is in the sinner for the purpose of bringing about a reconciliation, which can only be done by obedience, even unto a symbolic death in baptism. Then the blood of Christ is applied unto the remission of sins. It then follows as a fact that baptism is "for the remission of sins," the means to the end, just as the blood of Christ was shed for the remission of sins,—it was the means to the end of a complete reconciliation,—God with the world, and is now the means of reconciliation between God and the sinner.

I have heard labored efforts in the pulpit, in defense of the essentiality of water baptism, leaving the necessity of faith in Christ's blood out of the sermon, and have read tracts on water baptism that scarcely touched the subject of faith and a Savior's merits. Now, do you not think our heralds of the cross every-where ought to make it a point to show plainly, that we believe in the doctrine that the blood of Christ cleanses from all sin, only upon conditions that we "walk in the light as God is in the light." This can only be done by an implicit faith in God and the Son. Baptism is nothing, more or less, than the consequent outcome of a living faith in Christ as our Savior, and without this visible expression of our faith, we have no promise that the blood of Christ will cleanse us from all sin, and that we may obtain the gift of the Holy Spirit. When every sermon and every argument on baptism is supplemented with the doctrine of faith in Christ's merits, hearers will not have cause to become confused in mind, or come to the conclusion that water baptism is all that is necessary to salvation, as I fear, sometimes, is the case. We should, by all means, avoid laying any undue stress on any one of the doctrines of the Gospel.

J. S. FLORY.

REMARKS.

THE fact to which you call attention calls to mind an instance that occurred in the Disciple church some years ago during a revival. The prominent theme held forth was "baptism for the remission of sins," not taking much notice of faith or repentance. Among those baptized was a wicked young man, who shortly afterwards remarked, "I am disappointed, I was led to believe from the preaching that, if baptized, my sins would leave me, and I would have peace, but I find the same active propensities to sin as before my baptism." Here is a lesson. From the Word of God two things are to be looked for where a genuine faith and repentance has been exercised, followed by baptism. The one is, remission of sins; the other is freedom from its power, but neither of these is to be expected without the other. Rom. 6: 1–15. The same means, faith, and power, necessary to lead the sinner to Christ, and to obedience for pardon will also free him from his enslavement to sin.

The simple pardon of sin before God is nothing to the sinner's benefit, if he is not made free from its power over him. To be made free from its power, is far more to his salvation, than is the pardon of sin, if such a thing were even possible without the other. The state of mind necessary to overcome the power of sin, and to dislodge it from the heart, and which invites the forgiving mercy of God, is effected in godly sorrow for sin, repentance toward God, and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ, qualifying the subject for baptism, and its attending blessings, so that, when this is not clearly set forth by the ministry, there is a serious defect, calculated to produce just such an effect as in the case referred to.

Occasionally an instance is met with where persons hold that regeneration is to be realized in the act of baptism, and from these rare but erroneous views presented by ministers, and from a want of clearly setting forth the necessity of repentance and faith, as qualifying elements for baptism, our brethren have been held up as believing in baptismal regeneration, something which they never subscribed to nor believed.

Either of these, or both, are, perhaps, to be attributed to a peculiarity of the Gospel which is overlooked, not only by those who hold the views set forth above, but to a large extent by the religious world, and accounts for the distortions and divisions existing. That peculiarity is, that, whatever is set forth in the Gospel as a part of the Christian system, is given as if salvation depended on that one particular thing. For example, the Scripture makes salvation dependent on hope. "Saved by hope." Rom. 8: 24. "Saved by grace," "saved by faith." Eph. 2: 8. "Saved by baptism." 1 Peter 3: 21. "Sins washed away by baptism," Acts 22: 16. "The blood of Jesus Christ, his son, cleanseth us from all sin," 1 John 1: 7. "Except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish," Luke 13: 3. So we might go on, giving examples, but these are enough.

Now it will be noticed that in none of the instances referred to is there more than one particular thing noticed, and that, as if that was within itself sufficient. Now, to take any one of these alone, and make it so prominent that it is made to overshadow the others, and the result will be,—a distorted Gospel, whereas the truth taught by this peculiarity of the Gospel is, that they all are of equal importance, and that it takes all to round out and complete the Christian system, and constitutes the only true Gospel foundation for heavenly hopes. The error, therefore, of giving any one of these parts of the whole undue prominence, is not limited to the wrong view, but this wrong view has developed into the wrong fact, as is shown by the divisions of the religious world into sects, who had their origin in the wrong view. Some particular part of the Christian system is detached from other parts of it, and made the shibboleth for a new sect, by would-be reformers, seeking personal preferences and prominence, and, as a result, there is a very small part af the Gospel that is not surrendered and sacrificed. The proofs of this are too abundant and well known to need any reference.

CHRISTIANITY VERSUS MORALITY.

BY B. F. MOOMAW.

"The disciples were called Christians first in Antioch."—Acts 11: 26

THE Scripture informs us that Barnabas and Paul in the year of our Lord 41, were assembled with the disciples in Antioch. They taught the people, and called the disciples Christians. It is said, however, that the Word implies, that this was done by Divine Revelation, by the influence of God. The believing Jews and Gentiles being made one church, this new name was given to them both, according to prophecy mentioned in Isa. 65: 15, "Ye shall leave your name for a curse unto my chosen: for the Lord God shall slay thee, and call his servants by another name."

"A Christian is one whose inward and outward life is conformed to the doctrine of Christ," as a Mohammedan is one whose life is conformed to the doctrine of Mohammed, and as the Lutheran is one whose life is conformed to the doctrine of Luther.

What constitutes Christianity? A new creature, formed according to the divine arrangement, as revealed in the New Testament.

By nature all are children of wrath, dead in trespasses and in sins, but God, who is rich in mercy, has sent his Son into the world to redeem and save our fallen race. As his workmanship "we are created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which he has before ordained, that we should walk in them." Eph. 2.

For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ, have put on Christ." Gal. 3: 27. "Begotten by the Word of Truth." James 1: 18. "Regenerated, converted and born again, buried with Christ by baptism into death for the remission of sins, having obeyed from the heart, the form of doctrine delivered unto us, we were made free from sin, and became the servants of righteousness." Rom. 6: 1–18.

Being born again, and willing to do the will of God, we are enabled to see the kingdom of God, born of the water and spirit, have entered into, and become citizens of, his kingdom, and co-heirs with Jesus Christ.

Let us examine the evidence, that we may be sure that we are not mistaken. Have we an internal evidence? This we may have. Are our feelings the ground of our title, or are they the effect; a legal title in accordance with the law and the testimony, — "the doctrine of Christ." If the latter, it is infallibly safe; if the former, it is absolutely unsafe, for impressions, true or false, have precisely the same effect upon our emotional nature.

This truth can be forcibly illustrated, but is not needed to satisfy an intelligent mind.

To present the case in something like a summary manner, we quote from Col. 2: 6, "As ye have therefore received Christ Jesus, the Lord, so walk ye in him," righteous before God, as Zacharias and Elizabeth, walking in all his ordinances and commandments blameless, Luke 1: 6, being careful not to add to or take from, under the penalty of incurring God's displeasure, and suffering the threatened plagues, or losing the blessings promised in the Blessed Book. We can not afford to take the risk for any consideration, "For what will it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul, or what would a man give in exchange for his soul."

In order that we may have an opportunity to obey the commandments, it is necessary that we make a public confession, and unite with his church, where the name of Christ is honored, and his institutions respected and observed. We must not be ashamed to take up his cross and follow him through evil as well as good report, remembering that the Master hath said, "If any shall be ashamed of me and my Word in this adulterous and sinful generation, of him also shall the Son of man be ashamed, when he cometh in the glory of his Father with the holy angels." Mark 8: 38.

None will doubt that Christ meant what he said, and his words mean the same to-day, the progress of liberal ideas notwithstanding. The opinion, however, has obtained in this progressive age, that not only all classes who make profession of the Christian name, if sincere, are acceptable with God, and in a safe condition, but that a high degree of morality and benevolence will secure a home in heaven. All this in the face of the fact that Christ himself has said, "Not all that say unto me, Lord, Lord shall enter into the kingdom of heaven, but they that do the will of my father in heaven." "Why call me Lord, Lord, and do not the things that I say?" "And hereby we do know that we know him, if we keep his commandments. He that saith, I know him, and keepeth not his commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him. But whoso keepeth his word, in him verily is the love of God perfected: hereby know we that we are in him." 1 John 2: 3-5. So much for those who make profession of Christianity,—and what for morality?

"A moralist is one who practices moral duties, whose outward conduct is in conformity with morality. One of correct deportment and dealings with his fellow-creatures, one who prides himself, or relies solely upon his external rectitude or virtues."—Webster.

"The system of morality to be gathered from the ancient sages falls very short of that delivered in the Gospel."—Swift. Where, then, is the foundation of a hope of salvation for the moralist? Nicodemus was a firm believer in the divinity of Christ, saying, "We know that thou art a teacher come from God," etc., and to him who was more than an instinctive moralist, our Lord said, "Except a man be born again, he can not see the kingdom of God." "Marvel not,"—do not be surprised,"—that I say unto you ye must be born again. Verily, verily I say unto you, Except a man be born of water, and of the Spirit, he can not enter into the kingdom of heaven." Yet, with these positive declarations, and the many parallels before them, men, professing to be the representatives of Christ in the ministration of the Gospel, will eulogize and attempt to preach men to heaven, and give them a part in the first resurrection, who, with all the advantages of Christian parents and church influences, have treated the church with contempt, by standing aloof from it, claiming to be good enough without Christianity. These men, perhaps, never erected the family altar or honored God with thanksgiving at his table, but "prided themselves and relied solely upon their external rectitude or virtue." By an exemplary life, morally speaking, they wield a pernicious influence over society, encouraging others to stay out of the church, by their influence, and in consequence of such preaching as referred to above. Too much can not be said as to the terrible consequences resulting from the development of such pernicious doctrine.

It will be only be a question of time when Bible Christianity will be ignored, and heathenism will take its place.

We repeat the question, What is morality? It is an instinctive property, a component part of our natural organization, possessed by some in a greater, and others in a less measure. We see this in its different proportions in every person, accompanied with benevolence in like proportions. If used and applied in the name of Christianity, and to the honor of the name of Christ, and cultivated as part of the talents with which they are blessed, whether one, two, or five, the reward will be accordingly, but if merely an instinctive morality and benevolence, and not connected with, and improved by, Christianity, and claimed as a virtue of our own, the responsibility will be in proportion to the measure of this instinctive talent that we profess.

There are those who make a profession of Christianity, who are less moral or benevolent, owing to their limited endowments. Such the instinctive moralist brings in contrast, and claims to be better, but this is no argument in his favor. Let him compare with the Christian brother of larger endowments, improved by Christian morality, "The conformity of an act to the divine law." —Webster.

Do not make comparisons with the Judases or the weak Christians, but with the faithful, practical members, and you are infallibly safe.

In support of the moralist theory, men refer us to Matt. 10: 41, 42, which reads, "He that receiveth a prophet in the name of a prophet, shall receive a prophet's reward; and he that receiveth a righteous man in the name of a righteous man shall receive a righteous man's reward."

"And whosoever shall give to drink unto one of these little ones a cup of cold water only in the name of a disciple, verily, I say unto you, he shall in nowise lose his reward." But let it be noted, that it must be done in the name of a prophet, in the name of a righteous man, and in the name of a disciple. Christianity must be connected with it all along the line to make it available.

Again, we we are referred to Matt. 25,—the account of the judgment,— the reward of the beneficent acts of the blessed. Let it be noticed, that these acts were performed to the brethren of Christ. Let us not forget the condemnation on the other side, because his brethren were neglected. We see again that Christianity and not merely instinctive morality, etc., was at the bottom of these manifestations.

Human language can not express greater encouragement to self-denying charity than that which is contained in this declaration. We must not, however, suppose that acts of liberality will constitute a man's title to eternal felicity, nor can there be a more fatal delusion than this groundless inference, from this and a few similar texts; for as none but believers are "the brethren of Christ," so love to Christ must be the motive of the liberality and kindness here spoken of. The matter may therefore be thus stated: There is no salvation for a sinner but by the free mercy of God. There is no mercy but through the mediation and merits of his son. We have no interest in Christ, except by faith in him; no justifying faith but that "which worketh by love; no love to Christ which does not imply love to his people, his example and his precepts; no love to his people which does not influence to unite and work together with them for the advancement of the cause and kingdom of their common Lord and Master.

In this way he gives unequivocal proof that he is a true believer, a justified person, a member of Christ's mystical body, and interested in all his purchased blessings.

In conclusion let me appeal to your intelligence. If you claim Christian morality, why not be a Christian, and unite with the church of Christ? Your position has a bad influence on your family and on society, and tends to the deterioration of Christianity. The tendency of such a course is downward, the best interests of humanity are greatly damaged, and all hopes of happiness in the world above are defeated.

Rely on Christ and not on morality. "For the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven in flaming fire, taking vengeance on them that know not God, and obey not the Gospel of Jesus Christ." On the other hand, "Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have a right to the tree of life, and enter in through the gates into the city."

NO ROOM FOR CHRIST.

BY F. J. E. ETTER.

No room in the inn for that precious treasure! And even now there seems to be no room for him in our hearts. Why is it? Simply because we let worldly matters take such a hold upon us, that we can have no room for Christ. How can we expect to prosper under such circumstances? If it were not for him, we could not live.

Christ should be our uppermost thought. In all we undertake we should ask him to assist us, and what we can not ask his blessings upon, let us not engage in it, or partake of it.

If we have true, genuine religion, Christ will find room in our hearts at all times, and no room will be kept for the enemy to steal into our hearts, to lead us astray.

If Christ is with us, he is sure to help us through every trial. He tests our faith in him through various forms. He wants to test if we are true possessors or mere professors. If we are not possessors, as well as professors, we have no room for him, and all is vanity. When we make up our minds that we will forsake sin and follow Jesus, let all of our actions prove that we have room for Jesus. Let all that we do, be for the sake of Jesus, and not for man. God knows our hearts, and even if we are scorned by those who envy us, let them know that we are trying to please Jesus and not them. God is just, and if he is for us, who can be against us? He is willing to aid us, and will carry us through.

LITTLE GUIDES.

—Never lose faith in humanity. If there ever was a good man, be certain there was another, and there will be more.

—It is strange that, of all possible tasks, simply to be what we are, should prove not the easiest, but infinitely the hardest.

—He is happy whose circumstances suit his temper; but he is more fortunate who can suit his temper to any circumstances.

Number Three.

THE FALL OF BABYLON.

THE descendants of Noah feared that in process of time they would become scattered on the face of the earth, hence they built the tower of Babel, that it might be a bond of union, a center of attraction to the tribes of men. If they had retained God in their knowledge, they would not have needed such a man-built center of union, for the brotherhood of men and the Fatherhood of God would have been sufficient. They built a human center of union, and so God came down in judgment, and confounded their language. Then they left off building the city. The churches of Christ, when first organized, had a common center of union in God, the Father, and in the Lord Jesus Christ, the common Savior. The whole body was one, being one in Christ, all having obeyed the same form of doctrine, and all made to drink into one Spirit. Christ was the Rock on which the church was built, and love to him, who loved her, and washed her in his own blood, was the real bond of union.

In after ages it was feared that Christians might get scatteaed abroad, and lose their oneness; hence arose the Catholic church, with a human head, as the pretended successor of Peter, in the "City of Seven Hills." This mighty edifice attained to a colossal size, and gathered under its wing all classes of men, crushing out all who resisted her authority, or questioned her claim to be the only ark of salvation. The church, and not Christ, became the bond of union, and it seemed at one time as if this Babel structure would reach unto heaven and enfold all men. But her hour of judgment came. She became the antitype of ancient Babylon,—the magnificent city upon many waters. God came down to visit her, and the religious tongues of men were confounded. Rome points triumphantly to the unity that prevailed in Europe before the time of Luther. So might the Babel-builders boast of a universal tongue while building the City of Babel.

What is the condition of all Christendom at present? Numerous sects, speaking numerous tongues, and no common center of unity. Such is nominal Christianity of to-day. The only line between the church and the world to-day, is mere membership. A tide of worldliness has swept over the professed church, and her multitudes are engulfed. True, we read of great and extensive revivals of religion everywhere, but these converts are engulfed in the worldliness, love of fashion, and love of pleasure that are found in nearly every church on the face of the earth. Is the church, broken up into rival communities, any longer a light to the world? Do they all speak the same things, and keep the sayings of Jesus? Are the church-fairs, pleasure-parties, gamblings and buffoonery, found in the churches, marks of the City of God or of Babylon?

The judgment on Babylon is retrospective. She has made all nations to drink of her wrath. It is compared to a golden cup, filled with pleasant wine. The self-denial of the cross is laid aside, and a religion palatable to the natural man, is substituted.

Babylon represents a church and state united, or a church and the world walking together. The union of the church with the State made her intolerant and bloody. It was this union of the church with the State, dating from the reign of Constantine, about the beginning of the fourth century, and onward, that rendered the Catholic church a harlot, making all nations drunk with her sorceries. The darkest chapters of human history are the chapters of intolerance and persecution; and the same may be said of all churches in union with the State. The English daughter of Rome was a bloody persecutor of dissenters and Puritans. Puritans of Massachusetts Bay Colony hanged Quakers and banished men of liberal thought, just as intolerantly as the bigoted kings of France and Spain drove thousands of men and women into exile.

But Babylon's fall is at the door. Already she has had premonitions of her impending fate. The chief of the Catholic world bemoans his hard lot, deprived of his temporal dominions. His day is near at hand, when his pretended title of "Christ's Vicar on earth," shall be taken from him, and when the entire religious world will assume a three-fold, or tripartite condition. Rev. 16: 19. Then great Babylon will come in remembrance before God, to give unto her the cup of the wine of the fierceness of his wrath.

When we read that mystical Babylon made all nations drunk with the wine of her wrath, we are inclined to believe it refers to the sufferings she has inflicted on all nations. Of ancient Babylon, her type, it was said, "Babylon has been a golden cup in the Lord's hands, that made all the earth drunken." Jer. 51: 7. She oppressed the nations, plundered them, and compelled them to worship her gods. Mystical Babylon has done the same. She has impoverished and degraded every nation where her power was, or is supreme.

The proclamation of the Gospel of the millennial age is the harbinger of her fall. Her vast hierarchy of ecclesiastical princes shall lament her fall. The millions of her devotees will stand amazed to see the fall of her whom they called the lady of kingdoms, who was the rightful queen of the earth.

The fall of Babylon will be a great sign in the heavens that the end has come. The millennial Gospel announced that the hour of God's judgment had come, and in the exercise of this judgment Babylon falls. In what way the divine judgments will be poured out on her we are not prepared, just now, to say. The kings of the earth will renounce her religion, and no longer regard her as an infallible teacher. All her past iniquities will come into a more perfect remembrance than ever before. Her impostures and hostility to civil liberty will be fully seen. May it not be that the Gospel, then preached by the angel flying through the heavens, will then unfold all the falseness and pretensions of the pretended "mother and mistress of all churches."

But let not Protestant sects exult over the fall of the mother church. They have not been blameless. They have joined themselves to the world, and have partaken of its spirit. At present there is a salt in these sects, but when the command comes, "Come out of her my people, that ye receive not of her plagues," then many good and honest people, who are God's people, will obey the call, and then Babylon, in all of its ramifications, will be a nest of unclean birds, and will bring the vengeance of the kings of the earth on her, who will eat her flesh and burn her with fire.

The fall of Babylon is necessary for the final deliverance of all nations, and bringing them into subjection to Christ. No present preaching of the Gospel can overthrow this colossal power that now rules in the earth. But as we near the end of this present age or dispensation, we are encouraged to look forward to the fall of this master-piece of human art which has held millions of men in bondage, and claims to be an infallible guide to heaven. Then other scenes will follow.

ACCORDING to previous arrangements, Bro. M. L. Hahn, of Mercer Co., Ohio, came to us March 9 and preached twenty-three sermons in the Pleasant Hill church to large and attentive audiences. Although there were no accessions, good interest was manifested. We were all built up. Bro. Hahn certainly did his part well. If we will do ours, a great deal of good will result from the meeting. May the good Lord bless Bro. Hahn and his labors to the good of us all, is my prayer! Before the close of our meetings, my husband went to the Sand Ridge church, Henry Co., Ohio, to hold some meetings and to attend a council at that place, so Bro. Hahn was alone so far as help in the ministry was concerned, but the work went on notwithstanding. May the seed sown produce a copious harvest, is my prayer!

In the Field.

ACCORDING to previous arrangements, I commenced meetings in the city of Altoona, Pa., March 14; and continued until the evening of the 21st. I should have stayed longer but, on account of sickness at home, I left Altoona on the morning of the 22nd. During this time four made application for baptism. The congregations were interesting. The meeting was continued for several days after we left, and Bro. Wilt informs me that on Sunday following five were baptized, and that there is one more applicant. From ten to fifteen hundred people witnessed the baptismal scene. There is no reason why there should not be a large and flourishing church in the city of Altoona. The prospects are favorable. We shall never forget our visit among the kind members in Altoona. Brethren J. W. Wilt and Brallier are the ministers. May our associations be renewed on the other shore!

SILAS HOOVER.

Reminiscences.

LAST August, while on a visit to West Virginia, I was called to preach the funerals of two members of the Clark family. During my stay, Bro. Thomas Clark, whose memory is replete with incidents of long ago, gave me in detail many occurrences of much interest, one of which I will record, because of its bearing upon the lives of Brethren prominent in church labors, and who have now gone to their reward.

In 1840, Eld. James Kelso, on a visit to that part of Virginia, stated that there was a young minister where he lived in Fayette Co., Pa., who had recently come there from Philadelphia; and that he would bring him along on his next visit to encourage the young people. Accordingly, in June of 1841, Bro James Quinter came with Bro. Kelso; and, after holding a few meetings in the neighborhood, he baptized Polly Hays (my mother), Thomas D. Lyon, Wm S. Lyon, Martha Lyon (now Clark), and Charity Hendrickson, in the North Branch of the Potomac. Bro. Quinter repeated his visits from time to time, and became noted as a preacher of more than ordinary zeal and ability.

I remember quite distinctly that on one of Bro. Quinter's visits, he stopped at my fathers' house. Having heard so much about him, I was curious, as all children are, to see this wonderful man. So I went into the room of my grandparents, where Bro. Quinter was, and he was sitting, with his elbow on a table and resting his head upon his hand, in silent meditation, whilst others carried on the conversation.

This was a characteristic trait of Bro. Quinter. In 1886, in the presence of an extended controversy on the doctrine of conversion, he remained silent in deep meditation for nearly two hours, when he opened the Bible before him, read a few verses, and gave his views drawn directly from the Scriptures. It was a lesson I shall never forget. It reminded me of the well-known "Evening Adventure" in the life of Chief Justice Marshal. These incidents occur only once in a century; and they form sunny places in the pathway of life to which others may revert, and draw comfort and instruction. DANIEL HAYS.

From Golden Springs, Nebr.

WE have had some good meetings. Our much esteemed elder, G. W. Stambaugh, was with us March 5, when we met for council.

A call had been made to anoint sister Redding, —the wife of our minister. We hurried to the place and found the sister almost gone. She could speak but very little, but requested to be anointed, and after that she was speechless. We thought she had passed away. She rallied, however, and soon called for something to eat. She then gained rapidly. March 9 she was with us in council. On the tenth she attended meeting. This was refreshing to God's children and the community. During the meeting one precious soul was made willing to follow the Lord and forsake sin.

At our council we called for help in the ministry. The lot fell on the writer. For deacon the lot fell on Bro. E. Landig and Bro. H. W. Way. May God bless us that we may be faithful in our calling.

The Mormon people challenged Bro. Stambaugh for discussion, but, after hearing him preach twice, they were heard to say they "would not have anything to do with him, — he knew too much Scripture." C. LYGHT.

The Necessity of a Church District in the City of Dayton, Ohio.

THERE are about fifty members in this city, and we have not the church privileges that we should have, as we have no organized church-body. Had we a district in the city, and a church on the west side of the river, where there are about forty of our members, we could have a good congregation and a good Sunday-school every Sunday, and there is no doubt in my mind, but that we could increase our membership to a goodly number.

It is almost of daily occurrence that some friend will ask us, "Why is it that you have no church here?" They tell us if we had a church, they would attend, and those who have children would send them to our Sunday-school. Many have not the means to dress so as to feel at home in the fashionable churches of the city. By having a church here, we could reach many who have never heard our Brethren preach. They could have the privilege of attending our meetings. Many of our Dayton members have no way to go to church, excepting to walk, and it is too far for our older brethren to walk, and none of our sisters are able to walk four or five miles out into the country to church, and return again the same way. So we must depend on some one to take us with them, or stay at home. Had we a church here, we could attend services every Sunday. This part of the city can give good accommodations in street railroads. This would be convenient to those who would choose to come from any part of the city.

Some may think that Dayton, or towns generally, are not the proper place to work in. Those who think so should remember how Paul labored in the cities, and what great victories crowned his labors. It becomes us, as a Christian people, to preach to all nations. A church district in the city is the only way we can succeed in our church work. If we are not organized, we will not be able to do anything in the Master's cause.

City people have been neglected. They have not had the privilege of attending the Brethren's meetings, and do not know anything about the doctrine of the Brethren. Had we a church district, and a church on this side of the river, we would be able to gather some of these wanderers in. There is not one member on this side of the river who would not favor a district. All are willing to do what they can to have the privilege of religious exercises.

We hope the day may not be far distant when we may say unto our Brethren, "Come go with us unto the house of God, and enjoy the blessed privileges of being in the sanctuary among our own dear brethren.

There are many of the Brethren's children here. They could be brought into our Sunday-school and, perhaps, into the church. As it is, they must go to some of the other churches when they are inclined to go to church. It is surely a fact that we are in need of churches in the cities, and it is only too true that our Brethren do not work enough in cities where there are large fields to work in, and where many wandering souls could be brought into the true and marvelous light. ELMER WOMBOLD.

Notes from the Field.

I HAVE just arrived home from a visit to Armstrong county, Pa., where I found the brethren and sisters in reasonable health, and still contending for the faith once delivered to the saints. A sad accident, however, befell an aged sister. While starting fire in the morning, her apron caught fire and soon set her dress on fire, too, and before the burning clothes could be all taken from her, she was badly burned, so that her life seemed to hang in the balance. While taking the burning clothes from her, one of her sons also got his fingers considerably burned. We paid her a visit and held a season of worship at her bed-side; also visited another aged couple who seem to be tottering on the verge of the grave. We had a season of worship with them also. I was absent from home twelve days; held eleven meetings at three different points with fair attention. One who had gone away during the divisions, applied to be restored, which will be attended to in the near future. I arrived home safely and found all well. Thanks be to the Lord, and all who administered to my wants! E. J. BLOUGH.

Echoes from the Highway.

"WHY tarriest thou?" is the query well put by Bro. Wm. M. Lyon in GOSPEL MESSENGER, No. 13, and we hear the echo, "Why," only, in response. We have been thinking that, perhaps, some of the readers of the GOSPEL MESSENGER may wonder why, upon several occasions, the brethren here in California, of late, baptized by night. The only answer we can give is, there are none that we know of that are willing to assume the responsibility to even encourage any delay. When we preach the doctrine of "baptism for the remission of sins," how dare a minister of God say, "Wait, do not be in a hurry," when God says, "To-day is the accepted time"? Knowing the terror of the Lord, "we persuade men" to repent now, and be saved; now, not next week, next month, or next spring! It looks to me somewhat inconsistent to earnestly entreat sinners to come to Christ to-day or to-night, and then, when, by the grace of God and his convicting Spirit, they make the start and get as far as the door or entrance into Christ, to abate in zeal and call a halt. Procrastination is a sin of lost opportunities.

In same number of GOSPEL MESSENGER sister Gertrude A. Flory gives a soul-searching essay on "Fidelity to the Lord necessary to Salvation." Though lengthy, every line is a solid nugget of gold. Oh, for an army of true soldiers that show loyalty to Jesus! It is a truth that the more we love the Lord, the more we love the church. No one can be a lover of the Lord indeed and in truth and have at the same time a heart to lightly esteem the requirements of the church.

Thanks for a reproduction of Bro. Quinter's logical deductions on the subject of women prophesying. We are glad that the church is tending in the direction of more thoroughly comprehending Paul's idea that in Christ Jesus there is neither male nor female.

Yes, we echo the rejoicings of the many that rejoice because sinners are turning to God! May the good work go on from ocean to ocean, and beyond the seas!

Heavy rains have fallen throughout the State, insuring a good season and promises of bountiful crops. We pray for showers of divine grace foreshadowing the harvest of good things for the people of God! J. S. FLORY.

From Upper Sandusky, Ohio.

OUR series of meetings is in the past. Bro. Wilson Hutchison, of Jay County, Ind., came to our midst, Feb. 22, at the Fair View church, Wyandot Co., O., and had meetings until March 10, when we had to take the parting hand. Bro. Hutchison felt somewhat discouraged to see no additions to the church. I think, however, that the seed fell on good ground and will be reaped in due season. I hope many will make the good choice before it is too late, so it will not be said, "Too late, too late, to enter the golden gate and be in peace forever." Bro. J. C. McMullen was called to our midst during our meeting but could not stay on account of illness in his family. It seems very natural to have Bro. McMullen with us, for he formerly made frequent visits to this church, and talked to the people about the home above. May the Lord be with these brethren!

ALVERLY BUXTON.

MARCH 16 Bro. F. P. Cassel, of Lonsdale, Pa., paid us a visit of love, and preached on Saturday evening, and Sunday morning and evening also. He gave us old-time Gospel sermons, full of food for hungry souls. We hope there is yet a bright future for the Bethel church in New Jersey.

We have regular meetings every two weeke here at the Bethel church. We also have an evergreen Sunday-school which meets every Sunday. We had about thirty scholars enrolled during the winter. A. S. CHAMBERLIN.

BRO. S. H. BAKER has changed his address from Edson to Augusta, Wis.

BRO. JAMES T. QUINLAN, of Baltimore, Md., writes us that he expects to attend our Annual Meeting in June.

THE American Tract Society, during the past year, distributed gratuitously forty-five million pages of tracts and books.

BRO. GEORGE W. HANAWALT, of Boucher, Pa., acknowledges the receipt of $2.00 from the Hatfield Poor Fund, for the Ligonier Valley meeting-house.

BRO. MICHAEL CLAAR says, "Two more were added to the church by baptism recently, as a result of our meeting, making twelve in all. Give God the praise!

BRO. D. B. ARNOLD reports a series of meetings held in the Pine Creek church, W. Va., with the assistance of the home ministers. Six were added by baptism, and others were near the kingdom.

A NEW edition of Bro. Vaniman's tract, "The House we Live in," has been printed in German. This tract has had a wide circulation, and the demand for it is unabated.

BRO. JOSEPH HOLSOPPLE, of Indiana, Pa., informs the Brethren interested that the railroad rates secured for the District Meeting have been withdrawn, and tickets will not be sold at reduced rates.

BRO. A. MOLSBEE, of Nocona, Texas, writes that the Brethren at that place organized a church on the 6th, with a membership of twenty-one. At the close of the meeting four made application to be received into the church, and on Sunday, the 7th, were baptized. The work in Texas, we are glad to note, is in a flourishing condition.

BRO. H. C. BUTTERBAUGH, of Dayton, Ohio, informs us that a new church district has been granted to West Dayton and vicinity. A meeting to organize had been called for the 17th inst. We hope that much good may result from this organization, and that the church of West Dayton may have a name for faithfulness and good works that will commend her example to all the churches!

As an evidence that Prohibition does prohibit, it is stated that whereas the State of Iowa used to pay annually twenty million dollars to Peoria and Kentucky for whiskey, she now pays less than one million. No wonder that the manufacturers of whiskey and beer have united, and are subscribing large sums of money to defeat prohibition in Pennsylvania and other States, for it means, eventually, the destruction of the manufacture of whiskey.

BRO. W. C. TEETER, after his return from a very successful evangelistic visit among the churches, held a meeting in the home church, at Sidney, Nebraska. The effort was blessed of the Lord, and a number (sixteen) were baptized into Christ. A few years ago, when Bro. William moved to Sidney, he said, "We will labor in our new home, by the help of the Lord, to build up a church of the Brethren." At their love-feast, held recently, about seventy members were present. Surely the Lord has blessed the work at Sidney!

THE Union Signal publishes an interview with Mr. L. A. Maynard, who has recently made an extended tour of observation through Kansas, and carefully investigated and studied the effects of Prohibition in that State. In reply to the question, "Does Prohibition injure the business of a town?" he says:

A firm of extensive bridge-builders, in Lawrence, testified that when liquor was sold they were continually tormented with saloon-keepers coming to garnishee the wages of employees; they don't do so any more. A justice of the peace gave corroborating testimony without knowing that he did so. He was one of the men who did not favor the law because it "hurt business;" he said that he used to have fifteen or twenty garnishee cases a week, and now he had scarcely any. His fees and perquisites amounted to $2,400 before prohibition; now they scarcely foot up $800 a year. No wonder he thinks prohibition hurts business!

Another man in Lawrence whose business is hurt, is the proprietor of works for making steel cells to jails; that business is ruined, so far as Kansas is concerned, for there are no new jails building, and no old ones needing more cells. On the other hand, the Pomeroy Coal Company testify to greatly increased business, and to greater comfort in the way of fuel, food, and clothing for the poor, since the father's money does not go into the saloon. In Leavenworth, on my return, I saw the first drunken man I had seen in Kansas—the only one, if I remember rightly—and that was a United States soldier, to whom the Federal Government allows liquor, in defiance of State law.

THE MILLER AND SOMMER DEBATE.

AT the close of this important debate, we had some assurance from the reporter, Mr. James Abbott, that the copy would be placed in our hands in about three weeks, and upon this assurance we based our hopes of getting the book ready for sale before our Annual Meeting. At the same time an estimate was made, and it was thought that the matter would make a book of about 400 pages. Since then we have ascertained that it will be impossible to get the copy as early as was anticipated. Mr. Abbott, as the letter below will show, finds that his notes make much more copy than he anticipated, and that it is very slow, hard work. All the references must be looked up and verified, and hence it takes considerable time. The copy is also sent to Bro. Miller and Eld. Sommer for correction, so that it will take a good deal of time before it reaches us. At this time we have not received the first two days' discussion. We shall get the book out as soon as possible, and, notwithstanding the book will contain nearly 100 pages more than we at first anticipated, it will be sold at $1.50 per copy. We should like to receive a postal card from all who may desire a copy, informing us of the fact. Send in your orders, so that we may know how many books to publish. Remember that all profits arising from the sale of the book, after paying the expense of publishing, go to the missionary fund. This debate should be read by every member of the church.

MR. D. L. MILLER,
MT. MORRIS, ILL.,
Dear Sir:

Your postal of the 6th received. In reply would say that I have finished the discussion of the first topic, which occupied the first two days of the Miller-Sommer debate, and that the same makes 223 pages of 300 words each, which would make 134 pages of print, containing 500 words each. The balance of the debate can be estimated from this, as it will run about the same; perhaps not quite as much. I should say that when completed it would probably be a few pages over 500 of print. This is as near as I can get at it, judging from what I have already written out.

I have sent Messrs. Miller and Sommer their manuscript, with request to forward to you at the earliest moment. Will try and get the balance out a little more rapidly, but find it is very slow, hard work.

Yours,
JAMES ABBOTT.

THE EDUCATOR AND COMPANION.

WHILE attending the Debate at Rockingham, Mo., we had several very pleasant interviews with Bro. J. M. Snyder, editor, publisher and proprietor of the Educator and Companion, and with brethren Studebaker and Lehmer, Trustees of McPherson College. Referring to our note-book, we find a request from Bro. Snyder to say something in the MESSENGER concerning the object and design of his new paper.

Primarily, as set forth in the first issue of that paper, "it will be published in the interest of McPherson College, and will be devoted to Literature, Science, Art, Industry, Temperance, the Home Circle and General News." To this has been added a one-page department of Religious Miscellany, and it is Bro. Snyder's purpose to furnish a paper for home reading of a pure and unobjectionable character, hoping that it may take the place of the trashy literature so abundant in the homes of our land.

It will not, in any sense of the word, be a denominational or church paper. It will not discuss doctrinal subjects or publish church news, or in any way enter the field of church literature already occupied by the MESSENGER, but will be entirely devoted to education, the home and fireside, religious miscellany, farm notes, market reports and kindred topics.

From what we have seen of the paper, and with Bro. Snyder's statements as to his purpose before us, we do not hesitate to recommend the Educator to our readers. For sample copies, address J. M. Snyder, McPherson, Kans.

Bro. Snyder still publishes our German church paper, the Brüderbote, and asks the Brethren generally to assist him in enlarging its sphere of usefulness. There are many German families in and out of the church, that ought to have the Brüderbote. Let our Brethren interest themselves in this matter. If there are Germans living in your churches, ask them to take the Brüderbote. Bro. Snyder informed us that he expects to publish, during the spring and summer, a series of doctrinal sermons by brethren Huber and Sharp. Let an effort be made to extend the circulation of the semi-monthly Brüderbote!

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

The Miller and Sommer Debate—Continued.

FOURTH PROPOSITION.—The Scriptures teach the Salutation of the Holy Kiss as an ordinance to be observed as it is done by the German Baptist Brethren church.

R. H. Miller affirms.

Daniel Sommer denies.

AFFIRMATIVE.

Bro. Miller prefaced his arguments by saying that the command to salute each other with a holy kiss is so plain, and we are all so well acquainted with it and with its observance, that it needs no explanation. We, as a church, accept the teachings of the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost as having divine authority, and therefore binding upon the people of God, and it matters not whether such commands were given before or after Pentecost. All divine commandments have a spiritual significance, and all emanate from some great truth or doctrine. "You have obeyed from the heart that form of doctrine delivered unto you," means that we must have a form, and that these forms obeyed from the heart are full of Spirit and Truth. We represent a church that is built on Christ and his words, accepting all the commandments given in the New Testament to the disciples, and laboring to carry them out in form and spirit.

The first argument is drawn from the positive and often repeated command of the apostles to observe this form of salutation. See Rom. 16: 16; 1 Cor. 16: 20; 2 Cor. 13: 12; 1 Thess. 5: 26, 27 and 1 Pet. 5: 14. In these Scriptures are five different places where the apostles command the disciples how to salute each other. Observe the positive nature of the command, and that it is given in the imperative mode.

There have been, and still are, many forms of salutation in the world. We name, firing of cannon, waving the hand, bowing the head, kissing each other, shaking hands, and sometimes simply in words, "good morning," "good evening," etc. The apostles, directed by the Holy Ghost, selected from these forms of salutation, one form, and commanded us to follow it. The doctrine and the truth represented in the form are found in the Gospel. In baptism a new relation is entered into between us and Christ, and we have a form in baptism full of significance. So in the holy kiss we have the form or expression of love. Christ gave a new commandment that his disciples should love one another. And the Holy Ghost directed that this form of salutation should be used in giving expression to that love. The command is given, and the strongest evidence of love in the heart of God's people is their willingness to obey him in all things. They love God, they love his Word and obey it.

Second argument,—the word "holy" is used in giving the commandment. It is not only a kiss, but it is called holy. That which God calls holy, no human power has any right to meddle with or set aside. Under the Law God gave holy garments, a holy place, a holy Sabbath, holy feasts and holy convocations. These were holy under the Law, and those who even touched the holy things unlawfully, died. We have holiness under the Gospel, and here is a form called a holy kiss. Shall we not obey it?

Third argument,—it is not only a holy kiss, but it is also called a kiss of charity or love. It is associated with all holy names. God himself is love, and the greatest manifestation of love ever known in this world, was shown in the death of his Son. The holy kiss of love expresses a holy relation, and we must not attempt to set aside the holy things of God. This holy greeting shows a second obligation, and is the most tender and affectionate form of salutation known to Christians.

Fourth argument,—the holy kiss is commanded to the saints only, hence it is to be observed by God's holy people. Our observance of it shows that we are willing to obey him in all things. Can they be called holy who set aside God's commandments, and refuse to obey them?

Fifth argument,—Paul's parting with the elders of the church at Ephesus. Here we have an example of apostolic salutation. Paul observed it himself, and then, by direction of the Holy Ghost, commanded the churches to observe it.

The sixth argument is founded upon the truth of all of God's commandments to us. All must be be obeyed. Obedience to all the commandments of God is the only true basis of Christian union. If my opponent comes to the Gospel, and is willing to accept all its teachings, before, as well as after, Pentecost, we can unite, and be one in Christ Jesus, but he must not attempt to set aside a single commandment. I stand to defend them all, and say, "Obey all!"

NEGATIVE.

Eld. Sommer, in his reply to Bro. Miller, gave no arguments to sustain the practice of his church, but aimed to show that it was not necessary to obey the apostolic example and injunction. Referring to the first argument, he admitted that the command to salute with a holy kiss was given in positive language, and oft repeated, but said it was not binding, because no penalty was attached for its non-observance, so that it was not necessary to obey it.

Kissing was an old custom and had been a form of salutation for many centuries. Saul kissed Samuel, Absalom kissed the people, the father kissed his prodigal son when he returned, Judas betrayed the Master with a kiss. It was used as an expression of love and a form of salutation. We now have the custom of shaking hands, and we use that instead of the holy kiss; and I can call it a "holy hand-shaking," and it is an expression of love, just as the other is.

In my church we sometimes kiss one another, and I have sometimes kissed my brethren. In times of persecution it was perhaps proper. I have no doubt that if persecution were to come again, we would salute each other. Referring to Paul's leave-taking with the elders at Ephesus, he said that they were separating for the last time. They were to meet no more in this world, and because of this they wept, and fell on Paul's neck, and kissed him. If my brethren here knew that when I part with them at the close of this debate they would never see me again, I am sure they would kiss me when we came to part. In this way we would observe this form of salutation, but not as an ordinance.

Will my opponent show me where an example is given of one man kissing another on the mouth? We want the Scripture and the practice of the church to show this. In Christ Jesus there is neither male nor female; why, then, does he make a discrimination in observing this commandment? Why do the brethren salute the brethren only? Why make a distinction between the sexes?

We insist on a definition of an ordinance. What does it take to constitute an ordinance? Christ gave all the ordinances, but he did not command us to observe this, hence this is not an ordinance. An ordinance must have time, place and limitations. The observance of the holy kiss does not have these, therefore it cannot be classed as an ordinance.

In regard to the kiss being holy and a kiss of love, and that it applies to God, that is all right, but were the disciples to kiss each other if they did not love one another? If two brethren have a quarrel, and love departs, are they then to salute with a holy kiss? Again, how often were they to salute one another? As often as they meet, or only when they came together for worship?

Quoting from the Psalms, the elder said that there was such a thing as a mental embrace, a kissing without coming near each other. "Kiss the Son lest he be angry and ye perish." Ps. 2: 12. "Righteousness and peace have kissed each other." Ps. 85: 10. From these passages the elder sought to show that the word "kissing" is used figuratively, and that a mental and spiritual salutation of this kind may be indulged in, without the touching of our lips, and that, if we have the love of God in our hearts, it is not necessary to show it by saluting our brethren with a kiss, by touching with our lips, but that we may do this mentally.

Referring to the ten commandments he said, six of them were ordinances and four were not. Six of them had a Godward bearing, and four had a manward bearing, and that only such commandments as had a Godward bearing could be called ordinances. If the salutation is an ordinance, will my opponent tell me when and how it is to be observed?

AFFIRMATIVE.

Bro. Miller, in closing, said his opponent sets aside feet-washing, claiming that it is not commanded by the apostles, and now he tries to set aside the holy kiss, which is, as he admits, commanded by the apostles. How inconsistent! He claims to obey all the Bible. Why does he reject this? Why not be consistent, and obey all the commandments? He would substitute a "holy hand-shaking for the holy kiss. He assumes the authority to change the apostolic injunction—something that even the Pope of Rome does not do. His attempt to spiritualize the command is an absolute failure. To embrace or salute the brethren mentally is simply an effort to set aside the command.

This command, like some others, is not popular in this age of the world, hence the effort to set it aside, and substitute something else in its place, such as "mental salutation" and "holy hand-shaking." But if my friend sets aside the commands that do not suit him, he must accord to others the same right, and in this way all of God's will will soon be set aside.

Bro. Miller then gave Webster's and Cruden's definitions of the word "ordinance," as follows: "A rule established by authority; a permanent rule of action; a statute, law, decree. An established rite or ceremony."—Webster. "The laws, statutes and commandments of God. Lev. 18: 4; Laws, directions, rites, institutions, in the worship of God. Heb. 9: 1 10."—Cruden. These are the definitions that we use and apply to this commandment.

Referring to what Eld. Sommers said about his leave-taking of his brethren at this place, that, if they thought they would see him no more, they would kiss him, Bro. Miller asked, "What assurance have they, when they part, that they will ever meet again in this world? It seems strange, indeed, that my opponent is willing to obey this command in times of persecution and when death is imminent, but not at other times."

In reply to the question as to the manner of kissing, the definition by Webster was given,—"touching with the lips," and in regard to brethren and sisters saluting each other, Bro. Miller referred to Paul's example at Ephesus, where he saluted the brethren only, and also to the words of Paul, "Greet all the brethren with a holy kiss." Paul, in saluting his brethren and in enjoining the observance of this form of salutation upon them, had both time and place for it.

Referring to Robinson's history, Bro. Miller showed that the apostolic form of salutation was kept in the early church for many centuries. Justin Martyr says the Christians saluted one another with a holy kiss, and that this was done at all their meetings. From Bingham's Antiquities he read that the martyrs, as they went to the stake, kissed each other, and further, that the proprieties were observed between the sexes as observed by us.

Bro. Miller then recapitulated his arguments, and said, that "the words spoken in this debate will stand against us at the last day." He closed by exhorting his hearers to obey all of God's commandments, that they, too, may stand and not fall when the final test shall come.

NEGATIVE.

In closing his part of the discussion on the fourth proposition, Eld. Sommers repeated the points he had made. We tried to get the points in order in our notes, but failed sometimes to get at his meaning. He is a rapid talker, and quoted Scripture very freely, but it seemed to us that many of his quotations were not relevant to the subject under discussion.

He claimed again that the salutation was simply an expression of love, and that any form or expression of love would do. It was not as an act of love that he was discussing the question, but as an ordinance. He refused to accept Webster's and Cruden's definitions of ordinance, and repeated his own definition, that an ordinance has a Godward bearing.

He again referred to the books which Bro. Miller used in the discussion, saying that he did not accept them as authority. He came here with the Bible, and was willing to accept it all, but thought that a proper discrimination should be made as to what we are to observe. He reviewed rapidly the ground gone over in the discussion of the fourth proposition, and closed, claiming that his opponent had not sustained his side of the question.

It will be noticed that our notes are somewhat fuller on Bro. Miller's speeches than of the elder's. We wish to state that this is from no desire to give a one-sided view of the debate, but from the fact that Bro. Miller's arguments were plain and systematically set forth, so that it was comparatively easy to take notes, while the elder did not succeed at all times in making himself clearly understood to us and others. Those who read the debate in full will see this point.

OUR TRACTS.

BY I. M. GIBSON.

Number Two.

"How to become a Child of God," is the interesting title of a twenty-page talk by Eld. S. S. Mohler. As it would be impossible to write anything like a review of this pamphlet in the space allotted us, so as to give the readers an idea of its true worth, we will have to content ourself by giving simply a few quotations from it.

After asking the question, "Does God promise forgiveness to the unbaptized?"— Bro. Mohler says, "Let us hear the Gospel on this point,—John preached the 'baptism of repentance for the remission of sin,' * * * Ananias said to Saul, 'Arise and be baptized and wash away thy sins, calling upon the name of the Lord.'"

"These evidences set aside all that may be claimed on a mere matter of sensation. * * * There are two ways to sin. One is to do what the Gospel teaches men should not do. The other is, neglecting to do what the Gospel teaches men should do. * * * The word 'converted' is nowhere in the Gospel applied to a part of the work in turning sinners to God and, therefore, is nowhere in the Gospel applied to an unbaptized person, for the reason that it requires regeneration, godly sorrow, repentance, faith and baptism, to constitute a converted person,—that is, to turn him over to God and locate him in the saved state. How strange to hear persons say, 'I was converted under a certain tree,' etc."

Thus it continues, and is full of thought, showing that Bro. Mohler thoroughly studied the subject, and familiarized himself with all the Gospel requirements connected with a change of heart. He lays bare the popular delusion of so-called "miraculous conversions," and shows that there is something for man to do instead of waiting to feel.

"Sabbatism," by M. M. Eshelman, is a short treatise showing, that the Sabbath of the law is not in force now. We regard this as being a valuable acquisition to the tract department, as most of our brethren are tolerably well informed upon the cardinal doctrines of the church, but when asked, Why not keep the last instead of the first day of the week, they are perfectly helpless. Bro. Eshelman contrasts the Law and Gospel, showing conclusively that the first day of the week is the one to observe. We believe we can truly say of this pamphlet that it is the best thing we ever read upon the subject.

"Close Communion Examined," by I. J. Rosenberger, shows conclusively that the Communion was instituted for God's people. * * * Webster's definition of communion is: "The body of Christians who have one common faith and discipline. Therefore it is common union. If no common union exists between the communionists, there can be communion only in name among them, hence the utility or intention of the ordinance is destroyed.

This tract is timely in this age of so-called liberalism. Many so-called ministers of the Gospel seem to think that "liberalism," is a sign of mental breadth and that, if exceedingly liberal or lax, they will be regarded as "intellectual giants." Ingersoll holds the same view, but simply goes a little farther with it. It seems to me that the open communionists are a little inconsistent and not quite so liberal as they claim to be. I have always found them as intolerant of everything in the shape of close communion, as any one could possibly be of open communion. If such an expression is not a contradiction of terms, they are what might be called "intolerant liberalists."

"Modern Skepticism," by the same author, is what we will call a sermon, showing the skepticism that is found among professed Christians." Text, Num. 13: 12.

The Gospel contains the beautiful doctrine of "all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them." A system having such principles surely can not fail to meet with universal sanction. But while musing on this pleasing thought, I hear some one say:

1. "I'm obeying the Gospel as near as I understand it."

(a) The terms of salvation are given in plain words. One vested with authority to command would be inconsistent in giving his commands in terms that he knows will not be understood.

(b) The New Testament comes to us as a revelation of God's will to man. If it can not be understood, it is not a revelation, hence comes under a false title.

The above is surely an evil report, for Christ says, "If we seek we shall find."

2. "We can not obey all the Gospel."

(a) Matt. 28: 20 says, "Teaching them to observe all things" Christ never taught a doctrine that could not be obeyed.

(b) It would be a species of tyranny for Christ to command, and the apostles to teach, ordinances that could not be obeyed.

(c) What are the duties taught in the New Testament that can not be obeyed?

3. "That is the way you understand it, but we can not all understand it alike."

(a) Does the Book teach one doctrine to one individual, another to a second, and still another to a third? Then Paul was mistaken when he said, "By one spirit are we all baptized into one body." "All speak the same thing" "See that there be no divisions among you," etc.

(b) True, "without controversy great is the mystery of godliness." But man's duty is specified, plain. (Examples given).

4. "It is just as you believe."

(a) This theory appropriates the right to each individual to dismiss at pleasure any part of the Gospel. As a result one throws away water baptism, another feet-washing, and another the Lord's Supper. May not another just as consistently throw away prayer?

(b) There is a book, entitled, "Mistakes of Moses." If the doctrine viewed above is true, I am prepared to write one entitled, "Mistakes of Christ." The mistake Christ makes is in holding his Word as the only standard of salvation, whereas, according to the above, it is just as you believe.

Such is a brief synopsis of the tract. Bro. Rosenberger's writings are clear, pointed and well arranged, showing that he is a good sermonizer.

The only other one that we shall notice for the present, is, "Plain Dressing," by D. L. Miller. The opening clause to this practical tract is,

If our position, as a church, on the question of plain dressing, and our opposition to the fashionable follies of the age are not in accordance with the teachings of the New Testament, and of reason and common sense, then the sooner we drop them, the better it will be for us

Brother Miller then begins his argument, going directly to the Word of God to prove his position. This is undoubtedly the correct way to prove a thing that is taught by the church. In fact it is what the world demands. "Tradition and long usage or custom, have little or nothing to do with the law of God."

What the world wants to-day is the "thus saith the Lord," and not what the fathers may, or may not have done fifty or a hundred years ago. Young members of an inquiring turn of mind have so often, when asking for information on the "dress question," been met with the statement, "You know the church says so, you promised it, and that ought to be enough." But this falls far short of being enough. Why look upon one with suspicion because he wants to know why we dress in modest apparel, any more than when he wants to know the reason or arguments for trine immersion? The fact is, all have a right to inquire into the subject,—as much right as they have to inquire into any other moral or religious subject.

"Modest apparel" is taught in the Bible, and the man who goes to tradition to prove it, instead of the Word of God, is not a competent teacher in Israel.

Brother Miller's tract is not a replaying of the old harp that has long since lost all the music that it may have ever possessed. He goes straight to the "Immutable Word" for his arguments, hence there can be no quibbling over the conclusions reached. He does not talk in a radical, inconsistent way, as men in the flesh are so prone to do when writing upon a subject that has been controverted. He has written the clearest, most logical, and by far the most sensible article upon the subject that I have ever read.

There are many more good tracts that we may write up in the future, but we let the subject rest for the present.

After reading all the productions of the Brethren, and comparing them with the productions of other churches, I find that, so far as literary style and thought is concerned, they compare favorably with any.

The doctrines are well represented with the exception of the Lord's Supper. Just why it has been slighted, we can not tell. We need two tracts upon it. One, "why we eat a full meal," and another tract embodying twelve or fourteen reasons why the meal Christ ate in the upper chamber was not the Jewish passover.

That much good can be accomplished with little expense through our tracts, no well-informed person will deny. The senseless objection of a few—very few—that Christ and the apostles did not work with tracts, but went and preached, I suppose, is not worth noticing.

The work is, as yet, in its infancy. What is needed now is, that all take an interest and help the good work along. The plan of raising a permanent fund by means of the Endowment, is a good one, and already we have seen the good effects of the fruit it is bearing.

The brethren are doing nobly in this direction and I find, every-where I have been, a desire on the part of the brethren, with few exceptions, to lend a helping hand. Yes, why not sacrifice a little of this world's goods, that souls may be brought to Christ? Unselfish devotion to the cause of Christ is the highest end of man's earthly existence. Unless man has reached the point where he is willing to spend a few dollars that he may help his fellow-men with the full knowledge, though in this world he will never get it back, he has come short of the object for which the Heavenly Father created him. But the man that will thus work is the man whom God visits,—who has God's spirit, and who will reap a reward after awhile that "eye hath not seen, nor the natural mind conceived." He will stand with confidence at the judgment of the "Upper Court." It was said of the poor widow, "She hath done what she could." What higher encomium could one receive! Shall the same be said of us?

Notes from our Correspondents.

"As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country."

—Bro. Lewis M. Kob states that in an obituary written by him for No. 14 of the MESSENGER, the name in the notice should be "Caster," instead of "Carter," as there given.

—A distressing accident is recorded by Bro. C. P. Long, of Payne's Store, Hunt Co., Texas: "On Thursday, March 28, Miriam, the ten-year-old granddaughter of George Hopkins, went out where the boys were burning off prairie grass. Her grandfather told her not to go, but she went, and, approaching too close to the fire, her clothes became ignited. I saw her four hours afterwards, being absent when the call was made. Nearly the whole surface of her body was burned to a crisp, and she died in a few hours. She was a beautiful, intelligent little girl, and her sudden death is a severe shock to the family and community."

—Under date of April 6, Bro. Orren McGrew, of Ashland, Ohio, writes: "One young man was received into the Maple Grove church by baptism March 31. Peace and union prevail in our congregation, and it is now in better working order than it has been for years. The Brethren have just closed a very interesting, and, we think, profitable Bible meeting, Bro. David Snyder met with us when convenient, and gave us much encouragement. We organized our Sunday-school March 31. Bro. David Snyder was elected Superintendent. He is assisted by Bro. A. J. Myers and an able corps of officers. May the Lord be with us in this important work, that our labor be not in vain! May the harvest of '89 be of a two-fold nature, and may the sheaves not be of a temporal nature only!"

—Sister Sarah I. Etter, of Carteraville, Va., under date of March 17, writes: "We should never weary in trying to build up the church of our blessed Master! When I read of so many places where Brethren are holding series of meetings, and where there are three or four preachers at one place, my heart almost faints within me, to think how we are situated, here in Cumberland Co., Va., where we have no preacher at all. We have had no preaching since the first of last November. Who is to blame? God knoweth. I feel that much good can be done here, if we could get the right sort of a leader. In the words of Bro. D. L. Miller, what is now needed here is, to have pastoral work done. Paul speaks of pastors, and I believe if the work here in Cumberland and adjoining Counties is to be carried forward to a successful issue, it will only be done by locating a faithful minister in the County, give him the necessary aid, and let him give his time to the work, for which he should be well fitted. He should be rooted and grounded in the faith, a man of convictions rather than opinions. Such a brother could find constant labor in Cumberland County. God speed the day when we can see many such engaged in this great work!"

—Under date of April 8 Bro. A. Greenawalt, of Mansfield, Ill., writes: "Our quarterly council at Blue Ridge church, Piatt Co., Ill., occurred on Saturday, April 6. We had a fair attendance and a very good meeting. Brethren Barnhart and Stouffer gave us excellent counsel, and admonished us kindly to do our whole duty. All our business passed off pleasantly and good feeling prevailed, for which we feel thankful to our Heavenly Father. We appointed our communion meeting for May 18, at 3 P. M."

—Bro. A. F. Cross, of the Salem church, Kans., writes: "This church is moving along slowly. We can not report large additions to the church, like some others, but nine souls have made the good choice since last fall. One was baptized last Sunday. We had a series of meetings about the Holidays. Brethren Geo. Shamberger, Enoch Eby and Lemuel Hillery did the preaching. The Word of God was preached with zeal and power. Our brethren did not shun to declare the whole counsel of God. At our late council we decided to hold a love-feast May 11 and 12, commencing at 2 o'clock."

—Bro. J. S. Mohler, of the North Morrill church, Kans., writes: "Recently the church here decided to hold a series of meetings to be conducted by our home ministers. Several weeks ago we began our work, and continued for about four weeks. During the meetings Bro. H. Sawyer happened among us, and preached four effective discourses. We were also assisted by the ministers of the Morrill church (South). As a result, the church was much built up. There were seven additions to the flock; four of them belong to the North Morrill church, and three to the Morrill church (South). Since the meetings closed, two more have been added to the Morrill church (South)."

—"How Brethren Should Dress their Children," is the subject of an essay by Bro. Wm. A. Roop. He says: "I think that we, as members of the church of Christ, should dress our children in conformity with our profession. It will be much easier, then, to induce them to become followers of the meek and lowly Nazarene, and to keep them humble after they have come into the fold. In Eph. 6: 4 we are admonished to 'bring up our children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord.' That does not admit of the foolish fashions of the world being put upon our children, as so many of our members do, and we see it with sorrow. 'As the twig is bent, the tree is inclined.' Let us see to it that we give the young minds the proper inclination according to Gospel principles, and then, as they grow older, they will realize that their plain attire has helped them to maintain that priceless treasure,—humility!"

—Sister H. Eliza Bowman, of the Cook's Creek church, Rockingham Co., Va., writes: "Bro. John Flory, one of our home ministers, commenced a series of meetings at Pleasant Hill school-house, March 26, and continued the meetings till April 7, preaching, in all, thirteen sermons to eager listeners. Bro. Flory never shunned to declare the whole Truth, and warn the people of their coming danger. Twelve dear souls were made willing to forsake sin and follow Christ. Others were almost persuaded, and, we hope, may yet serve their Master before it is too late. We had good congregations, and the very best of order and attention. The brethren and sisters were much encouraged in their work, and, by the help of God, labored faithfully for the upbuilding of the church. All were sorry the meetings closed so soon, but Bro. Flory desired to have a few nights' rest before going to other fields of labor. May the Lord help him in all his labors!"

--Sister Della R. Henry, of Hollidaysburg, Pa., writes that, on account of the long-continued illness of her mother, she has been deprived of the privilege of attending meetings during the past winter. Sister Henry rejoices that her mother, since being anointed by brethren James W. and David Sell, has greatly improved in health. May the Lord restore her to health again, if such be his will!

From the Quinter Church, Kans.

WE live in the western part of Thomas County, Kansas, which is embraced in the Quinter church. There are about twelve or fifteen members scattered through the County. We held four series of meetings at different places in the County, and in much weakness endeavored to defend the cause of the Master. Attendance and attention were good, with increasing interest. A number have said that they believe we have the Truth, but do not see the necessity of trine immersion. Many of them have been taught the popular idea that God baptized three million souls at the Red Sea by pouring, etc.

We have four appointments in a month. Last Sunday, March 31, we had meeting seventeen miles south-east from here. At the close of the meeting, one sister arose to announce that she desired to enter the fold. Others seem near the kingdom. Brethren, pray for the scattered lambs!

C. H. BROWN.

Kuka, Thomas Co., Kans.

From Greene, Iowa.

SINCE our last writing Bro. Wm. Eikenberry, of Waterloo, Iowa, was here with us, and preached three able sermons, and, although there were no immediate accessions, we trust the seed sown fell on well-cultivated ground and will bring forth fruit in the near future. Bro. William is an earnest worker in the Master's vineyard, and our prayer to God is that his labors may be bountifully rewarded with an abundant harvest of precious souls!

According to previous arrangements, the brethren and sisters met at the church on Sunday, March 31, to organize our Sunday-school for the coming season. A goodly number were present, and all seemed to take a lively interest. Our school was organized and the teachers appointed. They are all members of the church. Bro. John Shank is our Superintendent. He is assisted by Bro. J. D. Shook and an able corps of officers. I think we will have a good Sunday-school this season, for all seem to take hold with a willing hand. May God help us all to be more zealous in the Master's work!

Saturday, April 6, our church met in quarterly council. The church was well represented, the members nearly all being present. Everything passed off pleasantly and in a Christian manner. All seemed to be love and union. There was but very little business to attend to at this meeting. Our church is in a prosperous condition, for which I feel thankful to him who does all things well, and pray the Lord to help us all to grow in grace and in the knowledge of the truth as it is in Christ. Just about the close of our council-meeting, Bro. Joseph Hannawalt, of Franklin Co., Iowa, came in. He preached for us Saturday night and Sunday forenoon. Bro. Joseph labors hard for the faith once delivered unto the saints. May the Lord bless him and his labors, is our prayer!

We have a social or prayer-meeting every Sunday. Every alternate Sunday we have it at the church, directly after Sunday-school, and the intervening Sunday at the house of some brother or sister. These meetings, I think, are one of the best things that can be carried on in the church, as in them all have a chance to speak a word for the Master. I think every church in the Brotherhood should have its prayer-meeting. It helps to keep us alive in the Master's cause.

FEBRUARY 23 Bro. Levi T. Holsinger came to us and commenced meetings the same night. After delivering eight sermons, he was called by dispatch to the bedside of his mother, who had taken poison by mistake, thinking she was taking quinine. She passed from earth March 8. During her sickness, Bro. John J. Hoover, of Carleton, Nebraska, came to hold meetings for us, and preached six sermons, and then had to return. On the evening of the 10th, Bro. Holsinger commenced meetings again and gave us thirteen more sermons, during which eight souls came out, and were buried in the liquid stream to walk with Christ in all his commands. Then he went west twelve miles and delivered ten sermons. He came back to us on the evening of the 30th, and on the 31st, or Sunday, baptized nine more, making seventeen in all. He delivered twenty-four discourses at Red Lion Hall, and ten at Lushton. The total number of sermons, including six that Bro. Hoover preached for us, was forty.

During the meetings the members were much revived and built up, and sinners were made to tremble. A goodly number were made to cry out by their actions and renounce Satan. Others were waiting for a more convenient season. A very few thought we were too particular about little things, and, after a while did not show themselves any more. We had large congregations for a new country. The house was crowded every night, and the people were very anxious to hear and learn more about our loving Savior. During the meetings there was the best of order, and, to my knowledge, the best of feeling prevailed. I never saw more love and kindness shown, not only among the Brethren, but throughout the congregation.

We hope Bro. Holsinger will have stars added to his crown over yonder, in return for the spiritual food that he dealt out so bountifully. Brethren, remember us at Red Lion! We are but few, and some of us have just started in the glorious cause!

WE met in church council April 5, in annual council. The deacon brethren found the church in love and union, with few exceptions. Those few gave evidence that everything would soon be all right. There was considerable business before the meeting, which was disposed of to the satisfaction of all present.

A large number of brethren and sisters were present at our meeting,—some from a distance. Bro. Jacob Hedrick, of Midland, Va.; Bro. A. Conners, from Manassas, Va.; Bro. Daniel Miller, of Augusta; Bro. H. C. Early, of Mill Creek; Bro. C. Hartman, of the same place, and Bro. B. Miller, of Green Mount, took active part in the business before the meeting.

Bro. John Flory is holding a series of meetings at the Pleasant Hill school-house and is meeting with good success. There will be eight or nine baptized to-morrow.

Our two elders, John A. Miller and S. Garber are our delegates to Annual Meeting and Joel Flory and Samuel Cline are our delegates to District Meeting.

Let us all pray that we may hold out faithful until Jesus comes, is my prayer!

HIRAM FORNEY, Treas.

From Prairie Creek Church, Ind.

MARCH 30th we met in church council. Bro. Lewis W. Teeter, of Hagerstown, Ind., and Bro. Wilson Hutchison, of Pennville, Ind., were called upon to help to adjust a little trouble existing among us. All was settled satisfactorily to all present, for which we thank the Lord!

How strange it is that sometimes we are made to think there is no remedy for those little difficulties, but when we come together as our Savior would have us to come,—in a spirit of love,- he is always with us and we can always settle our troubles.

In the evening we again met for public worship. Bro. Hutchison did the preaching. Next morning (Sunday), although the weather was very inclement, a large congregation assembled to hear Bro. Teeter preach, after which the brethren had to leave us. We wish they could have stayed longer. Their labors, while with us, were very much appreciated.

March 24 we met for the purpose of organizing our Sunday-school for the coming season. Bro. Peter Minnich was elected Superintendent; Bro. Levi Huffman, Assistant. The church is in peace and union, as far as I know, for which we thank the Giver of all good! J. C. CRIPE.

Mt. Zion, Ind.

The Devil's Song.

IN my letter to Bro. Hutchison, I hoped that we might learn the Nightingale's Song in our sore trials and sufferings, and referred to 23rd Psalm. But either I or the printer made a mistake, and separated the two figures thus, Ps. 2: 3. Now, by reference to that Psalm, the reader was no doubt puzzled to find the Nightingale's Song, and so am I. Instead of being an outburst of joy and praise in the celebration of God's mercy and Fatherly care, it is part of the Devil's chuckle and scorn for Jesus and His saints. What song are we singing? For one or the other is in every one's heart and life. One is an echo of the upper-world Jubilate; the other is a translation of the wail of the pit. We all sing. We all make melody of some kind. The Devil has his noise manifold, and many are foolish enough to believe there is more music in it than in the rapture of the cross. The glory of the saint is that he can sing at midnight in the inner dungeon, with his feet fast in the stocks. Sing, sing, all ye who know God in Christ, even though in the heaving and quaking and shaking of Ps. 46: 1, 2, 3.

C. H BALSBAUGH.

From Greenwood Church, Texas Co., Mo.

ABOUT thirteen years ago there was quite a flourishing and happy congregation of the Brethren here, but Satan entered the fold and did his work completely. The flock was scattered and completely broken up, and for seven years there was no communion,—no meetings of any kind.

About six years ago, Bro. William Harvey, of Jasper County, in this State, came to us and gathered the remains of the little flock together, and re-organized them. He was chosen their elder, and, although few in number, the members remained organized. Bro. Harvey visited them annually, sometimes accompanied by other ministering brethren, among them brethren George Barnhart and Holderman, who rendered much assistance in building up the church.

Soon after the re-organization, brethren Joseph Adkins, John Greenwood and S. A. Overfelt were appointed to the ministry. Our growth was slow but steady until about one year ago, when our able minister and worthy brother, J. T. Mason, settled with us. Since then the growth of the church has been much more rapid. Last September we determined to build a house of our own. We were very poor, and to undertake to build a house which would be worth building, was a serious undertaking, especially when we found that about fifty dollars was all we could raise by subscription. In this emergency, Eld. Mason suggested applying to the Mission Board for help, which was done, Bro. Harvey again pleading our cause with success. They granted us what we asked, -one hundred dollars. We had now one hundred and fifty-five dollars. The building committee commenced work in December, and last Sunday, for the first time, we worshiped God in our own house. Eld. Mason preached a very able discourse. His subject was, "The Church, Where Shall It Be Found?" Text, Matt. 16: 18. Our building is 28x48 feet, and 14 feet to the ceiling. It is a good substantial frame building. It as yet is unpainted and unceiled. It is supplied with two good stoves, and is well "seated." This was all we could do with $155. We have since collected sufficient money to paint, and are in hopes to be able to "ceil" next fall. The Brethren here return their sincere thanks to brethren Harvey, Barnhart, Holderman, Honberger and Mason, for their zeal and energy in behalf of this congregation, and especially to the Mission Board for their kindness and liberality in furnishing funds, which, we hope, have been well expended. We anticipate a prosperous and happy future.

S. M. STEVENS.

Cabool, Mo., March 9.

From Anderson, Ind.

THE series of meetings in the Upper Fall Creek church, Ind., closed last night. The last sermon was here in this city, in, what is known as the "Church of God,"—a very large building. The house was full, and the sermon delivered was said to be the third sermon ever preached in this city by the Brethren. Why is it that we are so slow to unfold the Truth in the cities? The Gospel says, "Go," not, "Wait for repeated calls, before you move out in this great work."

We also preached two sermons in Middletown, and eight at the old church. The attendance was good, considering the busy season of the year. May God grant that the good seed may take root and bring forth a bountiful harvest. In this church our aged brother, George Hoover, lives. He is getting quite feeble, yet he was out at four of the meetings. I wish younger brethren, who are in good health bodily, were as active in the cause of Christ! We leave to-day for home, by the way of Indianapolis. May God protect us, that we may arrive safely and, finally, when the work is done, may we all meet in heaven!

HENRY FRANTZ.

At Work for the Master.

SINCE our last report we have tried to work some in various fields. We preached some in the old home church at Indian Camp, Upshur Co., W. Va., held a few meetings for the Brethren at Goshen in the same county; then a few meetings at Point Mountain in Pocahontas County. Here we found the church in better order than in our home County. We then returned home, and, on Feb. 13, bade father, mother, brothers, and sisters adieu, and again took the field, commencing a meeting in the Valley River congregation on the 17th, and continuing until the 27th, night and day, then moving about six miles to Sugar Creek. The meetings were continued until March 4th, when we returned to the Valley River congregation and spent the time until March 11, trying to work up an interest, and get a new church house. The Brethren here need a new church house very much, but we were unable to get them interested enough to make the necessary sacrifice to build one. We hope they do not intend to drop the matter until they have a comfortable house.

We stopped off at Moatsville in the Shiloh congregation three days. Here the brethren had learned of my effort to awaken an interest and get a new church building in the Valley River congregation. They pressed me to get up a subscription paper and help them start a movement to build a house. This I did. They appointed their building committee, and started off with a willingness that says they are going to build.

March 16th, we began meetings in the new church in Bro. Daniel F. Stouffer's congregation in Washington County, Md., and continued until the 31st, when our meetings closed with good interest. The church here seems alive to the true Gospel principles.

We preached for the Brethren in Hagerstown on the evenings of April 2, 3 and 4. This writing finds us ready to commence a meeting here at Woodbury, Baltimore City. S. N. M'CANN.

In Memoriam.

ANOTHER of Israel's sweet singers gone to rest. —sister Mary Hillery, daughter of brother Jesse and sister Esther Nickelson. The deceased was was born Nov. 15th, 1847, in Cedar County, Iowa. She united with the German Baptist or Brethren church at the age of twenty-one years. She was joined by marriage, to Bro. Lemuel Hillery, Nov. 14, 1866, and was the mother of five children, two of whom preceded her to the spirit world in their infancy. After serving the church and her family for twenty years, she sweetly, calmly, and hopefully fell asleepin Jesus, Feb. 27, 1889, at her home in Lincoln township, Reno County, Kan., with the words, "Jesus, crown,—mother." These words were on her lips for the last two days,—used interchangeably and appropriately, considering the somewhat delirious state of the mind, caused by the peculiar character of the disease which was too complicated to define.

Immediately after her return from a pleasant and cheerful visit to Harvey County, Kans, in company with her husband, on a preaching tour, she began to fail, and rapidly declined for five days, when the angel of death came and said, "Your work is done; come up higher."

In her death our dear brother has lost a true and faithful companion, the children a tender-hearted mother, the neighbors a good citizen, and the church a good, zealous worker. Her spiritual visits in the neighborhood, her work in the Sabbath-school as a teacher, and her musical voice (in the public assembly in worship), which soared aloft, above the average, will all be missed, and leave a sad and mournful blank in our memories.

As an evidence of the above, we need only refer to the crowded house of sympathizing friends, on her funeral occasion, which took place at the Pleasant View meeting-house, ten miles southwest of Hutchinson, March 3, 1889. The occasion was improved by the brethren, by the use of part of Job 14; 1 Cor. 15, and special text, Rev. 2: 10, last phrase. Theme, "Faithfulness till Death, the Resurrection and the Crown of Life."

Though sadness fills our heart, we sorrow not as those who have no hope, believing that our loss is her eternal gain, and though dead, she yet speaketh. To all who knew her, especially to her children we say, "Prepare to meet her in glory, and oft sing one of her favorite choruses, 'Oh I long to be there,'"—"Starry Crown."

"Peaceful be thy silent slumbers,
Peaceful in the grave so low.
Thou no more shalt join our numbers,
Thou no more our songs shalt know.

"Yet again we hope to meet thee,
When the day of life is fled,
There in heaven with joy to greet thee
Where no farewell tear is shed."

ENOCH EBY.

From Thornton, W. Va.

As church news has been solicited, I feel to give a report of our meeting, which began March 16 and continued until the evening of the 24th. We held eleven meetings in all. The preaching was done by Bro. G. W. Annon and the writer, save one discourse that was preached by Bro. Murphy, from an adjoining congregation. Our audience was large most of the time, and at times all could not be accommodated for the want of room. We feel that we were bettered as a little band of members, and hope that those who stand outside of the kingdom of Christ felt that they need a Savior, too, and, ere long, will make the wise choice. One was added to the church by confessing faith in Christ. He was buried in baptism, in the presence of a very large crowd. Oh! how it cheers my poor soul to see them come to Christ!

GOSPEL MESSENGER No. 13 is before me, laden with good things. Let us partake of the rich food that is in it, that we may grow in the knowledge of the Truth. Sister Gertrude A. Flory's article is the right thing in the right place. Brethren, let us not forget Bro. B. F. Moomaw's articles that appeared some time ago, "Come, Let us Reason Together." Sisters, read them again, and, above all, do not forget the practical part!

Z. ANNON.

Sad Affliction.

BROTHER and sister Noah and Catharine Studebaker have been called to pass through sad affliction. They have had malignant scarlet fever in their family, and have buried all their children except one. Mamie, aged ten years, died the morning of March 13; Angie, aged eight years, on the afternoon of the 14th, and Willie, aged fifteen years, on the morning of April 3rd. Truly their afflictions are great, but they feel that all is well with the departed ones. Willie expressed a desire to unite with the church some time ago and we feel satisfied that they are all

"Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep,
From which none ever wake to weep."

The family have lost everything through drouth and sickness, and need the assistance of the church.

From Baltimore, Md.

THE Brethren, assembled in council at the Meadow Branch meeting-house, near Westminster, Md., March 23, decided to make Baltimore a regular appointment, and preach for us every eight weeks. Sam's Creek church will also fill an appointment for us every eight weeks. This will give us preaching every four weeks. Pipe Creek church will also send us ministers, I think, when we need them. Our venerable old father in Israel, Eld. Solomon Stoner, who presides over this church, will hardly let the cause suffer for want of ministerial help.

JAMES T. QUINLAN.

1926 Light St., Baltimore, Md.

From Longmont, Colo.

AT our quarterly council, held recently, considerable business came before the meeting, but all passed off pleasantly. All remembered that others had feelings as well as themselves.

Among other business transacted was the appointing of our spring love-feast, which will be May 11, if the Lord will. Brethren, think of the isolated church in the shades of the great Rockies, and make it suit to come this way.

We also organized our Sunday-school, and appointed a delegate to District Meeting, and transacted other important business pertaining to the welfare of the church.

May the Lord bless the MESSENGER that it may continue to come each week, laden with good news!

G. W. FESLER.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

CLICK. — In the Linville Creek church, Rockingham Co., Va., March 20, sister Elizabeth, wife of Daniel Click, and daughter of Jacob and Rebecca Bowman, aged 70 years, 6 months and 21 days.

Deceased was married May 20, 1841; shortly afterwards joined the Brethren church. She was a consistent member until the close of her pilgrimage here. She lived an exemplary life for her children, all of whom have heeded her wise counsels, except one, who is yet standing aloof from the covenant of promise.

Sister Click was the mother of eight children, five of whom survive her. Deceased had been a great sufferer in her time. For many years she was sorely afflicted with rheumatism, and in her latter years she has been a great sufferer from consumption.

She bore her affliction with Christian fortitude. Not the least complaint came from her in all her trials. Her constant prayer was for the promotion of the cause of the Master. To her I can look as the means of my moral and religious training. She was my constant counselor from childhood to manhood, and by her wise counsels my bark has been steered along life's uneven tide.

Her departure has left a void this world can never fill. To us she looked for her support and comfort, for the last ten years in this life. During the many years we spent together, she never gave me one cross word. When admonition was necessary, she gave it in a kind, loving, persuasive manner.

Our dear mother, for the last few months, had assured us that her time of departure was drawing near, and expressed a fond desire to be absent from the body and present with the Lord, yet we did not expect the end to come so soon. On Tuesday morning, March 19, she got up and prepared for breakfast, as usual; at noon she walked out to the kitchen for dinner, and ate as hearty as common. She was piecing a quilt after dinner, till some time after three o'clock. At four she said she was feeling bad, so she went to bed, and immediately the family physician was sent for, who was there two hours later. He said she was liable to go at any time. The next morning, at half past ten o'clock, without a struggle, she calmly closed her eyes to earth to open them in heaven. Oh that our end might be like hers!

Interment at the Linville church burying-ground. Services by Eld. Christian Wine, assisted by Bro. John P. Zigler, from Heb. 11: 21. D. M. CLICK.

GIBSON.—In West Otter Creek church, Macoupin Co., Ill., April 2, of consumption, sister Mary, wife of Eld. Javan Gibson, aged 53 years and 26 days.

Deceased was married March 13, 1856; was a member of the church for 31 years. She was the mother of nine children, seven of whom are living; five are members of the church. Sister Gibson was a sufferer for many years, but she bore it with Christian fortitude. We bow to the fell stroke in humble resignation to the will of our Father in heaven, who doeth all things well. Services by Eld. M. J. McClure and others, from 1 Thess. 4: 13-16, to a very large audience.

D. B. GIBSON.

DIVELY.—In the Claar church, Pa., April 4, Thaddeus Dively, aged 15 years and 20 days. This is the third death in the family inside of eleven months. The father and two oldest sons all died of typhoid fever. Services by the writer, from 1 Pet. 1: 24.

MICHAEL CLAAR.

REPLOGLE.—In the Nettle Creek church, Wayne Co., Ind., Jan. 30, Bro. Joseph Replogle, aged 80 years, 5 months and 5 days.

Deceased was born in Bedford Co., Pa., in 1808. His father died when he was five years old, and his mother two years later. In In 1828 he came to Indiana, and in 1829 was married to Susan Mikesel. In one year his wife died and he returned to Pennsylvania. In 1831 he was married to Christina Eperly, and settled near Hagerstown, Ind., in which vicinity he lived until death. His wife died in 1884. Eight children were born unto them, six of whom are living. He had eighteen grandchildren and eight great grandchildren living.

In 1832 he and his wife united with the Brethren church, remaining zealous and faithful until death. He died in the midst of intense suffering, closing with an eloquent audible prayer. His eyesight had gradually failed until he was blind. Services by Lewis W. Teeter, B. F. Wissler and Daniel Bowman, from Nahum 1: 7.

LEVI S. DILLING.

BABCOCK.—In the bounds of the Walnut church, Marshall Co., Ind, March 29, Moses B. son of Thomas and sister Mary F. Babcock, aged 25 years, 5 months and 18 days. Services by Bro. Aaron Swihart, from Job 14: 1, 2. JNO. S. KRYDER.

RATER.—In the Clear Creek church, Mo., March 15, William M. Rater, aged 51 years, 11 months and 9 days.

March 15 I was called upon to anoint our departed brother, but when I arrived, his spirit had fled. Bro. Rater was born in Adams Co., Ohio, March 6, 1834, and in 1855 moved to Missouri, where he resided until death. July 31, 1886, he and his wife, together with a number of others, were baptized. A consistent Christian life was the best evidence that his life was truly "hid with Christ." D. GLICK.

HORNER.—At New Vienna, Ohio, March 31, sister Hannah, wife of J. W. Horner, aged 55 years, 4 months and 21 days.

Deceased was under the hand of affliction for about fifteen years, but bore all in patience. She leaves two sons, two daughters and a husband to mourn their loss.

J. W. HORNER.

REED.—At Griffin, Pa., March 7, sister L. M. Reed, wife of friend H. J. Reed. Services by Rev. J. J. Welsh (Lutheran) and Bro. John C. Schrock. P. F. CUPP.

TENLEY.—At the home of Bro. David B. Tenley, Jan. 23, of pneumonia, sister Hannah Tenley, aged 95 years, 4 months and 7 days.

Deceased was a member of the Brethren church for sixty years, and held her membership in the Stone Bridge church, Franklin Co., Pa. She was strong in the faith, and sensible until fifteen minutes before she died, when she asked her little granddaughter for a drink of water. Sister Tenley was a widow twenty-six years. Her husband, James Tenley, was a minister in the Brethren church. Services by Jacob Weller and John A. Myers, from Num. 23: 10, to a large audience.

D. B. TENLEY.

BEEGHLY.—In the Bear Creek church, Garrett Co., Md., Harriet Lavinia, wife of Bro. Joseph A. Beeghly, aged 28 years, 9 months and 26 days. Services by the Brethren.

HARDEN.—In the same church, at the home of his son-in-law, Eld. Jeremiah Beeghly, Bro. George Harden, aged 88 years, 10 months and 15 days. Interment near Eckhart Mines. Services by the Brethren.

BEEGHLY.—In the same church, Bertha Alice, daughter of Bro. Jacob and sister Catherine Beeghly, aged 4 years, 8 months and 9 days.

BEEGHLY.—In the same church, Sarah Florence Beeghly, daughter of the same parents, aged 1 year, 3 months and 12 days. Services by the Brethren.

Advice to Mothers.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. THE GOSPEL MESSENGER.

"Set for the Defense of the Gospel."

Vol. 27. Old Series. Mt. Morris, Ill., and Huntingdon, Pa., April 30, 1889. No. 18.

The Gospel Messenger.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH, Editor,
And Business Manager of the Eastern House, Box 50, Huntingdon, Pa.

AT the last council-meeting of the Huntingdon church, our communion meeting was appointed for the 11th of May. First services at 3 o'clock P. M. Our brethren going to District Meeting, and others, are invited to be with us.

THE price of "Gospel Chimes" is, single copy, 30 cents or $3.00 per dozen. Orders for them can now be sent in. Every school should have several dozen. They are printed in character notes, so that our children can sing the pieces readily. Send for them.

THE Virginians are making preparations to show our brethren when they come to the Annual Meeting, some good bargains in the way of farm land, and it is probable that they can do it, as there are said to be some grand openings for wide-awake farmers down in the Old Dominion. And besides, they have the reputation of being a very clever class of people.

WE approve of Bro. Vaniman's plan for supplying our mission fields with laborers. So the Lord always did, called men to do the work he wanted done. This is a special work of the church for which special workmen are needed, and if we don't have them, the right way to do is to call and prepare them. The mission work is so different from the regular home work, that a fitness for the one may not at all be a fitness for the other. We have many brethren who do excellent work at home, that would be a complete failure in the mission field. Such is the experience of many who have tried it and they know whereof they speak.

WE are glad for the good words coming from our Kansas and Iowa brethren in favor of prohibition. Experience is always better than theory, and as these brethren are enjoying a practical demonstration of the advantages of prohibition, their evidence comes with force and authority. The whisky-men are leaving no stone unturned to save their callings, no matter how many are impoverished and ruined thereby. We hope that none of our brethren will allow themselves to be deceived by men whose only business it is to bring poverty and ruin in their trail. They revel in their hoarded wealth which they have taken from their deluded victims.

WHAT can be more lovely and inspiring than a beautiful spring morning? It is a most happy picture of the resurrection of nature that has been buried in the ice-bound fetters of winter. As the warm morning sun pours down his life-giving rays, and sweetly kisses the uprising green grasses, the bursting buds, and the opening flowers, animate life is invigorated, and made to speak forth in anthems of praise to the great Author of it all. As we look at, see it, hear it, and smell it, our thoughts are turned back to redemption morning, when death and the grave could no longer hold its victim. The darkness, the storm and the earthquake were past, and silenced, the winter of death had bided its time, and the resurrection morn had come. As the first rays of the sun parted the eastern darkness, while the grass was yet dripping with the crystal dew, and as the feathered songsters awakened on their perch, heaven commenced ringing, angels shouting, and their anthems of praise filling the air, the seal of the sepulcher was broken, the stone rolled away, and the Redeemer of the world came forth. Yes, beautiful spring morning, thou art a lovely shadow! After a while may we have the reality in the spring of heaven. After the nights, the storms, and the earthquakes of earth, and sin have all passed away, then will we have the spring morning of an eternal summer.

OUR CHURCH HOME.

THE growing sentiment among professing Christian people to-day is, that the different denominations are forms of convenience rather than the outgrowth of necessity, that they all represent the good and the bad, and that men can be Christians in any or all of them. But because our education and tastes differ, some are better adapted to our special cases than others. Therefore it is our privilege to unite with the church most adapted to our tastes, and in which we can best enjoy ourselves. If such is true, and such are our privileges, then the different denominations are truly a great blessing to Christendom, and the more we have of them, the better it will be for the world.

We are now fairly supplied, as far as individual preferences are concerned. And there are but few that need remain out in the cold for want of a church relation. The door has been made exceedingly wide, and the regulations within are so liberal that the world can be largely suited. The cross is lost sight of. It is so much more pleasant to affiliate with a people who have no such a thing. There was a time when drunkards and those that defraud were made to stand outside of the church, but they can now find a church home, if they do their drinking and defrauding in a respectable way, especially if liberal in church support. The fact is, we have no world any more because it is more popular to be in the church. Talk about the world, style and fashion. Where is it? Go to our churches, there you can see it all—not those who slip in to see and be seen, but the real membership—those who have their rented pews, and who mince up to the altar for the bread and cup of the communion. Right there is found the world, the style and fashion that the New Testament church calls the works of the flesh and the devil. Strip such churches of the habiliments of sin and substitute the cross of Christ, and where would the membership be? No, the church language has been changed. The prayer not after the old form, "Not my will, but thy will be done," it now is, "Not thy will, but my will be done." And so it is, and so it may be in life. But there is a time coming when the Lord's will will be done, his judgments will be passed, and the world, whether in the church, or out of the church, will have to accept the decree and abide the consequences. This being true, it will be wisdom on our part to accept the Truth, and bear the cross now, so that when the judgment comes we may be among those who will have the Truth on our side, which will make us free, and give us entrance into the Heavenly Kingdom.

The teaching of indifference to the divine law, is dangerous, and derogatory to the character of its Author. God is represented to us as being impartial in dealing with his creatures, and his laws and commandments are equally binding on all. Our salvation is the result of divine grace. It is the outgrowth of his own beneficent purposes, and, therefore, depends on what he thinks, and not on our notions of how it should be or how we wish it. God's laws are treated with less reverence, on the part of many professing Christians than the laws of the land. In applying for titles on lands and property, we are not satisfied with the cheapest and most indifferent, but we want the very best. We want a title or deed in which all the forms of law are fully covered, no additions, no subtractions. We want it warranted and as safe as the law and seal of the State or States can make it. About these things, which are temporary to us, we are willing to run no risks. This is right and commendable, as our present well-being and enjoyments depend somewhat upon our possessions. This being true as to our temporary possessions, and well-being, should we not be much more concerned about that which pertains to our eternal enjoyments, which depend on our title to an inheritance that is eternal, and is promised to us on our compliance with the conditions as given us by the great Law-giver?

There is a difference as to what church we unite with, and we should make choice of the one that respects and holds all the Truth. The church on earth forms our religious home. It is supposed to be governed by God's law. This law we have. And by it we can determine, and make our own choice. Do we do it, and how? If it is liberty to do as we please, go with the world, and pander to the cravings of the flesh, then go to the church that opens wide its doors to all who may come,—the one that promises the most worldly enjoyment, and the least sacrifice, no cross. But if a Christian life and salvation are the objects we have in view, then we should go to the church that adheres most closely to the Gospel, where worldly enjoyment is not the object, and where the cross is found. "He that would be my disciple, let him take up the cross and follow me." No cross, no crown, is the truth of the Gospel. The cross first, and then the crown, as rest follows labor.

Let us see that our religion is the important object for which we live, and is worthy of all the labor and sacrifice that it demands.

HORACE GREELEY once said: "To sell rum for a livelihood is bad enough; but for a whole community to share the responsibility and guilt of such a traffic, seems a worse bargain than that of Eve or Judas."

WE have just read in the West Chester Republican an item, headed, "Lafayette's Disgrace." On the 9th inst., some twenty of the Freshmen of Lafayette College went out to the woods and cut themselves canes, and, returning, in the street they met about the same number of Sophomores, when a regular fight ensued. So vigorous was the affray that it required the police to stop the fight, and was done only by locking a number of them in cells in the station-house. This is one among the leading colleges of the East, but the class of students that attend these colleges are not proper associates for our children, and such outbreaks ought to teach us the necessity of patronizing our own schools, where morals and religion form an important part of the teaching.

H. B. B.

A LEAF FROM OUR NOTE-BOOK.

THE AMENDMENT.

RECENTLY we had a conversation with a gentleman living in a little village in the western part of Pennsylvania. The subject was the "Amendment." He said: "The time was when I was indifferent to this subject. A few years ago we had a licensed hotel in our village, but I felt indifferent to it. I did not drink, and I thought everybody ought to have sense enough to stay away from it. I had no sympathy for those who drank. I thought they ought to have better sense, and if they wanted to make fools of themselves, I had nothing to do with it. When the local option question came up, I was entirely indifferent. But I feel very differently now. I have a son, and before I was aware of it, he was decoyed into this hell hole, and now he is in the gutter. I can't tell you the trouble and sorrow he has caused me. The liquor traffic is the most wily and destructive enemy in the world, and I fear and hate it as the devil himself. I wish I could vote a thousand times for the Amendment." Such may be the experience of many more who now feel indifferent to this matter. In the first place, the feeling is wrong. One of the great commandments is, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." We can not obey this command and be indifferent to that which destroys our neighbor's manhood, brings him to a drunkard's grave and a drunkard's hell. In that striking illustration that Jesus gave of who our neighbor is, the indifferent ones are forcibly portrayed in the person of the priest who passed by the man that fell among thieves. All around us there are those who are falling into worse hands than thieves. The drink habit not onty robs us of our money, but of our virtue, and kills body and soul. And yet there are so many who feel indifferent. Can you feel this way and yet love your neighbor as yourself? You know you can't. This indifference is criminal. It is a violation of the plainest principles of the Gospel.

Notice, in the second place, what you do by your indifference to this subject. Suppose you remain indifferent, and on the 18th of June you do not cast your vote in favor of the Amendment. Suppose that, through your indifference, it is defeated, and then in the State of Pennsylvania we will have the licensed saloon. By and by, some of your neighbors' children, or, possibly, some of your own, are drawn into these places, and become drunkards. This will be the result, for the liquor dealers are very much concerned about the boys and young men. The old drunkards will soon die off, and they must have recruits from the young men to keep up their hell-begotten business. Just recently a young man told us of how a certain hotel-keeper's wife tried to entice him, when just a boy, into the net. She told him to come with her up-stairs, where she would give him nice cake and plenty of wine. It was the devil's trap to catch the boy, and just as sure as we have the licensed saloons, thousands of Pennsylvania's bright boys will be ensnared.

Now, my brother, if, by your indifference, the Amendment is defeated, and these results follow, which they will just as sure as you live, how will you feel about it? Will you not have helped to lay a block in the way of your own and your neighbor's children, over which they will fall in degradation and ruin? Can you wash your hands and say that you are clear of their blood? Jesus says, "Whosoever shall offend one of these little ones (cause them to stumble and fall), that believe in me, it were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and he were cast into the sea." Of course Christ had specific reference, by "little ones," to those who were his adopted children, but the meaning will apply with equal force to those who aid in throwing a stumbling-block in the way of those who are standing at the turning point of life, and are not yet under the influence of the liquor habit. It is a terrible warning, and should come with force to us as we contemplate the result of indifference to the prohibition movement in the State of Pennsylvania. May God help every voter to consider this matter seriously. There are only two sides. The one is for temperance, and the other is for the liquor traffic. There seems to be no middle ground. If you withhold your vote, you help the liquor side. You may not want to do this, but it is really the result. If you vote for the Amendment, you help the side of temperance. Which will you do? Which is the safest course to pursue?

It is sometimes said that if the Amendment is passed it will not suppress the evil. Granted. But will that justify any one in being indifferent to it? If we can't suppress an evil, it is still our duty to do what we can against it. We do not suppose that the passage of the Amendment will do away entirely with the drink habit. We have a law against murder and stealing, and yet we have murders and thefts. No one will deny, however, that the law against these evils is good. We hardly know what the result would be if such a law did not exist. So with a law against the manufacture and sale of liquors as a beverage. We do not expect that it will not be violated. But it will certainly be better than if such a law did not exist. We should not, therefore, be indifferent to this matter on the ground of not prohibiting. Indeed, if the Amendment should accomplish very little in that direction, it would still be a duty to give our vote in its favor.

The matter as to how the Amendment, should it pass, will affect our taxes, does not enter into the discussion of the question from a moral standpoint. If the liquor traffic is an evil, it should be opposed, no matter how it affects our finances. The argument against the Amendment from that stand-point can be easily met, but the point with us, as Christians, is the evil and how to meet it.

ESSAYS.

"Study to show thyself approved unto God; a workman that needeth not be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth."

GETHSEMANE.

Night above Judea's mountains folds her mantle like a pall,
While the shadows of her flowing robe o'er hill and valley fall;
Sad Gethsemane, above thee seems a darker shadow thrown,
Where the Savior kneeleth lowly in his agony alone.

Blessed Lord, what bitter anguish in that dreadful hour was thine,
When the powers of earth and heaven seemed against thee to combine,
When the angel, bending o'er thee, held the flaming chalice down,
And revealed the fearful torture of the cross and thorny crown.

O Gethsemane! mute witness of the agony of God,
Consecrated by his sorrow, ever holy be thy sod;
Mercy in his heart, with Justice striving, there the victory won,
As he cried: "O Heavenly Father, not my will but thine be done!"

While on earth we're doomed to wander, every soul must surely know
Some dread hour of desolation, some Gethsemane of woe—
Moments when the fainting spirit in its weariness will groan,
Weakly shrinking from the trials that it fears to meet alone.

From thy ways we stray too often, agonizing Son of God,
We would walk to heaven on roses, while on thorns thy feet have trod;
Teach our hearts that it is only by the Cross the Crown is won,
In the hours of deepest sorrow, let us say, "Thy will be done."

COMMENDATORY.

BY J. L. SWITZER.

IT is somewhat the exception to find a terse, straight-forward and pointed article upon doctrine, that is clear and without alloy.

Even upon the clearest truths, how often we are pained to see that they are not comprehended, and men have "queer" notions concerning them. But in beautiful contrast with this humiliating fact, comes the last article of Bro. J. H. Moore in MESSENGER for April 2. Let all our ministering Brethren read carefully that short article, and get a correct idea of what faith, repentance and conversion mean. Especially would I advise our younger brethren to do so.

The article on Prohibition, in the same number, is also especially good, and the advice to the Brethren to aid, in every lawful way, the struggle now going on in Pennsylvania, is highly commendable and appropriate. The conclusions are eminently correct that Kansas has gained much every way by the Prohibitory law. It is almost an unbearable provocation to see how reckless the advocates of rum are, in misrepresenting the workings of this law in Kansas.

The fact is, the law is grand and good and salutary, and has arrested many a poor soul on his downward course, by placing alcohol beyond his reach.

Among other things said, you will sometimes hear that there is more whiskey drunk in Kansas since the Prohibitory law came into effect, than ever before.

That is a gross misrepresentation, and is entirely untrue. On the contrary, the law has greatly curtailed the amount of drinking. It has relegated the saloon men and the drinkers and drinking habit to the criminal code, where they properly belong, and our alms-houses and jails are no longer overrun with the victims of drunkenness.

We had a hard struggle to secure the law and a harder one to enforce it. Every inch of ground was contested and fought over from the Justice of the Peace to the Supreme Court of the United States. But at the hand of sturdy frontiersmen, rum had to succumb; and now it goes off to other States, and lies about the issue. That is all it has left.

"But haven't we a right to drink what we please?" No, sir! If you don't belong to the Lord, you belong to your wife and children, and if you have no wife and children, you belong to the commonwealth. In any case, you have no right to put an enemy into your mouth to steal away your brains. Whiskey costs money, and that money belongs to the Lord, or it belongs to your wife and children, or it is necessary to keep you from tramping, or to shield you from want and the temptation to commit crime. Whiskey creates crime, as the statistics of our State abundantly show, and hence is an enemy to the body politic. It destroys body and soul, and hence is an enemy to morality and virtue. It kills beyond the tomb, and hence antagonizes the kingdom of heaven.

"Drink what you please?" No, sir! Nothing within the whole realm of jurisprudence comes more legitimately within the province of legislation, than the whiskey traffic. You have no right, by any law under heaven, to drink it, except as medicine, and that only when some other judgment than your own dictates the necessity. Whiskey has its uses. Use it, but let the judiciary see that you do not abuse it.

"Talk about your orchards and vineyards and corn-fields becoming unremunerative" unless they are turned into alcohol! Is it possible that bread and apple-butter and grape-jelly are so abundant that there are no poor people in Pennsylvania any more who would relish them? Fudge! Feed your corn and apples to cows! Let the poor glean in your vineyards! Sell the bunches in Philadelphia! Send them to New York! Eat them at home, preserve them, do anything with them rather than make your sons drunk, and bring your gray hairs in sorrow to the grave!

It is eminently good, to march anxiously and devoutly and earnestly up to the very edge of Gospel limits, to encourage and assist others in the accomplishment of good, and to help your State to unfurl at its masthead the beautiful banner of King Emmanuel.

THE BREAD OF LIFE.

BY DANIEL HAYS.

For centuries it was the belief when a man swallowed a dose of medicine, the medicine acted according to some inherent property of its own on a particular organ of the body. Recent investigations, however, have reached a different conclusion, one, it is claimed, more in harmony with physiological law. Life alone can act. A dose of medicine is a lifeless, inert substance, and can not act by any power of its own. It is the living organs of the body that act on the medicine, and not the medicine that acts on the organism.

According to this theory, when a dose of medicine is taken, the stomach can not digest it, the system can not use it, because it is not food. So the organs of the body are summoned to get rid of it. If it be what is technically called a physic, the liver is called upon to pour out a stream of bile, and the medicine is carried off by the intestinal canal. If it be a diuretic, it is expelled from the circulation by means of the kidneys. If it be a diaphoretic, it passes off through the pores of the skin; and so on. Now these two theories lie at different points of the polemical compass, and the truth seems to lie between. There is a natural affinity between proper medicinal agents and the organs of the body.

Experience proves that certain agents other than food are beneficial in giving tone to the system, and awakening to action the organs suffering from torpidity superinduced by over-indulgence, and improper living. "They that be whole need not a physician, but they that are sick." The human body in health needs only food.

To turn from the natural to the spiritual, it is the belief of many that the bread and wine of communion, according to some heaven-given property of its own, does act upon the communicant, so as to give life and cancel sin. There are two wings to this theory, the one that holds to the doctrine of transubstantiation—the supposed miraculous change of the bread and wine into the body and blood of Christ. The other holds to the doctrine of consubstantiation—a substantial though mysterious union of the body and blood of our Lord with the bread and wine after consecration. Anti-scriptural terms lead to anti-scriptural views.

A careful examination of Holy Writ reveals the fact that the act af communion, and the worthiness of the communicant, are leading and essential factors in the communion service. "This do in remembrance of me." "For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye do shew the Lord's death till he come." On the other hand, "he that eateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh damnation to himself, not discerning the Lord's body." Then the act of the communicant in the holy service approves him in the sight of God, when worthy; and the act of the communicant condemns him, if unworthy.

There is a spiritual affinity between the soul of the worthy communicant and the communion service. The soul receives life, and obtains food to sustain life, not by thinking, but by doing. "My meat is to do the will of him that sent me." "Man liveth by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." "I am that Bread of Life. Your fathers did eat manna in the wilderness, and are dead. This is the bread which cometh down from heaven, that a man may eat thereof and not die. * * * The bread that I will give is my flesh which I will give, for the life of the world." Jno. 6.

There were two classes puzzled at this language of our Lord. The first were the Jews who strove among themselves saying, How can this man give us his flesh to eat? To them the Savior replies in still stronger terms, "Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of Man, and drink his blood, ye have no life in you. Whoso eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, hath eternal life; and I will raise him up at the last day. For my flesh is meat indeed, and my blood is drink indeed." The other class were the disciples who said, "This is a hard saying; who can hear it?" To them the Savior gives an explanation: "What if ye shall see the Son of Man ascend up where he was before? It is the Spirit that quickeneth; the flesh profiteth nothing: the words that I speak unto you, they are spirit, and they are life."

This explanation of our Lord covers the whole ground; and it makes the practice of the words of truth the source of Christian vitality. Those who follow Christ no further than the Jews did in their investigation of this subject, will fall into the doctrine of consubstantiation, if not into transubstantiation. A true disciple of Christ will hear all that Jesus has said upon the subject, call Gospel things by Gospel terms, and obey them in spirit and in truth.

Avoid talking about yourself, praising your own works, and proclaiming your own deeds. If they are good, they will proclaim themselves; if bad, the less you say of them the better.

THE GREAT BURDEN-BEARER.

BY MATTIE A. LEAR.

"Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."—Matt. 11. 28.

The Gospel says but little about Jesus until he began his public ministry. They give a brief account of his birth and infancy. Luke tells us that the "child grew and waxed strong in spirit, filled with wisdom; and the grace of God was upon him." He also tells us that his parents went up every year to the feast of the Passover, and that, when Jesus was twelve years old, having accompanied them, he tarried behind in Jerusalem, and his parents having gone a day's journey, thinking that he was among their kindred, but failing to find him, returned back in search of him, and found him in one of the schools of the Rabbis, held in one of the courts of the temple, both hearing the explanations of the learned doctors, and asking them questions. His wisdom at that early age astonished those that heard him. The evangelist then adds, "Jesus increased in wisdom, and stature, and in favor with God and man."

From these meagre accounts of his early life, and from the manner and scope of his teaching afterwards, we can easily imagine how his youth and early manhood were spent. Jesus was no idler. Much of his time was spent laboring at the same calling followed by Joseph.

Christ was a diligent student of God's Word, and a close observer of nature. Nothing escaped his notice; the grass of the field, the fragrant, many-tinted flowers, the farmer going forth to sow, the growing and ripening grain, the vineyard protected by its hedge and tower, and having its winepress, the vine with its rich clusters, were all noted, and afterwards served as so many foundations for his instructive parables.

We may well imagine that every hill, mountain or valley around Nazareth was familiar to this wondrous boy or man. As he stood on some eminence and gazed at the landscape spread out before him, what thoughts must have filled his sinless soul; and what brightness must have shone from those lustrous eyes! The song of some feathered songster, the little sparrows seeking their food, the raven cawing from some high crag, the fox, frightened by his approach, darting to his home, all, all were subjects of meditation, and spoke to him of his Father's love and care for even the humblest of his creatures.

Purity of heart brings one in harmony with God. The pure in heart see God every-where,—in his Word and in his works,—and all speaks peace to their souls.

Judea, during the time of our Lord's sojourn, and for some time previous to his birth, had been in a state of great political ferment. For thirty years or more, the throne of David had been occupied by an Edomite than which, nothing could have been a greater scandal to the Jews. Being of this detested race, would, of itself, have made the reign of Herod unpopular, and his acts made him still more so. His adoption of heathen architecture and public games, and setting up of heathen symbols and effigies in the Holy City, and even in the temple itself, were distasteful to the Jews. Then his cruelties and extortions still intensified the national hatred more and more. This hatred reached a white heat under Herod's successor, Archelaus. All the fierce passions which had been held in check by the strong hand of the father, broke out with wild fury as soon as the weaker, but more despised, son assumed power. War, like a fierce cyclone, swept over the land, spreading devastation and ruin every-where, only to be quenched in blood by the legions of Rome.

The national feeling was, if possible, still outraged under the Procurators of Rome, who brought into the country heathen innovations more and more, and whose taxes and extortions brought upon every province under their rule financial ruin. This oppression was specially abhorrent to the Jews, who felt that their country was sacred to Jehovah, and that they were his chosen people, whose only rightful ruler was God himself. The patriotic cry of the people was, "No Lord but Jehovah; no tax but to the temple; no friend but a zealot." In their eyes it was idolatry to pay homage to Cæsar; idolatry to pay dues to a heathen government; it was defilement of what was pure to give tithes or customs from it to the unclean.

In the stern spirit of the Old Testament they thought only of hewing Agag to pieces before the Lord, believing themselves his instruments to rid the land of his enemies. He was a jealous God, who would suffer no other lords in his inheritance, and his will was a war of extermination on the heathen invaders, like that of Joshua against the Canaanites. The devastations of fire and sword brought on the people by the opposition of their leaders to the existing government, and the heavy burdens and grievous to be borne, imposed by their Rabbinical teachers with their endless mass of traditions, and countless ceremonies (so that the prostration of intellect and soul before any priesthood was never equaled by that of the Jews before their rabbis), was indeed terrible.

From the hills around Nazareth, our Savior must often have seen the smoke of burning villages and cities, and often have heard harrowing tales of cruelty and bloodshed, until his compassionate soul must have been stirred to its utmost depths at the recital of such wrongs.

The poor, the oppressed, the downtrodden were ever objects of his tenderest pity. In the outcasts of society he could see something good, a spark of heavenly life that needed only the hand of love to fan into a flame. He could take a detested Publican or Samaritan by the hand, and point him to a higher life. The weeping penitent or the dying thief were objects of his forgiving love. The wretched leper, shunned and detested by all, could approach this immaculate one. But he had no sympathy with the narrow bigotry of the Pharisees and rabbis, nor with their wretched traditions and superstitions.

His zeal for his Father's honor was the great concern of his life. He magnified the law of God, and made it honorable by rendering unto it a perfect obedience. He was himself perfectly familiar with the Word of God, and his exhortation to others was to search the Scriptures. It was the substitution of tradition and rabbinical speculations and enlargements, that brought the Jewish religion into such a state of confusion.

When Jesus commenced his public ministry, and mingled more with the people, his heart was more and more burdened with the enslaved condition of the masses, enslaved by a merciless government, and still more enslaved by their religious teachers.

The teachings of Christ made little impression on the self-righteous leaders, who fancied that all truth was with them.

Jesus, after upbraiding the cities in which he had taught most, offered a prayer of thanksgiving to his Father, that though the sublime truths, which he uttered, were hidden from the wise and prudent, they were revealed unto the humble and lowly. Then, with a voice of ineffable tenderness, he calls these oppressed ones unto him, "Come unto me," I know all the wrongs that you suffer, I know how you are oppressed, I know all the evils to which you are subjected. Come unto me and I will give you rest,—rest from your cares, from your anxieties. I know, because of the extortions of your rulers, you are often concerned about your temporal wants, and anxiously ask, "What shall we eat? or what shall we drink? or wherewithal shall we be clothed?" "Come to me and I will supply all your wants, and give you rest from all your anxieties."

And is not the same, kind invitation extended to us? How many burdened souls have found perfect rest, perfect repose in him since that time? Oh how many cares, how many sorrows oppress the soul! Business cares, family cares, sometimes sickness and misfortune fall heavily upon us. Sometimes death invades our households, and takes from us the light of our eyes, the joy of our hearts. Sometimes our reputation is assailed, and those whom we once thought our dearest friends, cease to remember us, and we miss, oh, so sadly miss their words of encouragement and Christian affection.

How many things occur in life to wring the heart and depress the spirits! Until our hearts are completely subdued, our wills entirely subjected to the divine will, until we are wholly lost in Christ, and our whole being brought in perfect harmony to the plans and purposes of God, we can not but be anxious, careworn, and perplexed. But when the soul is once brought into sweet accord with the revealed will of God, life puts on a new aspect. We can see beauty and order, where formerly we could only see confusion. In circumstances where we formerly thought the hand of the Lord was against us, we can now only see goodness and mercy. Everything is to us vocal with the boundless love of God. Our sorest trials, disappointments and afflictions we recognize as ministers of mercy, bringing us into a closer relationship and oneness with Christ.

Oh, happy our state, when we have no will or wish of our own, but when every will, every wish is merged into the Divine will,—when the burden of our prayers are submission, entire submission to the divine will, and that the Master will, in his own good time and way, cleanse us from all dross, purify us and make us meet for usefulness here, and for heaven hereafter!

"THE FOOLISHNESS OF GOD."

BY C. H. BALSBAUGH.

Yours here. Sickened me to read it. Too weak to write, but am constrained to "testify the Gospel of the Grace of God." Acts 20: 24. Your light is darkness and it is very great. Matt. 6: 23. The intellect has only lamp-light. The Shekinah blazes beyond the second veil. The first Adam was very good: the second Adam very God. Nature is God's Hieroglyphic: but Christ is God himself. We know nothing, till we know all things in God. The universe is the Shadow of God; Emmanuel is His Eternal Substance. The letter is not the Gospel, nor is our natural knowing and doing the knowledge or realization of God. You mistake the flickering of reason for the light of Divinity. I know, means more in a believer's mouth than yours. What the Gospel was in Paul's day it is now,—"the power of God unto salvation, to every one that believeth." Rom. 1: 16. The wisdom you so eulogize is no more equal to the right apprehension of God than eighteen centuries ago. 1 Cor. 1: 21–30. True science and philosophy, much as I prize them in their sphere, are wholly out of the category of the knowledge that bringeth salvation. John 17: 3. Philpp. 3: 10—read context 14 to 9; 1 John 5: 20. You know a little about me through our correspondence and other media, but me you do not know as to my essential being. Could you, by faith or by any other way, appropriate me, so as to have my very self as your own consciousness, then you would know me. And just this is the knowledge of God by faith: this, and only this, is salvation through the incarnation of God. Do not regard yourself as a saved man until you so know God. To believe in God is to live by God. You have not yet begun to live. Christ and life are synonyms. Philpp. 1: 21, Col. 3: 4, Darwin and Huxley, and Tyndall, and their whole fraternity, have never learned to loose Christ's shoe-latchet. In science they are Masters; in religion dabblers. You must break with them, and sit at the feet of illiterate fishermen to become wise. I write plainly, but in love, 1 John 1: 2, 3. Your metaphysical habit of thought is a great barrier to salvation. As a little child you must enter the kingdom of God. You cannot tell me any thing about science and philosophy, or any other department of the world's wisdom, which I do not know, although I know so little. No man has waded deeper in that mud than I. It all lies clear outside the wisdom that fulfills Philpp. 4: 7, 1 John 2: 20, 27. To be a fool for Christ's sake is to know by blessed experience what is meant by John 14: 27; 1 Peter 1: 8, 9.

Write to me about Jesus as represented in Col. 2: 2, 3, and you will make my heart glad. He is the key to all the mysteries that so baffle the wiseacres of this nineteenth century. John 1: 3, 4, 14. The sages of the world's wisdom have taught me much, but they have not done for me, Luke 24: 45, and Eph. 3: 16–19. You must never know what it is to know, till you share the nature and consciousness of God. And this according to Ephes. 3: 17. A soul-enshrined Christ by faith, rooted and grounded in love, which is God, 1 John 4: 16.

Farewell; may you know, as the very knowing of yourself, 1 John 1: 5, 7.

Again, adieu. 2 Tim. 2: 7.

THE FULFILLING OF PROPHECY—A CRITICAL EXAMINATION OF SCRIPTURE.

BY F. C. RENNER.

Number 1.

"Blessed is he that readeth, and they that hear the words of this prophecy, and keep those things which are written therein: for the time is at hand."—Rev. 1: 3.

Much has been said and written in regard to the above subject, but we learn from Holy Writ that those things could not all be fully understood till the time of the end, and then only by the wise or those who are blessed with the wisdom of the Lord, for the fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom, and the testimony of the Lord maketh wise the simple!

Therefore, first to open the eyes of the understanding, we must remove some of the obstacles that are in the way, and which are so deeply rooted in the minds of the people that they can not understand the sure words of prophecy. The obstacle that is most in the way is found in Mark 13: 32: "But of that day and hour knoweth no man; no, not the angels which are in heaven, neither the Son, but the Father."

This Scripture is fulfilled, and was fulfilled at the destruction of Jerusalem, as you will fully see by referring to Matt. 24. The whole chapter refers to the destruction of Jerusalem, and the coming in of the Gospel dispensation, and the ending of the old law.

Matt. 25 refers to the second personal appearance of Christ at the end of the dispensation of grace. Read Matt. 25: 1–13.

Now, as proof of the above, turn to Matt. 24: 14: "And this Gospel of the Kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come."

This is generally understood to mean the end of the world, but was literally fulfilled in that generation then living. We will prove that the Gospel was preached to all the world by the apostles. Turn to Acts 2: 5,—"Devout men from every nation under heaven at Jerusalem who heard the Gospel." Turn to Col. 1: 23. Here we have proof that the Gospel was preached even to every creature which is under heaven. "But all have not obeyed the Gospel but all have heard for their sound went into all the earth, and their words unto the ends of the world." See Rom. 10: 16-18. The 27th verse is quoted as the manner in which the Lord will come. It reads as follows: "For as the lightning cometh out of the East, and shineth unto the West, so also shall the coming of the Son of Man be." This was also fulfilled in that generation. Read verse 30, and then turn to Matt. 10: 23. These are the words of Jesus to the disciples in that day and generation: "But when they persecute you in this city, flee ye into another: for verily I say unto you ye shall not have gone over the cities of Israel till the Son of Man be come."

This is direct proof that it was within that generation that the Son of Man came, for the Word of God was the Son of Man which came to all men, even the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ. John 1: 1-5. Again, turn to Acts 1: 10, 11. Here two angels inform the disciples that Jesus would come again in like manner as they saw him go into heaven. These two angels may have been the same two that sat at the tomb of Jesus. Luke 24: 4; John 20: 12. Now Jesus did not ascend like the lightning, for the disciples beheld him, and they stood gazing steadfastly into heaven. We must admit that the angels knew what they were talking about, and that they told the truth. Hence, when the Lord comes, he will come as he went to heaven. Matt. 24: 31. The angels here are his ministers; the trumpet is the Gospel trumpet, carried to the four winds to proclaim the glad tidings of salvation. Now turn to verse 34: "Verily I say unto you, This generation shall not pass till all these things be fulfilled." What things? The destruction of Jerusalem, great tribulations, preaching of the Gospel to all nations, coming of the Son of Man, etc. But of the day and hour when these things are to happen, in that generation then living no man knew, not even the angels in heaven.

"Secret things belong unto the Lord our God." Deut. 29: 29. I will utter things which have been kept secret from the foundation of the world. Matt. 13: 35; also Rom. 16: 25.

Having now fully shown that the day and hour, which was not made known, is past, and that the second coming of the Lord will be according to Matt. 25: 1-13, and Acts 1: 11, we are now prepared to enter upon the prophecies as they are recorded in Daniel and the Revelations.

Whatever is written may be understood by a prayerful searching of the words of Divine Truth. "Blessed are they that read, and they that hear the words of this prophecy." In order to understand this prophecy, and to unravel the deep mysteries, we must go back to Daniel, who was greatly beloved of the Lord, and who saw even to the end of time.

Now Daniel says that he learned in books that the Lord would accomplish seventy years in the desolations of Jerusalem. Daniel desired to know when this would be done, and when he had fasted, and prayed in sackcloth and ashes (Daniel 9: 2, 3), he was informed by an angel, that came to inform him, of the time that was to elapse. Dan. 8: 24. "Seventy weeks are determined upon thy people, and upon thy Holy City, to finish the transgression, and to make an end of sins, and to make reconciliation for iniquity, and to bring in everlasting righteousness, and to seal up the vision and prophecy, and to anoint the most holy."

These seventy weeks can not reach to the complete destruction of Jerusalem, A. D. 70. Now we can not understand the seventy weeks to be anything else than 490 years, seven days in a week. A day in prophecy is a year. See Numbers 14: 34, also Ezek. 4: 6. Hence we have only to find the date of the going forth of the commandment to restore and build Jerusalem.

In Ezra 7: 13 we learn that in the seventh year of the reign of Artaxerxes, Ezra obtained a commission to go up to Jerusalem, but not to build Jerusalem, but to worship. This Ezra, we learn, served thirteen years in the Jews' religion, until Nehemiah brought a new commission from the Persian court. See Nehemiah chapter 1: 3; 2: 1. Here we have proof that Ezra went up thirteen years, because he went up in the seventh year of Artaxerxes, and here, in Artaxerxes' 20th year, Nehemiah, who was a Jew of distinguished merit, —one of the cupbearers of Artaxerxes,—besought the king to allow him to go up to the place of his fathers, Neh. 2: 3, 5, to the place of his father's sepulcher to build it. Upon this the king granted the commission. Neh. 2: 3, 17. This fully settles the time of the going forth of the commandment to build Jerusalem. Now, from the best chronology, we learn that this was about 450 years before Christ. Now, if we add the seventy weeks or 490 years, we reach A. D. 40, just one week from the crucifixion of Christ, or seven years, in which the church flourished, and became established; hence bringing in the everlasting righteousness of Christ, finishing the transgression of the law, because the law was annulled, and the ordinances nailed to the cross, and as the law was fulfilled and the Gospel fully established, reconciliation could now be made for iniquity for the first, for the law could make nothing perfect. The Gospel could make an end of the sins, so long carried along from year to year, until the Messiah would come to take them away. Here the seventy weeks ended.

THE IMPORTANCE OF OUR SCHOOLS.

BY DAN. D. THOMAS.

For some time my mind has been impressed with the importance of our schools and colleges. I believe that the church does not recognize them in their true capacity as a means to the prosperity of her cause, both as to the extension of her borders and as to unity of her faith. This, perhaps, is not so manifest in the church as a body, as individual members, having children to be educated.

The first consideration of brethren seems to be the financial outlay for getting an education for their children.

The second question is, the facilities of the school for attaining it.

The third question is, the distance from home.

The last consideration of all, is, the religious influence.

Parents usually have a great deal of confidence in their children, and because of that confidence they think that their children cannot be hurt by surrounding evil influences that are in every college,—sectarian or non-sectarian,—so-called. They are, according to their standard of judging, sent to schools of the world.

I received most of my education at a school of this kind, and know something of the inducements to allure young brethren and sisters from their faith, or to draw Brethren's children to the popular beliefs of to-day. I have watched with pain the influences, and have seen young people drawn away from the faith until they were engulfed in the fashions and usages of the world. I noticed but a single exception, in which the result of these influences was not manifest in a short space of time. Bro. Rosenberger's example in GOSPEL MESSENGER illustrates the rule.

In other schools the same influences are brought to bear. A brother who had traveled considerably among the churches, said, not long since, that they usually came home crippled.

It seems to me that brethren, or those sending their children to school, should consider most of all the religious influence, because they love their children,—they want their souls saved. "What is a man profited if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul? Or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?" Matt. 16: 26. The few dollars he saves?

Brethren, we should look to the religious influence because we love the church and the unadulterated religion of Jesus Christ. The Apostle Paul exemplifies, in Col. 2: 1, that we should manifest our love to one another, and we have abundant proof that we should manifest it toward the church.

I care not how the other points are arranged. If they enhance the spiritual interests of the student, God will take care of the rest. Let him, who loves missionary work, know that this is really the foundation of it all.

Williamstown, O.

FAMILY BONDS.—In our work of saving souls, God means that we shall begin with those nearest to us by the ties of kindred. Grace works from the centre outward. So we are constrained to this, not only by Christly love, but by that peculiar love which binds together the family. God implanted in the breast of the mother, love, not alone for temporal uses, but that it might constrain her to teach her boy the way of life. It is your duty to look after the salvation of your family. You have more influence over them than others have. They hear from the pulpit, and read in the Bible, threatenings of coming danger, but they naturally think that those who love them best would give warning if the danger be real. No such note of alarm is sounded, and they sleep on in the bosom of the family. There is no time to be lost. How soon may joy be changed to grief, songs be changed for sorrows! It is sad enough to our friends if we know we shall meet them in heaven; but to have them on the dying bed turn toward us, a look of reproach that we have spoken no word of warning, would give a pang from which all should pray to be spared.

DOING THINGS WELL.—There are three qualities that will insure success in any walk in life; namely ability, integrity, and industry; and though, at first, it might seem as if the first of these must be a gift and cannot be cultivated, you will find that it is a fact that every man has ability, if he only finds out in which line of studious action it lies. Ability is the power of doing a thing well. A man should learn early that he cannot have ability in everything; that is, few men have a great deal of general ability. The first rule should be that "whatever is worth doing at all is worth doing well." A man who does his best in whatever he undertakes, will soon find in what direction his efforts meet with the most marked success.

THERE is in the mind of men a certain presage, as it were, of a future existence; and this takes the deepest root and is most discoverable in the greatest genius and most exalted souls.

WHEN Aristotle was asked what a man could gain by telling a falsehood, he replied, "Never to be credited when he speaks the truth."

THE STAR-SPANGLED BANNER.*

BY M. W. SPENCER.

Fourth Paper.

On the 14th of June, 1777, the Continental Congress resolved "that the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white, that the union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation." This was the flag which, first unfurled by Captain John Paul Jones on the "Ranger," became the standard of the new American Republic. It floated above the historic field of Yorktown, and from the north bastion of old Fort George, while the troops of King George evacuated the city of New York, and the long war of the Revolution was ended.

To account for the origin of the Stars and Stripes, various theories have been advanced—from that which traces them to the "Union Jack" of England's flag to the highly practical claim that the banner of the Union represents the crimson clouds of sunset, blown into stripes by the free winds of heaven, and spangled with the evening stars, just twinkling in the blue. But none of these can be proven, and so one authority says the official origin of the "grand Union flag is involved in obscurity."

Just at this point history comes boldly to our relief. In the borough town of Northampton, some sixteen miles north-west of London, there is a glorious old mansion still standing, called the Althorp House, surrounded by ancestral oaks. And not far away stands the parish church of Brington, rich in monuments and memorials. Passing down the aisle with the parish clerk, he is accustomed to call attention to an uninviting spot, where lie concealed the old-time "brasses," so common in the parish churches of England, set in the pavement, and bearing inscriptions.

One of these brasses refers, says the clerk, to Robert Washington and his wife. They lived in this parish many years, and died in 1622. "Here is their coat-of-arms," he continued; "see the Stars and Stripes!" The record reads: "Robert Washington gent. second sonne of Robert Washington of Sulgrave in ye county of North." By referring to the Sulgrave church, there are other brasses, one of Laurance Washington upon the death of "Amee his wyf," in 1564. Then comes the likeness of Laurance Washington in his Mayor's robes. He was twice Mayor of Northampton, and his insignia of that office was the Shield, as it is to this day. Dim as are the outlines, we may there trace on the pavement of Sulgrave church, the shield, bearing upon its face, the Washington arms—the Stars and Stripes.

Laurance, grandson of the Mayor, died in Brington in 1616, as the "mural record" on his tomb in Brington church, bearing the shield, with the Stars and Stripes, bears witness.

Sir John Washington, second son of this second Laurance, and great-grandson of the mayor, becoming involved with King Charles under Cromwell, the Protector, fled to the New World in 1657. Leaving Yorkshire, he settled at Bridge's Creek in Westmoreland County in Virginia. Thus was established the American line of the Washingtons, for General George Washington, first President of the United States, was a great-grandson of this same Sir John Washington, the emigrant, as Sir John was great-grandson of the first Laurance, twice mayor of Northampton, and Lord Manor of Sulgrave.

The Washington arms which King Henry's adherent, the ex-mayor of Northampton, had placed above the porch of the Manor-house in 1540, bore the familiar shield, and on its face the stars and stripes, which, as a compliment to the Father of his country, his fellow-citizens caused to be placed upon our banner. No written records exist to prove this, but the fact was well known at the time, and Washington's old friend, Mrs. Ross, an upholsteress of Arch Street, Philadelphia, was instructed by a committee of Congress, in June 1776, to work these emblems into a flag, from designs drawn by Washington himself in the little back parlor of the Arch Street house.

So the Star-spangled Banner dates back almost to the days of Knights and Crusaders, the Great Reformation, and the discovery of America, on which account it has been called "the worn-out rag of feudalism." But as an English author well says (when speaking of Sir John Washington, who left his Yorkshire fells for a new home beyond the sea), "On he rode to carry across the Atlantic a name which his great-grandson should raise to the loftiest heights of earthly glory, and a coat-of-arms which, transformed into the flag of a mighty nation, should float over every sea, as far and as proudly as the blended crosses of St. Andrew, St. Patrick, and St. George.

Admiral Preble, of the United States navy, who wrote a very interesting work on "Our Flag," says, in regard to Washington's crest and arms, "The American patriot was fond of genealogies, and corresponded with English heralds on the subject of his pedigree. Yes, this George Washington who gave sanction, if not birth to that most democratic of sentiments,—all men are born free and equal,—was, as the phrase goes, a gentleman of blood, of court-armor, and ancient lineage. When the Americans, in their most righteous revolt against the tyranny of the mother country, cast about for an ensign with which to distinguish themselves from their English oppressors, what did they ultimately adopt? Why, nothing more than a gentleman's badge,—a modification of the old English coat-of-arms, borne by their leader and deliverer." (See St. Nicholas for November, 1883.)

In the Boston state-house may be seen a facsimile of this inscription presented by Earl Spencer, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, through the instrumentality of Governor Andrew, Senator Sumner, and Jared Sparks, the biographer of George Washington. A description of the arms and crest of the Washington family may be seen in the Herald's College, London, England.

It should be noted here, that, originally, on the crest of the Washington family, as found in the Manor-house of Sulgrave, there was a raven instead of the spread eagle; also the motto "Exitus acta probat," taken from Ovid, the Latin poet, which passage, freely translated, means "Actions are tested by their results," instead of "E pluribus unum" of the national flag, and that the stars, usually three in number, were five-rayed instead of six, as they now appear. The five-pointed or five-rayed stars first appeared on the flag, as well as on all the coins, but after the death of Washington the six-rayed stars have been universally adopted by the Treasury Department at Washington, as may be seen on almost any American coin. The red, white and blue were not changed in the making up of the new ensign, only the stars were increased in number to correspond with the number of the States.

We have been thus particular that the reader may see that the flag of the Republic of America was not derived from Gentile sources, but direct from Israel. Like the obverse side of the seal, with which it compares, it has most of the Hebrew numerals. Especially is the Divine Trinity distinctly marked. The three lions on the British shield correspond with the three colors,—red, white, and blue of the flag,—a true trinity of colors. The thirteen stars are arrayed in "stripes" of three and four in a line,—together forming a six-rayed star, thus representing a double trinity, the same as the double trinity of lions on the British shield. The number seven is found in the narrow stripes on the shield, on the breast of the eagle, and in the number of stars after deducting the double trinity six, the number of the wide stripes on the eagle's breast. And, finally, the thirteen stars, the number of the sons of Jacob, are grouped into one star having six rays, making a third double trinity. Both the stars and stripes, like the British crosses, are set in a field of blue.

It has recently been proposed to add the "golden-rod," a flowering plant growing every-where in America, to the national emblems. Still this would not be unlike the flowery wreath, set round the British shield, representing the animal and vegetable kingdoms on both national banners.

The great goddess Diana, as usually figured, is not unlike our "Goddess of Liberty." Acts 19: 35. She, be it remembered, was the goddess of "the Sylvan shade," and on the band, coiling her waving locks, we have inscribed, "Liberty," as also on the cap at the top of the standard which she bears. This is appropriate, as her name is derived from Dan, the Hebrew, as was Danae of the Greeks, the subject of the "golden shower,"—a type of feminine purity and power in the union,—the white-winged Argos (Argurios), our ship of state. Her position in the constellation of of the seven planets, as they were called, is easily traced to the Phœnicians. Phœbus,—the sun—like the sun-seal of the Phœnicians, was her brother. She was called Phœbe, which answers to Ashtoreth, the goddess of the Sydonians, 1 Kings 11: 5. Her nymphs represented Dan going by sea, and her fifty children are typical of Dan's multiplied posterity. Surely, our Goddess of Liberty is well chosen!

The history of heraldry also reveals the fact, that our National Seal is closely allied to the British coat-of-arms. As the tribe of Manassah has been drawn from the Anglo-saxons of England, so are also her national emblems. The star appears on the helmet of the British soldiery, and is a reminder of the promised star of Bethlehem. The inner shield on the coat-of-arms is clearly represented on the seal, and both of them more fitly represent the seat of the Chair of State in Westminster Abbey, although they have been commonly called shields. The sign of the crosses, the emblem of our religion, is conspicuously omitted on the seal, as we have no State church, although the spirit of true religion is found here and represented in the stability of the pyramid, the one-half of the cross as above explained, under the ever-watchful eye of Jehovah.

We have no double-headed eagle as Russia and Austria, and when the proposition was made for "bars and stars" on our banner, it was scornfully rejected. In such an event the Hebrew interpretation given above would not have been possible. "This is the finger of God."

They are to be pitied the most who have nothing to do. They are happy who must keep in the groove of duty.

Our good deeds rarely cause much gossip among our fellow-citizens, but our evil ones leap immediately into notoriety.

Good nature is the best feature in the finest face. Wit may raise admiration, judgment command respect, knowledge, attention, beauty inflame the heart with love, but good nature has a more powerful effect—it adds a thousand attractions to the charms of beauty, and gives an air of beneficence to the homeliest face.

DUTIES OF MEN CLASSIFIED AND FOUND ON TWO TABLES.

BY I. J. ROSENBERGER.

THE reader will remember that when God gave his Law to Moses at Sinai's blazing summit, he wrote it on two tables of stone. The law being a type of the Gospel, whatever we find in the Law, we may also find carried into the Gospel. The point sought to put forth in this article is, to show what is signified by the two tables.

By turning to the code referred to, you will notice, it opens up, by first specifying our duty to God: "Thou shalt have no other gods before me," etc., and closes with duties of man to man, viz, "Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's house," etc., hence, on the first table, we find the duties man owes to God; and on the second table are found the duties man owes to man.

In the New Testament, there are differences and seeming incongruities which at once vanish, when looked upon through the microscope of our title above. Hence we affirm that the duties enjoined in the Gospel are found on two tables.

The First Table Embraces the Duties and Obligations due from Man to God.

1. We are to be perfect, "Be ye perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect." Matt. 5: 48.

"Be ye followers of God, as dear children, and be ye therefore merciful as your Father also is merciful."

Having "purified our souls in obeying the truth," we become heirs, and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ, having his mind, faith and spirit, and "following his steps;" we are commended to the approval of heaven. And it is then as the apostle says, "that we may present every man perfect in Christ Jesus." Col. 1: 28. This is the sense in which the Christian is perfect, moulding his life under the influence of this "perfect law of liberty;" being imbued with perfect love."

2. We are to hear Christ. "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased; hear ye him," Matt. 17: 5, said the Father from heaven. Moses referred to Christ 1451 years before he was born, and urged the necessity of "hearing him in all things that he shall say."

Our obedience to Christ signifies our union with him. If Christ is to be our Savior, we must be his subjects; for "he is the author of eternal salvation only to those that obey him." Hebrews 5: 9. Besides, "to whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey, his servants ye are to whom ye obey." Christ came as our great Teacher. He is the Author, and he ought to be the Finisher of our faith. He "left us an example, that we should follow his steps."

No allowance is made on this table for any omission of duty. "For whosoever shall keep the whole law and offend in one point, is guilty of all." The sad penalty of either adding to or taking from is plainly set forth in Rev. 22: 18, 19, and the happy experience of the Christian is, that, in hearing Christ, "his yoke is easy, and his burden is light."

3. Our duty to God is unchangeable. "Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, to-day and forever." Heb. 13: 8. The thought of "this same Jesus," is as comforting to the saints now as it was to his anxious, gazing disciples, when he took his last leave of them. "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away."

The thought of no change is very apparent, hence the doctrine of Christ, the ordinances of the Gospel, continues the same. Like the laws of the Medes and Persians, they change not. While time changes, customs change, creeds change, the religion of Jesus is unchangeable.

4. We are to love God. "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind." Luke 10: 27.

(a) Our obedience is evidence of our love to God; "for he that hath my commandments and keepeth them; he it is that loveth me. He that loveth me not, keepeth not my sayings." John 14: 21, 22

(b) Our love for each other is evidence of our love to God. "He that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen?" 1 John 4: 20.

5. Sin against God. "How then can I do this great wickedness, and sin against God?" Gen. 39: 9. Sin on this table is defined, 1 John 3: 4, "Transgression of the law."

The Law and Gospel define duty on two lines,—positive and negative. It not only tells us that we shall repent, be baptized, etc., but likewise tells us what we shall not do,—"Shall not steal," "shall do no murder," etc., hence we have the sins of omission and the sins of commission. There is no allowance made for sin on this, the first table; for "whosoever transgresseth and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God." We are to "follow his steps," 2 John 9. He left us the example.

6. In the duties we owe to God we dare not doubt. "He that doubteth is damned if he eat, because he eateth not of faith; for whatsoever is not of faith is sin." Rom. 14: 23. The individual that doubts his conversion, his baptism, or his communion service, in the exercise is not made happy; because he lacks the assurance of being right. No one can enjoy a journey when doubting whether he is on the right road.

7. "Every man shall bear his own burden." Gal. 6: 5. In life there are some things that we can do by proxy, by substitution,—some things that we can do for each other. In our redemption, however, every one must "work out his own salvation." It is only "he that doeth righteous that is righteous."

8. Christ's word will judge us. The apostle Paul, in 2 Tim. 4: 1, alluding to Christ, says, that he "shall judge the quick and the dead." Again, "The word I have spoken will judge him in the last day." John 12: 48. Upon this table man can not judge his duty because it originated in the mind of God; hence has been revealed.

This Second Table Embraces the Duties and Obligations due from Man to Man.

1. We are imperfect. "Till we all come in the unity of the faith * * * unto a perfect man, unto the stature of the fulness of Christ." Eph. 4: 13.

In this text, on this table, perfection is prospective.

"Therefore leaving the principles of the doctrine of Christ, let us go on unto perfection." Heb. 6: 1.

"Not as though I had already attained, either were already perfect." Philpp. 3: 12.

It is clearly seen in the texts above, that there is a point of perfection beyond; to which the apostle felt desirous to attain with his brethren, hence, in one sense, the Christian is not perfect in this life on account of his fallibility,—his lack of sight. "For now we see through a glass darkly; now we only know in part," etc.

2. We are to hear the church. It has long since been said that, "two can not walk together except they be agreed." The church being the representative body of Christ on earth, we see the necessity of harmony in that body,—"that there be no schisms in the body." There are in life countless sources from which differences arise. Harmony can alone be restored, peace maintained by hearing the church; as is set forth in Matt. 18. Solomon said in his day, "Where no counsel is, the people fall." In Exodus 18 we have the system adopted by Moses, in arbitrating differences that arose in the camp of Israel. A similar system is given by Christ in Matt. 18, to govern us under the Gospel. While we are to hear the church; yet we do not conclude that the church is infallible; but may have an influence brought to bear upon her that may lead her to err in judgment. In this case it is the privilege of the grieved to take an appeal,—ask for a rehearing. In doing so, we still are loyal subjects, and are hearing the church. Again, it may be best, at other times, for peace's sake, as Bro. Paul says, "to suffer wrong."

3. Our duty to each other is changeable. As our duty to each other grows out of our circumstances, and these, the reader well knows, are exceedingly varied, hence our duty on this table is changeable. Upon this point the apostle Paul clearly defines his manner as follows, "Unto the Jews I became as a Jew, that I might gain the Jews." * * * "I am made all things to all men, that I might by all means save some." 1 Cor. 9: 20–22.

This same trait of character is noticed by Peter in Gal. 2: 11–14. With our growth in knowledge comes a change in our ideas and sentiments, which gives rise to changes in our decisions of Annual Meeting. They are on the second table of duties, and rightly subject to change.

4. We are to love each other. "But as touching brotherly love, ye have no need that I write unto you: for ye yourselves are taught of God to love one another." 1 Thess. 4: 9. As evidence of this love we will not harm one another; "for love worketh no ill to his neighbor." Rom. 13: 10.

Our faith must be that kind that "worketh by love." Where this state of things exists there will be but little disposition to find fault with each other. Trouble will be easily adjusted, neither will we get weary in well-doing, because we are prompted by love.

5. Sin against our brethren. Peter inquired of his Master, "How oft shall my brother sin against me, and I forgive him?" Matt. 18: 21. Our Savior, in the fifteenth verse of the same chapter, adds, "Moreover, if thy brother shall trespass against thee," etc. In the above text we have clear allusions to sins on the second table, individual trespasses. For these the Gospel makes some allowance; means are provided for their remission. These are, repentance, Luke 17: 3; confession, 1 John 1: 9; the anointing the sick with oil, Jas. 5: 14. Sin, on this table, originates from errors in judgment, from germs of strifes and jealousies that lurk in the quiet recesses of the deceitful human heart. To safely guard us in these, requires prayer and watchfulness.

6. We are often led to doubt our faithfulness to each other. "So likewise ye, when ye shall have done all these things which are commanded you, say, We are unprofitable servants." Luke 17: 10. That we are in the rear, are unfaithful in our service to each other, is a common experience. This may prompt to to more faithfulness; more active life in the divine service.

7. "Bear ye one another's burdens." Gal. 6: 2. We are to bear each other's burdens of sorrow; share the grief of the broken-hearted, take compassion upon the poor. These are the fruits of Christian love.

8. Man is left to judge himself. "If we judge ourselves we shall not be judged." 1 Cor. 11: 31. Upon this table man can be the judge; for the principle to govern him is given by Christ. Matt. 7: 12. "All things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them."

THE MILLER AND SOMMER DEBATE.

(Concluded.)

FIFTH PROPOSITION.—The Scriptures teach that the bread and cup of the communion is the Lord's Supper to be taken on the Lord's Day only, as it is observed in the church represented by Daniel Sommer.

Daniel Sommer affirms.

R. H. Miller denies.

The closing days of debate were bright and clear; indeed, during the eight days of the discussion, the weather was all that could have been desired, and a great crowd of people came together to hear the conclusion of the whole matter. The large audience paid the closest attention to the arguments produced, and showed, by their thoughtful and absorbing interest, that they fully appreciated the points made. The last proposition was discussed with much earnestness on both sides. Bro. Miller appeared to grow stronger with each day of the debate. Eld. Sommer, in defending the position taken in the above proposition, presented the following arguments:

1. The Passover Argument. For Christ is our passover. 1 Cor. 5: 7. He referred to Exodus and gave a synopsis of the account of the institution of the Jewish Passover in which a lamb was to be slain and eaten and the blood sprinkled upon the lintels and door-posts of the houses. When the destroying angel came to take the life of all the first-born of the Egyptians, he passed over all the houses upon which was found the blood; hence, we have the name Passover. Christ is our Passover, and God will pass over our offenses because of his blood.

2. Priesthood Argument. Heb. 7: 12. The Priesthood being changed, the law is also of necessity changed. Christ being our Passover he is also our high-priest. Here we can say that the Priesthood has been changed and this involves a change of the law.

3. The Flesh and Blood Argument. John 6: 48, 51. "I am that bread of life." How can Christ give us his flesh to eat? By referring to Matt. 26: 26, we have the key that unlocks the mystery. He took bread and brake it and said to his disciples, "This is my body."

4. Established Order Argument. Acts 2: 42. Here we have the breaking of bread in connection with good works, prayer, etc. There is an order in all acts of worship and here we have this order set forth.

5. First Day of the Week Argument. Acts 20: 6, 7. Here the disciples met on the first day of the week to break bread and we thus have their example and we follow them by meeting on the first day of the week. Some say that it does not mean every first day of the week, but the Jews were commanded to remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy and so, as soon as that day came, the Jews thought of the Sabbath, hence we understand that first day means every first day. The primitive disciples met on the first day of the week. Christ arose on the first day of the week. It is the day we celebrate. It becomes the grand and glorious day of the Christian era around which our hopes cluster.

6. Delivered Argument. 1 Cor. 11: 23. Here Paul declares that he received from the Lord and delivered to the disciples the bread and the cup. They were not to come together to eat because they were hungry, but if they hungered they were to eat at home and were thus to be prepared to take the bread and wine.

7. Perfect Revelation Argument. 2 Tim. 3: 16, 17. The Word of God is perfect and the Elder here sought to show that the Lord's Supper, as observed by the Brethren, was more than the Scriptures demanded. He claimed in keeping the Lord's Supper we were Judaizing and that we were in fact keeping the Jewish Passover. He challenged Bro. Miller to show that Christ did not eat the Jewish Passover and said that here was the rock upon which his opponent must founder. Here was an obstacle that was insurmountable, and he wanted it fairly met. He emphasized this point and referred to it several times and insisted that his opponent should meet it fairly. He was satisfied in his own mind that this could not be done, and hence here it was that defeat was to come to the other side of this question.

8. Testimony Argument. John 20: 30, 31. Many things were written that we might believe, but we are not to observe anything unless it is carried over to the apostles and re-affirmed by them. We are only to obey what Jesus said to us as a King. We are to have the testimony of the apostles.

9. Jewish Feast Argument. Matt. 26: 17. Christ ate the Jewish Passover with his disciples and his opponent is trying to perpetuate the Jewish feast, hence he is a Judaizing teacher. The Elder claimed, doubtless from a lack of information, that Bro. Miller taught that the Lord's Supper should be observed but once a year, and that he taught this, and that it was observed by the church, because the Jewish Passover was observed only once a year. He closed his arguments by again calling attention to the statement made by him that Christ ate the Jewish Passover and that it was not proper that a feast should be eaten in connection with the communion.

NEGATIVE.

Bro. Miller, in replying to Eld. Sommer, referred to the fact that it was a little difficult to see the points in some of the arguments presented. Take the first argument which was called the Passover argument. He could not see how this bore any relevancy to the question, or how, in any way, it could be regarded as proving "that the bread and cup of the communion is the Lord's Supper to be taken on the Lord's Day only." The fact that a lamb was slain by the Jews, the flesh eaten, the blood sprinkled on the lintels and door posts, gives no proof whatever that the proposition affirmed by my opponent is true.

Again, take the Flesh and Blood Argument: in what way does this prove that the bread and cup is the Lord's Supper to be eaten on the first day of the week only?

In his Established Order Argument the cup is not mentioned,—simply the breaking of bread. Can you get an established order argument out of a Scripture when you must add to it? Acts 2: 42 says nothing about the cup, and here my friend in order to make his argument must add to the Scripture. We object to taking from or adding to. We take God's Word as we find it, and are willing to obey in all things whatsoever he has commanded us. The Priesthood Argument does not seem to be relevant to the question. In presenting his First Day of the Week Argument my opponent did not read quite far enough. If he would have read the full account he would have found that Paul preached until midnight and then broke bread. The disciples, on the first day of the week, or Sunday, came together to break bread. Paul preached in great earnestness to them until midnight, and afterwards broke bread, so that the breaking of bread took place not on the first day of the week but on the second. The very Scripture he quotes to sustain his proposition, overthrows it. He attempts to add to the Word by saying that the communion must be taken only on the first day of the week, whereas Paul broke bread on the second day of the week.

The Delivered Argument, the Testimony Argument and the Jewish feast Argument do not help him. He names his arguments but fails to produce any facts that bear on the question at issue. In reply to the charge so strongly made and so often reiterated that the Brethren observe the Jewish Passover, Bro. Miller presented a chart showing the exact divisions of time among the Jews. The chart as explained gives the clearest and strongest proof that Christ did not eat the Jewish Passover that we have seen on this question. To be fully appreciated, it must be seen, and we regret that we are not able to furnish our readers with a cut of it. We are, however, having a drawing made of it which will be engraved and placed in the book. The effect produced on the audience by the chart and the explanation and the argument based upon it was very marked, and Eld. Sommer, in his reply, said, if Christ did not eat the Jewish Passover, he ate some kind of a Jewish feast, thus virtually surrendering the point upon which he had placed so much stress. Bro. Miller said, the chart shows that the Jewish day began in the evening and to this all Bible commentators, both Jewish and Christian, assent.

At the going down of the sun on the thirteenth day of the month, i. e., in the afternoon, the disciples came to Christ and asked him where they should prepare the Passover or supper. He gave them instruction, and in the evening, the beginning of the fourteenth day, he ate a full meal with his disciples. In connection with the meal he washed the disciples' feet and instituted the communion. From the supper he went into the garden, was arrested, taken to Annas and then to Caiaphas and from thence to Pilate where he was condemned. Notice that the Jews went not into the judgment hall lest they should be defiled, in which case they could not have taken part in eating the Passover, showing that it had not yet been eaten. All these events took place during the night and morning of the 14th. He was crucified about 12 o'clock and at the ninth hour, or about 3 o'clock, gave up the ghost, at the time that the Paschal Lamb was to be slain. How could the Savior have eaten the Passover lamb with his disciples nearly twenty hours before it could be legally killed? Exodus 12: 6, shows that the Passover was to be killed in the evening of the 14th, and Numbers 33: 3, declares that the Hebrews went out of Egypt on the 15th, the morrow after the Passover. This settles beyond all question the legal time for the killing of the Passover.

Bro. Miller then gave the following arguments.

Our first argument is founded on the example of Christ. He ate a meal with his disciples and in connection with the meal gave the communion. Luke and John call the meal a supper. My opponent wants to change the ordinance. Christ gave it in the evening about the middle of the week. The Elder rejects the supper and changes the time for taking the communion from night to the forenoon before dinner. The Lord's table is also set aside. Christ and the apostles had a table at which they ate and called it the Lord's table, but he sets this aside. In these points he differs from Christ and the apostles.

2. The meaning of the Greek word deipnon translated into the English, supper, means a full meal and was the principal meal of the day among the Jews. Liddell's and Scott's definition of deipnon is "Supper, the principal meal of the day." The word occurs sixteen times in the New Testament and each time it means a meal, "a feast," "a great supper," etc., etc. If my opponent takes a word out of the New Testament which means a full meal and cuts it down to a sip of wine and a crumb of bread, how can he object when others take immersion and cut it down to sprinkling with a few drops of water.

3. Inspired men of God established a full meal in connection with the communion in the apostolic age of the church, as Christ instituted it, calling it a feast of love. 1 Cor. 11: 17, 34; 2 Pet. 2: 13; Jude 1: 12. My opponent cuts out the feast of love, the feast of charity, thus setting aside an important part of the ordinance. The communion was held in connection with a love-feast by the early Christians for several centuries. Bro. Miller here quoted from a number of the best authorities showing the practice of the early church, and that the love-feasts were set aside by the councils of Laodicea and Carthage, changing the time first of eating the meal from evening to morning and then finally setting it aside altogether.

4. Christ gave the supper at night.

5. The church represented by Daniel Sommer holds the communion in the morning on the first day of the week only. Christ did not establish it at that time or on that day. The Roman or Latin church established this order while the Greeks adhered to the ordinances as they were delivered to them. My friend follows the Roman Catholics in this particular.

6. The apostles administered and received the communion at a table, "The Lord's Table." The full meal that Christ ate and the apostles established is "the Lord's Supper." The cup is the communion of the blood of Christ, and the bread, of his body. My opponent sets aside the order of Christ and the apostles, hence his church is not Apostolic. Christ instituted the ordinance at a table around which all were seated. No one has a right to change the order as given by Christ and the apostles.

7. This refers to 1 Cor. 11: 20. Paul says here, "This is not to eat the Lord's Supper." Here is a supper, a full meal, but the disciples were out of order in eating it. They had come together to eat the Lord's Supper but they failed to do so. Why? The apostle answers in the twenty-first verse, "For in eating, every one taketh before other his own supper." This was wrong. He then tells them, in verse thirty-three, how to do, when they come together to eat the Lord's Supper." Wherefore, my brethren, when ye come together to eat, tarry one for another." Notice that the same word deipnon is used in describing "the Lord's Supper" in the 20th, and "his own supper" in the 21st verse. In both cases the meaning is a full meal.

8. The bread and cup are called the communion of the body and blood of Christ, 1 Cor. 10: 16, and never the Lord's Supper. My opponent would have it that the "Cup of blessing is the supper of the blood of Christ," and the "Bread is the supper of the body of Christ," but that is not the way Christ and the apostles put it.

In his closing speech Eld. Sommer admitted that deipnon means a full meal, the chief meal of the Hebrews, but the bread represents the body of Christ and the cup his blood, and as he was a full and complete Savior, so the emblems of his body and blood constitute a full meal. He takes the loaf as complete in itself, and the cup complete in itself, and the two make a complete meal. He referred to the day of Pentecost and said that Peter used the keys of the Kingdom on that, and it was the first day of the week. On this day the people were told to repent of their sins. He believed that the change of taking the communion was made by the apostles from the middle to the first day of the week, as they afterwards met on that day to break bread.

He claimed that Paul to the Corinthians, 1 Cor. 11, where he says, "if any hunger, let him eat at home," shows that a full meal was not to be eaten, and from this he argued that the apostolic love-feast was superfluous, and that holding the feast was a fundamental error of the Brethren's church.

In speaking of the feasts of charity he understood the term to mean a common feast such as might be given in our homes to-day.

In regard to the breaking of bread at Troas he said the people at this place did not keep Jewish time. The Elder then rapidly gave the names of the authors quoted by Bro. Miller, and said, as for him he depended only on the Bible. That was his only witness. He recapitulated his arguments and closed his part of the discussion with a strong appeal to the audience.

Bro. Miller, in closing, referred to what was said about the bread and cup being a full meal. The Elder reasoned in this way. Christ was a complete Savior; hence, the bread and cup constitute a full meal. The bread and cup represent the body of Christ, therefore they are the Lord's Supper. Is there any proof in statements of this kind? With such logic almost any proposition might be sustained. The Elder spiritualizes and changes the full meal instituted by Christ and observed by the apostles, and thus sets it aside. We are not willing to do this, for the supper is to be fulfilled in the kingdom of God. Luke 29: 30.

Bro. Miller quoted from many authorities to show that in the early church the Lord's Supper was eaten at a table, but the Elder sets the Lord's table aside, following in the footsteps of the Church of Rome. They change first one command and then another until much of God's Word is set aside.

In 1 Cor. 11: 2 Paul refers to the ordinances. Note that this is in the plural. The Elder says the bread and wine is one, and that is true. They constitute one ordinance,—the communion. What, then, are the ordinances Paul refers to? The Lord's Supper and communion are two of them. The Corinthians had fallen into disorder and Paul corrected the error but did not set aside the Lord's Supper.

Whether the disciples at Troas kept Jewish or Roman time, after midnight would in either case bring them to the second day of the week. The Romans began their day at the hour of midnight. Bro. Miller, in a masterly closing address, reviewed the arguments that had been presented and protested against any one adding to, or taking from, God's Word. He said we want to obey it all. What was acceptable to God 1800 years ago, when the supper and communion were instituted, would be acceptable to-day. He called attention to the tendency manifested all along the ages to tamper with and change the Word of Truth. The same thing is being done to-day,—men are not willing to accept the Truth. Some things that Jesus and the apostles set up become unpopular, and then a change is made to suit the times. Christ ate a supper with his disciples, and the Apostolic church adopted and practiced it, but by many it has been set aside. He ate it at night at a table. The table has been taken away, and the time for taking the communion has been changed to the middle of the day. He appealed to all to take all of God's Word, accept it as the truth, and obey it from the heart, and so the debate was closed.

We can not close this correspondence without referring to the zeal and liberality of the members of the Rockingham church. The debate was the result of repeated challenges coming from the church of which Eld. Sommer is a minister. They gave liberally of their money to bear the expenses of the debate and to pay the reporter, Elder Sommer's church refusing to assist in this expense. They gave without expecting any return. They felt that the cause of Truth demanded that our doctrine should be defended in a debate, and they were more than satisfied with the manner in which it was done. They opened their houses and their hearts to those who attended the debate from a distance. May God bless them for their love and zeal!

This was our first visit to any of the churches in Missouri, and we can say that we were very favorably impressed. The State has much rich, productive land, and if the efforts had been made to turn the tide of immigration into her borders, that have been made by some of the western States, she would stand among the first States of the Union to-day. Thousands have crossed over her fertile lands to the Far West without dreaming they were leaving cheaper and better land, in close proximity to markets, than they could find on the frontier.

LET US "PULL TOGETHER!"

BY WM. M. LYON.

WHEN the world wants to do something, it adopts the above motto, and then carries it out. Christians, to be successful, work upon the same principle. God's children have many peculiar characteristics. We will now talk of two of them:

I. THEY ARE ALL GOOD PULLERS.

How many of us have this first characteristic? Just as soon as we accept God's service, immediately we step into our proper place, and help to draw the great train of salvation. The Master says, "That is your work." How it pleases him to see every disciple pulling his full share of the load—moving quietly and steadily along, with traces stretched—doing all this willingly, having no need of the lash.

The beautiful part is, God never overloads us. 1 Cor. 10: 13. He does not put on one ounce more than we are able to draw. He knows just how much each one is able to pull. But now don't forget one thing. What he does put on—just that much, nothing more, nothing less—he wants us to move. It is required according to what a man hath, not for what he does not have. 2 Cor. 8: 12. God's ways are equal. Ezek. 18: 29; 2 Cor. 8: 14. Fellow-worker, let us see to it, then, that we are pulling our full share!

II. THEY ALWAYS PULL TOGETHER.

Now we strike the key-note: God always loved an even team. Deut. 22: 10; 2 Cor. 6: 14. "Laborers together with God" (1 Cor. 3: 9), and "workers together with God" (2 Cor. 6: 1). TOGETHER WITH GOD—ah, that one qualifying phrase; it settles the whole matter! It matters not how much I may pull, if Christ, the true Leader, goes one way, while I go the other way, I labor in vain.

O, these unruly pullers in the church! Let them have their OWN way in everything, and they are wonderful pullers! Ask them to change and go with Christ, and they won't pull at all. When I was a boy, my father owned a horse that was a good representative of this class. This animal was a beautiful one, and, at times, a splendid worker and first-rate puller, but again the scene would change, and he would neither pull nor let the others work in peace. This is bad, to make the best of it, but the worst feature in such a case is, that the "team is broken," and if the unruly one is not brought into subjection in good time, the whole team may be spoiled. What could the enemy do if we were all willing to "pull together" with God? Nothing.

But just let one of this kind, that Paul calls "heady" (2 Tim. 3: 4), get into the Gospel ranks, and how soon the scene changes! Just as soon as the devil sees one of these unruly workers, he says, "This is my chance," and the more kicking and fussing is made, the better he likes it. The line of power is now broken, he enters the breach, and helps in the work of destruction. Brethren, let us "pull together," so closely, so unitedly, so lovingly that there will be no room for Satan in our ranks. O, for more of that kind of work!

REVIVALS OF RELIGION THE GLORY OF THE CHURCH.

BY JNO. F. DRIVER.

WE notice that the first great revival occurred at Jerusalem on the day of Pentecost. The excitement on that day must have been very great—much greater than anything we have ever seen or heard of in these modern times. Three thousand souls were awakened and converted by the powerful sermon of Peter.

Just before the Savior left his disciples, he encouraged their drooping hearts with the promise that he would send the Holy Spirit, and he told them to tarry at Jerusalem until the fulfillment of this promise. On that day the Jews fully realized what they had done. Peter, aware of this fact, charged them directly with the murder of the Prince of Life. Acts 2: 37. When they heard this, they were pierced to their hearts. Peter's words must have driven them almost to despair. Here must have been a scene of great excitement! Imagine three thousand souls awakened to a knowledge of their true condition! They asked the question, "Men and brethren, what shall we do?"

If the scene referred to was not a revival of religion, then there never has been such a thing in the world. As long as we have such a revival set before us in God's Word, we need not be ashamed of our little revivals at the present day. It would be a good plan for those unfortunate persons who are opposed to revivals in the present day, to read the second chapter of the Acts over and over again, until their prejudice is entirely removed. Let such be careful lest they be found fighting against God!

Philip, who is called the deacon, went to Samaria, and preached Christ there, and the Samaritans, with one accord, gave heed unto the things which Philip preached, and it was said, there was great joy in the city. The preaching of this holy man caused great excitement, and it is said many were saved. Nothing short of a revival of religion could have saved them in their idolatrous condition.

The next revival is mentioned in Acts 9: 32. It occurred at Lydda and Saron. Peter, it seems, had come to Lydda, and here he preached Christ and healed a sick man by the name of Æneas. It is said that all that saw him turned to the Lord. This must have been a glorious revival. Peter was a revival preacher. Look at the immediate effects produced by his preaching. While he yet spake, the Holy Ghost fell on all them that heard the Word. Is not that a revival, when the Holy Ghost is poured out? Here, then, we see a glorious work of grace. Peter was not like many of the preachers at present,—waiting for the result many days hence, but he preached that he might see the results at once.

The next revival, in the order of time, is at Antioch, the capital of Syria. Here some of those who had been converted in the great revival at Jerusalem, preached the Lord Jesus, and it is said, in Acts 11: 21, that the hand of the Lord was with them, and great numbers believed and turned to the Lord. One thing is to be noticed in this revival, and that is, after the work had commenced, the friends of the cause saw the importance of more assistance, and sent for Barnabas, who was a good man and full of the Holy Ghost and faith; and then much people were added unto the Lord. See verse 24. You here see that the practice of sending for help to other places in a revival is of apostolic origin. It is a good practice,—one founded on the Word of God,—for it is very reasonable that the continued efforts of one man will exhaust him, so that he needs help.

We find Paul engaged in a revival at Thessalonica. Acts 17. Here Paul preached, and it is said that a great "multitude of men, and of women not a few, believed." They then came to Berea, and preached Christ there, and it is said that many believed.

We next find Paul preaching at Ephesus, where he preached three months in the Jewish synagogue.

We next find Paul holding night meetings, preaching till midnight—yea, till daylight. This was at Troas. See Acts 20: 7. There must have been an interesting state of things here, or Paul would not have continued so long.

We have shown some Gospel authority for holding meetings as the Brethren do. Many people do not like the name "revival." We kindly ask them to name these meetings as they think best. Let them be called "protracted," "continued," or "revival" meetings; they revive the faint in heart, and cause the sinner to ask, "What must I do to be saved?"

From Tennessee.

Two churches in Eastern Tennessee have received aid from the General Missionary Board, to-wit: The Valley church, Hawkins County, and the Choto Falls church in Knox County. These are new organizations, and the latter, especially, has sprung up where there were no Brethren living. Such young congregations, like young converts, need the special care and attention of the older churches.

Eld. G. C. Bowman recently visited the valley congregation and held with them a brief series of meetings, assisted by Samuel Molsbee, the elder in charge. Their labors were blessed to the edifying of the church, and the ingathering of souls, three having been received by baptism and three applicants.

From here Bro. Bowman went to Choto Falls, Knox County, March 21. On the 23rd it was the privilege of the writer to join Bro. Bowman in the work, pursuant to arrangements of the Tennessee Mission Board.

Brother J. M. Bowman, the resident minister, was also present, during the time he was released from his school,—on Saturday and Sunday. To his labors, mainly, is due the establishment of this congregation.

Dr. N. T. Krouse is a deacon in this church. His good management and Christian influence has had much to do in building up the church. He spent a brief season with us, snatched from his professional duties. Bro. J. E. Klepper of the Oakland church, Blount County, was also with us a few days. It was expected at this time, to dedicate the new building, but the workmen having failed to complete it, the formal dedication was postponed. It was decided, however, to transfer the meetings from private residences to the church, at which place the congregation assembled on Sunday morning, — temporary seats having been prepared.

The church found it necessary to use a little discipline in the case of some of their members. They also decided to strengthen their official force, and on Wednesday met to attend to this matter. Bro. N. L. Smith was installed into the deacon's office. In the evening communion services were held at the residence of Bro. James Hensley, as sister Hensley was so afflicted as to be unable to attend church. This was truly a solemn occasion! The holy ordinances were engaged in by the little band of faithful souls, with the dearly beloved and much afflicted sister.

The occasion proved one of great spiritual comfort to her, and she expressed a desire, if it were the Master's will that she might yet be spared, to enjoy the fellowship and share in the devotions of the people of God. May the Lord hear her prayers, and may we all strive so to live that when our communions on earth are ended, we may sit down together with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, at the great feast of our Savior in Paradise! J. B. PENCE.

Lone Star Echoes.

ONE of the most enjoyable seasons we ever experienced since in Texas, was April 6, when quite a number of members from Clay and Cooke Counties and the Indian Territory met at Bro. Henry Brubaker's, three miles north of Nocona, in Montague County, to organize a church, which is now known as the "Nocona" church. It was found that there were over twenty members in the organization. Before the meeting closed, an invitation was given to any one to join in with the church, and, to the joy of all present, four young souls expressed themselves as being tired of sin and ready to go with the people of God. The prospects for this church are bright. This church is situated in a fine country, and one that will bear investigation. A. W. VANIMAN.

From Beatrice, Nebr.

SINCE our protracted meeting has closed, we have been having regular services twice each Lord's Day; also a Sunday-school. Our meetings are well attended. We re-organized Sunday-school the last Sunday in March. Our average attendance last quarter was eighty-two. We feel much encouraged with the work in the new field. Yesterday two more came out on the Lord's side. Others are not far from the kingdom. The new house in the country is nearly ready for services. It is good to sow and water and cultivate, and trust the Lord for the increase. It is sure to follow. J. E. YOUNG.

From North Morrill Church, Kans.

A SERIES of meetings was held in this district in the town of Morrill, commencing March 7, and closing April 4. The elder, Bro. J. S. Mohler, held forth the Word. In the meantime Bro. H. H. Sawyer, of the Wolfe River congregation, Kansas, preached three very interesting sermons. Bro. William Davis, of the Morrill church, also preached a number of able discourses. The immediate result, besides building up the members in that most holy faith was, that seven precious souls chose that good part which shall never be taken away from them.

Our regular, quarterly council was held March 23. We decided to have this district represented in Annual Meeting by Bro. Mohler.

This church, heretofore known as the Pony Creek church, was one of those which was fiercely threatened to be torn asunder by the spirit of division, but, we are glad to say, that the church, now composed of about ninety members, is working peacefully and harmoniously for that one great end, under the guidance of Bro. J. S. Mohler.

Our love-feast will be held in the new church, four and one-half miles north of town, May 11 and 12. All are invited to be with us!

T. A. EISENBISE.

A Visit to the Churches.

ON Wednesday, April 3, I boarded the train for Waterloo, Iowa. On Thursday morning I met with the brethren and sisters in the sanctuary. Here I met with our beloved brother, S. H. Miller, of the South Waterloo church. We are co-laborers in the city church. A considerable amount of business came before the council, but was disposed of in a Christian-like manner. We were made to feel that there was better feeling here than had been for some time. When another point or two is arrived at, we think the church will be in pretty good working order.

Many are aware that the church in Waterloo has been passing under a heavy cloud, but we feel that the light is beginning to shine in the eastern horizon, and we do pray that the dear brethren and sisters will unite in hoisting the banners of our king, and that the much-desired prosperity may be theirs! May God be with you till we meet again.

On Friday morning we boarded the train for Grundy Center. Here we met with the brethren and sisters for worship. Our beloved brother, Paul Wetzel, and others, were present. On Saturday morning we were conveyed to the old church, eleven miles from town, by Bro. Frederic, where we met a goodly number of brethren and sisters in council. Rather an unusual amount of business came before the meeting. All passed off very pleasantly. Bro. C. Frederic was chosen as delegate to Annual Meeting. The Sunday-school is moving along encouragingly. Bro. Moore is their Superintendant, assisted by a good corps of officers and teachers. It is really encouraging. May the Lord bless their school!

If ever I felt to leave the ninety-nine and go after those which had gone astray, it was here, when I learned that some young members were straying away from home. My dear sisters, the church is moving out after you, and many prayers are going up in your behalf. Will you come home? Yes, I hope you are coming home to-night. It will be sad news for me to learn otherwise. May the Lord help you to say with one of old, "Let others do as they will, as for us we will serve the Lord." May he grant you strength and moral courage to do his will, is my prayer! On Monday we took leave of the brethren and sisters, for home! We accomplished our journey with safety. Found all well. Thanks be to the Lord for his continued care!

STEPHEN JOHNSON.

Garrison, Ia.

To the Young Members Recently Baptized at the Laurel Run School-house, in the Jacob's Creek Congregation, Pa.

GOD has inseparably connected holiness with happiness. "Godliness," says the apostle, "is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is, and of that which is to come." 1 Tim. 4: 8. "The way of the transgressor is hard." "The wages of sin is death;" but "the ways of wisdom are pleasantness, and all her paths are peace."

To honor is to respect, to revere, to worship, exalt, or serve. God is our Lawgiver. He has revealed his will, and his will is obligatory and binding. God is exalted in his sanctuary. He loveth the gates of Zion.

The glory of God is the great end of the Christian's life. Hence he requires that we consecrate ourselves, our person, our talents, our wealth, our influence,—in one word, our all,—by unswerving adherence to the service of God.

Only the Christian will be saved. The "almost Christian" will be almost saved, but then that will be more awful than if he had been afar off. Almost at the ark, but the door will be closed. Almost within heaven, but the gate will be shut. Almost at the city of refuge, but the avenger has overtaken. Almost at the joyous banquet, but oil is wanting, and while they go to buy, they that are ready, enter in.

The mind must be awakened, a sense of our sin and danger must be felt, a knowledge of the way of salvation must be obtained. The surrender of heart and soul to God must be our own, personal act. Friends may instruct and counsel. They may allure by their kind spirit and example. They may influence by sweet persuasion. They may give efficiency to the whole by their fervent prayers, but religion must be our own, personal act. Religion is not to be the outcome of dread and terror, but of cheerfulness and love. It must be a surrender in and through the mediation of Christ. God will only receive us in and through him. The love of Christ causes the soul to exclaim:

> "Were the whole realm of nature mine,
> That were a present far too small;
> Love so amazing, so divine,
> Demands my soul, my life, my all."

Blessed children of God, open your hearts to joy! Look at nature, in the beauty and gaiety of spring. Contemplate the verdure of the fields and the flowers of the meadows, whose fruits will soon bring us the sweets of abundance. Yonder tree which, not long since, appeared devoid of life and vigor, is now decked with blossoms that promise an abundant fruitage.

When I view the yet tender buds of the many opening flowers, I think of you, dear, amiable youth! The beauty and energy of your souls are not yet displayed. Your faculties are not yet fully expanded, and the hopes of your fond parents not yet fully realized.

When walking forth into the fields and gardens, you behold the budding flowers. Consider that you are in a similar state! As you look for their expansion, so your parents fondly watch the gradual unfolding of your faculties. They do everything for you and neglect nothing that can promote your instruction and advance your improvements. They watch over your education with the tenderest care, that, at first by blossoms, and then by choice fruits, you may become useful, not only to society but to the church of the Living God. Thus you may be the joy of your parents and their consolation and support in the evening of their days. Do everything in your power to gratify their dearest hopes, and profit well by their instructions, to the end that you may become wise, amiable and virtuous. Keep in view the thought of the poet when he said,

"Be it my only wisdom here
To serve the Lord with filial fear,
With loving gratitude;
Superior sense may I display,
By shunning every evil way,
And walking in the good"

Beware of following all the suggestions of youthful fancy, or giving way to the ebullitions of desire, and the wild fury of passion, which will blast your innocence, destroy the sweet sensibility of your heart, and render your mind base, gloomy and wretched!

In the morning of life man flourishes like the opening bud. His heart beats with joy, and throbs with fond delight. He riots in the luxury of hope, and anticipates with ecstasy the pleasures of the future. But if he yields to the insinuating passion of young desire, and partakes of the false sweets of pleasure, his heart will soon suffer from the tears of bitterness, and its vital streams will be consumed by the ardency of an impure flame.

Take, for example, the little busy bees. Their work is jointly undertaken by all the members of their little republic. "Whilst some collect the wax, and prepare and fill the magazines with it, others are busy in different labors. Some build cells with the wax; others knead and perfect it. Some gather honey from the flowers, which they deposit in the hive for present nourishment and future support. Others close the entrance of the cells with a covering of wax, in which they have preserved their winter's store of honey. Some fill up with a glutinous matter all the holes and clefts of the hives, and plaster over the weak parts, that neither insects nor wind may gain admission. Some drag the dead out of the hive for fear of infection; and if the bodies are too heavy, they plaster them over with glutinous substance, or with wax. They cement it so that no effluvia can exhale through the coating."

It is not enough for us to admire the activity of these little creatures,—we should make them our models, and endeavor to imitate the example of their industry. We have many more incentives to action than they have. We possess immortal souls. This should render our diligence constant, and our applications incessant, that we may avoid the way to ruin, and preserve the sure path to happiness. Nothing more effectually incites to this than the reflection that the fruit of our labors lasteth forever. The bee gathers its sweets not for itself only, but for its masters, while our labors in the vineyard of wisdom and of truth, secure to ourselves the fruits of eternal life.

May we never be slow to do good, nor remiss in performing the duties of our vocation with all the zeal and fidelity of which we are capable! Let us execute without delay the task imposed upon us, and work while it is day, for the night cometh when no man can work. May we all show diligence, to the full assurance of hope unto the end, that we be not slothful, but followers of those who, through faith and patience, inherit the promise; for the winter of age, and the tribulation of sickness approach, and the hour of death hasteneth.

Look to the bees for instruction; consider their labors, and contemplate their works! Admire their activity and unceasing industry! Always busy, they rise with the morning sun, prolong their toils to the evening hour, and support, without trouble, their short lives. Then, shall we poor, mortal men, who have souls to save, repose in idleness, and linger on the lap of indolence? Shall we, who are endowed with the immortal gift of reason, consume our days in frivolity, and waste our nights in foolish sports and hurtful pleasures? The period of our lives is too short. May we devote it to the glory of God, the welfare of our immortal souls, the benefit of the church and the salvation of our fellow-men! H. W. Strickler.

District Meeting of North-eastern Kansas.

The District Meeting of North-eastern Kansas was a very pleasant one. The meeting was organized by electing J. S. Mohler, Moderator; L. H. Eby, Reading Clerk, and Isaac H. Crist, Writing Clerk. Considerable business came before the meeting, all of which was disposed of satisfactorily.

Considerable time was devoted to the missionary work. The Treasurer's report showed that there was paid for missionary purposes $152 55. During the year there were about one hundred baptisms in the district. There are many new fields opening up, with fair prospects for the future. Six brethren were set apart for special missionary work, where there are no members or isolated ones. They are J. S. Mohler, J. A. Root, L. H. Eby, C. J. Hooper, Benj. Forney, and another brother.

During the year the District raised $39.50 as the "Hope Fund," which Bro. Hope is to use in introducing the Brethren's doctrine to the Swedes and Danes in North-eastern Kansas. Another important step taken by the meeting is the following. We give the plan in full, hoping that thereby others may profit. The plan was gotten up in a few minutes at the close of the meeting and there is room for improvement.

1. Feeling that a stronger effort should be made to spread the Gospel, will this District Meeting formulate a plan to distribute tracts throughout North eastern Kansas, where the doctrine of the Brethren is not understood, for the purpose of opening new fields of labor, thus aiding our missionary movement?

Answer.—Yes, and we appoint P. R. Wrightsman, C. Hope and I. H. Crist as a committee to formulate a plan and report to the District Meeting. The following plan was reported to, and accepted by, the meeting:

1. North-eastern Kansas to be divided into four districts, taking the U. P. R. R. as a line running east and west. East line of Lyon and Waubaunsee Counties running north to said railroad, east line of Nemaha County running south to said railroad.

2. The following salesmen, were appointed: South-eastern, H. S. Garst; South-western, Mary C. Wrightsman; North-western, Geo. Brindle; North-eastern, A. L. Pearsall.

3. The duty of the salesmen shall be to sell the following of the Brethren's books, "Doctrine of the Brethren Defended," by R. H. Miller; "Bible Lands," by D. L Miller; "Trine Immersion," by James Quinter; "Origin of Single Immersion," by James Quinter; and "Close Communion," by Landon West. Others are to be added when needed. Said books to be bought at wholesale price and sold by subscription, the profits of which shall defray the expense of the salesman; the remainder (if any) to be applied to the purchase of tracts, and, in order to obtain a larger amount of the latter, it is decided by this District Meeting, that all members be requested to lay by them in store all eggs produced by their poultry on the Sabbath day, and to sell them. The money so obtained to be sent by Money or Express Orders, by each family, to the Treasurer, Minnie M. Root, Osawkie, Jefferson Co., Kan., on the first of every third month. And in order to get the work started, we suggest the first to be sent in as soon as possible and not, later than June 1st, Sept 1st, Dec. 1st, and Mar. 1st.

4. It shall be the duty of the Treasurer to keep an itemized report of all money received and paid out, as ordered by the Secretary of the committee.

5. It shall be the duty of the salesmen to sell the above books to all, members or not, and the Brethren are urged also to buy tracts of the salesmen and distribute them, thus advancing the Lord's cause. Further it shall be the duty of the salesmen to distribute free, tracts and leaflets, in the cities and country, in depots, hotels, Y. M. C. A. reading rooms, in short, any and every-where where they are likely to do good. Supplies to be furnished salesmen by the Secretary of committee, the salesmen to keep a correct account of all their work, and report the same to the Secretary, as well as orders for new supplies.

6. It shall be the duty of the Secretary to keep an account of all the work, and make full report to the next District Meeting. The work to begin as soon as supplies can be obtained by the Secretary. This District Meeting, seeing the importance of this work, urges prompt action on the part of all the members, and it shall be the duty of all elders and ministers to encourage the work in their congregations, and work on this plan for one year and see the vast amount of good that can be done. Signed, P. R. Wrightsman,
C. Hope.

Isaac H. Crist, Sec'y of Com., Olathe, Kans.

Only one query goes to Annual Meeting, and a call for the Annual Meeting to be held in Kansas as soon as it will be granted.

While some may think we are too fast in calling so soon again, we think not, as we think with the experience our District has had, and with our advantages, there would be a large surplus for the noble missionary cause. There are four places in Kansas that are offered for the meeting, and some of them can not be excelled anywhere.

Bro. J. A. Root is the delegate on Standing Committee.

The meeting closed the first day at 6 o'clock P. M., to meet the first Wednesday in April, 1890, in the Appanoose church, Franklin County, at 9 A. M. Isaac H. Crist.

From California.

April 6 our quarterly council occurred at Covina. There was a goodly number of members present. A number more were added to the congregation by letter. The prospects for the success of the cause in Southern California seem to grow brighter as time rolls on. The members of Los Angeles and vicinity have in view the building of a Brethren's house of worship in the city, and from the zeal manifested, we expect soon to have it said that the desired end has been accomplished. The brethren, too, in Ventura County, are agitating the feasibility of building a church-house there. Their communion season is set for April 27. At Covina, we expect to hold a feast May 10.

A few years ago doubting Thomases said that the Brethren never could have success in California. At the time we were made to wonder why they should not. It is true, there are some serious hinderances. The main one, probably, is, the great extent of open infidelity, and the wonderful prosperity of the secret societies. By the way, if I mistake not, the two are closely allied to each other. Another hinderance is found in the large proportion of wealth here, and that, too often, brings about the spirit of aristocracy and pride. With all these and other hinderances that oppose the success of the claims of the meek and lowly Lamb of God, there are a class of people here, too honest to trifle with their eternal interests, as to worship the many golden images, or be lulled to sleep by the siren song of popular Christianity. The Truth will and must prevail, when backed up by earnestness and living example on the part of the born of God.

The pioneers of the cause have come here, prayed, worked, wept and borne the heat of persecution, but opened up the way for others of the same precious faith to come to this land of fruits and flowers, and find a church home from the start. While we say this, don't for a moment think that the soldiers of the cross can come here and stack their arms and be at ease! Verily, nay, there is much to do here as elsewhere, to keep the enemy at bay. True fidelity to the church, and the Head of the same,—Jesus Christ,—is a thing as necessary here as any place on God's footstool. This people, every-where spoken against because they are of an uncompromising disposition,—will not join hands with error that good may come of it. We can not depend on success from what the community knows of us from the past, but the living present must recommend the true principles of the Gospel to the people that they may lay hold and wholly follow the Lord. It being a fact that there is no other argument so convincing as a living epistle, written by the finger of God in the heart, and so reflected that all men may read the truth of the Gospel thus, we wonder how any earnest follower of the Lord can afford to live in rebellion to the requirements of God as expressed through his church, or mar the beauty of holiness by joining arms, feet or tongue with the world in her alluring devices. May the spirit of Jesus keep us in the narrow way, that we may all walk worthy of the vocation wherein we are called! J. S. FLORY.

District Meeting of Southern Kansas.

THE meeting was held in the Pleasant View church, April 17th and 18th. There was a good representation of churches, and the deliberations were characterized by the best of Christian feelings.

The business interests were carefully directed by John Wise as Moderator, and Daniel Vaniman as Reading Clerk. The missionary interests were prayerfully and judiciously considered and a Board chosen, the members of which reside sufficiently near each other to enable them to meet frequently to consult. The members are P. J. Trostle, John Bosserman, John Wales, Frank Detter and Bro. Rose. John Bosserman, McPherson, Kan., is Treasurer, to whom all money for mission and church erection in Southern Kansas, should be sent. Bro. William Johnson, Conway Springs, Kan., was chosen solicitor for the District, to whom all money designed for the General Mission Board should be sent by the local churches, instead of sending it direct to D. L. Miller. Southern Kansas is entitled to proper credit for her labors, and this can only be done by observing the orders or rules of Annual Meeting in this respect.

Bro. John Wise was chosen a member of the Standing Committee, and Bro. D. Vaniman as alternate.

I desire that the name and address of the clerk of each congregation, not represented by delegate to District Meeting, be sent to me at once so that the Minutes of the Meeting may be sent him for free distribution among the members.

An earnest and commendable desire was manifested by all participating, to more effectually advance the Master's kingdom, hence measures were adopted to awaken greater interest and co-operate more fully.

The next District Meeting will be held in the Fredonia church, Wilson Co., Kansas, on Wednesday prior to Easter, 1890. M. M. ESHELMAN.

AT the last quarterly council, the members of the Washington Creek church decided to hold a special council on April 13, at 2 o'clock P. M. for the purpose of holding an election for one minister and two deacons.

On the appointed day a large assembly met at the appointed place in the forenoon,—not to hold an election but to pay the last sad rites to a departed member. Sister Matilda Arnold, wife of Bro. Henry Arnold, died on April 12, 1889, aged sixty-five years and eight months. For several years her health had been declining. Everything was done to stop disease, even a trip to Southern California was undertaken, but without success. Being a faithful wife, devoted mother, and faultless member of the church, she departed in the hope of receiving eternal life.

In the afternoon the members met again to proceed with the designated election, which resulted in choosing Isaac L. Hoover for the ministry, Samuel M. Miller and William M. Stutsman for deacons. The church was well represented in membership. Good feeling prevailed, and suitable selections were made. Under impressive and solemn feelings, as such occasions with us generally are, the three brethren with their wives were duly installed. HIRAM S. GARST.

BRO. THURSTON MILLER, of La Porte, Ind., came to us Dec. 5. He remained about ten days and preached for us. April 6 John Stafford, of Spencerville, Ind., came to us and preached for us about eight days, to large and attentive audiences. Those brethren ably and nobly declared the Gospel in its purity and simplicity. Saints were encouraged, and sinners warned. As a result six souls came out on the Lord's side and were immersed,—one in the first meetings and five in the last. Two gave their promise, but desired to wait and count the cost more fully. Brethren, pray for them that they may not put it off too long! Brethren Miller and Stafford ought to be kept in the field, as they are able laborers both in body and mind, with a good voice and delivery, mild and persuasive, defending both the Truth and the general order of the church.

From Greenwood, Nebr.

ACCORDING to appointment, the Weeping Water church met April 15th, once more to commemorate the death and suffering of Jesus. Bro. Archy VanDyke, from Gage Co., Nebr., was with us, to preach the "unsearchable riches" of Christ. A goodly number were present, and we had a pleasant meeting.

One more soul was recently added to our number here by baptism. We believe that there are others "almost persuaded," and we hope our dear brethren and sisters will remember their promises and covenant, which they made. May they be enabled to live nearer the cross, so that those who are outside may have no excuse to stay away on account of our inconsistencies. The Lord has been good to spare our lives that we could live a life of usefulness. Let us witness for Jesus!

The District Meeting of North-western Kansas and Colorado.

AT our late District Meeting most all of the churches were represented by delegates. This is right, and shows that the churches are awake to their interest in this respect. One very commendable feature in our delegates was that they did not only manifest a zeal, worthy of note, in behalf of the self-denying principles of our general Brotherhood in the matter of non-conformity to the world, but were themselves living epistles that could be read and known of all men,—as true exponents of those principles. Brethren, you have left lasting impressions with the church at Quinter. We are struggling to maintain the general order of our people, and we heartily thank you for this manifestation of your love for order.

Upon the whole the meeting was conducive of much good, and the many words of good counsel and admonitions from our dear brethren that came to us, will long be remembered by us.

Our feast, in connection with the District Meeting, and prior to it, was a foretaste of the longed-for rest in the evening of this world. Over one hundred communicants surrounded the Lord's table and partook of the sacred emblems. The occasion was one of impressive solemnity. Oh, how much we have to be thankful for!

Our prospects here were never better for fall and spring grain than at present. Copious rains through March and April have refreshed the fall grain and put the ground in good condition for the spring seed. To God be all the praise for his manifold goodness to his unworthy children! B. B. WHITMER.

Quinter, Kans.

From Longmont, Colo.

ON the evening of April 12, in company with Bro. Weaver, we boarded the train for Quinter, Kans., to attend their love-feast, and also District Meeting, which was the 16th. April 13 we had a feast for the soul, which lasted until Sunday night, with songs, prayers and sermons.

Monday at 8 A. M., the District Meeting was called to order and organized by electing Bro. J. S. Snowberger, Moderator; G. W. Fesler, Reading Clerk, and B. B. Whitmer, Writing Clerk. Considerable business was transacted, but all passed off in love and union. There were no queries for Annual Meeting. Bro. Isaac Studebaker was elected to Standing Committee.

News from the Spring Creek Church, Pa.

ON Good Friday we had one of the most glorious meetings we ever enjoyed. The meeting was held at our large house, built lately, in size 50x80 feet,—which was filled to overflowing. We were addressed by Bro. John Herr, from Myerstown, Lebanon County. His text was, Acts 2: 41, "Then they that gladly received his word were baptized." Bro. John did justice to his subject, and his arguments were to the point, and of sound logic. After the close of the meeting, we resorted to the waterside, where Bro. Jacob H. Longanecker baptized twenty-three souls before he left the water. Glory to God for his providential power in bringing the prodigals home again! About six or eight more may come into the fold after awhile, the Lord willing! WM. HERTZLER.

Important Notice.

SINCE the love-feast at Nickerson, Reno Co., Kans., as announced in the MESSENGER, happens on the same time as the McPherson feast, the members of Salem church, at District Meeting, took the liberty to change the time of the Nickerson feast from May 11 to May 8, at 2 P. M.

By order of the members present.

ISAAC H. MILLER.

District Meeting of Southern Indiana.

I WAS present yesterday and to-day at the District Meeting of Southern Indiana, held in the Four Mile church, Fayette Co., Ind., and can truly say that all seemed much pleased with the meeting. Great interest was manifested in the missionary work, and the success of the Aged Persons' Home and the Orphans' Asylum, which has, since 1882, been started in this part of Indiana. The chances for doing good are now abundant, and I am glad to see our brethren and sisters alive to the work. LANDON WEST.

April 18.

The Children's Mission.

THIS is to notify all who expect to solicit for our work, to do so in time, that I may send the entire amount to Bro. Miller by June 5. We will also gladly accept of any amount that Sunday-school Superintendents may collect, to aid us in our missionary work. MARY M. GIBSON.

Virden, Macoupin Co., Ill., Box 421.

Wolf Creek Bulletin.

BRO. L. WEST preached for us three weeks at two different points. Those who attended the meetings were richly instructed in sound doctrine that could not be condemned. He held two children's meeting while with us. He has rare qualifications for this field of labor.

While he was preaching for us, our elder, Jacob Garber, was called to baptize an aged man,—Eli Wogoman,—who was on a rapid decline, and had neglected the one thing needful. Some, even some who believe in immersion, told him he could not stand it, but he had faith, and Bro. Garber gave him Gospel encouragement, so the work was accomplished in the icy waters of Wolf Creek. A few days of joy in the service of the Master, and then our brother crossed over to the Beulah land. This was the eighth invalid baptized in his long and varied experience, and they all stood the ceremony very well. "His yoke is easy."

A meeting was held in Dayton lately, at which it was decided to request the elders of Southern Ohio to visit their churches, to obtain the means to pay the debt on the Dayton meeting-house. May it be speedily done! JNO. CALVIN BRIGHT.

From the Coon River Church, Iowa.

THE members of this church met in council April 13. They disposed of a number of queries at home. Bro. G. H. Jennings was chosen as delegate to Annual Meeting, and John Fitz as delegate to District Meeting. They decided to hold a love-feast July 4, and ask District Meeting to consider the propriety of the Middle District of Iowa asking for the Annual Meeting in the near future. J. D. HAUGHTELIN.

From Gridley, Kans.

BRETHREN G. W. Studebaker and Davis Stouder began a series of meetings April 5, and continued until the 14th. Bro. Studebaker preached the Word with power. As an immediate result, eight came out on the side of the Lord and were baptized, and one was received by letter. We desire an interest in the prayers of the righteous, that the Truth may be accepted here as elsewhere. But few knew anything of the Brethren church until quite recently, but, I am happy to say, the converts came out so plain that some might take example of them, even in old churches. May the Lord bless the brethren for their labor of love among us!

ANNA DOWNING.

From Covina, Cal.

THE brethren and sisters, in church council assembled this day, hereby send greetings to the General Church Erection and Missionary Committee, and report that they feel thankful that Bro. Jacob Witmore was permitted to come to us as an evangelist. We report that his deportment, zeal and influence, while he labored with us, are worthy of our most sincere esteem. As an efficient evangelist we can recommend him in the highest terms for his fidelity to the truths of the Gospel. He holds forth the Truth in plain terms, and requires obedience to the same, and due attention to the rules and regulations of the church. In every way he manifests the spirit of true Christianity, as becometh an elder of the church, and servant of the Lord.

Signed in behalf of the church,
W. H. FLORY.

ELDER E. BOSSERMAN came to us March 23, and preached four sermons for us. One was make willing to leave the ranks of the enemy. We pray that the Lord will give us, the lambs of his fold, grace that we may stand the trials of this life, and that we may come out more than conquerors when Jesus shall come to call his jewels home.

While our elder was with us, we were made to rejoice for what our eyes could see; and our ears could hear. Our beloved brother Gustave Rauckstad, who has been afflicted with consumption for over a year, called upon the elders, according to James 5: 14. Only two of our number had ever seen this ordinance complied with, but we are glad that the church of our choice would follow the precepts of the Gospel. We believe that if we could have a missionary minister, that could stay with us a couple of weeks, or even months, much good could be accomplished here, but Michigan is too large a field to work for the few ministers that it has. We feel too thank the dear brethren for what they have done for us in the past. Come again, brethren. May the Lord bless you, is our prayer!

WM. F. JEHNZEN.

From Pine Creek Church, Nebr.

APRIL 7th the writer, accompanied by Bro. J. R. Cripe, went to the home of a sister, living near Newport, in Rock County, and baptized four applicants. May the Lord bless them, that they may prove faithful! There are others who have promised to come soon. They need a good, faithful minister to locate among them. Will not some one come? FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord"

OVERHOLT.—At his home in Wyoming, Iowa, March 9, Mr. Jonas Overholt, oldest son of sister Anna Beer, aged 61 years.

He was suddenly stricken with apoplexy, but after twelve hours recovered his speech sufficiently to converse with his family, telling them that he knew his condition and was willing to die. Calling his sons to him, he gave them instruction respecting his worldly affairs, wishing his aged mother to remain in the old home. To his grief-stricken wife he said, "We must bow to the will of God." Though suffering intensely, he recognized his neighbors with a smile and a word. Mr. Overfelt had been a consistent member of the Christian church for thirty years. He leaves, to mourn his loss, a mother, past 81, a wife, three sons and a daughter. He was highly esteemed by the community, and his neighbors feel a personal loss.

H. E. MARSHALL.

CLINE.—In Salem, Marion Co., Oregon, March 24, sister Mary Cline, daughter of Bro. John and sister Melvina Miller, aged 36 years, 2 months and 26 days.

Deceased was born in Rockingham County, Va., Dec. 28, 1852; married to William Cline March 25, 1877. There were given to this couple three children, of whom two preceded her to the spirit world. She was a member of the Brethren church a number of years. About two weeks before she died she called for the elders of the church and was anointed in the name of the Lord. Services by the Brethren. M. M. BASHOR.

STEM.—In the Perry church, Juniata Co., Pa., sister Sarah, consort of Samuel Stem, aged 84 years, 7 months and 12 days.

Grandma Stem is not dead, but sleepeth the sleep of the righteous. She became a disciple in her early womanhood, and continued steadfast until the end. For about seven years she suffered from partial paralysis. MARY ROHRER.

WARNER.—Near Bayard, Guthrie Co., Ia., April 11, Bro. David Warner, aged 87 years and 19 days. On account of unavoidable circumstances the funeral discourse was deferred until April 28.

J. D. HAUGHTELIN.

HIRE.—In the Beaver Dam church, Kosciusko Co., Ind., April 2, Bro. Rudolph Hire, aged 73 years, 11 months and 23 days.

Deceased was born in Ross County, O., April 9, 1815; came to Elkhart County, Ind., in April, 1833; was married to Hannah Linzy in 1840. He united with the Brethren church a few years later. He was chosen to the office of deacon, in which office he served a number of years. Eleven children were born to them, three of whom preceded him to the spirit world. His wife (sister Hire), and four sons and four daughters, are left to mourn their loss, which, we hope, is his gain. Services by Bro. Daniel Snell, from Rev. 22: 12, 14. SAMUEL E. BURKET.

JOHNS.—In the Ephrata church, Lancaster Co., Pa., sister Mary Elizabeth Johns, aged 24 years, 8 months and 7 days.

She departed this life in her prime. Her Heavenly Father called her to him, in the fullness of her bloom, out of his garden. Her death is a great loss to her parents, friends and the neighborhood. She was beloved by all who knew her, and she was ever ready with a helping hand for those needing her help. It almost seems an unsolved problem why such are called away so early, and in the prime of life and usefulness. Her character was a model of purity, her pattern of thought, the true love of Christ, and her aim a home in heaven. Services by elders Samuel Harley and Hottenstein, of Petersburg, from John 16: 28. J. B. KELLER.

GOCKLEY. In North Beatrice church, Nebr., April 4, sister Cynthie, wife of Samuel Gockley, aged 25 years and 19 days.

This was an exceptional case. She saw death coming, and prepared for it even her clothing. She left without a murmur or complaint. Oh that we all would prepare for the change! A. VAN DYKE.

BUTERBAUGH. — At the same place, March 17, Charles Buterbaugh, son of the same parents, aged 5 years, 4 months and 15 days.

Both of the above-named children died about twelve hours apart, of lung fever. It seems very hard for the parents to give up two loved ones at once, but they should remember that these dear children were taken home before their pure souls were stained with sin. Services by M. Sisler and Frank McCune. ELLA ROYER.

JOHNSON — In the Pipe Creek church, Carroll Co., Md., Feb. 17, Christina Johnson, aged 66 years, 10 months and 15 days.

J. JOHNSON.

RHODES.—In the Aughwick church, Pa., Benjamin F. Rhodes, aged 17 years, 7 months and 2 days. Services by Eld. Jas. R. Lane.

WISMAN.—In the Mill Creek church, Harrisonburg, Va., March 25, of consumption, sister Mattie Wisman, aged 24 years, 9 months and 19 days.

Deceased was a devoted member of the church. She selected as the text of her funeral sermon, 2 Tim. 4: 6. Services by Eld. Isaac Long. SAMUEL PETRY.

HISER.—At her home in Sangamon County, Mich., April 1, sister Susan, wife of Bro. William Hiser, aged 55 years, 9 months and 15 days.

Aunt Susan, with her husband, Uncle William, united with the Brethren church in 1856. From that time on she has never lost sight of her duty to God. When the time came for her departure she was not unprepared. She had committed all into the hands of her God, and he sustained her. Services by Bro. Daniel Chambers, of the New Haven church. LEVI BAKER.

BUTERBAUGH.—Near Dallas Center, Ia., March 16, Clara Ellen, daughter of Bro. John and Sarah Buterbaugh, aged 3 years, 11 months and 15 days.

Advice to Mothers.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. 28y1

WHERE NEUTRALS BELONG.

THE Reformatory across the river from our town, which has been building for the last five years, has now been opened for occupancy, and criminals, ranging in age from sixteen to twenty-six, are being admitted. The most of the young men that are now there do not look as if they belonged to the criminal class, and it seems a pity that their usefulness should be lost to the world and their labors circumscribed by prison walls. Some among them are from good families and are susceptible of high moral and intellectual development. How such young men are thus degraded and lost to honorable associations and society ought not to be a problem of difficult solution in this Christian land of ours. The intellectual and moral culture, and Christian development of our young men ought to be carefully guarded by a Christian nation living under a Christian form of government.

Moral science teaches us that the State and State government is based on the family idea, or, in other words, the State is a large family thrown together for mutual protection, and for the highest good of the whole. That this highest good may be enjoyed in the family, be it small or large, there must be a form of government, and this form of government must be of such a character as will insure the greatest good to the greatest number. While the power of the strong must be limited, the rights of the weak must be protected, and in this way the proper rights of all are insured. Otherwise there could be no rights, no protection and no enjoyment for any. Everything would be dependent upon physical strength, shrewdness and circumstances.

Hence we all readily accede to the desirableness of good government. Accepting, then, as we do, that the family is the true idea of government, we take it as the subject for examination as to what a good government should be. We can do this the more readily because of its smallness and simplicity.

The first thought, in looking at the subject, is, our true object in living. When this is determined, we can then concentrate our forces to the bringing about of this object. The true object of life is enjoyment as brought about by the development of our moral, intellectual and spiritual powers. The essentials of this development, to make life a success, must be found, maintained and promoted in the home, the neighborhood, and the State. And we, as individuals, are parts of the home, the neighborhood, and the State, and, therefore, before God and the State, are responsible for the form of government under which we live, be it good or bad. We are responsible to the extent of the power that has been graciously vouchsafed to us. The talents entrusted to us by the Master cannot be so construed as to mean dollars and pounds alone, but means the conscientious using, for the bettering of the world,—all the abilities given us.

Good government starts in the home, but don't end there. Our laws in our homes, communities, and the States are made and sanctioned by ourselves and our children, so that all the time there is a double responsibility resting upon us. First, that our actions and influences are always on the right side for the bringing about, maintaining and promoting good in the world. The principle of right must be promoted by us every-where, and in all conceivable forms. In this there can be no neutral ground. When there is a good and an evil set before us, the neutral always falls on the side of the evil. There is where neutrals belong, because they refuse to stand up on the side and in favor of the right. The language of God and the right is, "for the good, against the wrong." And so, before God we are responsible. Second. We are responsible for what our children may be and do. If my child turns out to be a drunkard, a thief, and a murderer, I am responsible for that son's fall and ruin, just so far as I failed to exercise my power and influence against the causes that led to my son's ruin. These causes may be in the home, the community, or the State. In the day of judgment it will not do for us to go up before the judgment tribunal, and say that we prayed against these evils and that our children might be preserved from the temptations of them. God has not made us a world of helpless beggars. We are to work and pray. The Lord helps those that help themselves. We pity the man that daily prays, "Lead us not into temptation, and then by action, refuses to say to Satan, "Get thou away from me!" Or to pray, "Deliver from evil," and refuse to help to put the evil away. What would we think of parents who have a family of children, if they would allow to come into their home, a young man who was untruthful, profane and vulgar? Would we not hold them responsible if their children would become demoralized and ruined through the association and influence of this young man? About such a case there can be no question. If these parents had the power to say to that young man: "You are not a fit companion for my children. You tempt them to evil which will lead to their ruin, and therefore we command you to leave our house, our home," would they not be responsible for the ruin of their children if they would refuse to do so? Suppose those parents would say, "We don't want to be responsible for the young man, and therefore we will be neutral as to his going or remaining." Such parents would be considered either insane or unfit to be parents. Parents, in regard to the influences and temptations within their homes, cannot be neutral without sinning against the sacredness of the home, against their children, the neighborhood and the State, as the well-being of all depends on the safety of the home government.

The neighborhood means only a larger family—a combination of families—a community. As the sacredness and the safety of the home ought to be protected and promoted, so the neighborhood. Upon the moral and spiritual standard of our neighborhood depends largely the well-being, enjoyment and safety of ourselves and children. Therefore as we would exercise the authority and power that belong to us, to preserve the safety of our homes, so we should do, to preserve the safety of our neighborhood. This can be done in the same way that we protect our homes. Just as far as our power and privilege will allow us to go, we must first labor to promote the good, and eliminate and fight against the evil.

This we do in most cases. We use all lawful means to keep away from us bad neighbors and such as would corrupt and endanger the morals and well-being of our families. If a man were to come and try to establish a gambling house or a saloon across the way from our home, or near by, and we had the power to keep such an evil away from us, our children and our neighbors, by simply saying so, or giving our decision against such an evil, would we not do it? Where is the parent or neighbor who would not? We would do it because we would feel that we were an interested party. Under such circumstances we would not play neutral because the evil would be brought to our own doors, and would affect our own families. To do otherwise would be to join hands with the wrong, and aid in bringing danger and ruin across our own thresholds and thus endanger the character, the happiness and the salvation of those who are nearest and dearest to us.

Now the question is, if we would do so much to protect our own household, what would we do to protect our neighbor and his household? If we fulfill the divine injunction,—"love thy neighber as thyself," we ought to do the same thing for them—and who is my neighbor? He is the one that is in need and that you can help. This relationship reaches as far as the human brotherhood is found. What we are now especially interested in is our homes, our neighborhood and our State: because we form a great family, and, by social compact, live under a form of government that is common to us all. We are the inhabitants of a great State, and are governed by rules and regulations, many of which are beneficent, and tend to the greatest good of the largest number. But designing men, for selfish ends, have, through deception and guile, succeeded in having license granted them to open up drinking saloons for the purpose of enticing our young men and children to form the habit of drink which leads to drunkenness and ruin.

With this license they can open their saloons

ESSAYS.

"Study to show thyself approved unto God; a workman that needeth not be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth."

I COME TO THEE FOR REST.

From grievous trouble and from sore distress,
From long temptation in the wilderness,
I hasten to the shelter of Thy breast—
I come to Thee, my pitying Lord, for rest.

It is not that I fear the world or man,
Or shrink from any toil or any ban;
For Thy dear sake I strive to do my best—
My very striving is my plea for rest.

I have Thy promise and I hold it fast,
That thou wilt hide me till the storm is past;
How sweet of such a host to be the guest!
O Savior mine, I come to Thee for rest.

The merriest bird will sometimes cease from song.
The busiest wing is not unfolded long;
Just as the jaded songster seeks its nest,
Weary and worn, I come to Thee for rest.

Fold me a little while in thine embrace,
That I may gaze unhindered in Thy face,
And like beloved John, Thy sweetness see,
And in my exile dream of Heaven and Thee.

And when at last my pilgrim feet shall stand
Amid the blossoms of the Promised Land,
Breathe on me, Lord, Thy benediction blest,
And crown my conflicts with eternal rest.

ON DRESS.

Letter from Dr. Judson, Missionary in Burmah, to the Female Members of Christian Churches of the United States of America.

Dear Sisters in Christ:—Excuse my publicly addressing you. The necessity of the case is my only apology. Whether you will consider it a sufficient apology for the sentiments of this letter—unfashionable, I confess, and perhaps unpalatable—I know not. We are sometimes obliged to encounter the hazard of offending those, whom, of all others, we are desirous to please. Let me throw myself at once upon your mercies, dear sisters, allied by national consanguinity, professors of the same holy religion, fellow-pilgrims to the same happy world. Pleading these endearing ties, let me beg you to regard me as a brother and to listen with candor to my honest tale.

In raising up a church of Christ in this heathen land, and in laboring to elevate the minds of the female converts to the standard of the gospel, we have always found one chief obstacle in that principle of vanity, that love of dress and display—I beg you will bear with me—which has, in every age and in all countries, been the ruling passion of the fair sex, as the love of riches, power and fame has characterized the other. That obstacle lately became more formidable, through the admission of two or three fashionable females into the church and the arrival of several missionary sisters, dressed and adorned in that manner which is too prevalent in our beloved native land. On my meeting the church after a year's absence, I beheld an appalling profusion of ornaments, and saw the demon of vanity was laying waste the female department. At this time I had not maturely considered the subject, and did not feel sure what ground I ought to take. I apprehended also, that I should be unsupported by my coadjutors. I confined my efforts, therefore, to private exhortations, and with but little effect. Some of the ladies, out of regard for their pastor's feelings, took off their necklaces and ear ornaments before they entered the chapel, tied them up in the corners of their handkerchief, and, on returning, as soon as they were out of sight of the mission-house, stopped in the middle of the street to array themselves anew.

In the meantime I was called to visit the Karens, a wild people, several days' journey to the north of Maulmain. Little did I there expect to encounter the same enemy, in these "wilds horrid and dark with o'ershadowing trees." But he was there before me, and had reigned with peculiar sway, from time immemorial. On one Karen lady I counted between twelve and fifteen necklaces, of all colors, sizes and materials. Three was the average number worn. Brass belts above the ankles; neat braids of hair tied below the knees; rings of all sorts on the fingers; bracelets on the wrists and arms; long instruments of some metal perforating the lower part of the ear, by an immense aperture, and reaching nearly to the shoulders; fancifully constructed bags enclosing the hair and suspended from the back of the head—not to speak of the ornamental parts of their clothing—constituted the fashions and ton of the fair Karenesses. The dress of the female converts was not essentially different from that of their countrywomen. I saw that I was brought into a situation that precluded all retreat—that I must either fight or die.

For a few nights I spent some sleepless hours, distressed by this and other subjects, which will always press upon the heart of a missionary in a new place. I considered the spirit of the religion of Jesus Christ. I opened to 1 Tim. 2: 9 and read these words of the inspired apostle: "I will, also, that women adorn themselves in modest apparel, with shamefacedness and sobriety; not with braided hair, or gold, or pearls, or costly array." I asked myself, Can I baptize a Karen woman in her present attire? No. Can I administer the Lord's supper to one of the baptized in that attire? No. Can I refrain from enforcing the prohibition of the apostle? Not without betraying the trust I received from him. Again: I considered that the question concerned not the Karens only but the whole Christian world; that its decision would involve a train of unknown consequences; that a single step would lead me into a long and perilous way. I considered Maulmain and the other stations; I considered the state of public mind at home. But, "What is that to thee? follow thou me," was the continual response, and weighed more than all. I renewedly offered myself to Christ, and prayed for strength to go forward in the path of duty, come life or death, come praise or reproach, supported or deserted, successful or defeated in the ultimate issue.

Soon after coming to this resolution, a Karen woman offered herself for baptism. After the usual examination, I enquired whether she would give up her ornaments for Christ? It was an unexpected blow! I explained the spirit of the Gospel. I appealed to her own consciousness of vanity. I read to her the apostles' prohibition. She looked again and again at her handsome necklace—she wore but one—and then, with an air of modest decision, that would adorn, beyond all outward ornaments, any of my sisters whom I have the honor of addressing, she took it off, saying, I love Christ more than this. The news began to spread. The Christian women made but little hesitation. A few others opposed, but the work went on.

At length the evil which I most dreaded, came upon me. Some of the Karen men had been to Maulmain, and seen what I wished they had not; and one day, when we were discussing the subject of ornaments, one of the Christians came forward, and declared that at Maulmain he had actually seen one of the great female teachers wearing a string of gold beads around her neck. Lay down this paper, dear sisters, and sympathize a moment with your fallen missionary. Was it not a hard case? However, though cast down, I was not destroyed. I endeavored to maintain the warfare as well as I could, and when I left those parts, the female converts were, generally speaking, arrayed in modest apparel.

On arriving at Maulmain, and partially recovering from a fever I had contracted in the Karen woods, the first thing I did was to crawl out to the house of the patroness of the golden necklace. To her I related my adventures, and described my grief. With what ease, and truth too, could that sister reply, notwithstanding the necklace, "I dress more plainly than most minister's wives and professors of religion in my native land! This necklace is the only ornament I wear. It was given to me, when quite a child, by a dear mother whom I expect never to see again (another hard case), and she begged me never to part with it as long as I lived, but to wear it as a memorial of her." O, ye Christian mothers, what a lesson you have before you! Can you, dare you, give instructions to your daughters, directly contrary to apostolic commands? But to the honor of my sister be it recorded, that, as soon as she understood the merits of the case, and the mischief done by such example, off went the gold necklace, and she gave decisive proof that she loved Christ more than father or mother. Her example, united with the effort of the rest of us at this station, is beginning to exercise a redeeming influence in the female department of the church.

But notwithstanding these favorite signs, nothing, really nothing, is yet done. And why? The mission and all others must really be sustained by continual supplies of missionaries, both male and female, from the mother country. Your sisters and daughters will continually come out, to take the place of those who are removed by death, and to occupy numberless stations still unsupplied. And when they arrive, they will be dressed in their usual way, as Christian women at home are dressed. And the female converts will run around them, and gaze upon them with the most prying curiosity, regarding them as the freshest representatives of the Christian religion, from that land where it flourishes in all its purity and glory. And when they see the gold and jewels pendant from their ears, the beads and chains encircling their necks, the finger rings set with diamonds and rubies, the rich varieties of ornamental headdress, "the mantles, and the wimples, and the crisping-pins,"—(see Isa. 3: 18–23)—they will cast a reproachful, triumphant glance at their old teachers, and spring, with fresh avidity, to repurchase and resume their long-neglected elegancies: the cheering news will fly up the Dangyne, the Laingbwai and the Salwen; the Karenesses will reload their necks, and ears, and arms, and ankles; and when, after another year's absence, I return and take my seat before the Burmese or the Karen church, I shall behold the demon of vanity enthroned in the centre of the assembly more firmly than ever, grinning defiance to the prohibitions of the apostles, and the exhortations of us who would fain be their humble followers. And thus you, my dear sisters, sitting quietly by your firesides, or repairing devoutly to your places of worship, do, by your example, spread the poison of vanity through all the rivers, and mountains, and wilds, of this far distant land; and while you are sincerely and fervently praying for the upbuilding of the Redeemer's kingdom, are inadvertently building up that of the devil. If, on the other hand, you divest yourselves of all meretricious ornaments, your sisters and daughters who come hither, will be divested of course; the further supplies of vanity and pride will be cut off, and the churches at home being kept pure, the churches here will be pure also.

Dear sisters; having finished my tale, and therein exhibited the necessity under which I lay of addressing you, I beg leave to submit a few topics to your candid and prayerful consideration.

1. Let me appeal to conscience, and inquire: What is the real motive for wearing ornamental and costly apparel? Is it not the desire of setting off one's person to the best advantage and of exciting the admiration of others? Is not such dress calculated to gratify self-love, and cherish sentiments of vanity and pride? And is it not the nature of those sentiments to acquire strength from indulgence? Do such motives and sentiments comport with the meek, humble, and self-denying religion of Jesus Christ? I would here respectfully suggest that these questions will be answered so faithfully, in the midst of company, as when alone, kneeling before God.

2. Consider the words of the apostle, quoted above from 1 Tim. 2:9—"I will, also, that women adorn themselves in modest apparel, with shamefacedness and sobriety, not with broidered hair, or gold, or pearls, or costly array." I do not quote a similar command, recorded in 1 Pet. 3:3, because the verbal construction is not quite so definite, though the import of the two passages is the same. But cannot the force of these two passages be evaded? Yes, and nearly every command in the Scripture can be evaded, and every doctrinal assertion perverted, plausibly, and handsomely too, if we set about in good earnest. But, preserving the posture above alluded to, with the Inspired Volume spread open at the passage in question, ask your hearts in simplicity and godly sincerity, whether the meaning is not just as plain as the sun at noonday. Shall we then bow to the authority of an inspired apostle, or shall we not? From that authority shall we appeal to the prevailing usages and fashions of the age? If so, please to recall the missionaries you have sent to the heathen—for the heathen can vindicate all their superstitions on the same ground.

3. In the posture you have assumed, look up and behold the eye of your benignant Savior ever gazing upon you with the tenderest love—upon you, his daughter, his spouse, wishing, above all things, that you would yield your hearts entirely to him and become holy as he is holy, rejoicing when he sees one after another accepting his pressing invitation and entering the more perfect way.

4. Anticipate the happy moment, "hastening on all the wings of time," when your joyful spirits will be welcomed into the assembly of the spirits of the just made perfect. You appear before the throne of Jehovah; the approving smile of Jesus fixes your everlasting happy destiny; and you are plunging into "the sea of life and love unknown, without a bottom or a shore." Stop a moment! look back on yonder dark and miserable world that you have left; fix your eye on the meagre, vain, contemptible articles of ornamental dress, which you once hesitated to give up for Christ, the King of Glory; and on that glance decide the question, instantly and forever.

Surely you can hold out no longer. You rise from your knees in your present attire. Thanks be to God, I see you taking off your necklaces and ear-rings, tearing away your ribbons, and ruffles, and superfluities of head-dress, and I hear you exclaim, "What shall we do next?"—an important question, deserving serious consideration. The ornaments you are removing, though useless, and worse than useless in their present state, can be so disposed of as to feed the hungry, clothe the naked, relieve the sick, enlighten the dark-minded, disseminate the Holy Scriptures, and spread the glorious Gospel throughout the world. Little do the inhabitants of a free Christian country know of the want and distress endured by the greater part of the inhabitants of the earth. Still less idea can they form of the awful darkness which rests upon the greater mass of mankind, in regard to spiritual things. During the years that you have been wearing the useless ornaments, how many poor creatures have been pining in want! How many have languished and groaned on beds of abject wretchedness! How many children have raised up in the blackest ignorance, hardened in all manner of iniquity! How many precious souls have gone down to death with a lie in their right hand, having never heard of the true God and the only Savior! Some of these miseries might have been mitigated; some poor wretch have felt his pain relieved; some poor widow's heart been made to sing for joy; some helpless orphan have been taught in the Sabbath-school, and trained up for a happy life here and hereafter. The Holy Bible and valuable tracts might have been far more extensively circulated in heathen lands, had you not been afraid of being thought unfashionable, and not "like other folks;" had you not preferred adorning your persons, and cherishing the sweet, seductive feelings of vanity and pride.

O, Christian sisters, believers in God, in Christ, in an eternal heaven, and an eternal hell, can you hesitate and ask what you shall do? Bedew those ornaments with the tears of contrition; consecrate them to the cause of charity; hang them on the cross of the dying Lord. Delay not an instant! Hasten with all your might, if not to make reparation for the past, at least to prevent a continuance of the evil for the future.

And for your guidance allow me to suggest two fundamental principles—the one based on 1 Tim. 2:9, all ornaments and costly dress to be disused: the other on the law of general benevolence—the avails of such articles, and the savings resulting from the plain dress system, to be devoted to purposes of charity. Some general rules in regard to dress, and some general objects of charity, may be easily ascertained; and free discussion will throw light on many points at first obscure. Be not deterred by the suggestion that in such discussions you are concerned about small things. Great things depend on small; and in that case, things which appear small to short-sighted men are great in the sight of God. Many there are who praise the principle of self-denial, and condemn it in all its particular applications as too minute, scrupulous and severe. The enemy is well aware, that if he can secure the minute units, the sum total will be his own. Think not anything small, which may have a bearing upon the kingdom of Christ and upon the destinies of eternity. How easy to conceive, from many known events, that the single fact of a lady divesting herself of a necklace for Christ's sake, may involve consequences which shall be felt in the remotest parts of the earth, and in all future generations to the end of time—yea, stretch away into a boundless eternity, and be a subject of praise, millions of ages after this world and all its ornaments are burned up.

Beware of another suggestion made by wicked and erring souls, who will tell you that there is more danger of being proud of plain dress and other modes of self-denial, than of fashionable attire and self-indulgence. Be not ensnared by this last, most finished, most insidious device of the great enemy. Rather believe, that He who enables you to make a sacrifice, is able to keep you from being proud of it. Believe that He will kindly permit such occasions of mortification and shame as will preserve you from the evil threatened. The severest part of self-denial consists in encountering the disapprobation, the envy, the hatred, of one's dearest friends. All who enter the straight and narrow path in good earnest, soon find themselves in a climate extremely uncongenial to the growth of pride.

The gay and fashionable will, in many cases, be the last to engage in this holy undertaking. But let none be discouraged on that account. Christ has seldom honored the leaders of worldly fashion by appointing them leaders in His cause. Fix it in your hearts that in this warfare, the Lord Jesus Christ expects every woman to do her duty. There is probably not one in the humblest walk of life, but would, on strict examination, find some articles which might be dispensed with for purposes of charity; and ought to be dispensed with in compliance with the apostolic command. Wait not, therefore, for the fashionable to set an example; wait not for one another; listen not to the news from the next town; but let every individual go forward, regardless of reproach—fearless of consequences. The eye of Christ is upon you. Death is hastening to strip you of your ornaments, and to turn your fair forms into corruption and dust. Many of those for whom this letter is designated will be laid in the grave before it can ever reach their eyes. We shall all soon appear before the judgment-seat of Christ, to be tried for our conduct, and to receive the things done in the body. When placed before that awful bar, in the presence of that Being, whose eyes are as a flame of fire, and whose irrevocable fiat will fix you forever in heaven or hell, and mete out the measure of your everlasting pleasures and pains, what course will you then wish you had taken? Will you then wish that, in defiance of his authority, you had adorned your mortal bodies with gold, and precious stones, and costly attire—cherishing self-love, vanity and pride? Or will you wish you had chosen a life of self-denial, renounced the world, taken up the cross daily and followed him? And as you will then wish you had done, DO NOW.

OUR COMING ANNUAL MEETING.

BY DANIEL HAYS.

As the wheels of time bear us toward the 9th of June, we are apprised of our great Pentecostal Reunion. This time-honored custom of our Brethren in meeting once yearly to harmonize the work of the local churches, is, also, in a high degree the means of preserving the bond of union, and of promoting brotherly love. The aged fathers and mothers in Israel meet with their co-laborers of other years to give counsel to the young, and to renew the ties that have bound them together as one. The great body of active workers in the church meets to gain new strength and courage for the Christian conflict. The young, with the dew of promise, come up to these Meetings to partake of the spiritual food, and drink in of the blessings that God so graciously gives. There is much more to be gained than simply appears upon the surface of things. There is a deep spiritual benefit that all loving souls obtain; and we believe that God who so abundantly blessed the first Pentecostal meeting of the disciples still vouchsafes his presence and Holy Spirit in proportion to the faith and devotion of his people. So great was the faith and desire of our fathers, that God would bless our annual gatherings, in the past, that they exhorted the Brethren who remained at home to fast and pray on Pentecost.

These considerations taken together make it apparent that the business before the Council, though chief, is not the highest, the ultimate aim of our Annual Meeting. Any decision obtained at the expense of brotherly love is a loss. The views of the church upon nearly all questions of policy and expediency have come down to us. The more we study the usages of the Church the more harmony with the Gospel we see in them.

Then while the church decides upon questions for which there is no direct "thus saith the Lord," and uniformly makes her decisions according to the spirit of the Gospel, it is no less important that ALL UNITEDLY AND LOVINGLY AGREE to carry out and abide by those decisions. And this is the one great purpose of our Annual Meeting. Permit me, then, to say, Let all who go up to Annual Meeting leave all local differences, if any, at home. Leave self there. If any have harsh words and harsh tones, leave them behind. Don't come with the determination to carry at any cost some particular scheme through. "Give and take," but let it be more take than give. Let the young come in their strength, and in the beautiful order and simplicity of the church. Come to please God, and the Brethren, not the world. "Whosoever will be a friend of the world is the enemy of God."

The Meeting this year will be in the East, and about half-way between Pennsylvania on the north, and Tennessee on the south. Virginia, in whose borders the Meeting will be held, has many claims upon the Brethren South and West. Was it not from the bosom of the churches of Virginia that many of her spiritual sons moved South and West, sustained by her prayers, and nourished by her example? A reunion, with the scenes of early years, a renewal of friendships and fraternal ties and a joint devotion around "one common mercy-seat," this meeting will afford the privilege under God, to some for the first time,—to others for the last forever.

Come, then, ye aged with warm hearts and loving counsel. We need your example, your presence, your prayers and direction. Ye middle-aged standard-bearers of the cross, come, ye, yourselves apart, and rest awhile to renew your strength for a united work in the Lord's vineyard. It is here we gain strength for concerted action. Local differences are swallowed up in mutual concession, while all drink afresh from the fountain of brotherly love.

There are questions of some gravity coming before the meeting that should be met more in the spirit of calm reflection, and deference to past experience than by discussion. The question deferred last year, and upon which a committee is expected to report, is one of this character. A number of years ago, the writer thought he knew all about this question. A few years later on, he was willing to learn more about it. Now he is willing to submit it as a question to be determined by the experience of the past, rather than by the wisdom of the present. May the report of the committee, if in keeping with the purity of the church, be adopted without discussion!

REPENTANCE.

BY S. H. LOVE.

"But now commandeth all men every where to repent."—Acts 17: 30.

MARK says, "The beginning of the Gospel of Jesus Christ." "John did baptize in the wilderness and preach the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins." "The law and prophets," says Jesus, "were until John, and since that time the kingdom of heaven is preached." Though the beginning of his glorious Gospel was by his servant John, saying, Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand," Jesus, also, after his baptism used almost the same words, saying, "The kingdom of God is at hand; repent and believe the Gospel."

Peter, on the day of Pentecost, in answer to the query, "What shall we do?" said, "Repent and be baptized for the remission of sins." Again, the next day, at the beautiful gate of the Temple, he said, "Repent and be converted that your sins may be blotted out." Paul says, "I was not disobedient, oh, King Agrippa, to the heavenly vision, but shewed first to them at Damascus and at Jerusalem, and throughout all the coast of Judea, and also to the Gentiles that they should repent and turn to God, and do works meet for repentance." Jesus, in his letters to the seven churches, counsels them to repent, and this command is here five times repeated.

Thus we see in the beginning, the ending, and all through the glorious Gospel of our Master, this great doctrine of repentance stands out in bold relief. Of its importance a single reference suffices. Jesus asks of the Galileans whose blood Pilate mingled with the sacrifices, "Suppose ye they were sinners above all the Galileans? I say unto you, Nay, but except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish; or those eighteen upon whom the tower of Siloam fell, think ye they were sinners above all that dwelt at Jerusalem, I tell you, Nay, but except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish."

We, therefore, conclude that repentance is the fundamental ground work,—the first principle of the doctrine of Christ,—and without it there is no salvation.

What is it? What constitutes repentance unto salvation? It is not godly sorrow, for Paul, in 2 Cor. 7: 10, says, "Godly sorrow worketh repentance unto salvation." So then, if godly sorrow worketh repentance, they are related to one another as cause to effect.

Now, in the 11th verse of this chapter, repentance is clearly defined, its component elements given, and this is the only place in the Testament. Let me quote in full: "For behold, this self-same thing that ye sorrowed after a godly sort. What carefulness it wrought in you, yea what clearing of yourselves, yea what indignation, yea what fear, yea what vehement desire, yea what zeal, yea what revenge." These are here given as the component elements of that repentance which Paul declares is unto salvation.

Let me use an illustration. Getting wet is the cause,—a bad cold the effect. A bad cold has certain component elements,—such as hoarseness, sore throat, pain in the head and limbs, coughing and difficulty in breathing. These are the component elements of a bad cold, caused by getting wet. Now a man may get ever so wet and afterwards there are none of these symptoms, — no hoarseness, sore throat, coughing, etc. Then, getting wet did not produce a bad cold, he having none of the component elements of a bad cold.

So also a man may have sorrow for sin, and afterward there is no carefulness, clearing of himself, indignation, vehement desire, zeal, fear or revenge. Then his sorrow did not work repentance unto salvation. He has none of the constituent elements of true repentance and the quicker he repents of such repentance, the better.

Take the repentance of Zaccheus. The Scriptures say nothing about his repentance, but when brought to the square and plumet of the Word, we see his case comes up to Paul's definition. See, what carefulness to clear himself! He says, "If I have taken from any by false accusation, behold I restore." See what zeal and vehement desire to do good! When he says, "One-half of my goods I give to feed the poor." See what fear! If he had restored dime for dime, and dollar for dollar, gotten falsely, this would have been justice, but he not only shows vehement desire and zeal, but also fear, by the restoration of fourfold. When the Son of God saw in this man the component parts of true repentance, he said, "This day is salvation come unto this house."

A certain man has been hard and uncompromising, getting money in any way he could by fair or foul means. The glorious Gospel of Jesus shines in his heart, and he repents. He is careful now to clear himself, so he goes to a neighbor and says, "The tract of land I sold you has a defective title. I knew all about it, and sold it to you for five times its value. The goodness of God has led me to repentance. I have a zeal for that which is pure, a vehement desire to do that which is right before my Redeemer. See, I bring you back your money. Do not thank me; it is only my reasonable duty."

This experience causes to spring up in his breast a great hope, and hope maketh not ashamed, for the love of God is shed abroad in his heart. There is a sweet, tender joy in his bosom, as he wends his way to the home of a poor widow with whom he has had many transactions, and from whom he has unjustly taken many a dollar. He looks around on her poorly-furnished cottage, and her cleanly but poorly-clad children, whose threadbare garments are not sufficient to protect their little bodies from the piercing cold. He gazes on the poor woman and notes that her head is prematurely gray, and that the furrows are deep on her care-worn brow. He sees her calloused hands that have toiled so hard to provide for her poor, helpless darlings, and, oh, how he hates and loathes himself! What indignation he now feels that ever Satan should have put it in his hard heart to swindle this poor creature out of her hard-earned dollars, thus snatching the bread out of the mouths of her helpless orphans.

He now says, "Madam, I have counted up every dime I have taken from you wrongfully, and have brought back your money. Do not thank me; I have given back your own, but, oh, will you not pray for me, that I may be accepted?"

When a man who thus repents comes up out of the baptismal water, we can salute him in spirit and in truth with a holy kiss, and fellowship him indeed! Oh, that a tidal wave of such repentance would sweep over our land, and all men everywhere, in the church and out of it would obey our Father's command and repent.

In conclusion let me give an analogy. It is said that an angel once visited this earth to see if anything could be found worthy to grace the courts of heaven. In the mineral kingdom, —the gold, the diamonds or precious stones,—he found nothing. So also in the animal and vegetable kingdom, nothing was found worthy of heaven. He was about to leave when he saw a lonely woman, down on the sea-shore, leaning against a great rock, while the waves mournfully lashed the shore at her feet, and the pale moonbeams fell around her as thus she stood weeping for her sins, for the wrongs she had done, for the lost opportunities, for her wasted life. As the tear rolled down her wasted cheek, the angel caught the pearly drop and cried, "'Tis the only thing found on earth worthy of the courts of heaven.

True or not, I know this, the Son of God says, "There is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that cometh to repentance."

THE FULFILLING OF PROPHECY—A CRITICAL EXAMINATION OF SCRIPTURE.

BY F. C. RENNER.

Number 2.

"Blessed is he that readeth, and they that hear the words of this prophecy, and keep those things which are written therein: for the time is at hand."—Rev. 1: 3.

WE will next consider the sixty-ninth week, which, we think, will confirm this view. "Know therefore, and understand that from the going forth of the commandment to restore, and build Jerusalem unto the Messiah, shall be seven weeks and three score and two weeks."

Now, if there had not been several things that were to be accomplished, and if the vision were only to span the time from the going forth of commandment to the Messiah, it would have been written sixty and nine weeks.

At 450 B. C. the commandment went forth, as we have already shown, and sixty-nine weeks, or four hundred and eighty-three years reach to A. D. 33, or unto the time that Christ was fully acknowledged to be the Messiah, both by the disciples and the people. Hence we find that the seventy weeks, and the sixty-nine weeks harmonize with the other Scriptures, which can not be the case if you extend the seventy weeks to the destruction of Jerusalem, A. D. 70.

We will next examine what has transpired between the going forth of the commandment and the Messiah. After the Jews commenced to build the temple, they were hindered by the surrounding kings. John 2: 19, 20 says, that forty-six years was this temple in building. After a lapse of about two years the wall and street of Jerusalem was commenced (see Ezra), but being hindered, they returned every one to his work on the wall, Neh. 4: 15, for he informs us that he continued in this work from the twentieth year even unto the thirty-second year of Artaxerxes,—that is twelve years. Neh. 5: 14, 16.

This makes sixty years, or about, from the commencement of building to the completion of the wall, but yet the houses were not built within the city. See Neh. 7: 1-4. Hence we deduct sixty years from 450, which leaves us 390 years B. C. Dan. 9: 26 says, that after sixty-two weeks the Messiah shall be cut off. Now I am fully aware that most all writers put this at the crucifixion, but how can we think so, or how can we make Daniel's prophecy harmonize, if we do that? We must date from the commandment to build Jerusalem 450 B. C. Now we can not make seventy weeks reach A. D. 70, and the sixty-nine weeks reach A. D. 33, when there are only seven years' difference in the two periods, neither can we apply the sixty-two weeks, which date from the completion of the wall and street, to the crucifixion, because the Scripture will not bear us out. Moreover, the cutting off of the Messiah was to be after sixty-two weeks. How long after is not definitely stated, but that which follows shows that it was about the time of the sedition of Jerusalem, A. D. 67.

Dan. 9: 26 informs us that after sixty-two weeks the Messiah shall be cut off, but not for himself. We can not apply this cutting off to the crucifixion, because Jesus said that no man taketh his life,—that he layeth it down of himself. Moreover the crucifixion did not cut him off but clearly and truly proved him to be the Messiah from the wonderful works and wonders that were performed, as prophesied of him by the prophets and Psalmist. Jesus was the anointed. The word Messiah means "anointed."

We have shown that the seventy weeks were to reach to the anointing the Most Holy, for the Holy Ghost, which is the anointing power, was fully given, and had even fallen on the Gentiles before A. D. 42. Hence we learn that the disciples of Jesus, who were endued with power from on high, were the anointed of God, who had the Word of God, and the true sayings of Jesus. These holy people, the anointed of God, were cut off just prior to the destruction of Jerusalem. Jesus gave warning of this when he said to the disciples, "When ye shall see the abomination of desolation spoken of by Daniel the prophet, standing in the holy place (whoso readeth let him understand): then let him which be in Judea flee into the mountains, etc." Matt. 24: 15-24.

This is proof in my mind that the cutting off of the Messiah or anointed dates right here. Let us see what follows. "The people of the prince that shall come, shall destroy the city and the sanctuary." Titus was the prince, and his army was the people who did destroy the city, etc. "And he shall confirm the covenant with many for one week, and in the midst of the week he shall cause the sacrifice and oblation to cease." Dan 9: 27.

Josephus informs us, "On the 17th day of Tamuz, the sacrifice, called the daily sacrifice, failed, and was not offered to God, for the want of men to offer it. The people were grievously troubled at it, and commanded him to say the same things to John that he had said before, that if he had any malicious inclination for fighting, he might come out with as many of his men as he pleased, in order to fight without danger of destroying either his city or temple, but that he desired he would not defile the temple, nor thereby offend against God. That he might, if he pleased, offer the sacrifices which were now discontinued, by any of the Jews whom he should appoint." (Josephus part 2, book 6, chapter 2, page 401). Tamuz was February A. D. 66,—just three years and six months before Jerusalem was destroyed, hence it was in the midst of the week, just as Daniel predicted.

Having now fully established the date from which to count up the time, we will notice the 2,300 days. "Then I heard one saint speaking, and another saint said unto that certain saint which spake, How long shall be the vision concerning the daily sacrifice, and the transgression of desolation, to give both the sanctuary and the host to be trodden under foot? And he said unto me, Unto two thousand and three hundred days; then shall the sanctuary be cleansed." Dan. 8: 13, 14. The date of the vision, as already observed, was 450 years B. C.

Daniel saw in the vision that several powers were to rise against each other, and when one of them had waxed very great, the great horn was broken, and four notable ones came up to the four winds, and out of one of them came a little horn that waxed exceedingly great, and it attacked the host of heaven, and it cast down some of the stars of heaven, and stamped upon them. When this occurred, the question was asked, "How long," etc. Dan. 8: 1-24.

By comparing the Scripture with history we find this to have transpired about 410 years before Christ, and, consequently, here the 2,300 days begin, and if we subtract the 410 years from the 2,300, we have A. D. 1890 as the time for the 2,300 years to be fulfilled, and the sanctuary that was trodden under foot, to be fully cleansed.

We will see if we can find any proof to substantiate this view. Jesus said that Jerusalem should be trodden down of the Gentiles until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled, TIMES not TIME. Times here coincides with Rev. 12: 14, where the woman, which is the church, was driven into the wilderness at the very time when the Gentiles began to tread the holy city, etc. The church had a place prepared for her, and she received two wings of a great eagle that she might fly into the wilderness, where she would be nourished for a time, times, and a half time, which is 1,260 years, and which also denotes the length of the times of the "trodding down" of the Gentiles. See Rev. 11: 2. The holy city was given unto the Gentiles to be trod 42 months, which is 1,260 years.

MANY people are becoming so much possessed with the thought that everything is to be regulated by law that they forget the proper use of the Gospel. Each, in its place, ought to be the rule with all; under that arrangement, the Gospel will be the first, and will prove its right to that position.

BAPTISM BY IMMERSION.

BY PERRY BOWSER.

THE first object Christ had in view was to teach the disciples to go to all nations and preach the Gospel. He evidently meant the heathen, as well as the Christian nations.

The apostles were to teach faith and repentance, and for all those that believed and repented, it was necessary to be baptized. Baptized how? I claim by immersion. "Then went out to him, Jerusalem, and Judea, and all the region round about Jordan, and were baptized of him (John) in Jordan, confessing their sins." "And Jesus, when he was baptized went up straightway out of the water." Matt. 3: 5, 6, 16.

Now the reader can plainly see, that there was only one mode of baptism, or they would not have gathered at the riverside (Jordan); and when they were baptized came "straightway up out of the water." No doubt those baptized previous to Christ, were baptized by the same mode.

"And on the Sabbath we went out of the city by a riverside," etc. Acts 16: 13, 15. Had sprinkling been the mode, why should they have gone out of the city to the riverside, "where prayer was wont to be made," and baptism was to be performed? This is plain proof in favor of immersion.

Whenever the so called sprinklers have applicants for baptism, they never go out of the city, but they go to the city, contrary to the aforenamed passages of Scripture. They go into their chapels or church edifices and there the sprinkling occurs. There is no baptism at the riverside where there is much water.

"Let us draw near with a true heart, in full assurance of faith, having our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience, and our bodies washed with pure water." Heb. 10: 22. "If ye wash not your flesh, then shall ye bear your iniquities." This idea we gather from Lev. 17: 15-16. It shows what God required of his people then, and what the result was in case of disobedience. Some claim that a drop is as sufficient as the ocean. Suppose it were so. We are not to value the water. We are simply to obey the direct command of our Lord Jesus Christ. We are commanded to follow in his footsteps. How are we going to do this except we follow his example and be baptized as he was baptized?

THE house of Voltaire, the celebrated French infidel, who declared that Christianity would pass out of existence before the end of a hundred years, is now used by the Geneva Bible society as a repository for Bibles. The British Bible Society's house in Earl street, Blackfriars, stands where, in 1378, the Council forbade Wycliffe circulating portions of the Scriptures, and where he uttered the words, "The truth shall prevail;" and the Religious Tract Society's premises are where Bibles were publicly burned.

MAKE THE BEST OF IT.—He who makes the best of everything that happens to him will always have the best that his circumstances will allow, and will surely be a much happier man than he whose habit of mind is to make the worst of everything.

THERE is no one thing that is more helpful to a church in all its departments than the religious paper. The people who read about the kingdom of Christ are willing to give money to aid in its success.

IN our search after God and contemplation of Him, our wisdom doth consist; in our worship of God and obedience to Him, our religion doth consist—in both of which our happiness doth consist.

CHRISTIAN SPIRIT.

A Sermon by Bro. Sidney Hodgden as reported by Bro. Allen Oberlin.

But ye are not in the flesh, but in the spirit, if so be that the Spirit of God dwell in you. Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his."—Rom. 8: 9.

In the language of the text, "If we have not the Spirit of Christ we are none of his, or, if you can understand it better, "the disposition of Christ." He was here on earth as a peace-maker, going about and doing good unto all men. Now, how can we know that we are in possession of that Spirit? We all want to be possessed of it. There is a Spirit of Truth, and a spirit of error. The Spirit of Truth will not lead us to follow the foolish fashions of the world, but, on the contrary, will cause us to appear with shamefacedness and sobriety. The principle of truth should permeate our actions. To appear good is not sufficient,—principle should be our highest motive. By this we may and can know that our spirit is assimilated with Christ's spirit. When such is the case, we have a Christian spirit. When we call God's power to bear in our favor, we must be God's workers. Christ says, "My yoke is easy and my burden is light." Real zeal will remove all barriers in the service of God. All this gives us a hope that we will enjoy eternal felicity, beyond this vale of tears, at God's right hand,—an obedient spirit, a contrite spirit, an humble spirit, not puffed up, but always counting our brethren and sisters better than ourselves. A Christian spirit will enable us to "bear one another's burden." If we obey God's law, we will not set our affections on things of this world. Christ said, "My kingdom is not of this world, else would my servants fight." That Spirit will lead us into the kingdom of our Lord Jesus Christ. A submissive spirit characterized Christ, our Great Teacher. It is said that "God hates a proud look.

Paul speaks of a "time of falling away."—2 Thess. 2: 3. That time has come. Nowadays you can see popular Christianity dressed in the latest fashions of the day. All the different denominations, at an early day, stood upon the same platform upon which the Brethren church stands to-day,—that is, real and not ideal simplicity and humility. Especially did our Methodist brethren carry out this principle in their early history. Our general appearance and general deportment all stand out as an exponent of the spirit with which we are possessed.

Dear brethren and sisters, of a necessity the church must be in the world, but how sad to see the world working so hard to get into the church! How it stands us all in hand to strive lawfully, too, to keep it out! I travel considerably in my business of preaching. Three years ago, south of Independence, lived a number of Methodist brethren. During my preaching they invited me home with them. I went and they showed me a portrait of Peter Cartright and wife,—some of their old-time leaders. They both were dressed like our people. This shows what that church once practiced. Now they have fallen away from that simplicity as taught by our Great Teacher, Jesus Christ.

Then it is our duty as well as our privilege to maintain this simplicity, which, is so essential. It is something that cannot be hid, and will characterize every true follower of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Will we be true followers of Christ down the end of time? I notice in my getting around among the Brethren that love is a great characteristic of the church. I trust this may continue! May love ever be an attribute of the Brethren church!

We love the Brethren when we bear each other's burden. We have no strife, but, instead, true brotherly affection. The spirit of forbearance and forgiveness is a soul-cheering spirit. It should abound in our hearts and affections. We have the privilege and it is our duty to let it stand out as an exponent of the church. We should appear thus, not because others do so, but from a higher motive,—from principle, from love to the Master!

Give no offense in anything! Have charity one for another! Paul says in Gal. 6: 1, "Brethren, if a man be overtaken in a fault, ye which are spiritual restore such an one in the spirit of meekness, considering thyself, lest thou also be tempted." Let us consider how liable we all are to err! If we have the spirit of Christ, it will bring us back and place us again upon the narrow way. Let us always cultivate that forgiving spirit! Did you ever think of that clause in the Lord's Prayer, "Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors"?

What an awful condemnation we ask God to pass upon us in repeating that language! Should we hold a grudge against our fellow-men, how great our condemnation if we do not "from our hearts forgive men their trespasses?" If we forgive, we have the spirit of Christ. The spirit of forgiveness is the spirit of obedience, and that will not take us to the horse-race, or the saloon. It will show us many places along the narrow way at which we can do good. The evil spirit or spirit of disobedience has many votaries, and it leads men wrong. Step by step they go away from the Father's house.

Again, we may know that we possess the spirit of Christ, when, as Paul says, "the Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit."—Rom. 8: 16. This means that the Word beareth witness with our spirit, for Christ says, "My word it is spirit." So there is no guesswork about it,—the Word of God is a plummet wherewith we may know and can know when our spiritual house is out of line. The spirit of obedience will lead us into "pleasant paths of peace."

How do I understand the Divine injunction, "Repent and be baptized"? The obedient spirit says, "I know it" and truly it does, by obeying the command. It says, "I must and will lead a better life. I will leave the beggarly elements of the world and join in with the children of God." Our conscience says, "Repent;" the Holy Spirit says, "Repent," and angels say, "Repent." Turn to Mark 16: 16, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." If you comply with the Divine command, as it fell from the Master's lips, your own conscience, the Holy Spirit, and the Lord of glory are all witnesses that you have become a child of God. All the heavenly hosts and the angelic throng, now recognize you as a child of God.

If we obey God, hope rises within us and says, we can see beyond the grave. The mariner, out upon the ocean, when he sees a light-house in the distance, rejoices to know that by and by he will meet the loved ones at home. Thus our life is full of hope. We see a light-house in the distance. Christ points us to God's right hand where sit our dear ones, clothed in white! What a bright prospect of a glorious immortality! He loves to dwell upon the theme of love! Why do I leave my family, my home, to sojourn in a strange land to tell the story of the cross? Because I love the cause, and want to claim my mansion sure! Why do I long to get home again? Is it to see my farm, my land, my house, etc.? O no, I want to see the inmates! It is love all the way through that prompts us to herald the glad tidings, and deny ourselves a place in the family circle.

How anxious we are to see our loved ones at home, but how vastly more glorious will the meeting be in that glory-land, where we may look upon them as they are clothed in matchless robes of white! We also desire a seat near the throne with them. It will not be long until some of us will be mustered out of service, and go to our reward in the "sweet by and by"—nevermore to take the parting hand, or shed the parting tear! O, what a glorious hope! It will buoy us up in death, and, with the Apostle Paul, we can say, "I have fought a good fight; I have kept the faith, henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, that fadeth not away; not for me only, but for all those who love the appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ." Yes, dear brethren, Christ calls to us to-day, to work in his vineyard! Let us be good and faithful servants, like brother Paul, that we may enjoy a reward of eternal felicity in the "sweet by and by." You know reward follows labor, so let us labor till the Master comes. Soon one by one we will be mustered out, as servants of the Lord.

Sinner, in whose army are you a soldier? Have you hope of meeting your loved ones in the eternal world? It is said, "The wicked, with all nations that forget God shall be turned into hell." What is your hope if you forget God? If you forget him, your destiny is fixed and you are lost, forever lost! Your conduct here will give you a home in heaven or shut you up in hell. Many a dear mother's pillow, during the midnight hours, has been wet with bitter tears, shed for a wayward son or daughter. Sinner, you are out of the church, out of Christ, and finally you will be shut out of heaven.

"Then you'll cry and want to be,
Happy in Eternity."

With your loved ones you'll want to be, but, ah, you must, instead, associate with the filth and scum of the earth; as I remarked before, we will all, sooner or later, be mustered out of service, and asked to pass over the darksome valley, but when we arrive at home, what a glorious reunion that will be! Father, mother, brother, sister, children and companions, all arrayed in white, to walk up and down the golden streets of the New Jerusalem, no more to take the parting hand! Then will we realize the poet's language,

"When we've been there ten thousand years,
Bright shining as the sun,
We've no less days to sing God's praise
Than when we first begun."

A family in the east concluded to have a reunion, that all their children might once more partake of a meal together, under their parental roof, and engage in conversation of by-gone days. Accordingly the invitation went out. The children came from east, west, north and south, and engaged in the rich repast. But partings follow meetings here, and congregations do break up, and Sabbaths have an end. After a while the parting hand is given, and the parting tear is shed, and they separate, all going to their respective places of abode. They then look forward to that great meeting, that final meeting, a meeting for all God's people, a meeting to part no more.

"Where congregations do not break up
And Sabbaths have no end."

We will not get weary there! There will be a joy unspeakable and full of glory, where we will enjoy an eternity of bliss. May God bless and save us, is our prayer!

WHAT PROMPTS ME?

BY WM. M. LYON.

Important question indeed! Is God the root of all my actions? Paul once feared that he might be a "castaway," after having saved others.

Might not we? It is not a difficult question to decide. We can easily determine the true source of all our actions. Christ came not to destroy, but to save, hence a Savior. When Christ is in us, ours is the same mission. We become human saviors, not destroyers. A great part of our own salvation is trying to save others. He that would pass through this world doing deeds of kindness and love to all, especially to those of the "household of faith," dropping words of comfort and peace wherever he goes, not only among the children of the world, but among the family of God, such an one, we would believe to have been with God. His actions, therefore, we believe to come from the love of God shed abroad in his heart. But he that passes through the world doing harm by words and actions, causing trouble and sorrow, his ways are those of the evil one. His heart is not filled with God's love. His mission there is not to save, but to destroy, not to bring peace, but sorrow.

Again, if God is the source of our actions, nothing will cause us to deviate from the path of righteousness.

If the love of God fills the heart, there is no room for envy, jealousy, malice, strife—no room for any kind of evil. When our hearts are filled with the love of Jesus, we will not be as the minister of whom we once knew. The territory was large, the work great and help scarce, or in Bible language, "the harvest truly was great, but the laborers few." The Macedonian cry was made, but when the call was answered, this minister had so much of the love of God in his heart that he did not need any help, or at least according to actions and talk, he was able te do all the work himself. What love he must have had for souls! His love was so great that he was willing for them to be lost, rather than have a co-laborer in the Gospel. May God help such that thus lack the true spirit of Christ!

If Christ is in me, instead of refusing aid in the great cause of salvation, I should use every means possible to get help from others. I should rejoice just as much over the success made by my brother minister, as I would in my own. I will not try to injure his reputation. If he have many friends I should be glad of it, and thank God for it. God's true servants do this. But the devil takes quite a different plan. If I try to tear down what brother A. tries to build up, you may be sure that the devil is at the bottom of it, not God. It must certainly be an abomination in the sight of God, when he looks down upon those who profess to be the ministers of the Lord Jesus Christ, and sees them, instead of helping to build each other up, trying to tear down and destroy. How it must pain the loving heart of Jesus to behold such actions! What a deplorable fact it is that the greatest troubles in the church to-day have had their origin principally in the ministry! Satan knows just where to locate himself in order to do the most mischief. What a pity that any should ever give room to him! The only true and effectual preventive and remedy is to follow the custom of a certain heathen nation that filled their houses so full of their idols, that there was not room for their families. Let us keep our heart so full of the love and spirit of Jesus, that there will be no room for the destroyer. The devil never builds a house, till we furnish the lot. How is it?

"SOUND economy is sound understanding brought into action; it is calculation realized; it is the doctrine of proportion reduced to practice; it is foreseeing contingencies and providing against them."

NO.

BY C. H. BALSBAUGH.

No pressure is so great on the soul as the constraint of love. It was Jesus who said. "It is more blessed to give than to receive," and He was only giving utterance to His own experience. Acts 20: 35. To leave the bosom of His Father, the raptures and glories of that eternal intercommunion, was sweeter to Him, than all the praise and homage and service He will ever get for his condescension and self-sacrifice. This same preference of giving to receiving is the shining characteristic of God's elect. Let us note it well, for it is a sadly obscured and forgotten truth.

Love is like the Nile; it has its source away up and back in the mysteries of the evergiving, everblessed Trinity, and pours itself in seven mighty outlets into the astonished ocean. There are souls who would be in perpetual unrest and sadness if they were denied the privilege of spending themselves for others. They are so like God, so full of this self-sacrificing impulse, that it is their bliss to be always dying so that others may be blessed, and they themselves live more abundantly. These are the pillars of God's House, the van of the Lord's host, the terror of the Kingdom of darkness. The great want of the church and the world is the multiplication of such Christed souls. The half of the church cannot see, cannot be persuaded, how self-seeking and self-glorifying they are. A genuine Christ life in the saints is very apt to be branded as unbalanced and overstrained and altogether too upper-worldish. To be a fool for Christ is to carry in heart and forehead the broad, clear, blood-written signature of Jehovah-Jesus. "Nearer, my God, to Thee, Nearer to Thee." Let this be our incessant, ever-deepening aspiration. In Him, for Him, like Him, with Him, —let this be the sum of our being, in aim, effort, and experience.

There are hearts throughout the Brotherhood—dear, noble, God-enshrining, love-pulsing hearts—who are burning with desire to do something for poor, unworthy me in material form as they are able. To all such I am compelled to say, lovingly yet emphatically, NO. I am not unmoved to gratitude by such offers; but I am so situated that such expressions of Christian affection would be of little service. It is a quiet home I need, where heads and hearts and hands and feet and eyes and lips and tongues are all aflame with the blessed self-forgetting ministry of the Cross. God knows all, and to Him I commit all my agonies of body and mind—agonies of pain and social and spiritual wants. I need all my discipline, and yet "out of the depths" not unfrequently comes the heart-quivering plaint, "How long, oh Lord, how long." Hush, my soul, remember Acts 8: 32 and Matt. 10: 24, 25. "LEARN OF ME." None of us have graduated in the school of Calvary; I am at the foot of the Class, but my eyes look wistfully upward, and my heart pines for my diploma of "holiness perfected in the fear of God."

If my correspondents will enclose each two stamps for reply, I am more than satisfied. What is more must be for Jesus only and not for me. Philpp. 4: 17. God is giving me special training, and I must not frustrate His severe but gracious dealings by ignoring John 18: 11. One thing I earnestly beg, that all who indeed know what it is to pray in the Name of Jesus, "lift up holy hands" for me. Christ, Christ, only Christ; let all else be far."

"THE clemency of princes is sometimes exercised for vanity—sometimes for idleness—sometimes for fear, and nearly always for the three combined."

A Sudden Bereavement.

ON Monday evening, April 8, 1889, Herbert Blair, son of sister Charlotte and friend John Jacoby was playing with another school-fellow near the station at Indiana, Pa. The section hands were coming in with the hand-car, loaded with iron. They saw the boys crossing and recrossing the railroad track, but thought that the boys would certainly keep out of the way of the hand-car. Suddenly, however, they made a run across the track. The little boy, above mentioned, tripped and fell just in front of the car. It was beyond the power of the men on the car to prevent it from passing over the body of the little boy.

His father, who is the conductor of the freight train, being at the depot at the time, was called. He lifted up his little boy and pressed him to his bosom, not thinking that his little son was fatally injured. He soon learned that he was dying, and thus passed away in an unexpected moment. His age was seven years, ten months, and nine days. He gave vent to expressions which might not be looked for from many more advanced in years.

We see again that Providence reaches down and takes from the family circle the idol of the father, and the pride of the mother.

The funeral took place at the residence, April 10 at 2 P. M., at which place a large concourse of friends and relatives assembled. Services were conducted by Bro. Jos. Holsopple from Manor congregation, Rev. Swigart, of the Baptist church, and the writer. Those sorrow-stricken parents desire the prayers of God's people!

R. T. POLLARD.

From Beatrice, Neb.

BRO. C. HOPE stopped with us on his way home from District Meeting in Nebraska. He preached for us in town on Saturday evening and Sunday morning. On Saturday we improved the time by searching after some of the scattered sheep of his own nation. Some seemed to be very glad to see a missionary of their brethren. He is coming to Nebraska in the near future to preach for his people. We are endeavoring to get a mission post at Beatrice for him. Bro. B. F. Flory and W. C. Teeter also made a short stay with us. Bro. Flory preached at the Union church on Sunday afternoon, and Bro. Teeter in town on Sunday and Monday evenings. Two came out on the Lord's side and were baptized yesterday. Others seem "not far from the kingdom." Bless the Lord for all his benefits!

J. E. YOUNG.

From the Dunning's Creek Church, Pa.

THE church met in quarterly council at the Holsinger meeting-house on April 13. The business all passed off very pleasantly. The church elected brethren John S. Holsinger and John B. Miller as delegates to District Meeting, and Eld. J. S. Holsinger as delegate to Annual Meeting. Bro. Daniel Holsopple was present with us at the council, and remained and preached for us on Saturday evening and Sunday, in his usual plain and forcible way. On Saturday evening his subject was, "Love;" on Sunday, "Our Christian walk, and are we walking with God?"—basing his remarks on Amos 3: 3, and, "Can two walk together except they be agreed?"

☞Communications for publication should be legibly written with BLACK ink on ONE side of the paper only. Do not attempt to interline, or to put on one page what ought to occupy two.

☞Anonymous communications will not be published.

☞Do not mix business with articles for publication. Keep your communications on separate sheets from all business.

☞Time is precious. We always have time to attend to business and to answer questions of importance, but please do not subject us to needless answering of letters.

☞The MESSENGER is mailed each week to all subscribers. If the address is correctly entered on our list, the paper must reach the person to whom it is addressed. If you do not get your paper, write us, giving particulars.

☞When changing your address, please give your FORMER as well as your FUTURE address in full, so as to avoid delay and misunderstanding.

☞Remittances should be made by Post-office Money Order, Drafts on New York or Chicago, or Registered Letters, made payable and addressed to "Brethren's Publishing Co., Mount Morris, Ill.," or "Brethren's Publishing Co., Huntingdon, Pa."

☞Always remit to the office from which you order your goods, no matter from where you receive them.

☞Do not send personal checks or drafts on interior banks, unless you send with them 25 cents each, to pay for collection.

BRO. JOHN WISE will represent the Southern District of Kansas on the Standing Committee this year, with Bro. Daniel Vaniman as alternate. North-western Kansas and Colorado sends Bro. Isaac Studebaker as delegate on the Standing Committee; and Bro. J. A. Root will look after the interests of North-eastern Kansas in that body, with Bro. J. D. Trostle as alternate.

A CARD from Bro. Jacob Witmore, written at Stockton, Cal., informs us that he expects to reach his home at Center View, Mo., about the middle of this month and his correspondents will address him as above after the 10th inst. We are sorry to learn that his health is not as good as it had been. His mission to California, has, under God's blessing, been very successful.

THE new edition (the ninth) of "Europe and Bible Lands" is now ready to send out. Orders for either cloth or leather binding will now be promptly filled. The book is selling rapidly, orders for several hundred copies having been recently received. Agents engaged in selling it are doing well. For terms to agents and for copies of the work, address Brethren's Publishing Company, Mt. Morris, Ill.

WE are in receipt of the following letter, which will explain itself. Friend Cozart is a minister in another denomination:

"Will some one in the Brotherhood put me in communication with a brother who has a farm of about one hundred acres to rent in the neighborhood of a Brethren's church. I want to move and unite with the church. I have been reading the MESSENGER and I am convinced that the Brethren are God's people. W T COZART.

BRO. E. A. ORR changes his address from Philadelphia to Port Providence, Pa.

We are glad to note the growth of the Chicago Mission. The interest taken in the meetings, and the largely increased attendance are hopeful signs. On last Sunday the attendance was much larger than it has been at any time before this. A Sunday-school has been organized and this, with the Thursday evening prayer-meeting, and regular preaching services at half past three every Lord's Day keeps the spirit of work alive among the members. Brethren Spare and VanDyke were chosen to represent the Chicago church at our District Meeting, and Bro. W. R. Miller is sent as delegate to the Annual Meeting. Bro. J. G. Royer, who has charge of the newly-organized church and to whose judicious care and persistence in the work where failure seemed imminent, much of the success under God's blessing is due, will preach in Chicago on Sunday, the 5th inst. Eld. Whitmore Arnold, of Somerset, Perry Co., Ohio, has moved to the City and will assist in the work. Several other families of members have recently moved into the City so that the little band is being strengthened. Some are also standing near the kingdom. May God help them to decide now!

THE MILLER AND SOMMER DEBATE.

WE are receiving a good many orders for, and numbers of inquiries about, the great Rockingham debate between R. H. Miller and Eld. Sommer, of the Christian church. For the information of all we give the following statements:

1 The Brethren's Publishing Company have undertaken the publication of the book, and, by the time this notice is read, about eighty pages will be electrotyped. If we get the copy in time, the book will be ready to send out by Sept. 1st.

2. The book will contain about 500 pages, of the same size as the "Revised Minutes." It will be illustrated with a chart showing the legal time of eating the Passover and a plan showing the relative positions of Jerusalem, the brook Kidron, the garden of Gethsemane, and Bethany. It will be printed in clear, plain type, on good book paper, and well bound in cloth, and will be sold at $1.50 per copy: postage prepaid.

3. All profits arising from the sale of the book will be paid over to the General Missionary Committee, to be used for the mission work of the church. The cost of publication and selling will be submitted to a committee appointed for that purpose by the General Missionary Committee, who will audit the accounts and see that the money is paid as above stated.

4. A responsible, active, energetic agent is wanted in every church to sell the book. We do not want agents who will keep the book at their homes for sale, waiting for purchasers to come and buy, but we want brethren or sisters who will see every member in their congregation and get them, if possible, to take a copy of the book. To such agents special terms will be given upon application. Bro. S. S. Mohler has sent us the names of brethren and sisters who will sell the book in the different churches in his State District. Bro. J. M. Snyder, of McPherson, Kansas, will arrange for the sale of the book in that State, and Bro. I. M. Gibson will canvass the churches in Southern Illinois.

5. Some ask, Will the book sell rapidly? We think it will. As an evidence of this we refer to the fact that Bro. S. B. Shirky, of Rockingham Co., Mo., says, "Send me one hundred and twenty copies of the Discussion when completed." Orders have been already taken for this large number of books in the church in which the debate was held. This shows that those who had the privilege of hearing the debate are especially anxious to have the book, and we believe by a little effort on the part of agents many thousand copies may be sold.

6. So that we may know how many copies to issue we would like to have immediate responses. Those desiring to have the agency for their congregations will send at once for terms, giving the name of the congregation in which they live, with post-office address plainly written. Write at once. Remember that only active agents are wanted, and only one agent will be appointed in each church. Orders by mail will be entered and the books sent when ready.

QUERISTS' DEPARTMENT.

Besetting Sins.—Women Speaking in the Church.—The Chastisements of the Lord.—Judges in the Church.—Community of Goods at Jerusalem.

Dear Brother:—

1. Please explain Heb. 12: 1. What are weights, and what is the besetting sin? S. K.

THE language on which an explanation is asked, reads as follows: "Let us lay aside every weight and the sin which doth so easily beset us."

The word rendered weight occurs only at this place in the New Testament, and doubtless refers to the runners in the games who were careful not to encumber themselves with anything that would impede their progress. Before entering the race they subjected themselves to a disciplinary diet and course of training to remove unnecessary flesh. Their clothing was so made and arranged that it would not hinder them in the race. These weights were not to be thrown aside after the race began, but in preparing for it. The lesson for us is that we must lay aside, as we enter upon the heavenly race, everything that will in the least degree hinder our growth in the divine life. Every "encumbrance," all superfluous weights; pride, carnal and worldly lusts, vanity, violent temper, an impure imagination, evil thinking, jesting, and even otherwise harmless and useful things if they in the least retard our Christian growth. The blind man cast away his garment when he came to Christ. Mark 10: 50. See also Eph. 4: 22, Col. 3: 9, 10. Dr. Barnes in his Notes on this verse says, "Some persons would make much more progress if they would throw away many of their personal ornaments; some, if they would disencumber themselves of the heavy weight of gold they are trying to carry with them. So some very light objects, in themselves considered, become material and weighty encumbrances. Even a feather or a ring—such may be the fondness for these toys—may become such a weight that those who wear them will never make much progress toward the prize." These things must all be laid aside so that we may not be hindered in our race for heaven and eternal glory.

"The sin which doth so easily beset us." The Greek word rendered "easily beset" is not found elsewhere in the New Testament. Jamieson renders it "sin which easily stands around us." Luther in the German, "the sin which always so clings to us." Wahl, "Sinful propensity always surrounding us, ever present and ready." Barnes says it properly means "standing well around; denoting that which is near, or at hand, or readily occurring."

The meaning, doubtless, is such sins as we may be particularly liable to. Some weakness in our character, or our natural temperament, or disposition, may make us more liable to err in one direction than in another. Ambition, pride, levity, anger, love of money, love of popularity, doubting, and others, might be named. Then there are the sins to which we are exposed in our avocations in life. The merchant, the farmer, and the laborer each have their besetments peculiar to their business. All these things we are to lay aside as so many weights that hang to us and keep us from becoming strong men and women in the Lord. We are to search out these weak points in our characters, where we are most exposed, guard them carefully and strengthen ourselves where we are weak. This is to be done by watching and prayer.

The skillful general is constantly looking after the weak places in his line of battle, or his fortifications; and if he discovers a weak point he at once sets to work to strengthen it. So must we labor to become strong where we are weak, for although we may be strong in some points, we should not forget that our Christian character is not to be tested by its strongest points but by the weakest.

2. Will some one please give us an explanation on 1 Cor. 14: 34, 35? A SISTER.

This query refers to women speaking in the church, and we refer the querist to Bro. Quinter's article on the subject which has recently been reprinted in the MESSENGER.

3. Explain the following passages of Scripture: Heb. 12: 6, and the first clause of Rev. 3: 19. A. J. MYERS.

"For whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth, and scourgeth every son whom he receiveth." "As many as I love I rebuke and chasten." The language is quoted from Proverbs 3: 11, 12. As an earthly father corrects his children, not for the mere purpose of inflicting pain, but to discipline them for their own good, because he loves them and knows that unless their errors are corrected by chastisement, the result will be injurious to the child, thus showing a paternal interest in their welfare, — so our Heavenly Father, when he accepts us as sons and daughters, has more than the love and care of an earthly parent for us. In the life of every child of God there are some things that need correction, and when the Lord, for our good, chastens us, he only shows that he loves us and that we are not neglected and cast out as illegitimate children.

The chastisements of the Lord come to us in various ways, but always in the way that is best for us and that will do us the most good. They may be grievous to us, for chastisement is intended to produce pain, but in the end, if we are properly "exercised thereby," we shall reap the peaceable fruit of righteousness.

Dear Bro. Miller:—

How are we to understand 1 Cor. 6: 4, "If then ye have judgments of things pertaining to things of this life, set them to judge who are least esteemed in the church"?

Yours in the faith, J. E. BLACK.

The church at Corinth had fallen into many errors and the Apostle wrote his letters to the Corinthians mainly for the purpose of setting them in order. One of the grave errors in which they had become involved was that of going to law one with another and that too before the unjust. Paul censures them severely, and, in reasoning with them upon the question, says in substance, It is a shame for you who are to judge the world, and even angels, to take the small matters pertaining to the affairs of this life before the heathen magistrates for judgment. It was these same officers before whom the Christians were brought when they were persecuted and condemned to stripes, imprisonment and death. Now, when a personal difficulty arises among them, which they ought to have settled in the church among themselves, they go before the unbelieving magistrates for judgment thus actually setting those to judge who are least esteemed in the church.

The expression in the 4th verse, to which our brother calls especial attention, is to be regarded as a question. The Revised gives the meaning plainer than the Authorized Version. It reads as follows: "Do ye set them to judge who are of no account in the church?" He asks them this question implying that they do set the very class of people who are least esteemed in the church to judge for them. The Roman magistrates of this period were men of profligate, corrupt and abandoned character. They were easily bribed, and by all good and pure men were held in low esteem.

Some have held that the words refer to members of the church who were not highly esteemed but the objection to this is plainly shown in the fifth verse. "I say this to move you to shame. It is so that there cannot be found among you one wise man who shall be able to decide between his brethren?" Revised Version. This shows that he wanted them to select, not the most obscure, but the wisest man in the church to adjust their difficulties. The meaning seems to be plain that by those least esteemed in the church, the Apostle referred to the Roman judges.

D. L. MILLER,

Dear Brother:—

Please explain through the MESSENGER why the bretbren at Jerusalem had all things common. How long did it continue, and why was it discontinued? J. S. S.

The community of goods was not enjoined by command, but was practiced to a considerable extent during the first century of the Christian church. That it was not an obligation is apparent from the language of Peter to Ananias Acts 5: 4, "while it remained was it not thine own and after it was sold was it not in thine own power?" So long as it remained unsold, he was under no obligation to dispose of it, and after selling it he was not bound to give over the money to the apostles. It was his own and he could dispose of it as he saw proper.

The principle taught in the Gospel of giving to the poor, and helping those who lacked was doubtless the motive that prompted the action of the disciples. The rich gave their abundance, and this same principle will be always found with the church of Christ. Whether the means necessary to supply the poor be raised by such contributions as are named in Acts 3 and 4, or by the method adopted by Paul in 1 Cor. 16: 1–2, the principle is the same, and it should never be lost sight of. It is evident that Paul did not think that the plan adopted at Jerusalem was the best, for by it some were burdened, while others were eased; and so, directed by the Holy Ghost, he gave the Christians the following injunction when there was need of money: "Upon the first day of the week let every one of you lay by in store as the Lord has prospered him." Evidently this was the best plan, for it is the one commanded by the apostles, and it doubtless superseded the community of goods at a very early day in the church.

WHERE NEUTRALS BELONG.

(Concluded from First Page.)

across the road or street from us, and even the next door alongside of us. Within seeing and hearing distance of our homes and our children are to be heard the oaths and profanity of the wicked,—who congregate at these inns of iniquity—and the bacchanalian songs of the drunken. You may say that there are no such places near my home, and why should I be concerned? There may not be, but there are such places alongside and near a thousand other homes that belong to your State, and are as desirous of being free from the attending temptations and dangers as you are. But they cannot unless you come to their rescue. They are calling for you, as the good Samaritan to come and help them. These robbers—the saloon-keepers—have robbed some of them and left them more than half dead. Will you, my brother, be the Samaritan, or will you play the part of the Levite and priest by being neutral, and thus close your ears to the appeals, cries and prayers of the broken-hearted widows, mothers and daughters, who are weeping for their husbands, sons and brothers, and will not be comforted, because they are not. No, you cannot. Your high sense of duty says, No. Your conscience says, No. And above all, your holy Christianity says: No.

From where we now sit penning these thoughts, as we look over the way, we see on the corner house, in large letters, "Washington House." Two years ago, as we looked across from time to time we could see an almost constant stream of men going in and out of the lower door. On the inside was the "bar" where the glasses were tipped by the laboring men of our town, and their hard-earned wages jingled into the greedy saloon-keeper's till. In harmony with the wishes of our people, our worthy Judges, two years ago, said that these dens of destruction, were not needed in our County—may lasting honor crown their noble work—and since then we have not had a licensed house to sell whisky in our County.

As we now look over to the same place, we see no men going in and out for whisky, but, in front of the building, we see a row of new wagons, reapers, cultivators and farming implements generally. How blessed the change, and how glorious would be the results were these dens of iniquity closed all over the State, and all the States—yes, all over the world. On the 18th day of June the citizens of this State will have the privilege of deciding whether or not this great evil shall be continued. It is not a political contest—will not be a political election, but you are called upon to decide, as you would do, if a man were to try to establish a saloon in your front yard, or across the way from your own home. Do, on the 18th of June, as you would do under the above-named circumstances, had you the same privilege, and we are sure you will do the right thing. While there may be no saloon in your yard, or on your farm, you have neighbors all over this great State of ours, who are forced to live within hearing and feeling distance of these places of temptation and sin. They are as destructive and ruinous near their homes, as they would be near your homes. Come to their rescue by doing for others as you would have others do for you. O, pity the ruined homes, the broken-hearted mothers and the wretched and starving children, and do what you can to rescue them from the grasp of this unfeeling and soulless power.

THE GREAT WORK AND ITS WORKERS.

BY LANDON WEST.

THE great work of saving a world and its people, as a whole, can be seen only from heaven, and by those who dwell there, but in part it can be both seen and felt here on earth, even by the humblest worker, and the lowest sinner.

Here on earth the work is now to be done, and here, only here, it is needed, for here the sinners dwell, and this is the field to be worked.

It is a stupendous work; one that offers pardon and gives eternal life to the people of a world, with its nations, kindreds and tongues, and for all time. It is not only a great but a glorious work, and that which brings salvation within the reach of all sinners, be they low as they may, is a godly, —a heavenly work.

But great and glorious as the work is, it must be a success, for there are workers both great and wondrous, who, for a long time, have been enlisted in the cause, and it can not be a failure.

Our Heavenly Father stands first on the list—the Head of all workers both in heaven and on earth, and the work he has done, and is now doing, must excel every other, for none can compete with him. His love for a world of sinners, his gifts and his mercy, his grace and his goodness our minds fail to comprehend, much less can we compare with our accomplishments. "My father worketh hitherto." John 5: 18. Our Savior, Jesus, the Son, of God, is another of the great workers, for in nothing has he failed, and of all who have spoken, none have spoken like him. Of all the sacrifices offered, none are so great and precious as the sacrifice of himself. Of all the deaths that have been met, his was the sorest and most shameful, and of all the victories obtained, his is the greatest, the grandest of all!

The Holy Spirit of God is another of the great workers, and his is a vast work. He is now in the world and, in the name of Jesus, superintends the work of salvation in all its departments. He is the Comforter of all the people of God, a Guide for them to the Truth, a Reminder of the Word of Life, and a reprover for the wrongs that are done. He is a witness for the people of God, and a witness against the servants of sin. In addition to these master workmen on this building of God, there have been a vast multitude of noble workmen, who have lived and worked for this royal work, and have now gone home to glory and to rest.

There are yet thousands of noble workmen, both old and young, both strong and brave, who are still at work on the wall, who work and fight and pray, both night and day, that the work may go on, and that the wall may be built. Great and zealous as the workmen are, we are still in need of fellow-workers all the while, for many have done their work, have borne their part, suffered their lot, and have now gone home to glory. Others are falling daily, but with their armor on, and their face to the foe. Others must still fall, but the work of salvation must go on. We invite others to come in and aid the work, that the ranks may be full, and the work may go on until the Master shall come!

MISSION WORK.

BY ABRAHAM MOLSBEE.

THIS is more than a name to go and preach the Gospel, and pass on to some other new place, but in the true sense, as given by the Savior in his great commission, it signifies, "Go and preach the Gospel to every creature," "baptize him (or them) in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." Matt. 16: 15, 16; Matt. 28: 19.

Our ministers being called of God, through the church, are qualified, by the grace of God, with his spirit, empowered by the church to preach the Gospel, and that they may obey their call from God, they must not only preach, but must baptize those that believe.

It, then, is necessary that he be located, or at least for a while, for traveling over a great deal of country and preaching a few sermons at a few stop-over places is certainly not doing mission work. Spending time and money in such so-called "mission work" will never accomplish what the church wants. The church wants souls saved, and they are willing to help in this great work. But when the church wishes to locate some one, at least for a time, in some city, town or country, where the Gospel, as taught and practiced by the Brethren church is unknown, they fail to hear of them as they would like to. O! how their hearts have been made to rejoice, when they would read Bro. Hope's letters from Denmark, while he was in the mission work there! Brother D. L. Miller, while visiting in Denmark said if the brethren and sisters of America, who so liberally donated to build the meeting-house in Denmark, could have been there with him, they would have felt more than repaid for the money given. This work in Denmark is mission work indeed, and I have thought, and yet believe, — if ever Bro. Hope's health would admit, — he should be sent back, to carry on the good work that was begun through his missionary labors. If those that are sent by the Mission Board, give such reports of their work as that of Denmark, there will be thousands in the church treasury to support the work.

Although there have been some failures in our mission work, and though we hear of no immediate results, yet we should not be discouraged in our work. Some money was misapplied in years gone by, because we had no proper system. I remember, and so do others, that, several years ago, in Annual Conference there was a call for ministerial help to Southern Tennessee, and, instead of sending one able for the work, to spend a year or more there, there were three faithful brethren sent at a cost which would have supported one resident minister a year or more. They did the best they could, but to-day we have no organized church in that country. Had a minister been located there and assisted by the Mission Board, as we now have it, in all probability we would have had similar results as in Denmark.

We do not wish to praise Bro. Gish more than he deserves, but we do commend him for his mission work in Arkansas. We could name others who have been, and are, faithful workers in the mission field. Some of them do not stay long enough at one place to do any good. They are off somewhere else,—claiming to be looking up some isolated members. They report a "wonderful country," "land cheap," "homes can be had on easy terms," and before the scattered members can be got together there, they are off for some other place, calling to come there,—probably just because everything does not work to their hand or liking.

Sometimes reference is made to the large churches and the number of preachers that are all idle. This may be so, but if "Farmer John" were there he would not be idle. Descriptions of "fine land," "pleasant climate," "land of flowers," and all such glowing accounts of countries do not build up churches very fast. Immigration is necessary and beneficial, sometimes, to the building up of the church. Glowing descriptions cause brethren to become dissatisfied with their humble homes, and make their temporal matters much worse, and spiritually a great deal worse. Some write back to the church they left, "O! if I could just be with you at your love-feast, how my poor soul would rejoice!"

We have a goodly number of preachers, traveling among the churches, who are doing a good work, and we would be glad if we had many more. These, however are not missionaries, or mission workers. The plan adopted by General Conference is a good one, but where are the men who are fully consecrated to the work? This is what we need to-day,—preachers who are willing to go and work until Conference will relieve them, and send another in their stead,—men that will leave their homes and their friends, relatives, and the old church, and go and stay! This is what we want and need to-day. We want men who will not look after their financial matters first, but who have the good of souls and the building up of our Zion at heart. To travel a few thousands miles on the railroad, to have the Mission Board pay the fare, and then return in a few days, is surely not doing mission work as the church wants. Consecrated men the church wants, and where will she find them?

Let us labor more for the spreading of the blessed Gospel by preaching, praying, giving and going!

Notes from our Correspondents.

"As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country."

—Under date of April 22, Bro. John Metzger, of Cerro Gordo, Ill., writes: "April 13 I took the train at Cerro Gordo, Ill., for Salem, Marion Co., Ill. I had meeting the same evening, about four miles west of Salem, in a school-house, and Sunday at 11 A. M. Sunday evening I conducted a meeting in Salem and continued the meeting at the same place the entire week. The interest was good. The first one that came out was a young man who is working in a printing-office. As a result of the meetings five were baptized. All are young people. I hope and pray that they all will be a light to the world. Prospects good at this place. Came home last night, and found wife and children all well. Thank the Lord!"

—Bro. M. L. Spires writes: "Bro. C. Hope will, as soon as arrangements can be made, visit Bertrand, Broken Bow, and Grand Island, Nebraska, to do some missionary work among some of our Danish members at the above-named places. May the Lord work with him, is my prayer!"

—Under date of April 20, Bro. James T. Kinzie, of Centropolis, Kans., writes: "The brethren and friends of the Appanoose church met April 7 and organized a Sunday-school by electing Bro. C. W. Shoemaker, Superintendent, and J. T. Kinzie, Assistant. We hope and pray that the Sunday-school may prove a success!"

—Bro. Silas Hoover, of Boynton, Pa., informs us of the serious illness of Bro. Elias Weitsel, elder of the Cherry Grove church, Pa., and then states: "He was anointed April 19, and is fully resigned to the will of the Lord as to the future. Bro. Weitsel is one of the old standard-bearers, whose daily walk and conduct are a constant sermon to those around him."

—From the Bear Creek church, Garrett Co., Md., Bro. Josiah Beeghly writes: "We have had several additions to our little flock since our last report. April 4, two came out on the Lord's side; April 7, one more; and April 19, nine souls made the good choice. Brethren William Schrock and Daniel Walker came to us from Berlin, Pa., April 12, and have been preaching for us since then."

—Under date of April 17, Bro. Alverty Buxton, of Upper Sandusky, Ohio, writes: "The brethren and sisters of the Wyandot church, Ohio, met in council April 13th. Bro. S. Lose and wife were with us. Everything passed off in love and union. The brethren and sisters were made to rejoice to see one return that had strayed away from the fold. Our communion meeting was set for June 15."

—Sister Clara Clark, of Lone Oak, Mo., writes: "Only those who are isolated from church can tell how we appreciate the visits of the MESSENGER. I have not heard a sermon by the Brethren for nearly five years. We can hardly find words to express our thanks to Bro. J. J. Cart for sending us the MESSENGER. Just lately we have seen in the paper that there is a church at Nevada, Mo. We expect to go there next month, no preventing providence."

—Bro. Samuel Weimer, of the Little Traverse church, Harbor Springs, Mich., writes: "April 6 we held our quarterly council. Very little business was transacted and that was of a pleasant character. We appointed our communion for July 27. As that will be about the time of the Methodist camp-meeting, when the railroad companies grant half rates, we thought we would be more likely to obtain help at that time."

—Bro. Daniel B. Heiny, of McCool Junction, Nebr., writes: "The Missionary Board of the State of Nebraska was re-organized April 12 as follows: Moses Keefer, Chairman, Greenwood, Cass Co., Nebr.; M. L. Spires, Treasurer, Holmesville, Gage Co., Nebr.; Daniel B. Heiny, Clerk, McCool Junction, York Co., Nebr. There is some money in the treasury, and we are now ready to receive calls from isolated members and weak churches for ministerial help, wherever it may be needed."

—Under date of April 19, sister Bernice Ashmore, of Mansfield, Ill., writes: "The members of the Blue Ridge church assembled in quarterly council April 7. Considerable business was before the church which was transacted to the satisfaction of all present and in the fear of the Lord. The church agreed to have a love-feast, May 18, at 3 P. M. We organized our Sabbath-school April 8, with Bro. Adam Greenawalt as Superintendent, assisted by Bro. C. Barnhart and other officers."

Scraps.

TO-DAY, April 14, Bro. John B. Fluke, of Loysburg, Snake Spring church, preached for us, at New Enterprise, from Matt 13: 31, 32. Subject, "Great consequences from small beginnings." Bro. Fluke is an able, earnest and humble expounder of the Word, and should be in the field all the time.

At this writing brother Isaac Replogle, Sr., is quite sick. He was anointed last night after services. Some are doubtful of his recovery.

The New Enterprise Sunday-school held its first session for this season this afternoon. It starts out with an excellent corps of workers. Bro. Fluke was also present and ably addressed the school. He spoke of the holy influences going out from the teachers. Ah, I have thought since, would that they were always such. I have seen the foolish jest and idle conversation by the teacher in the presence of the pupils, even in the Sunday-school. A wonderful responsibility rests on the teacher. Horace Mann said once when looking at children, "They are children of to-day, men of to-morrow, and immortals of eternity." I often wonder how our brethren and sisters can venture to teach the young the holy truths of the Bible while they, at the same time, are disobedient themselves. Christians are plainly forbidden the wearing of gold, and yet there are brethren and sisters who occupy these positions, who wear gold pins, buttons, etc O, the inconsistency of such teaching! Children are imitators.

I received a letter a few evenings ago from my stepsister, Jennie Phillips, nee Earnest, of Maywood, Frontier Co., Nebr. She says she has been working for three months to get a minister to locate there, to build up a church. Her husband has been waiting a year for an opportunity to unite with the church. They live, perhaps, 150 miles from an organized church, and no opportunity presents itself. They now offer the exclusive use of part of their farm,—beautiful land, —with many privileges, for a number of years, if a minister would locate there. Many things impressed me in this case. A man has been waiting so long to come to the church, and has no opportunity. We read this in tears. How few wait for opportunities! The Spirit is grieved, the convictions stifled, and hundreds of golden opportunities passed by. Then they are alone. There is only one sister, perhaps, in the whole County, yet she is hopeful, that, if the proper effort is made, a church may be built up, and they can have a church home. A man, who is not a member yet, is offering to make some sacrifice to build up the cause of Christ. What have we, who have been long years in the Master's service, done to build up the Truth around us, in comparison to this? Ah, so many can not stand up for the Truth alone. I know what it is to be isolated from the church, but the loose religion about me always made me stronger in the faith of the Gospel. If all our isolated members would maintain their integrity, live out the doctrine of the church, stand up for Jesus and not be ashamed to unfurl the banner, what mission posts these would make all over the land!

I was also impressed with the good work the MESSENGER is doing. This man, above referred to, had almost lost faith in all churches, because of the evils he saw in popular Christianity. By reading the MESSENGER he was brought to his present convictions.

Three were baptized several months ago at this place. E. A. REPLOGLE.

A Request.

IT is the earnest request and sincere desire of our dear brother, Lemuel Hillery, of Hutchinson, Reno Co., Kans, that he be remembered in the prayers of the Brotherhood at the throne of grace, in the heavy burden of affliction he has suffered since the loss of his dear wife. That alone was a heavy burden to bear, which still weighs down the mind day and night, but in connection with that our dear brother's bodily affliction is so great that he can not rest day or night. He was unable to enjoy their love-feast on the evening of April 18, but had to go home and feast upon the bread of affliction and pain alone. Our brother wants the prayers of all in his behalf that he might, by the will of God, be once more restored to health and usefulness in the church and in the world, as a faithful servant of the Lord, to go and preach the Gospel of God. May the good Lord add yet many years of usefulness unto our brother's life, is my prayer! JOHN FORNEY.

From the Litchfield Church, Ill.

THE Litchfield church was organized in the city of Litchfield, Feb. 24, with fourteen members.

This has been a District missionary point for some time. Elder Daniel Vaniman did the principal part of the preaching. The members at this place belonged to the Macoupin Creek church, but, with the above membership, it was thought best, all things considered, for them to be organized into a separate local church.

Elders Daniel Vaniman and M. J. McClure met with them on the above date, and effected an organization.

Bro. J. P. Studebaker was elected deacon, and Eld. David Troxel, of Cerro Gordo, chosen as overseer. This is a promising point. Their Sunday-school reached eighty in December, but had to be closed on account of not having a convenient place to meet. They have preaching twice each month, and prayer-meeting weekly.

All of their meetings are held in private houses. They have no minister at present. It has been arranged that Bro. Troxel is to meet with them on the second Sunday of each month, and the writer, in person or by substitute, on the fourth Sunday. The Missionary Board will aid financially.

At a recent council the church decided to make an effort to build a meeting-house and requested aid from the Missionary Board. They need a house very badly, but are not able to do much themselves. I feel that a great responsibility is resting on the Missionary Board in the consideration of such questions.

Ministers passing are requested to preach for them! G. W. GIBSON.

From the State Agent for Immigration of Virginia.

THE Annual Meeting will be held at Harrisonburg in Rockingham Co., Va., in the Shenendoah Valley in June next. As there will doubtless be a large number of the Brethren from the North and West, who will take advantage of this opportunity to attend this meeting and at the same time to look over Virginia with a view to location, I would say to all such that, as the organ of the State, I have made arrangements to be present with such literature as will give a fair idea of the State,—its climate, soil, productions, facilities for market, grand natural divisions, schools; taxes, etc.

At the same time and place I shall have on the ground, or accessible thereto, as many of the County Agents of Immigration as can attend, who will be furnished with more detailed accounts and descriptions of their own Counties, with lists of land for sale, prices, products, and maps, showing routes to reach them and affording all possible facilities for enquirers to determine where to locate, to pick out the particular piece of land they wish to look at and to reach it by the shortest and least expensive route. Enquirers are assured that all precautions have been taken to keep them out of the hands of any who would be disposed to deal unfairly with them. Great care has been taken in the selection of these County Agents to get men of character and conscience who know the value of land and will make nothing but fair representations to buyers.

In addition to this, stringent instructions have been issued to the County Agents, requiring them to deal squarely with strangers, and any failure on their part to do so will, upon knowledge of the facts, procure their instant dismissal from office. It is earnestly hoped that all who propose to come will embrace this opportunity, as it will afford the Immigration Bureau an opportunity to give them a bird's-eye view of the State, while they will have the advantages incident to attendance on the meeting and the reduced rates, and the opportunity at one time and place, of meeting so many intelligent men from all parts of the State whose representations can be relied on.

CHARLES GRATTAN,
Commissioner of Immigration for State of Virginia.

A Sad Accident.

UNDER the above caption we chronicle the death of the only son of our sorely-afflicted brother Jesse and sister Barbara Calvert. He was employed as brakeman on the C. W. & M. R. R., and on the night of April 22, when nearing the station of Elkhart, Ind., was, in some manner, thrown from the train, and, probably, instantly killed. He was missed as soon as the train stopped, and the train men at once ran back about one and one-half miles, where they found him in a terribly mangled condition. Life was extinct and, from all appearances, taking into consideration his fractures of the skull,—he never realized any suffering. He was sent home the following morning,—a limbless corpse,—every limb having been severed from his body, and the left arm almost entirely lost. His body and skull were terribly mangled, and, to say the least, he was a pitiable and sad sight to look upon.

Elmer Calvert was a young man of promise, and looked upon by his employers as a young man of rare ability. He had been "braking" a comparatively short time and was to take charge of a train as conductor in about a week,—May 1. To that time he was looking forward with anticipation, and not he only, but also his fond parents, for they felt that the dangers connected with railroad life would be somewhat lessened. The deep concern shown by the presence of a number of the employees of the road, at the funeral, and the drapery on the trains showed that he was highly respected by all. Truly, the stroke upon his parents and sisters was heavy, and in the hour of their deep affliction we can only cite them to God who is alone able to heal the agonizing wound in their hearts. May his affections have gained such a hold upon the hearts of his dear sisters that, in their sympathy for him, their minds may be drawn nearer to the "Great Physician" who alone is able to heal our sorrows. Yet we must not forget that we must apply his remedies, and we believe that these sad occurrences are only to remind us of our duty. The entire community feels to extend their sympathies in behalf of the bereaved family. May God's blessings abide with them and us all, is our prayer. N. B. HEETER.

In Memoriam.

SISTER Anna Cripe, wife of Bro. Ira Cripe, departed this life April 6, 1889, aged twenty-three years, seven months and twenty-four days.

She united with the Brethren's church in the winter of 1882, with a number of others. She was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Ira G. Cripe, son of Eld. George Cripe, April 12, 1884. She lived a devoted Christian life up to the day of her death. Her last day was spent in exhorting her unconverted friends and neighbors. She tried to encourage her mother, brothers and sisters, and her kind husband, to be faithful and take more interest in Sunday-school and church work in the future than they had in the past, that they might all meet her in heaven. She told them not to weep for her but to weep for themselves when she was gone. She tried to cheer her broken-hearted husband, and prayed for him that he might hold out faithful and meet her in the home beyond. When she was done talking and praying, she said she was now ready to go to her Master and to meet her father, who had gone before. In her death her husband has lost a true and faithful companion.

As an evidence of the esteem in which she was held, we need only to refer to the crowded house of sympathizing friends on her funeral occasion, which took place at Milmine church. Her funeral was preached by Elder D. B. Gibson, from 1 Thess. 5: 14, 16.

Though sadness fills our hearts, we need not sorrow as those who have no hope. We are made to realize more fully than ever that we should be ready and prepared to go when the Master calls.

Of our departed sister it may truly be said: "Well done, thou good and faithful servant; enter thou into the joys of thy Lord." SARAH KUNS.

IN a former communication we promised, in the near future, to give a more extended view of the Wisconsin mission field, and, in order to give a reliable description, we will refer to townships by number and range, to show where the Brethren are located. To do so correctly, we draw a line through the centre of the State, north and south, and east and west, and count townships from south to north and range east and west.

Now, to commence with the Maple Grove church, we say, it is located in Chippewa County in town 28, range 6 west, with a membership of twenty-four or twenty-five members. Here are many calls for the Bread of Life. Shall they go unheeded? The first preaching was done here by the Brethren two years ago,—the 9th of this month.

The next point is thirty miles east and twenty-four miles south in Clark County, town 25, range 1 west. Here is located our dear brother, T. D. VanBuren. He and his wife are the only members in Clark County that we know of. Bro. VanBuren is a minister in the second degree. Here is a very fine country, very productive soil, and all that seems to be wanting to effect an organization is, for some brother to come to the assistance of our dear brother, who is so earnestly engaged and so much desires to gather in sheaves into the Master's garner. This is the place where we enjoyed ten meetings recently, with such marked attention. Here is a very large field running east to the great Lake Michigan.

Next we call attention to the Barron County Brethren, located in town 33; range 12 west. They are situated thirty miles north and thirty-five miles west of the first place under our notice. Here is a membership of perhaps twenty. They were organized last fall. Bro. Eli Bowman is their speaker. He is in the first degree of the ministry. Bro. H. C. Baker has the oversight of them, and we do hope and pray that God will abundantly bless him, so he may be able to break the Bread of Life to the dear ones in Barron County. They are more endeared to us, perhaps, because we carried the first message of love to them, some six years ago,—on foot,—a distance of nearly sixty miles. This is a much neglected point, and much might be done here by a proper effort.

We next call attention to Dunn County and in town 29, and range 14 west, is the home of our old veteran, elder John Pippenger. This point is fifty-four miles west and six miles north of the first place mentioned. He is the pioneer brother of this State, and has the oversight of the Irvin Creek church, with Bro. S. Crist, in the second degree of the ministry, to assist him. This church has passed through the fog and gloom caused by the Old Order element, but praise be to the Lord for his preserving mercy,—the cloud is passing over and the sun is beginning to shine again. Bro. S. Crist is located in town 29, range 13 west.

From here we go to town 26, range 12 west, in the south end of Dunn County, forty-two miles west and eighteen miles south. Bro. H. C. Baker lives here, in for the Chippewa Valley church. Here the writer located nearly fourteen years ago. Here our aged mother, sister and brothers reside. Here, as well as in other places, is a large field, waiting to be cultivated.

Last of all let me call attention to the few neglected members in Pierce County, town 27, range 17 west,—a distance of ninety or one hundred miles west of the first place described. Here Eld. William Robey lived and labored, and, as a result of his ardent and untiring labors, the River Falls church was organized, of which now only a fragment remains. What a pity! Much hard labor is now, in a measure, lost! Had our dear brother lived, it would, no doubt, be otherwise, and the church would not have sustained so great a loss.

By our description the reader can readily see how far we are scattered, over, perhaps, an area of one hundred and fifty miles square, with six weak ministers to front the battle alone. This fact made known, oh, Brethren, how can any one sit with folded arms! Perhaps, while your dear brother is in the front of the battle, engaged in the severest contest with Satan and the world,—you are doing nothing for the cause. Oh, my dear brother, do buckle on the armor and march to the front, crying out, "Here am I, Lord; here am I." Soon the battle will be over; the victory will be won and souls saved!

Dear brethren and sisters, you who have a warm sympathizing heart for the great mission cause, when you read those lines and think of those dear young sister churches with their poor ministers plodding along through storm and cold, rain and sunshine, night and day for this great cause, enter into your closets and breathe to the Lord a prayer in behalf of those poor churches in Wisconsin, who are struggling for an existence. We do hope and pray that the time will speedily come when this great mission field in Wisconsin will be ably worked and many souls saved, that churches may be organized all over this great State! SAMUEL H. BAKER.

From the Chippewa Creek Church, Mich.

BRETHREN E. BOSSERMAN and Isaiah Rairigh came to us April 19 and preached for us the same evening. On Saturday, April 20th, the church met in council. We found all in love and union, which is as it should always be in the house of God. As the church here has no resident minister we thought best to hold an election for a minister, and also for deacon. For minister the lot fell upon our much beloved and esteemed brother, Jacob Tombaugh. For deacon, our beloved brother, Frank Pilbeam, was chosen. May the Lord abundantly bless them with grace that they may faithfully discharge the duties devolving upon them. On Saturday afternoon Bro. Rairigh had to leave us, and go to fill an appointment at Woodville,—a new mission point. Bro. Tombaugh and the writer accompanied him. We had meetings Saturday evening, Sunday afternoon, and Sunday evening. Better order and attention we could not have had. While there, one made application for baptism. and one was reclaimed. We returned to our church on Monday and held meeting Monday evening with good attention. May the good seed sown produce a copious harvest in the near future, is our prayer!

WM. F. JEHNZEN.

From Maria, Pa.

APRIL 21, our regular appointment for preaching was at the Holsinger church, near Baker's Summit, Pa. Bro. James D. Brumbaugh, who lately moved into our congregation, preached on the resurrection of Christ, followed by Bro. J. B. Replogle. The Sunday-school met in the morning before meeting time, and was well entertained from the lesson on the "Two Great Commandments," as found in the Brethren's Quarterly, which we use in our school. Our Superintendent is Bro. D. S. Replogle, assisted by Bro. Isaac L. Snyder, and a full corps of officers and teachers.

We find the Brethren's Quarterly a great help in the Sunday school work. It gives the classes a chance to study the lessons thoroughly.

D. S. REPLOGLE.

From the Maple Grove Church, Ashland Co., O.

OUR quarterly council was held on Saturday, April 20. A variety of business was attended to. The Sunday-school organization was confirmed, and delegates to District Meeting and Annual Meeting were elected. Eld. George Worst and A. J. Myers were elected delegates to District Meeting, and Eld. George Worst was elected delegate to Annual Meeting from our church. One young man decided to turn in with the Lord's people and was baptized on Sunday, March 31, 1889.

Two of our aged members have recently passed "over the river," and, we fondly hope, are safely sheltered in our Father's house.

We gave certificates of membership to six of our members at our quarterly council.

I notice that some of our churches give their method of organizing their Sunday-schools. This is a good idea. We can learn from each other by so doing. I will give the manner by which we effected our organization. Our Sunday-school was called together March 31, 1889, by the Superintendent, in order to get ready to commence Sunday-school on the first Sunday of the second quarter of this year. On that Sunday the members of the church and the outside Sunday-school scholars elected the Superintendent and Assistant Superintendent. Then the Superintendent appointed the Treasurer, Secretary, Chorister, and Librarians. The Secretary is also made Corresponding Secretary for the Sunday-school. The Superintendent next appointed all the teachers,—eleven in number. All the Sunday-school officers and teachers are members of our congregation, and all go into the Sunday-school work with a hearty good will. Good interest is manifested, and we have good order and good singing. We follow the International series, and use the Brethren's Quarterly and Young Disciple. Our Sunday-school is now entirely under the care and control of the church, and the annual organization of our Sunday-school hereafter will take place at our spring council.

Our Sunday-school contributions all go into the church treasury. The church furnishes all Sunday-school requisites.

May God grant us, as officers and teachers, that degree of wisdom as will qualify us for our responsible positions, that the young may be properly trained! DAVID SNYDER, Cor. Sect.

From Hagerstown, Maryland.

SINCE last reporting, we have had some very happy and some very sad experiences.

Some have been made willing to forsake sin and turn in with the overtures of mercy. For this we, with the angels, are made to rejoice. Recently death has entered our little band, and many are the hearts that were made to bleed when we were compelled to lay away loved ones in the cold and silent tomb. Sister Sarah Schwinger, wife of Mr. George Schwinger, aged forty-six years, was suddenly taken from our midst. She was one of our most earnest, consistent, and constant workers. She always had a word of cheer and was beloved by all that knew her. Services by Bro. D. F. Stouffer (of whose congregation she was a member) assisted by the writer. We are also called upon to record the death of Mrs. Lizzie M. Boyer, wife of Mr. T. F. Boyer, and oldest daughter of Bro. A. B. Barnhart.

How heart-rending that one so near the Kingdom, so young, brilliant and happy, must be called on to bid farewell to loved ones of earth, and especially a darling little babe but a few days old! She was devoted to her husband, home and its interests. She was no less attached to, and loved, by her parents. Her last words to her father were, "Oh, father, you have been very dear and kind to me, but I have neglected the important duty too long. I thought I was young yet."

How forcibly we were impressed with the language of the Master, "First seek ye the Kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you." Funeral services were held in the Reformed church of this city, by Dr. Keiffer and the writer.

Our District Conference occurred Thursday, April 18th, and passed off very pleasantly. The liquor and tobacco questions were warmly discussed. I am glad to know that our brethren are realizing that they have a mission to perform in the abolishment of these two great evils.

In the missionary cause renewed interest was awakened. A collection was taken up for the Oakland congregation, and Bro. Digman (who was its representative), was made to rejoice when he received the liberal contribution. I think the meeting realized the spirit of the declaration, "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

Our Sunday-school, with the assistance of your valuable Quarterly and The Young Disciple, is moving along pleasantly. Our Easter offering for our Home Mission amounted to twenty dollars. This system was first inaugurated in our Sunday-school at the suggestion of sister Ellie Snavely, and each year our contributions are increasing.

We give to each member of the school (a few weeks previous to Easter) an envelope, with Home Mission stamped on it, and request them to bring it on Easter Sunday with their contribution in it, and sealed. The little ones go at once to work. Fathers and mothers, uncles and aunts, grandpas and grandmas are solicited and, with some degree of emulation, they strive to make the largest offering. Thus our children are educated in the right direction and the interest of the church advanced. May the Lord revive his work and make us more consistent with our spiritual calling, and eventually save us all in his Kingdom!

W. S. REICHARD.

From Pine Creek Church, Ill.

OUR council-meeting was held April 26, and passed off pleasantly, being characterized by that Christian spirit that should prevail in all our church work. The annual visit was reported, which showed that peace and love abound. Another appointment for preaching was opened in the outskirts of our congregation. Part of the work of the meeting was to elect delegates to District and Annual Meeting. Bro. Callo Fahrney was elected delegate to Annual Meeting, and J. S. Line and D. R. Price to District Meeting. We hold no love-feast this spring, as our new meeting-house will not be completed for a few months yet. D. L. FORNEY.

From Cherokee Church, Kan.

WE met in council March 23. Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, we had a good attendance. Our church is in love and union, and our meeting was conducted in a Christian spirit. We organized a Sunday-school, with N. S. Gripe, and George Rench, as Superintendents. We also decided to hold social prayer-meetings once a week. The explanation of the editor in GOSPEL MESSENGER No. 10, page 153, had a decided effect on our church. Many brethren were afraid to touch these things for fear they are not according to apostolic practice. To our sorrow the Sunday-school was held in check many years by those who were not so taught by their forefathers. The writer was principally brought up in a United Brethren Sunday-school, and as a consequence one-half of our family were taken into that organization. Many others of the Brethren's children may seek shelter elsewhere, if not permitted to exercise their talents. The cry is often raised, "The zeal of thine house will eat thee up." There is no danger of us becoming too zealous, if we keep in the bounds of apostolic order. This was the cause of our late troubles in the church. Some were for apostolic order, some for tradition, and others for modern popularity. Which of the three is most safe? Wisdom says Apostolic order. We have three efficient and beloved elders in our church. HENRY SHIDLER.

From New Midway, Md.

APRIL 23, we held our District Meeting. It was held at Frederick, Md., in the Brethren's new meeting-house. There was good attendance. All of the eight congregations composing the Eastern District of Maryland were represented. There was not much business before the meeting. An effort was made to establish a home mission, for the purpose of spreading the Gospel in isolated territory. A satisfactory plan was arrived at, and adopted by the meeting. Good feeling prevailed, and the meeting was a pleasant one.

F. C. RENNER.

From Nappanee, Elkhart Co., Ind.

APRIL 7 the Brethren of the Turkey Creek church organized their Sunday-school at Nappanee church-house, with a good representation of brethren, sisters and others. Our Superintendent is Bro. J. C. Murray, assisted by brethren J. C. Mellinger and Bro. Henry Wysong, and a full corps of officers and teachers. To-day, April 21, there were one hundred and eighty-five persons present. May God's blessings follow and make this school a success!

DANIEL WYSONG.

From Scalp Level, Pa.

THE Shade Creek church is moving along in the even tenor of its way. We have many things to be thankful for, and nothing in particular to complain of. We held three protracted meetings during the winter. The first was held in Scalp Level by Bro. Silas Hoover. The second in "Greenland" by Michael Claar, and the third in our large meeting-house by Valentine Blough. All these meetings were well attended, and many able sermons were preached. There were twelve young persons baptized. Others seemed to be almost persuaded, but they put it off for some other time. Let us pray that they may come soon. Bro. Blough preached several sermons in the German language. Bro. Hoover preached one sermon on the subject of the covering. He has given the subject some thought, and is well prepared to handle it. It should be better understood by the sisters in our Eastern churches. We also had occasional visits by other ministers, among whom were W. H. Cover, of Somerset, and W. J. Swigart, of Huntingdon. Brethren Swigart and Brumbaugh made us a flying visit in the interests of the Huntingdon Normal. Visits and sermons from brethren of other districts are always appreciated by us.

Our quarterly council was held April 2. Quite an amount of business was before the meeting, and all was disposed of peaceably and orderly. The missionary cause received some attention. Our love-feast will be held May 18, commencing at 4 P. M. All are invited to be with us. Daniel Holsopple is our delegate to Annual Meeting, and Hiram Musselman to District Meeting.

April 21 we re-organized our Sunday-school in Scalp Level. Brethren J. F. Dietz and J. E. Blough have been elected Superintendents. They are assisted by a full corps of other officers and teachers. Our school has been increasing in number all along until the house is almost insufficient to hold all. About two hundred and fifty have been enrolled last season. Thus far this was the only school in our District, where we have six meeting-houses and several more regular meeting places. I think there ought to be a Sunday-school in every meeting-house in this broad land. The Brethren in Greenland are contemplating the organization of a school in the near future.

The people are getting somewhat "worked up" on the Prohibitory Amendment question. Every brother and every other citizen in Pennsylvania should work against the manufacture and sale of liquor as a beverage.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

ROOP.—In the Meadow Branch church, Md., March 28, Charles W., infant son of Wm. A. and Emma C. Roop, aged 4 months and 29 days.

HUNSICKER.—At Grater's Ford, Montgomery Co., Pa., March 28, sister Margaret Hunsicker, aged 82 years, 4 months and 15 days.

She was a sister in the church 57 years, and a widow 38 years. She waited patiently for the chariot of God, and died in the hope of a blessed immortality. Two daughters survive her, and only one grandchild,—Mrs. J. R. Umstead.

JAS. Y. HECKLER.

COOK.—At Poneto, in the Walnut Level church, Wells Co., Ind., April 13, of consumption, sister Mary Elizabeth (Kimmel) Cook, wife of friend William Cook.

She leaves a kind husband and three children to mourn their loss. Deceased united with the church when about thirteen years old, and lived a consistent life ever since. Services by the writer, assisted by Bro. Allen Popejoy, from Rev. 14: 13.

SAMUEL NEHER.

MILLER.—At the home of Bro. David Fairburn, near Sugar Creek, Allen Co., O., April 13, of membranous croup, Harry S. son of friend Jacob and sister Sallie Miller, aged 3 years, 6 months and 24 days. Services by brethren Jacob and Samuel Driver. Interment at the Sugar Creek Cemetery.

MARY E. FAIRBURN.

SHELLABARGER.—In the Walnut Level church, Wells Co., Ind., April 17, Bro. Jacob M. Shellabarger, of cancer, jaundice and dropsy combined, aged 67 years, 8 months and 15 days.

He leaves a companion and six grown-up children, with other relatives to mourn their loss, which, we trust, is his eternal gain. He was anointed during his sickness. Funeral services by the writer from Rev. 14: 13.

SAMUEL NEHER.

CANADAY.—In Douglass Co., Mo., April 6, of typhoid fever, sister Hester Ann Canaday, aged 47 years, 6 months and 8 days.

Deceased was a faithful member of the German Baptist church for twenty-six years. She was a good teacher and worker in Sunday-school. She called for the elders and was anointed during the first of her sickness. She was sick only ten days. She leaves many friends to mourn their loss. Services by the home brethren from Rev. 14: 13.

NANNIE HARMAN.

MYERS.—In the Panther Creek church, Dallas Co., Iowa, April 13, Bro Isaac Myers, aged 66 years, 11 months, and 28 days.

Our brother was called to the deaconship April 7, 1860, and to the ministry Nov. 1, 1862, in which office he served the church until the time of his death. He was one of a family of fourteen children, nine sons and five daughters. Six of the sons served the church in the ministry. Our brother leaves a wife and eight children, all grown up. Six of them are in the church. May they all prepare to meet their father in heaven. We trust we can say of our brother he has fought the good fight of faith and hence there is laid up a crown of righteousness for him. Funeral services by brethren R. F. McCune, of Dallas Center, M. Dierdorf, and J. W. Diehl, of Panora, Iowa. Text, Philipp. 2: 1.

THOMAS J. BEAVER.

HUNDLEY.—At Summitville, Ind., April 20, Bro. George Hundley, aged 25 years, 2 months and 6 days.

Deceased united with the church in April of 1887, and was called to the ministry in October of the following year. Bro. Hundley adorned his profession by a consistent Christian life. For some years he had suffered from consumption, but bore his afflictions patiently. Funeral services were conducted by Bro. Isaac Branson from Job 14: 14.

A. J. ALLEN.

STONER.—In the Eel River church, Kosciusko Co., Ind., Feb. 27, sister Sarah Stoner, aged 74 years, 9 months and 27 days. Services by Bro. R. H. Miller, assisted by Gabriel Ulrey.

MONTEL.—In the bounds of the same church, March 17, friend John Montel, aged 88 years and 11 months.

Deceased leaves four sons, one daughter, twenty grandchildren, and twenty-one great-grandchildren. Services by Bro. David Neff and Rev. Eyrick, of the Lutheran church, of which Mr. Montel was once a member.

HAY.—Also in the same church, April 11, sister Susannah Hay, aged 68 years, 9 months and 18 days. Services by brethren Leander Pottinger and Samuel Leckrone.

METZGER.—In the same church, April 16, Myrtle Metzger, aged 2 years, 9 months and 12 days. Services by Samuel Leckrone, assisted by W. F. Neal.

EMANUEL LECKRONE.

KELLER.—At South Bend, Ind., in the St. Joseph church, Oct. 23, 1888, sister Susan Keller, aged 84 years.

Deceased lived a true and devoted Christian life. She was a resident of South Bend since 1834. Funeral services from Isa. 66: 13.

PRICE.—At South Bend, Ind., in the Portage church, March 27, sister Fanny Price, aged 73 years and four months.

Sister Price lived a consistent Christian life for nearly half a century. Services improved from 2 Tim. 4: 6, 7, 8.

KELTNER.—In the Portage church, St. Joseph Co., Ind., March 30, Bro. Samuel Keltner, aged 93 years, 3 months and 21 days.

Deceased was born in Huntingdon Co., Pa., Dec. 9, 1795. At the age of 18 years he moved to Darke Co., Ohio, where he married Jane Hartman and united with the Brethren church. About five years later he emigrated to Union County, Ind., at which place he lived till 1844, at which time he moved to St. Joseph County. Twenty-five years ago his first wife died. Sometime afterwards he married sister Nancy Long, who survives him. He was the father of eleven children, only four of whom survive him. He was a member of the church over 72 years. We have been informed that during all these years there never was any church charge brought against him. He was always zealous in the cause he espoused when young. Though never called to any official capacity in the church, he gave many good admonitions and exhortations. Services conducted by the writer.

H. W. KRIEGHBAUM.

ELLIS.—Near Mt. Jackson, April 7, sister Annie Ellis, wife of Eld. John Ellis, aged 62 years, 11 months and 13 days.

The subject of this notice connected herself to the church of her choice when in her youth, and lived a consistent and faithful life. Sister Annie was a kind mother. No doubt the poor will greatly miss her, for she never turned them away without supplying their wants. She leaves a kind husband and a devoted daughter to mourn their loss. Funeral services by the brethren from Rev. 14: 13, to a large congregation.

JOHN F. DRIVER.

COONTZ.—Near Mt. Jackson, Va., April 8, sister Barbara Coontz, aged 58 years, 6 months and 26 days.

Sister Coontz was a sufferer from rheumatism for many years. Well could we say, Our loss is her eternal gain! Funeral services by D. P. Wine and the writer from Ps. 16: 11.

JNO. F. DRIVER.

MOCK.—In the Tippecanoe church, Kosciusko Co., Ind., of lung fever, March 23, Mary Mock, aged 26 years. Funeral services from Isaiah 39: 1, to a large concourse of people, by the writer.

GARRET.—In the same church, March 27, of consumption, sister Melia Garret, aged 46 years and six months. Funeral services from Ps. 103: 15–18, by the writer.

DELL.—Also in the same church, April 14, Bro. Samuel Dell, aged 65 years and 6 months.

Bro. Dell was a member of the church for many years and possessed a meek and quiet spirit. He had not been well for many years, but was as well as usual until two days before his death, when he passed quietly "over the river." Services from 2 Cor. 5: 1 by brethren W. R. Deeter, D. Yountz, and the writer.

DANIEL ROTHENBERGER.

KINZIE.—In the Appanoose church, Kans., April 15, William Herbert, son of Daniel A., and Martha Kinzie, aged 1 year, 5 months and 20 days. Services by the Brethren.

May the bereaved parents be encouraged by the thought of having a little angel in heaven, where it will never know any sorrow.

MARY C. KINZIE.

OGG.—In the Root River church, Minn., April 14, sister Emma Ogg, wife of Bro. Nathaniel Ogg, aged 45 years, 3 months and 20 days.

Deceased was born in Pennsylvania; came to Minnesota in 1856: was baptized in 1870 by the Brethren and lived a consistent Christian life until her death. Her health had been failing for years. She was quite feeble for the last two years, but endured all with patience. She died very suddenly. On Saturday she went to the barn. On Sunday she was not as well as usual, and before night she quietly breathed her last. She leaves a husband and six children to mourn their loss which, we hope, is her eternal gain. Three of the children have made the good choice. Services by brethren J. Sadler and J. W. Sadler from 2 Cor. 5: 9.

SARAH E. BUEGHLY.

SOSENBERGER.—Near West Independence, Hancock Co., O., at the residence of his son-in-law, E. Coe, Abraham Sosenberger, aged 83 years, 4 months and 27 days.

His wife preceded him to the spirit world twenty-two years. He was the father of four children, two of whom survive him. He had his home at the above place for twenty years. He was an affectionate and kind father, a good and sociable neighbor, loved and respected by all who knew him. Funeral services by Bro. L. H. Dickey from Jer. 12: 5, latter clause, to a large audience of sympathizing friends and neighbors.

SOLOMON SWIHART.

BOLINGER.—Near Paint Creek church, April 14, Jesse O. Bollinger, son of Adam and Maggie Bollinger, aged 10 years, 10 months and 6 days.

He was a kind, amiable, and obedient son. After a long illness of over three months he passed away without a struggle.

EUROPE is all very well, but don't you think it is only fair as an American to know your own country thoroughly? Try the "American Alps" on the South Park Division of the Union Pacific in Colorado this summer. There's nothing like them in Switzerland.

THE splendor of the "American Alps" is beginning to be appreciated by our people, and a visit to Switzerland for gorgeous scenery is unnecessary. The picturesque mountain resorts on the South Park Division of the Union Pacific in Colorado are absolutely unrivaled on this continent.

"FOR peculiarly soft yet penetrating shades of color, marvelous grouping in form, fantastic, solemn and tender shaping of rugged cliff and mountain and valley," says a distinguished artist, "the wonderful empire of Colorado stands peerless." The Alpine scenery along the line of the South Park Division of the Union Pacific in Colorado is the most magnificent in the United States.

MORAN, the great artist, despaired when he saw the Great Shoshone Falls,—it was so far beyond his pencil's cunning. So there are wonderful dreams of beauty in the tempestuous loveliness of the grand "American Alps," in Colorado, which are at once the aspiration and the despair of painter and poet. Splendid beyond comparison is the superb scenery along the South Park Division of the Union Pacific in Colorado.

"THEY rested there—escaped awhile
From cares which wear the life away,
To eat the lotus of the Nile
And drink the poppies of Cathay."—

And every American business man is beginning to find that his summer vacation is more and more a necessity; the money making machine won't stand the strain without an occasional rest. The "American Alps" of Colorado offer the highest conditions for perfect relaxation, pure vital air, comfortable hotels and the noblest scenery in the country, and may be reached on the South Park Division of the Union Pacific Railway.

IT is un-American in the highest sense for our people to prate about Europe so glibly when so many of them are profoundly ignorant of the wondrous beauties of their native land. As a matter of fact there are hundreds of thousands of American citizens who are thoroughly familiar with Switzerland; who have idled away weeks at Lucerne, done Chamouni, and attempted the Matterhorn, and yet have never feasted on the lovely beauty, the wild, weird majesty of any one of the Colorado Peaks. "More than Alpine glory," rewards visitors along the South Park Division of the Union Pacific in Colorado. There is no scenery like it in the new world.

"THE peerless empire of form and color, is found in Colorado," says a great artist. So are many other very wonderful effects. There is that grand triumph of engineering skill, the Bow Knot Loop, famed all over the world; the pretty town of Graymont nestled against the base of Gray's Peak, the giant prince of the range; sunrise on Gray's Peak—a sight once witnessed never to be forgotten: Idaho Springs the beautiful, a restful spot blessed with the healing waters for all who come, within two hours' ride of young leviathan Denver: the storied gold camp of Georgetown, perched in the upper air of the mountains ever fresh and cool and clear—these are a few of the delightful spots in the "American Alps" reached by the Colorado Central Division of the Union Pacific Railway in Colorado.

Advice to Mothers.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. The Gospel Messenger.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH, Editor,
And Business Manager of the Eastern House, Box 50, Huntingdon, Pa.

WHAT we charitably forgive will be recompensed as well as what we charitably give.

WE have been informed that our sister Hagey, of the Philadelphia church, peacefully passed away on the 4th of March in her 85th year. She was a constant reader of the MESSENGER up to the time of her departure, and the paper afforded her much joy in her hours of waiting for the Master.

QUITE a large number of our communion seasons are appointed on the same time, and being near together there cannot be that exchange of ministerial help that there would otherwise be, and which it is desirable there should be. There is no better way of keeping up a practical unity among our churches than a free and fraternal association together. It develops Christian fellowship, which binds together and produces a oneness of feeling, which tends towards the promotion of oneness in everything else.

THE CHRISTIAN GREETING.

THERE is a disposition implanted in our social nature that calls for a greeting of some kind. This feeling or disposition has been the cause of many forms of greeting, all more or less expressive of the feelings men entertained towards each other in the different ages and countries, barbarians, rude, civilized and Christian. We shall not now take the time and space to describe these different forms, as they were many. The almost universal social greeting now in vogue among Christian nations is that of handshaking, accompanied with such oral expressions as are customary among the different classes and sections of country. But in handshaking there are almost as many forms or variations as there are forms that are entirely dissimilar. To shake hands with some people is a real pleasure. There is a warmth and expressiveness in it that sends a thrill of pleasure all through your system. The hand forms a connection with the mind and heart that speaks in a language that words cannot convey. It is a form and a manner that we cannot describe. It must be realized to be understood. It is a hand greeting that you enjoy, and you repeat it with pleasure. We have no doubt as you read these lines, you readily recall such experiences and remember with pleasure the persons who gave you the hearty greetings. The heart and the feelings seem to come out in the hand and as it grasps yours or you grasp it, the partition wall between seems to be taken down and the two, for the time being, blended into one.

But there are other ways of handshaking that are very different from the one described. Some hands are held out to you as if there were no joints between the finger nails and the elbow. It comes towards you as if it were a poker and you grasp it with feelings very similar. It is so stiff and meaningless that you almost fail to recognize it as a hand, and you look at the person before you, to be sure where the hand belongs, or whether it is a real hand or one that has been manufactured. Such a hand and shake chills you to the heart. In it there is no expressiveness, and as currentless as a dry stick. The operation is dreadfully mechanical and you derive no pleasure or inspiration from it whatever.

Then we have the "silly" or "paw" handshake. It comes to you so much like that of a trained dog comes that you cannot think of anything else. You take it in your hand, but you don't know what to do with it. It is kind of limber, but there is in it neither grip nor shake. You are confused and the thought comes rushing up whether you shall hold it or let it drop. It is like throwing your voice against a flat wall,—you give it out and you take it back, and that is all that there is of it.

Another hand is given to you with outlaid fingers, which seem to say: "You may take it, but touch lightly, very precious, and takes only a little bit to do you." It is not intended as an insult, but means only about half welcome. The only persons we know that would admire such handshaking, would be Governors and Presidents on inauguration day. They could shake any number of them without getting sore hands.

Then, again, we have the honest, hearty, gripping shaking hand about which there is no discount. You enjoy it, even if the pressure is a little tighter than comfort would seem to demand, because you know that there is no deception about it. It is genuine gold without any admixtures of the baser sorts. All these forms are somewhat expressive and characteristic of the hearts and feelings of those who use and give them. And while some give with them a fraternal feeling, they are not so expressive as the Christian Greeting recommended in the Apostolic writings.

Dr. Talmage, writing on the subject of "Greeting" says: "In Paul's time he told the Christians to greet each other with a holy kiss. We are glad that the custom has been dropped for there are many good people who would not want to kiss us as we would not want to kiss them. Very attractive persons would find the supply greater than the demand. But let us have a substitute suited to our age. Let it be a good, hearty, enthusiastic, Christian handshaking."

It would be a matter of interest to learn just why the form of greeting recommended by Paul, to Christians in his time, should not be adapted to Christians of this age. The doctor don't give the reason, but we think the inference may be easily drawn. The trouble does not lie in the form of the greeting, but in the minds and spirit of the Christians. The salution of the Holy Kiss, among these humble and loving Christians, was an expression of the feelings that they entertained towards each other. When this holy love is wanting, we too think this form of greeting should be dropped and a substitute used or adopted that would be more expressive—not of Christian love, but those who don't have this love—a lack of it. If the feeling is not there, to give the token or sign would be a deception and therefore a sin. Because Dr. Talmage thought that this Christian feeling that was characteristic among the early Christians did not exist among his own people, and the popular Christianity of the day, he was glad that the form of greeting then used was also dropped and the substitute he names used in place of it. But since the holy love that then existed has been so congealed by cold worldlyism that the form of greeting is no more suitable, will a correspondingly cold form of greeting have a tendency to remove and promote this Christian love among God's people, or will the forms of greeting have to continue to change, to meet the growing coldness and worldliness of the church?

There is and there can be but one object to the Apostolic form of Christian greeting, and that is the growing coldness that is so manifest among professing Christians. When Christians love each other as Christ loved them, the greeting with a holy kiss was not only natural, but expressive. Throughout the Bible this token is named in connection with greetings of great joy. The prodigal son was embraced and kissed by his father. It was an appropriate expression of the father's joy at the return of his wayward son,—the lost was found. The same may be said of every returned sinner. The church is their home and as they come in they receive the holy greeting. As the Father loved us, so we are to love each other. And as we meet, we give the holy greeting as an appropriate expression of our fraternal feeling towards each other. Suppose we were to substitute, and let that be called a "holy handshaking," how long and among how many would that be expressive of the Christian feeling? Substitutions may be right and proper when the cause that leads thereto is right. But in this case, the cause is wrong. It is a change made to accommodate a wrong feeling. Instead of changing the act to accommodate the feeling, it would be better to change the feeling to correspond with the act. The apostolic greeting expresses the feeling that ought to exist and must exist if we be the children of God.

Then, let us labor so to cultivate and promote the love of God in our hearts that all of our greetings will not only be Christian in form, but in spirit as well. If we do this, we will not need a substitute for the apostolic greeting, but the warm and hearty handshaking, in connection with the holy salutation will remind us that we are brethren of the same family and that we love each other with a love that can be properly expressed by the use of the apostolic injunction, "greet ye one another with a holy kiss."

No church will prosper that has not room and sympathy for the humblest of people. It is among these classes that the most earnest and persevering Christian workers are to be found.

A CANVASS is being made, in the different counties, among the different churches, as to how the members stand in regard to Prohibition. The result, as far as we have learned, is encouraging —most, or nearly all, voting in favor.—Some, however, are reported as being indifferent, and among these, we are sorry to say, are a few of our own members. How sad that any of our brethren can be indifferent to this crying sin that is blasting the lives of so many of our best young men, and bringing their parents down to their graves broken-hearted and in sorrow that cannot be expressed in words. No, my brother, if you had a son addicted to the curse of drunkenness, you would not feel indifferent. If you have not, other fathers have, and their sons are as dear to them as yours is to you. Will you not, for their sake, do what you can to help to stay the tide of the whisky traffic and save our children from the temptations that the saloon-keepers place before them. "Cursed be the man that putteth the bottle to his neighbor's lips," so God says. What do you say, my brother?

LEAVES FROM OUR NOTE-BOOK.

OUR mind is like a wagon in a rut, or an engine on the track. It runs on a certain line of thought and no little effort is required to turn it aside. There is as much difference in minds as between a wagon and an engine. It requires a much greater obstructing force to throw an engine off the track than it does a wagon. So it is with minds. Some minds are so firmly set on a certain way of thinking that it is almost impossible to get them to look at a subject in any other way. Indeed, some persons seem to glory in this condition of mind. "This is my way of thinking" is an almost stereotyped saying, and is accompanied with no little feeling of self-importance. We see this vent of mind exhibited in reference to all subjects. Men get into a sort of political rut, and it is the next thing to impossible to get them out of it. We know persons who would vote for the candidate of their party regardless of fitness. We know an aged gentleman who has voted a straight ticket for forty years. All that he needs to know about a candidate is that he belongs to his party. Another aged gentleman thinks a little whisky is good for him. He has used it for many years and never became intoxicated, and now he thinks everybody else can govern his appetite just as he does and has done, and is radically opposed to the prohibition movement. There are hundreds and thousands who have fallen into a similar rut of thought, which accounts for the opposition to prohibition on the part of some who are not really drunkards. Just now a strong effort is being made to lift this class out of the rut, but it will take more than human strength to do it. We must pray as well as work.

We fall into a mental rut in matters pertaining to religion and it is especially difficult to get out of it. We get into this rut early in life. Our parents, teachers, and those who have the most influence over us make the way, and we follow. Our parents belong to a certain church and think so and so, and we think so too. Indeed some persons' religion is founded on the faith of their parents.

These ruts are dangerous and are a great hinderance to the progress of truth and right. We are all more or less in them. There is no use for any one to claim that he is walking in a smooth road, perfectly free from side issues. Our minds are more or less directed in a certain channel, in reference to all subjects, and what we need is to realize the situation. We are inclined to accuse our fellows with having their minds set regardless of the truth, when we, ourselves, are just as deep in the rut. Christ said, "First cast the mote out of thine own eye, and then shalt thou see clearly to cast the mote out of thy brother's eye." First get out of the rut yourself before you attempt to help others out.

How shall we get out of these ruts? By honestly seeking after the Truth. Some of us are so deep down in our ways of thinking that it may require a hard and long pull to get out, but if we keep our eyes on the Truth and press towards it, we will get out.

"Will you tell me where in the Bible you get authority for sprinkling babies?" asked a gentleman of a prominent business man. "Well," said he, "I don't know that I can tell you; all I know about it is, that Lydia's and the jailer's households were baptized and I suppose there were some babies in these families. I am a —— and so were my parents, grandparents, and great-grandparents, and it has ever been the practice of this church to baptize infants. Then, too, we have in our church some of the most learned men of the age,—men who have given their entire time to the study of the Bible, and if infant baptism were not taught, I suppose these men would have discovered it long ago."

Here is an illustration of a mind in a rut. He was simply following out a line of thought marked out by his church, and it is the following of these lines that is a great obstacle in the way of true, Bible Christianity.

Reader, are you sure that you are not in a rut? Can you give a reason for the hope within you, or are you merely following the footsteps of some one else? Do you know that the practices of your church are founded on the Truth? It is all right to follow our parents and the great intellectual men of the age so far as they follow Christ. But as to their course we must be the judge, and our judgments must be guided by our conceptions of the Truth.

We earnestly ask our young brethren and sisters to consider the effect which follows the apparent indifference to the spiritual interests of your ungodly associates. What can a godless young man think of a Christian who meets him nearly every day for years, talks, laughs, jests, trades, eats, drinks, smokes, and walks with him, but never speaks one word to him about his immortal destiny, knowing that, according to the faith of his Christian friend, he is exposed to the most fearful peril. What can he think of your silence? He will certainly wonder how you can be so indifferent. Is it any wonder that the ungodly sometimes conclude that Christians do not believe what they profess? Our sisters could also exert a great influence for good if they would manifest more concern for their unconverted associates. In short, it seems to us that a great need at the present time among the younger portion of the church is more Christian earnestness and a profounder conviction of the Truth as taught in God's Word, and greater consistency in the spirit, the actions, and conversation of young Christians. J. B. B.

ESSAYS.

"Study to show thyself approved unto God; a workman that needeth not be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth."

ACROSTIC.

TELL thou in every nation, tribe and clime,
How loving Jesus in the olden time,
Erased our sins in love, amazingly sublime.

Go bear the joyful tidings far and near;
On thy fair pages let His fame be told.
Soothe sinsick souls and dry the mourner's tear.
Peal forth precious news, more worth than all gold.
Even in homes where isolation dwells,
Let thy rich comforts spring in living wells.

Many shall drink and find a sweet relief,
Erasing all their trouble and their grief.
Sinners shall learn of thee, the living way,
Sin shall no more defile by night or day.
Eternal Truth to God's dear children teach,
Nothing but Jesus, holy Jesus preach.
God be imprinted in each word and line.
Eternal praises in thy columns shine,
Repeating o'er and o'er the only way divine!

TRINE IMMERSION.

BY A. W. REESE.

Part One.

"Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost."—Matt. 28: 19.

BAPTISM is an ordinance of the church of God. It is most clearly and positively commanded by our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ. There is no election on the part of man. The believer MUST be baptized.

Our Savior puts baptism on the same level plane with faith.

"He that believeth, and is baptized, shall be saved!" Could the conditions, or terms, of human salvation be set forth in language more emphatic, explicit, or plain? And yet, in the face of a declaration like this, many sects—calling themselves the followers of Christ—openly teach that baptism is not "essential" to the salvation of man. The Word of God, as revealed to us in the Gospel of his Incarnate Son, is thus nullified and set at naught.

What a fearful responsibility is thus assumed by those who trifle with the Sacred Word!

In the discussion of the question before us we shall endeavor to cling to that Word: to be guided in our investigations by the light of the Divine Record; remembering, also, the solemn fact that we shall be judged, for all that we say and do in that last, stupendous day, by that Word.

We care nothing, whatever, for "orthodoxy," so called, for the opinions of men—however learned or great—unless sustained by the Word of God. We care nothing for man-made "creeds," however much the moss of antiquity may cling to their backs. The sincerity or the piety of the men who framed them, will avail nothing at the judgment-seat of Christ.

We will consider, 1st the proper subjects of baptism, 2nd the design of baptism, and 3rd, and lastly, the "mode" of baptism, or, in other words, the manner of performing the act of baptism.

The Brethren church, taking the Scriptures of Divine Truth as its guide and only infallible rule of faith and practice, holds that the penitent believer is the only proper subject for the administration of this holy ordinance of the church. We hold that unbelievers, and all those who have not arrived at an age sufficient to comprehend the Divine message, and to accept the terms and conditions of pardon, are excluded from baptism. We presume that no one will contend for the baptism of an unrepentant, and, therefore, unregenerated man.

But some there are who earnestly contend that infants are included among the proper subjects for baptismal rites. We consider this claim totally unauthorized by the Word of God; and really one of the weakest and most vulnerable points of Pedobaptist faith.

Not a single instance of infant baptism can be found inside the lids of the New Testament. The whole superstructure is built on inference alone. Notably, the case of Lydia "and her household," and the jailer, the latter of whom it is declared, "believed in God with all his house." See Acts 16: 34. In the case of Lydia (Ibid) it seems that the apostles went out of the city (Philippi) by a riverside, where prayer was wont to be made, (a common resort for Christian worship), and that they "spake unto the women which resorted thither." Now we fail to see any good reason in either of these cases, to suppose that infants were included in these baptisms. It is expressly declared that, in the household of the jailer, all who were baptized were believers, and this is also the reasonable inference in the case of Lydia's house. The Scripture, commonly quoted in defense of infant baptism, is the language of our Lord where he says, "Suffer little children to come unto me, for of such is the kingdom of heaven." This language has no reference, whatever, to baptism in any sense. The subject was not under discussion, and the word was not mentioned. Our Savior was simply demonstrating the idea of the simplicity and confiding trust of a little child in those who would be fit for the kingdom of heaven.

"Only this and nothing more!"

Again, there are others who claim that infant baptism came in the place of circumcision. "As circumcision was a part of the Old Covenant, so infant baptism is of the new." We fail to see either the authority for this, or any feature of similarity between the two. If so, then all female infants should be excluded, and baptism performed on the male infant on the eighth day. But we reject baptism in toto—even were it by trine immersion—much less by sprinkling, which we can not accept as baptism at all.

The Gospel is not addressed to infants. They are incapable either of understanding it, or of yielding to its terms. They can not believe, and they have no power to repent—indeed, they have nothing to repent of—hence the ordinance of baptism is not for them. They are saved without baptism—in case of their death—through the general atonement of Christ. Our text says, "Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations." Only those, then, who are capable of being taught, are under obligation to obey. We hold that Christ died for the sins of the whole world, for every human being, that every one who will do so, may receive the benefits of his meritorious sacrifice. Every one who will believe his Word, repent of his evil deeds, and be baptized, shall be saved. There can be no mistake about this! God in his immutable Word has so declared. We hold that the penitent believer is the proper subject—and the only one — to be baptized. Faith, penitence, obedience, these are the Gospel terms of salvation, —the last being the evidence of the two preceding terms. The penitent believer must be baptized,—he will be baptized. No sophistry of man will influence his mind to stop short of it. When such a person presents himself to the Brethren church, we first ask him certain questions as to his acceptance of certain fundamental doctrines, such as non-resistance, non-swearing, non-conformity to the world, mutual forbearance and forgiveness towards his brethren, and all others—whether he accepts the doctrines of feet-washing, the salutation, etc. We do not ask him about his "religious experience—for a sinner has no religious experience, nor yet do we demand of him an "evidence" of his pardon, for no sinner has any such promise. He has neither promise nor right to this until he has obeyed the Gospel. In his baptism he is promised "the gift of the Holy Ghost," and not till then. We do not believe in specific revelations, or that God acts outside of his Word, which is the Sword of the Spirit.

Some have asserted that our religion is a cold and lifeless formalism, consisting, chiefly, of the observance of certain outward forms and ceremonies, and that we do not believe in "heart religion" as it is popularly called.

We are greatly misunderstood, or misrepresented in this. We certainly do believe in "a change of heart," but we demand, as evidence of this, a radical change in the conduct and life!

We expect that he that is "buried with Christ" in baptism, shall rise from this watery grave "to walk in newness of life." This is the evidence of conversion which we can readily and heartily accept. "By their fruits ye shall know them." On the other hand, we can but look with distrust and suspicion upon the "professor," where these are wanting, whatever may be the mental "experiences" he may have to offer us.

We believe that the religion of Christ is something more than a mere sentiment, that its strongest appeals are not made to the mere emotional parts of our nature. We believe the religion taught by our Savior, is a vital principle, manifesting itself in the daily walk and conversation, a governing motive in all the business, and all the other relations of life. That it will constrain us to "do unto others as we would that others should do unto us;" to "render unto Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's, and to God the things that are God's." We accept all the moral obligations imposed in the Word of God. We try to shun those things forbidden in that Word.

We can not take an oath because God forbids it. The Christian will not lie, hence his simple affirmation, or denial, is all that is needful, and all the Word of God permits him to do. "Let your communications be yes, yea, and nay, nay, for whatsoever is more than this, cometh of evil." We are, sometimes, called "bigoted," "illiberal," "extremists," etc., because we will not yield such points as these.

We can not, we dare not yield them, because they are part and parcel of God's Word. We stand on principle, and principle can not be compromised. We can not popularize the Brethren church except at the expense of its integrity, and in the end the very existence of the church itself.

In the next article we shall endeavor to present the design of baptism.

DICTATES OF CONSCIENCE.

BY M. P. LICHTY.

NOT infrequently do we see it said in print, or hear it said in sermons and prayers, that we ought to feel thankful that we are living in a land where we can worship God according to the dictates of our own conscience.

Now, I have my doubts as to the correctness, validity, or propriety of such a declaration.

Is not God our only lawful dictator? Has he not dictated to us by the Holy Ghost, through his inspired prophets and apostles, and even directly by his own dear Son, the highest and purest code of morals, by which, in which and through which our consciences are to be tried and educated? Are we to be governed by our own conscience, or his Word?

The Bible is the true criterion for all moral acts, and hence it is our perfect moral standard. —the Christian's standard. And anything we do, or say contrary to God's revealed will, though we do it with the purest of motives and the strictest conscientious scruples, does not meet with his divine approbation. This he teaches us by the example of Paul, who went about persecuting the saints or Christians. For verily he thought with himself, that he ought to have done many things contrary to the name of Jesus of Nazareth. Acts 16: 9. His conscience permitted him to do so, without a moment's doubt, so that he really thought he was doing God's service. But when Jesus brought him to a halt in his mad career, and convinced him of his gross error, then his conscience smote him, and he was willing at once to acknowledge his guilt and ignorance. He had a zeal for doing right, but not according to a proper knowledge of God's will. His conscience had been trained and educated up to this time by Christ's enemies, hence he was at that time a bitter enemy himself to the cause of Christianity.

Reason's eye in him was made to look through the perverting medium of Pharisaical education and prejudice. And so it is with the many religious denominations of to-day; too many, through their conscience may seem to lead them aright, yet, when they are brought to the test of the unadulterated Word of God, they are found looking through the perverting medium of a false education of antichrists. Thus the conscience of a true Catholic will not permit him to eat meat on Fridays. The conscience of a true Jew will not permit him to eat pork at any time. The conscience of the cannibal will not upbraid him for eating human flesh. The conscience of the Hindoo mother prompts her to sacrifice her own sweet offspring, while that of the Christian mother will cause her heart to shudder at such a deed.

The pages of both sacred and profane history are full of examples, showing how the conscience of man can become seared and perverted by the influence of an improper education.

Conscience, as defined by most writers of Moral Philosophy, is the feeling that prompts us to do what we believe is right, and to avoid what we believe is wrong, and that it commends us when we obey it, and condemns us when we disobey it.

This definition seems to have been extracted from the different codes of morals set up as a standard by the different peoples, or nations of the earth, whether they be Jews, Christians, or Pagans. Studying these different codes of morals we see at a glance the reason why peoples and nations do as they do. And just so long as our systems of education are not based, rooted, and grounded upon the principles of human conduct, as laid down and taught by our Great Teacher, Jesus Christ—just so long will there be differences of opinion and perverted consciences.

It is said of the Pilgrim Fathers, before they emigrated to America, that they longed for a land of freedom where they might worship God in their own way. I can not help but think, when I read or hear such expressions, that the utterer does not exactly mean what he says, but rather, that he is glad, that we are living in a land of religious freedom, where we can worship God, as it were, under our own vine or fig-tree, and in his own appointed way.

THE SEED IN THE HEART.

BY J. H. MOORE.

IN a former article, some weeks ago, I said that the Word of God was seed, and if properly planted in the heart and matured, it would result in producing a new creature in Christ Jesus. I want to pursue this line of thought a little further, and make some things a little plainer.

There can be no Christian without this seed. The seed must first be planted in the heart, and then be made to grow. If care is taken, much good seed may be planted in a short time. After the seed is planted is the time to warm up the sinners so as to get the growth of the seed started at once. Watch the growth carefully, until the new creature in Christ is manifest. The Christian, thus begotten by the Word of God, becomes a lawful heir of God, and has transmitted to him a divine principle, which, if properly cultivated, may result in a man partaking very largely of a divine nature. He partakes of this divine nature, because he has been begotten by divine seed. Mark you, it is the inner man that we are considering. If he can succeed in transmitting his improved nature to his children, and they can succeed in getting the pure Word of God planted in their hearts, so that it will result in a new inner man for them, begotten by the Word of God, there is a probability of his children partaking more largely of a divine nature than himself. The process, continued for generations, would result in a better class of people.

Some preachers, however, undertake to warm up the sinners' hearts and cause seed to grow, without first learning whether the right kind of seed is in the heart. In this way many persons are brought into the church who were not begotten by the pure Word of God, and as they develop, the absence of the divine image in them is quite apparent. So, after a revival, a good deal of weeding at times becomes necessary. We can not expect the divine principle to be transmitted only where it is transmitted through the Word. In this Word is a living germ that is made up of divine, life-giving elements. He that is begotten by this seed is born of God, is therefore the child of God, and has the nature or character of God clearly manifest in his conduct.

It is an act of wisdom for an evangelist to first plant good seed in the hearts of the people before he undertakes to water the seed. In the absence of good seed in the hearts he is certain to encounter that which will not result in Christianity. In some churches or localities, this good seed is planted in the hearts of the people by means of regular preaching, papers, tracts, Sunday-schools and the holy conduct of the members. The evangelist, who understands the art of watering seed, thus properly and abundantly planted, can usually make a good showing in such localities. Of course the seed is planted before he comes, he waters it, but the increase comes from God. The reason the increase comes from God, is because it is produced by that divine life germ that is transmitted to the heart through the Word, this germ being from God, and therefore divine. In the absence of this germ there can be no life, hence no increase.

In other churches or localities, the evangelist finds much of the wrong kind of seed planted, or deposited, and in the hearts of the people. He is, therefore, necessitated to do a great deal of skillful planting, in order to work the other seed out of the heart. This adds greatly to his labors, and also tests his skill as a planter.

I have thus briefly touched on this extremely interesting and important subject. I fear that the fundamental principles of genuine conversion are very much misunderstood by the generality of teachers. The work is governed by fixed laws that are both reasonable and easily understood. There is more in it than I have time to bring out. I have merely hinted at a few clear points that are easily understood.

But before closing this article I will yet name three points that will be well for all our ministers and Sunday-school teachers to reason out carefully. I will take space to barely name them.

1. There is an art in planting Gospel as well as natural seed. Some men know just how and when to plant while others do not.

2. It is not everybody who knows how to water seeds after they are planted. Some men plant well, but are worth nothing to water and make grow. What is true of nature in this respect, is equally so of the Gospel.

3. While some men are skilled in the art of planting, and know just how to propagate, they have no ability to care for and bring the plant into good fruiting condition. These truths, found in nature may be applied to preachers with double force and meaning.

EMANCIPATION AND ITS RESULTS.

BY B. F. MOOMAW.

THAT the emancipation of slavery in the Southern States was a special act of Providence, is a fact almost universally admitted, and that the introduction of African slavery into the civilized countries of the world, was an act of Providence, I opine is no less a fact, and designed for the amelioration of the condition of the African race, considering that, in their own country, they were subjected to slavery. Their property, their person, and their lives were in the hands and at the disposal of the tyrannical rulers, under whose dominion they lived. Captives were taken in their cruel wars to supply the demand for the slave markets of other countries. Bad as slavery was in America, it was a decided improvement (as a rule) upon their condition in their own country, for even then they made considerable improvement in civilization, intelligence, morality, and gained some conception of Christianity,—in every way a development of a higher state of manhood, by which they were enabled to return and insert the plant of civilization, and organize the government of Liberia, after the model of the United States.

But while it worked some improvement in the negro, slavery had a bad effect upon the country where it existed. The white population was seriously affected by it in many ways, the standard of morality was lowered, the progress of vital Christianity was more or less retarded. People were dependent upon slave labor, and, by the slave traffic, the development of the brain and muscle, necessary for the business affairs of life in various industries, so as to develop financial resources, and build up the country, was checked, and their advantages almost entirely unimproved.

At last the time came when, in the order of God's Providence, our country was called upon, through the agency of legislation, to let the oppressed go free, but for nearly a half century, the appeals, made from time to time, were unheeded, like the appeals of Moses for the freedom of the children of Israel. Severe means must be employed, and the work is done. Here we are,—all free! The rights of all are respected and protected by the law, and in the business affairs of life the white man is dependent, to some extent, upon the negro, and the negro is, as ever, dependent upon the white man for business and a living. No difference is made in point of wages or usage, except in point of social equality. In this, to all appearance, there is no change in the relation.

As to the moral status of the negro there is not much improvement. They are in the main opposed to all temperance movements. Lewdness and other crimes of every character are very common among them, so that about three-fourths of the convicts in the State prisons are of that class,—their pretensions to Christianity notwithstanding. Whether they are the better by being free is a mooted question. Time will have to solve this problem! To the white man and to the country the abolition of slavery is undoubtedly a blessing.

The slaveholder, as a rule, was inclined to be aristocratic, forming a distinctive class from those who owned no slaves. That is of the things of the past. No trace of it is now to be seen. Social equality among them,—whether rich or poor,—generally prevails, nothing but the want of respectability interfering, and all are working together in the development of the varied resources and industries necessary to the building up of the country, and they are many. With the climatic advantage, the immense mineral resources, the abundance of pure water, the living creeks and rivers giving the necessary power for manufacturing enterprises of every kind, the regular seasons, free from droughts and cyclones, we also have such a temperature that there is very little interference with out-of-door business at any season of the year. Even here in Virginia the mercury is rarely below freezing point.

With all these advantages, the New South, with slavery abolished, must come to the front, and is coming. Witness, Birmingham and Florence, Alabama, with the immense iron manufactory, shipping iron to-day to Pittsburg, Pa.,—formerly the great iron center of America,—at a paying profit. Many other places are, in a like manner, springing up in different parts, and growing like magic, here in Virginia. Within five miles of this place is the infant city, Roanoke, with a population of fifteen thousand, standing on the ground where, six years ago, wheat was harvested.

In Rockbridge County, fifty miles from here, the Buena Vista Land Improvement and Iron Company, organized one month ago, with a capital stock of one million dollars, put six hundred thousand dollars worth on the market, and in less than twenty days the demand for stock went up to nearly eight hundred thousand shares. The books now being closed, stock is being sold at from sixty-five to seventy-five cents on the dollar, and the encouraging feature in these enterprises is, that the stock is largely taken by capitalists from the North and West, and in their stockholders' meetings they propose to meet each other upon equal terms, leaving party and sectional lines out of the question, and work together for the development of the resources of our common country.

No doubt this statement will be regarded by some as being extravagant, but it is not overdrawn, and the time is coming, and is here, when the tide of emigration will turn. This is not only the case in mining and manufacturing interests, but many farms are now being sold to immigrants from the North and North-west. These are some of the results of the emancipation of slavery, but this is not all, for now the church is extending its borders into the New South, where, when slavery existed, the people were unapproachable, but now churches are building up composed of members whose ancestors, and even themselves, owned many slaves. Some of the latter are now employed as helps on the farm and in the house.

Cities growing up, as they are, and manufacturing enterprises increasing, is favorable to all other industries, farming among the rest,—inviting farmers from other countries to come to Virginia and purchase the cheap lands in many parts of the State, which can be had at fair prices and on accommodating terms. We invite you to come and see for yourselves. The advantage of cheap fare to Annual Meeting will afford a favorable opportunity.

THE MEEKNESS OF WISDOM.

BY MATTIE A. LEAR.

"Who is a wise man and endued with knowledge among you? let him shew out of a good conversation his works with meekness of wisdom."—James 3: 13

THE above language doubtless sounded strangely to the great bulk of people who lived in the time of our apostle,—meekness of wisdom! Meekness and humility combined with learning and great talent. A strange combination indeed! The philosophers and poets, the educated and polite among the heathen held themselves far superior to the common people. Having no power to check the moral depravity of the masses and point them to a purer, higher life, they withdrew themselves from the common herd and left them to their degradation, their sensuality and their revolting idolatry.

Among the Jews the common, uneducated classes fared but little better. The learned Pharisees and Rabbis looked down with haughty pride upon this class of their nation. These pedantic leaders shrank from even the touch of those whom they branded as unclean, simply because they were not versed in all the traditions of the Elders. But the example and teachings of Jesus inaugurated a new era for the world, and especially for the humbler classes. The apostles, though slow to learn the wonderful lessons,—so new, so strange—as taught by Jesus, had at length grasped them, and in their lives and teachings expanded and exemplified them.

Does any one among you claim superior endowments or knowledge? "Let him show out of a good conversation his works with meekness of wisdom." Nowhere in the Scriptures is intellectual greatness or the acquisition of knowledge deprecated. It is the hollowness, the sham, the claiming of that which is not possessed, which brings upon one the maledictions of the inspired writers.

Our Savior ever showed his aversion to all kinds of deceit and display, and it was because the Pharisees and leaders of the Jews of his day were such consummate actors that he treated them with the contempt that he did, and at times pronounced against them the most terrible denunciations.

The apostle James was too practical to be satisfied with the mere claiming to possess a thing. Does one claim to have faith? Let him prove that he has it by his works. Does he lay claim to wisdom and knowledge? Let him prove in the same way that he really has what he claims.

Paul speaks of a knowledge that puffeth up, and this kind of knowledge is very current in the world. It causes its possessor to look down with a supercilious air upon those who have had fewer advantages, and ridicule their innocent mistakes. When we see those who would be thought wise, act thus, we think their education is very superficial. They need to take another course, and be more thoroughly drilled. They need yet to learn the true import of knowledge. Its design is to humble, not to puff up. Let him show out of a good conversation his knowledge with meekness of wisdom.

No scholar has a finished education, no matter of what celebrated university he may be a graduate, until he has sat at the feet of Jesus and learned of him; until he has drank deeply of the spirit of this best of teachers; until he has learned the far more sublime lessons that he came to inculcate.

All the knowledge which the schools impart is comparatively worthless, without this higher polish, this deeper culture. We lately received a letter from Mt. Morris, stating that during the last four years about 130 students have been received into the church, by baptism. This news made our heart thrill with joy, and we would say to those dear students, Graduate now in the school of Jesus. Here is a field of knowledge spread out before you which you never can exhaust. You may advance from one degree to another; but there are lengths, and breadths, and heights, and depths which you cannot fathom. And as the mind expands and new truths are learned, others still more grand and sublime, are more and more unfolding.

Sometimes as we are studying his sacred textbook, our Divine Teacher draws aside the curtain that conceals the deeper mysteries of his love, and we are favored with such glimpses of the ineffable glory, that our souls are transfixed and we can only wonder and adore.

The more one possesses, whether it be wisdom, knowledge, influence, wealth, or whatever it be, the greater one's responsibility. Christ demands all that we have and all that we are. The only road to greatness in his kingdom is the road of profound humility. The Master so often taught, and so forcibly impressed this great lesson upon his disciples. They were slow to learn it, and selfish humanity has ever been slow to learn it. But it must be learned, it must be practiced, if we would have the fellowship of him who gave himself for us. There must be reciprocity. We must give ourselves to him as he gave himself to us.

The great apostle of the Gentiles had fully learned the sublime lesson of humility, hence we hear him say, "We that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves. Let every one of us please his neighbor for his good to edification. For even Christ pleased not himself; but as it is written, The reproaches of them that reproached thee, fell on me." Not to please ourselves, what an immense amount of training do we need before we have reached that point! Self-pleasing is interwoven into our very being. Not until the soul has become thoroughly permeated with the love of God, will it be eradicated. But when once that close and sacred union is formed which is spoken of in John 15: 3, Christ in us, and we in Christ, if there is between us this hallowed oneness, then we will empty ourselves for him, as he emptied himself for us, 2 Cor. 12: 9, 10. The sweet, full companionship of Christ is so enrapturing, so all-satisfying, that the great craving of the heart is to know more of him, and to be admitted into a closer intimacy with him. His lowliness, his self-denial, has no terrors for such a soul, but, with Paul, it only craves to know him, and the power of his resurrection, and the fellowship of his sufferings, being made conformable unto his death.

STUDY THE PROPHETS.

BY LANDON WEST.

Is it not time that the children of God should well study the Prophets? Is it not important that the people who praise God should well know what is to come? With so many prophets, and so much foretold, can any one ask for more? Surely not, when, what we now have, is unknown. We are in darkness as to the future, and all because the Prophets are not read and studied, and, were the Redeemer to come to-day, who would be found looking for him? Not one in a thousand of the Bible readers would be awake, let alone be ready. Not one would be prepared.

Is it not time for all men who have for so long time had communication with heaven, to arouse from sleep, wake up and hear what the prophets say? I would say to all lovers of Truth to arouse, wake up and let us all hear what the Lord says. Were he to call, who could go? Were he to invite, who would be prepared to enter? Let all his people study the Prophets to-day, that they may be awake, yea, may be ready, for the time is at hand. And let all his children be ready and looking, that they may be glad to see him when he shall come.

A FEW THOUGHTS.

BY FLORIDA J. E. ETTER.

ARE we doing the work that our Master has given us to do, or are we sitting all the day idle? If so, it is time that we are beginning. God did not intend that some should work and others sit idle. He has given us all something to do. We have not all the same work to do, but we must use our talents, as he has given them to us, and let us be sure to try and gain other talents, and not be as the slothful servant,—go and bury the one he has given us!

If we can not win souls to Christ by our words, let us use all of the influence. We can do much by our actions. Let our conduct be such in their sight, that they may imitate our good examples, and be led to follow us in the narrow way. If there were more models instead of fashions, the world would thrive much better, and more precious souls would be saved.

PEACE AND UNITY.

HOME quarrels are greatly to be deplored. In the home there should be peace. Those bound by the ties of kindred should uphold each other, and bear each other's foibles, and hide them from strangers' eyes. Those who dwell under the same roof must fight under the same flag or be defeated. Policy, if not good feeling, should bind together the members of one household. Bad as it is to quarrel with one's neighbors, people may do that and yet have some bright spots in their lives, if they only shut their doors on their quarrels, and find within only partisans and sympathizers; but when brothers and sisters, parents and children, and worst of all, husbands and wives, begin to disagree, spat, snarl, and abuse each other, and finally come to open quarreling, those who dwell under the same unhappy roof know beforehand the tortures of the lost. There is nothing on earth so near to heaven as a happy home; nothing so like perdition as an unhappy one.—Sel.

A POPE of Rome, in the midst of his great wealth, once said, "I cannot say as Peter did: 'Silver and gold have I none!'" The reply was made: "Neither can you say, 'Rise up and walk.'" Peter and the Pope are two types of two conditions of the church of Christ. When it is dependent on Christ, it can bless the bodies and souls of men; when it relies on its wealth it can do neither.—Sel.

"A MAN can not always be correct, but he can always be sincere. He can not always do the wise thing, but he can always do the right thing. He will err, but he need not sin. He will be defective in judgment, he need not be in heart."

"REVIVALS are the product of true repentance, strong faith, deep humility, broken-hearted contrition; the throes of a travailing spirit, crying out in its pain and helplessness to God, who is the Author and Finisher of the revival."

"COUNTERFEIT coin can never succeed in spoiling the character of gold; it only compels one to ring every piece on the counter. So pretense and sham never injure religion, but only make men more watchful."

THE NEW ENSIGN.*

BY M. W. SPENCER.

In the good providence of God we may expect, at no distant day, a federation of the Anglo-saxon race, when all the tribes of Israel will be under one government. Just now a strong effort is being made to establish a commercial union between Canada and the United States, and also with the mother country. Some even go so far as to favor a political union. That the Scriptures teach us that there will be one and only one Universal Government to all the tribes of Israel, there can be no doubt. Thus, when Jerusalem is restored in a new colonization, which is surely coming to Israel, it is said, "They shall see eye to eye when the Lord shall bring again Zion" (Isa. 52:8). "And I will make them (Judah and Israel) one nation in the land upon the mountains of Israel and one King shall be King to them all." Eze. 37:22. The Lord Jesus Christ will hold the reins of the Universal Empire as the son, upon King David's Throne.

Now, this new colony and government will want a new ensign. What shall it be? It will be divinely given, for the Word says, "And he shall set up an ensign for the nations, and shall assemble the outcasts of Israel, and gather together the dispersed of Judah from the four corners of the earth." Isa. 11:12. "And he will lift up an ensign to the nations from far, and will hiss unto them from the end of the earth, and behold they shall come with speed swiftly." 5:26.

The symbols of the new heraldry are already furnished, as we may learn in the context, "whose arrows are sharp" (2:8) and all their bows are bent." Their roaring shall be like a lion; they shall roar like young lions." Verse 29. Thus, as on the American banner, we have the arrows, and on the English Coat-of-Arms the lion and the little lions, so the Bible will furnish other expressive symbols with which to flash out before the world, the living truth of the new kingdom of righteousness and peace. Indeed, we have them already prepared to our hand. "The wolf also shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid and the calf, and the young lion and the fatling together, and a little child shall lead them." 11:6.

The grand Oriental imagery of the Universal Empire and its glory, are set forth by the harmonious blending of "opposites" as they dwell together in peace. How appropriate that the National Flag which is to succeed the crosses, and the shield of stripes, should be represented in the triumph of his peaceful reign,—humanity tamed and led by the child (Jesus), when the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea. The National emblems, already adopted, are too expressive and Hebraic to be dropped, but others of like character may be added to them as has been done, both in the old and new world. Heraldry is a subject of slow growth, and not less in the line of Israel.

The full Coat-of-Arms for England and America are often now seen in pictures, side by side, which seems to me highly appropriate and in keeping with the Federated Government of Israel. There are other symbols which may be drawn from the Holy Word, in which it abounds, that complete the picture of our redemption.

Dr. J. Wild, of Toronto, presents a possible combination of appropriate figures thus: No doubt the new flag or ensign will be historically and prophetically instructive. There will be a new flag for that new Imperial Government. It will be one that will be equal to the world. What will be its colors, do you think? One side will be pure white, and the other will be pure blue, to symbolize the innocence and conquest of Christianity on the earth, and hope and destiny of heaven above. On the white side there will be a landscape scenery in which there will be a number of animals of different dispositions. In the centre will be a little child with his hands on the heads of the lion and the leopard. On the top part, a cloud or halo of glory, will be angelic figures and heavenly objects; on the other side will be a globe, and a ray of light like a pathway will come from heaven, apparently above. There will stand in the centre of that globe the expression of multitudes of people, and there will be one person there who is shaking hands with another, and that will be our Lord and Christ, and under the hand will be written: "Brotherhood in Christ; Fatherhood in God," with a number of other mottoes and symbols that will be beautifully expressive of the purposes of the then present and of the future. Hence, my friends, perhaps it will be true as said in Psalm 60:4, "Thou hast given a banner to them that fear Thee, that it may be displayed because of the truth."

The place is, "my Holy Mountain," Jerusalem (Isa. 11:9), and the time this shall be accomplished will be "when the Lord shall set his hand again the second time to recover the remnant of his people, which shall be left from Assyria. Verse 11. At the same time, also, the dispersed of Judah,—the Jews,—are to be gathered into the fold, "that there may be one fold and one shepherd." John 10:16. Their union is to continue to the end of time,—"for evermore," that the heathen may know the Lord (Ezek. 37:28), "that the world may know, that thou hast sent me, and hast loved them as thou hast loved me." John 17:23. When this new Banner is flung to the breeze, there will be a great religious awakening to the Gentiles. "The Gentiles shall come to thy light and Kings to the brightness of thy rising." "Then thou shalt see and flow together, and thine heart shall fear and be enlarged because the abundance of the sea shall be converted unto thee, the forces of the Gentiles shall come unto thee." Isa. 60:5. "In that day there shall be a root of Jesse which shall stand as an ensign of the people (of Israel); to it shall the Gentiles seek." Isa. 11:10. The setting up of this standard will be the signal for the great spiritual victories coming to the Gentiles and are even now inspiring the whole missionary world. Rejoice, ye Gentiles with his people, "the end is not yet."

GREAT SALVATION.

BY C. H. BALSBAUGH.

Beloved Sister:—

Yours here. Like midnight with but one mist-shrouded star. Cast down low, low, like the Psalmist. Ps. 42:5, 11. "Hope thou in God, for I shall yet praise Him for the help of His Countenance." My heart bleeds for you. But this is only sympathy. God bled, and this is more than pity. It is salvation, great salvation, everlasting salvation. There is indeed hope for you. I have no doubt you will be saved in spite of yourself. You do not make your sins too great, but you make Jesus and the Cross too little. Sin abounds, but Grace much more abounds. Sin cannot exhaust either God's patience, or God's power; but it can annihilate our spiritual susceptibility, and aspirations. You have by no means sinned against the Holy Ghost. The hunger for holiness, is not the work either of nature or of the Devil. You feel self-condemned and miserable, and this feeling you transfer to God, and foster the belief that He feels just as you do. But this is not true. God loves you, and is pained that you are so slow to believe it. The Cross is the exponent of His good will, and the pledge of His fidelity.

Do you believe that I love you? What proof have you? Nothing but my word. Has not God given you His promise, and confirmed it by an oath, so as to make assurance doubly sure! Heb. 6:17, 18. Wherever you find God's promise to sinner or saint, there insert your own name as really, sincerely, positively meant for you. What more can God Almighty do than die for sinners as the proof of His love for them? Say to yourself a thousand times a day, God loves me now just as much as when He hung on the cross for me. Do not give the Devil a chance to wedge in a word to the contrary. He is the father of lies, and no truth does he hate more than that the blood of Jesus cleanses from all sin. 1 John 1:7, "Your sins forgiven you FOR HIS NAME'S SAKE,"—all put away as far as the east is from the west. God has done it, and it is perfectly done. When God dies for sin, we may be sure it is cancelled thoroughly and forever. Accept forgiveness, and for very love sin no more. Hate it, fight it, conquer it. Jesus, Omnipotent Jehovah-Jesus, is the Captain of your Salvation. "If you sin, you have an Advocate with the Father," 1 John 2:1, 2. Trust Him for pardon, trust Him for victory. He paid a great price for you, and He will not let you go until you deny Him as your Savior, and disdain His grace. You want Him, hunger for Him, cannot rest without Him. He is yours, and yearns to work the reality of His great love into your conviction. That you do not believe this is your misery; it also grieves Him. Come unto ME, I will give you rest. Let your mind and heart and mouth be full of Jesus, Jesus day and night, as the eternal embodiment of all the fulness of God for sinners, for you.

I must stop writing. Suffer dreadfully. Words cannot express my agony. Too weak to say half I wish. I close with the reiteration of my love, and the emphatic rehearsal that God is love, and ALL for YOU, as though you were the only soul that needs it.

"BE NOT DECEIVED."—Gal. 6:7.

BY J. S. MOHLER.

THE above warning is given to those who had embraced Christianity, and it teaches that, notwithstanding our relation to Christ, we may still be deceived,—led away from the Truth.

People may be deceived in about every calling in life. They may be deceived in uniting with the church. They may be deceived after they are in the church.

Very few people are satisfied with their present condition of life. They imagine there is a condition in life, which if they could attain to, would make them perfectly happy. When they attain to that position, whether it pertain to the acquisition of knowledge, or of wealth, or of honor, they discover that the Eldorado of their fancy has receded from their grasp. They are not happy. Nothing earthly can give real, solid happiness. There is nothing in all the world that so completely meets the wants of the soul, and gives happiness to our life as an humble submission to the claims of the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ.

The phrase, "Be not deceived" implies a Deceiver. The Deceiver manifested himself already in the begining, by deceiving our fore-parents in Eden. He is watchful,—seeking whom he may devour. His business seems to be, to thwart the plan of God, which is given us for our eternal happiness. One of the deceiver's great efforts is, to nip in the bud every effort made on the part of the sinner to return to God. The great deceiver of the human race has many in the world who are working with him to deceive others.

The most successful deceivers are those who pretend to be in the service of the Lord. Of old there were false prophets,—persons who pretended to be in the service of God. The difference between a false prophet, and a true one, is this,—the false prophet will always prophesy to please the people,—the true prophet, will prophesy to please God.

As there were false prophets of old, so there are false teachers in the church now. The difference between a false teacher and a true one is as marked now, as it was of old, between the true and false prophet.

A great deal of the modern teaching done in the church is done for selfish purposes,—for large salary, for honor, or fame, and comparatively little for the sake of Truth as it is in Christ.

Paul says, "Such are false apostles, deceitful workers, transforming themselves into the apostles of Christ. And no marvel; for Satan himself is transformed into an angel of light. Therefore it is no great thing if his ministers also be transformed as the ministers of righteousness; whose end shall be according to their works." 2 Cor. 11:13, 14, 15.

Again, "For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; but after their lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers having itching ears, and they shall turn away their ears from the Truth, and shall be turned unto fables." 2 Tim. 4:3, 4. Again, "Also of your ownselves shall men arise, speaking perverse things, to draw disciples after them." Acts 20:30.

All these are deceivers in the ministry, deceiving the people, making merchandise of them, for their own selfish purposes. The most dangerous deception of all is that which comes nearest imitating the genuine. It is not the badly-executed bill, printed on coarse paper, that is likely to deceive, but it is the bill that is well executed, on good paper and which looks just like the genuine bill, with, perhaps, only a difference of a slight stroke of the pen. That is the bill that will deceive.

So of the churches. Persons representing themselves as ministers of a church, which they declare, is just about like the genuine old church, are the very ones that are calculated to deceive. The real difference between them, and the old Gospel church, is never referred to. The real difference, unimportant as it may seem, is of just enough importance to sink the soul into eternal perdition.

The real difference between the old Gospel church and some of the modern churches is, conformity to the world. The old apostolic church is non-conformed to the world, while the modern church is conformed to the world, and claims that it makes no difference. "If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him." 1 John 2:15.

One thing is sure, a great many will be deceived. Christ says, "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven." Matt. 7:21.

Here is a large class referred to by the Savior, who were sure they would enter heaven, because of the wonderful works they had done, but they were deceived. Christ says, "He never knew them." Matt. 7:23.

The reason they could not enter heaven, is apparent. They did not do all the will of God. They were teachers, but not true ones. Christ makes this matter, all very plain, as to who shall enter heaven, and how. "He that doeth the will of my Father in heaven." Matt. 7:21. Hence, having the will of our Heavenly Father, all in the Gospel of His dear Son, we need not be deceived. All we need to do is to examine that will, and learn to obey all of it. Then the promise of God is, we shall enter heaven.

"Be not deceived!" Let no one, not even preachers, turn you away from the simplicity of the Gospel, by saying, "It makes no difference," while, in reality, a willful violation of a Gospel principle makes all the difference between heaven and hell. Let not conformity to the world, whether in dress, in associations, in amusements, or pleasures, deceive you. Be faithful until death and you shall have a crown of Life!

LIVES OF THE CÆSARS.

BY W. H. ROOSE.

Number One.

We have written for our church papers for nearly nine years, at intervals and, with the exception of one article or two, we have never written for our young readers. We have had under consideration, for some time, the writing of a series of articles expressly for the young. We shall aim to clothe the story in language simple enough that they may all understand what we shall have to say.

In correspondence with Bro. D. L. Miller upon the propriety of the subject, he said he wished to maintain the religious character of the Messenger, and that the course we wished to pursue might make the letters both interesting and instructive. This we shall try to do with all our might. We, with Bro. Miller, know how important it is to give the young minds proper food to grow upon. The mind feeds as well as the body, and, like the body, must have nourishing food or it will be sickly, puny. It is important that the minds of our young be strong and healthy, and zealous in right, as there is a great deal of work to be done by them when they get older.

Again, we are told, that "manners make the man,"—good manners make good men, and bad manners make bad men. Paul said in one of his letters to the churches that "Evil communications corrupt good manners," hence the necessity of using good words in both speaking and talking. The story we are about to tell you is about wicked men, who did not care whether people around them enjoyed themselves or not. Some of them lived before Christ came to teach what our conduct should be toward one another, yet they had the command to love our neighbor as ourselves, which they did not do. There are several references made in the New Testament to Cæsar. The continued rule of the fourteen Cæsars endured for nearly two centuries, and proved without doubt the truth of Solomon, "When the righteous are in authority, the people rejoice; but when the wicked beareth rule the people mourn." Prov. 29:2.

The story of the Cæsars is a true story and not a novel. Many editions have been published and many revisions made, but we shall find the foundation for our articles in Mrs. Sinclair's work published in London more than fifty years ago, with such other information woven in as we can gather from other sources.

The time during which these rulers of the Roman Empire lived carries us back to the period when the heathen darkness, that then reigned, was lit up by the glorious truths of the Gospel. It brings to mind the warlike habits, the cruel customs of the most refined and enlightened nation upon the earth. The bloody scene, foretold by Christ is forcibly brought to bear upon our minds when we are told of the destruction of Jerusalem by Titus. We will the more clearly see the depravity of the human heart,—how wicked, unfeelingly cruel it can become when it is not brought under subjection. You know Paul said "the carnal (wicked) mind is not subject to the law of God neither indeed can be." Rom. 8:7. Then we turn to Jesus' words and teachings and see what tenderness swells that same heart when filled with the Spirit of God.

Then, again, out of the fourteen Cæsars we can scarcely find one that possessed excellence of character worth envying or striving to imitate. To be sure, some of them were the possessors of great talents, but their ambition and the gross sinfulness of their nature, made them objects of terror and disgust. And when we look at the tragic deaths they met, we are more forcibly reminded of the principle laid down by Christ to Peter when he cut off the high priest's servant's ear, "For all they that take the sword shall perish with the sword." Matt. 26:52.

While penning these introductory remarks, this evening, we are more than ever impressed with the fact that the lives of those ungodly men are destined to teach many lessons that will be good for the government of the lives of the young. They can clearly see examples of wickedness at which men may arrive, when not restrained by divine grace; and they canal so see how necessary it is to follow their meak and lowly Savior in all things. This greeting re-echoes from the lowly fishermen mending their nets, down to our present conditions and vocations in life.

We think it best for children to learn early to form reflections on history and especially in comparing and contrasting pagan times with those in which Christian principles overrule. We think this the most forcible way of impressing them with the power the Christian religion had in supplanting vice and encouraging virtue, dispelling uncertainty by giving hope and insuring happiness to mankind.

With these few remarks we will close this article and come to you regularly until the story shall have been completed, and if we shall say any unkind word, or teach errors, we kindly ask you all to begin kind, true and righteous lives, by throwing over them all that mantle of charity that hides many faults and unintentional wounds from sight forever.

$1.00 pays for the GOSPEL MESSENGER from May 1 to the end of 1889. Show this to your neighbors and ask them to subscribe.

BRO. J. W. GRIPE has moved to Sartoria, Nebr., where he should be addressed in the future.

BRO. JACOB APPLEMAN has changed his address from McCune to Star Valley, Cherokee Co., Kan.

BRO. J. W. ELLER will represent the First District of Virginia, on the Standing Committee this year.

UNDER date of May 6, Bro. Sharp says: "The good Spirit is again at work among us. Four came out on the Lord's side yesterday, at our school!"

WE have a letter dated Ainger, Williams Co., O., containing $2.40 for Sunday-school papers and books, to which the writer failed to sign his name. Who sent it?

BRO. I. J. ROSENBERGER reports that the sale of his chart is encouraging. He now sells it at the uniform price of eighty cents per copy, allowing agents a liberal commission. We can furnish the chart at the above price, post-paid, from the office.

BRO. C. H. BROWN, of Kuka, Kans., writes that Bro. Whitmer, of Quinter, preached for them April 27 and 28. He made their hearts glad and his preaching strengthened and built up the church at that place. One sister was buried with Christ in baptism.

BRO. J. E. YOUNG, of Beatrice, Nebr., says, "The Lord is still sending laborers into his vineyard. We baptized two more on Sunday. For three Sundays in succession we have troubled the waters. Two were received each time. Others seem to be nearing the church. Praise the Lord!"

BRO. S. N. M'CANN informs us that the meetings at Woodbury, Baltimore City closed with one addition to the church. The brethren are in need of a resident minister and of a house of worship.

THE Brethren of Sweden and Denmark held their District Meeting in the Brethren's meeting-house at Sindal, April 19th. Several queries were sent to Annual Meeting, copies of which have not yet been received. In the afternoon three were added to the church by baptism. In the evening a love-feast was held and much joy was manifested among the members. Bro. Olsson, who sends us this short report, says, "Peace and union is among all the churches." In the adjoining church Bro. Martin Johansen was elected to serve in the ministry and he asks the prayers of the churches in America that he may have grace to labor faithfully in his new calling. During the last year some twenty have been added to the church by baptism.

FOR the last ten days we have had evening meetings in the Chapel, the preaching being done by our local ministers. On Saturday evening, the 4th inst, Bro. W. C. Teeter, of Sidney, Neb., stopped with us on his way home and remained until Monday evening, the 6th, preaching four sermons for us. While he was here, two of the students confessed Christ publicly and others were much impressed. Bro. Teeter's manner of presenting the Truth and of appealing to sinners is earnest and effective. He takes with him our best wishes and prayers for his success in the great work in which he is so zealously engaged. The meetings will be continued and we hope that others who are striving against the gentle wooings of God's Spirit may be induced to accept salvation on the easy terms of the Gospel.

THE following queries were passed by the District Meeting of Northern Iowa and Minnesota and sent us for publication:

QUERY 5.—(From Lake Branch.) Lake Branch church, in council assembled, petitions District Meeting of Northern Iowa and Minnesota to request the Moderator and Secretary of said Meeting to send a copy of all the papers that are to be sent to Annual Meeting (should there be any) to the MESSENGER office for publication, that all, who read its pages, may know what is pending. Signed, in behalf of the church S. Oblinger, R. Wolford, H. Miller, Albert Miller. Ans.—Passed.

QUERY 6. Petitions District Meeting of Northern Iowa and Minnesota to petition Annual Meeting to reconsider Article 14, Minutes of 1881, relative to the use of tobacco by officers of the church. If it is wrong according to the Gospel and order of the church to elect and install ministers and deacons who use tobacco, is it not wrong for elders who use tobacco to officiate in such installment? Signed, in behalf of the church: S. Oblinger, R. Wolford, H. Miller, Albert Miller. Ans.—Granted

LAST year we printed, so far as we could obtain them, the queries that were to come before the Annual Meeting, and, with the consent of the Standing Committee, distributed copies among the delegates to the Conference. It was found that this was helpful as it gave the delegates time to consider the queries, and it also saved time to the meeting as so many re-readings of the queries were not called for. The delegates seemed to be well pleased with the plan; at least, many of them so expressed themselves. We propose to furnish the delegates this year with the queries, not before the meeting, however, provided the District Clerks will forward them to us at once. If you send Minutes of your District Meeting, please indicate the queries intended for Annual Meeting. If you have not printed Minutes, please send copy of queries sent to Annual Meeting. Please attend to this at once so that we may get the queries and arrange them by State Districts in the order in which they will be called up.

BRO. A. B. WALLICK, of Bloomingdale, Mich., informs us that brethren Jacob Hildebrand and Amos Peters, of Indiana, recently labored for them in church work and in preaching the Word. Their labors resulted in good to the church, as the business, which came before them, was satisfactorily settled.

BRO. WM. LANDIS, of Cerro Gordo, Ill., writes of a visit to the Milmine church as follows: "I found them in the midst of their Sunday-school work, superintended by Eld. D. B. Gibson. I see they have the same trouble to contend with that is found in almost all our schools,—not enough members that are willing to try to give instruction, hence classes must necessarily be too large. After Sunday-school there was preaching by Eld. Gibson. After preaching, one was baptized into the body of Christ."

SELF-EXAMINATION.

ONE among the best and most beneficial services held in the church, if properly conducted, is that of self-examination held prior to, and in connection with the love-feast and Communion. Looking back many years, we can and do call to mind seasons of the kind referred to, that brought to us in our Christian experience rich showers of grace from the Great Giver of all good. And we believe that this has been the experience of all who engage in this blessed service in the right spirit. In the development of Christian character God has given us all the means necessary for our growth in grace, in the knowledge of the Truth, and in all the elements essential to full manhood in Christ Jesus, and prominent among the means thus given is that of a careful looking into our lives with a view of correcting anything that may not be right.

It is true that if we are to grow as we should in the Christian life, we must enter into a daily examination of our actions and the motives that prompt them, for it must not be forgotten that the character of an action is to be determined by the motive that prompts it. A great author wrote the following epigrammatic lines as advice to Christians: "Look upward not downward, look forward not backward, look outward not inward." We can heartily indorse the first two propositions, but we believe it is necessary in self-examination to look inward, to go down into the secret recesses of the soul,—"the birth-chamber of thought," and carefully examine what is going on there. We are so used to looking out and examining the things brought to our minds by our senses of sight and hearing, and especially the lives and actions of others, that the work of introspection is often found to be a difficult one. But however difficult it may be, it must be done if we are to come up to the full stature of manhood in Christ Jesus. It is only as we carefully examine our motives and the actions prompted by them and hold them up in the bright light of God's Word that we are able to judge of their true merit.

We illustrate our meaning by referring to the following experience which we heard related by a brother. At one of our Annual Meetings a collection was taken up for the purpose of building a meeting-house. The plan adopted was to ask if any one present would give twenty-five dollars; if so, they were asked to give their names. A number called out their names and expressed a willingness to give that sum. Others named a less amount and the brother in question called out his name for a certain sum. Looking at the action itself, it was good. The money was to be used for the work of the Lord, and for the time being the brother felt that he had done well, but after carefully examining his motives he felt that they had not been as pure as they should have been. He said, "I asked myself this question, Would I have given the money if I had been asked for it privately? And when I came to look carefully into my heart and examine my motives I found to my shame that the love of popular applause had a good deal to do with my giving the money, and the words of the Master came upon me with crushing force, 'Take heed that ye do not your alms before men to be seen of them.'"

This is what we mean by going into the heart and examining ourselves. It was not wrong for the brother to give money for the purpose for which he gave it, neither was it wrong to give it at the time and place where he gave it, but his motive which he himself heartily condemned, was not such as would bring down upon him God's blessing for giving. The brother, by thus carefully examining himself, was enabled to overcome the tendency to give to be seen of men.

We need, in this way, to make a careful and critical examination of our lives very often, so that we may bring into judgment and condemn such things as are not right. We may deceive ourselves and indulge in actions secretly that may not seem so bad, or so very far out of the way, and not take the trouble to examine them, and so come to look upon our course in life as being right, when in the sight of God it is all wrong.

The special self-examination service, held before we partake of the Lord's Supper and the Communion, is to qualify us for a worthy approach to the Lord's Table. There may be some things that we have overlooked in our daily examination that should be noticed and condemned, and it is peculiarly fitting that such a service should be held at the time it is by the church. We come together to celebrate the death and suffering of our Savior, and we want to come to the table so that we may become stronger in the service of God and not weaker as did some of the Corinthian brethren who partook of the meal and the sacred emblems of Christ's body unworthily.

The importance of the service should make the subject one of prayerful and thoughtful consideration to ministers who are to do the talking on the occasion. The sermon, or better the talk and exhortation should be of such a character as to lead the members into a careful and critical introspection of their lives and to a close examination of their hearts and motives, and the better the preacher succeeds in doing this, the more nearly will he come up to the true object of the service. The talk should be specially directed to those who are to take part in the Supper and no effort should be made to expound Scripture, teach doctrine, or church government. These and kindred topics should not be intruded upon the mind during the self-examination service. The mind should be divested of everything save the one purpose to prepare to eat worthily at the Lord's table.

We have, on more than one occasion, heard speakers devote nearly all the time given to the service in defending a doctrinal point that did not bear at all on self-examination. It seems to us that to do this is to fail in this very important work. The subject of the covering is often discussed upon these occasions and this, too, might be omitted with advantage during the hour set apart for self-examination. It is quite natural that this question should be taken up, because it occurs in the same chapter in which Paul teaches self-examination, and the entire chapter is usually read at the opening of the service, but we believe that this as well as other doctrinal subjects should be preached upon at other times, so that self-examination might be the only theme considered. The minds of the members would then only be burdened with the present duty of the work before them and thus they would find less difficulty in concentrating their thoughts upon the one important object of the meeting, which is a careful, prayerful self-examination for the purpose of coming to the Lord's table in a manner that will bring God's blessings upon them.

We offer these thoughts at this time because we are entering upon the love-feast season and we ask our brethren to give them a careful consideration.

NEW HOMES IN THE WEST.

Ever since our brethren first settled at Germantown, Pa., there has been a constant westward movement among them. The young men leaving the old homes around Philadelphia, pushed out to the then far West, limited by the line of Western Pennsylvania and Eastern Ohio. Later, the descendants of these pioneers, still following the course of immigration, settled in Indiana and Illinois. Crossing both the Mississippi and the Missouri rivers, they made a part of the great tide of emigration that has, for the last century, swept with irresistable force towards the "Land of the Setting Sun," until to-day there are empires, where, fifty years ago, the Indian held full sway.

The first among our brethren who thus sought new homes and new fields of labor in the West, were the hardy pioneers, who, actuated by a desire to build up churches and to secure homes for themselves and families, left the comforts of the old homestead, and braved the dangers and endured the hardships of the wild West. These were the early missionaries among us and they did a noble work. They planted churches in the rich valleys of Ohio, among the great forests of Indiana, and on the rich prairies of Illinois, and, although at first like the mustard seed, yet, to-day they have grown strong as the oak. They endured hardness like good soldiers of the cross. They suffered many inconveniences and privations, but labored all the time faithfully with such ability as God had given them, for the cause of Christ.

What is true of the settlement in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, and Missouri, of our people, is also true of the States west of the Missouri River, and in many places to-day our brethren are settling where, in the years to come, there will be strong churches.

But we started to say something of the letters that are written by our brethren from their new homes. Many of them have been published in the Messenger, and, occasionally, some feel that the picture is too strongly drawn, and this may, in some cases, be true. We do not think for a moment, however, that this is done with any intention to mislead. The writers are well pleased with their new homes and the country generally. They have a strong desire to enjoy church privileges and the association of brethren and friends, and hence are anxious to have others settle around and about them. Other motives may also influence them; such as the improvement of the country and the consequent increase in values, but the strongest motive is, we believe, the desire to have a church built up so that they may enjoy in their new homes the association of those of like precious faith and have the Gospel preached.

Under these circumstances it is not to be wondered at that our brethren use their entire stock of adjectives in describing their new homes and the advantages of the country in which they live.

Looking back more than forty years we remember how we used to sit by mother's side and listen with bated breath to the glowing accounts given, in private letters, from the Rock River settlement in Northern Illinois, to which far-away country her father and part of his family had traveled from Maryland in great covered wagons, occupying many weeks in making a journey that may now be made in two days.

These letters and others that came from the new colony were strong, and while they were not published in our church papers, for in those early days we did not know much about church papers, yet they had their influence, and as a result many brethren and sisters moved to the new settlements. At first some were disappointed in the country, and after trying it awhile, turned their faces eastward, sought again the old home, and brought with them many discouraging reports, but steadily the country was settled up and as a result we have in Illinois to-day some fifty strong churches.

Doubtless many of the letters written fifty years ago from the far West were considered highly-colored and overdrawn, but, viewed in the light of the rapid development of the country, they would, were they read to-day, show that the writers knew what they were talking about and that they had a better knowledge of the country and its resources than those who found fault with them for writing as they did.

What is true of the settlement of the Rock River Valley in Illinois is true of a score of places in Ohio and Indiana, and will be true of many places in the West and South. Eighteen years ago it was thought to be a wonderful thing to hold our Annual Meeting west of the Mississippi, yet, in in less than sixteen years from that time, it was held twice west of the Missouri river in the growing State of Kansas.

If we could put aside the veil that shuts out the future and look ahead twenty-five years, we might see our Pentecostal Conference located in Texas, in Oklahoma, or Colorado. And why not? In the years to come we ought to make more rapid progress than we have in the past. The church is systematizing her work and there are great possibilities before her. If she be faithful, who can tell what great things the Lord has in store for her. The great South is before us, a vast field for labor, and the people, as a rule, gladly accept the Truth. Calls for preaching are heard on every hand and it seems to us that the church is but entering upon the threshold of the mighty work that she is called upon to perform. Let us faithfully labor together for the cause of the Master, and, when some of our brethren go out upon the frontier, and in their zeal write for others to come and help them in the work, let us make due allowance for them in their isolated condition and not be too ready to censure them. We do not want to encourage any one to overdraw the advantages or to speak "too flatteringly" of their new homes. In all things we should take the Apostle's advice and let our moderation be known to all men.

THE HEAVENWARD SIDE OF OUR WORK.

BY J. M. CABLE.

There is no place where earth's sorrows
Are so felt as up in heaven;
There is no place where earth's failings
Have such kindly judgment given.
Oh, if our love were but more simple,
We should take him at his word,
And our lives should all be sunshine
In the sweetness of our Lord.—Faber.

GOD knows how hard it is for human eyes to see,—but especially hard is it at times for us as Christians,— to see the heavenward side of our work.

The contractor that frets during the day, and worries wearily at night over his costs and calculations, may sometimes, nay, I am sure, does, if he has a soul, look with an eye of satisfaction upon his work. He has done something to make men's lives better, even if it is in an earthly way. Even the mason who lays the bricks, and the hod-carrier who bears the mortar, look not, I hope, upon every brick as alone so much bread or so many cents, but as a milestone, also, on the road of some man's progress.

Doctors and lawyers, mechanics and merchants, look not constantly upon this side of their work. Even though they work for themselves, for honor, comfort, and money; they are working for God also. Although their feet may never stand inside a church, though no nobleness may reach their hearts, no misery their pockets, yet are they still working for God; they are his servants, and he will call upon them for an account of their stewardship, whether it be well done or ill. Indeed, it does behoove us mortals to look often upon the heavenward side of our daily duty.

Shortly after the "great earthquake" some gentlemen, whose pockets were evidently not interested, were examining a house whose brick walls were rent and had partly tumbled down. The house had been built for years, but they said that the work had not been well done in the first place.

"I wonder," said one of the gentlemen, meditatively, "if the mason who did this work and shirked it, will be held responsible. None answered the inquiry, but a queer look came over their faces, as though the corner of a curtain had been raised, and they had looked beyond the range of human vision. The one who spoke of the mason's being "responsible," did not mean responsible to man,—the bricks were green in places, with mossy age, and the hands which put them together had mouldered, perhaps, into dust, his name was forgotten—but the work was ILL DONE, and when the servant would be questioned by his master, what could he say of it?

My dear Christian friends, if we do our work ill it is not bricks that will break, but hearts; not walls that will fall down but souls; and our hands must work not only earnestly but carefully, lest we fear sometime to answer,—lest we know not what to say when our Master asks his questions.

It is not good for us to look too intimately into human nature, for it wears no mask over its native ugliness, nor, thank God, over its beauty; yet we as Christians, must look into it. It is a part of our vocation; and most happy are we who can rejoice in the beauty too much to sicken at the ugliness.

The best Christians make the best brothers and sisters, the best husbands and wives, and above all the best fathers and mothers,—mothers who can see a blemish in their children's characters as well as their beauty, and whose firm and loving hands can soften the one and enhance the other.

Saints have ascended into heaven, crowned with gold; martyrs bear palms of immortality in their prayerful hands; and yet I think that God could say no more to them than he will say to us if we are true and saintly Christians, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant." Their reward can be no better than ours will be, "Enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

Each and every true Christian feels in his heart that no wealth, even worlds, can pay him for what his heart does, and that only One knows and appreciates his work.

Christians, let us keep our eyes turned toward this heavenward side! Let us follow the hand which pierces the mist, hanging over the river of death, and points us to the world beyond! Let us listen to the voice which whispers, "It is my work which thou doest, not thine; take care and do it well."

Christian friends, let us not hate and abhor this kind of labor! Let us shoulder the burden willingly which Christ has left us, and he will help us to bear it onward and upward, and then we can feel the glory of him who is above us. Then we can see a hand pointing skyward, and our little will be done well. It is sad to fail in our tasks, even when we deal in bricks and stones, "but it is dreadful, indeed, to fail when we work with immortal human souls."

"'Why use these dull and dingy hues?' I said:
The weaver paused, and smiled, and shook his head
And answered, 'Tis a background for the brighter thread.
When all is finished you will see
How bright the pattern be.'

"I pondered o'er the weaver's words and ways,
Might it not be that fate sent darker days
That we might trace thereon in shining deeds of praise?
So that, life finished, one might see
How bright the pattern be."

ONE COMMITTEE OR TWO.

BY LANDON WEST.

IT has been suggested that we have one committee instead of two to direct the Missionary Work, and also the Book and Tract Work, and the reasons named were a saving of time and gathering of larger gifts to the cause of Christianity. The thought is important, and we should ask, if time could not be spent by us all in that way? As to our gifts to the spreading of the Gospel and the worship of God, we should give aid in every way we can that the Light of Life may go to all men, and especially here, in our own country.

1. My reasons for two committees were suggested by the paper in 1885, and it was proper; for more work can be done, and both are for the spread of light and liberty.

2. A third committee was given by the meeting of 1885 to examine the things published, and thus hasten and secure the work done.

3. The first two have each four meetings a year of one day each, and it is now a day's work for each, and to put both together into one is to lessen the work done, or overwork the committee. The increase of work before us suggests that we should have more workers in the field instead of fewer and overworked Committees.

4. The call is now coming from Bohemia, Germany, Denmark, and Sweden, while the tendency of our own country is toward idolatry. I was to-day (April 25, 1889), on the spot where the last white man was slain by the Indian in Southern Ohio, eighty-six years ago, and one-half an hour before I heard the colored man ask for his right, and ask for his pay.

The tendency of our own nation is now toward the darkness and wickedness, and hence, instead of lessening the number of Committees, every soul should be a committee of one to worship and to work for "the true God, and the honoring of all men,"—the motto of America one hundred years ago!

MESSAGES DROPPED BY THE WAY.

BY C. C. ROOT.

ON page 218, current Volume of the GOSPEL MESSENGER, Bro. W. R. Deeter struck a chord that gives the true sound in the estimation of many, that is, in reference to consolidating the Missionary, Church Erection, and Book and Tract Works. Especially have canvassers found much importance in the point of his second reason, where he says, "It would dispense with one set of canvassers." Canvassing, under the most favorable circumstances is not pleasant, but it is especially unpleasant for the second canvasser." "People are apt to become irritated if solicitors follow in close succession."

While this is no doubt the case, and while I admit the propriety of said consolidation, I predict that the sad unpleasantness of canvassing will always continue under any system whatever. I carry the canvassership of both in our District, and I admit, had one preceded me with either part, my show for the other would be a poor one. I always introduce the two works as one whole, and then a choice is made by the donor between the two works as to the proportion of his notes to each or either.

But, brethren, as for people becoming irritated at canvassers, don't expect anything to be arranged that will avoid that! The most successful solicitor in the work is the one I heard the hardest talk against. But, considering his wonderful success, and the class from which the abuse came, I conclude that truly God is in the work and will sustain it. Some have been "cast up" as untruthful, and as having in view the pitiful aid that is afforded us for our labors and travels. Others claim that we are working up a paid ministry, and the honesty and purity of the movement is called in question. Should not these facts call out a practical sympathy of those in love with the work, causing them to start from their halting, pondering position, and come and meet their District Solicitors half way, or at least at their gates with that "welcome," by them, so much needed for the life of their work and the progress of Christ's cause?

From Abilene, Kan.

Our good meetings in the Chapman Creek church are now in the past, but the enjoyments connected therewith will not soon be forgotten.

The meeting opened on Saturday evening, March 30. We had preaching by Elder Enoch Eby, and his son, Levi. We continued over Sunday and Monday evenings. Two were added by baptism on Thursday before the meetings, and one during the meetings.

On Tuesday, April 2, a goodly number of members, from the adjoining districts, together with many delegates for District Meeting assembled with us for preaching at 2 P. M. These services were followed by an interesting examination discourse by several of the brethren. It was suggested while the Lord's table was being prepared to have a choice for two brethren to the deacon's office. This was unanimously agreed to, and the voice of the members taken. Our beloved brethren, John Hersh and Jacob Baumbaugh were chosen, and duly installed right after the close of the communion services. Enoch Eby officiated. May these brethren fill their office acceptably, is my prayer.

Next morning, April 3, at 9 A. M., the District Meeting of North-eastern Kansas convened. All business was transacted pleasantly and promptly. Only one query goes to Annual Meeting, namely for electing officers by majority, instead of the plurality vote. Bro. John A. Root is our delegate to Standing Committee, Bro. J. D. Trostle, alternate. All business was done by 5 P. M. Another good sermon was delivered after supper, by Bro. Enoch Eby, at the request of the sisters.

April 4 the Annual Insurance Meeting of the Brethren of Kansas took place. All business was transacted in the best of feeling. The last event of our good and joyful time was a sermon by Bro. L. H. Eby, closed by Bro. E. Eby. I felt it was good to be at such meetings. Time is too short here below for the association of the children of God, and eternity not too long for their enjoyment. May I ever share it with them, is my prayer! John Forney.

From Dayton, Ohio.

The members of West Dayton, and vicinity, having petitioned the districts in which they resided, for a church district, and their request being granted, they, with the adjoining elders, Geo. Holler, John Smith, John Bowman, George Garber, and ——Gump, met at the home of Bro. S. W. Hoover to effect an organization. Our meeting was well represented and much interest manifested both by the members and elders present.

The name of our district is "The West Dayton District." We number forty-two members, with two ministers and one elder. We have elected three Trustees, a Clerk and Treasurer. We thought best to defer the election of deacons for a while. We have $2200.00 subscribed towards purchasing a lot and building a house. We think it will take nearly $3500.00 more to purchase a lot and build a suitable house. We want, if possible, to commence building by June 1.

We send brethren Frank Cotterman and S. W. Hoover to the District Meeting of Southern Ohio, and Bro. S. W. Hoover to Annual Meeting.

An Appeal for Help.

The writer attended a church meeting, April 20, held in the Winnemac church, a small body of members who have been placed under my care. The object of the church meeting was to settle on a location for a meeting-house, and elect three Trustees, which was all harmoniously done. Now they desire help, and, for the satisfaction especially of the members of the Middle District of Indiana, from which they expect aid, I will say that it is not a union house, but a Brethren's meeting-house. These members are much in need of a house of worship. In many places the school-houses are being closed against preaching and they have no convenient place for holding love-feasts. They have the lumber sawed and hauled on the ground, for the framework. The size of the house is to be thirty by forty feet.

The members are all in very limited circumstances, and I kindly ask the Elders of the Middle District of Indiana to bring the matter before their churches, that some help might be secured for these poor members out here, who are isolated from the main body of the church. The building of meeting-houses is a much needed thing among our people. In many places, I fear, as a religious body, we do not put forth the effort in that direction that we might.

The Brethren appointed for their Treasurer, Christian Brechbill. He lives in the Monticello church, some twelve miles from place of building. All contributions should be sent to him at Monticello, Ind. A. S. Culp.

From Sugar Creek Church, Ohio.

The Brethren of the above congregation met in council April 20th. All business passed off quite harmoniously. We made arrangements to have a love-feast on Saturday, June 8th, commencing at nine o'clock. The general mission fund was not forgotten, as had been the case heretofore, but greatly encouraged. We elected our Elder, M. H. Shutt, as a delegate to District Meeting. Bro. Eli Holmes has moved to this church, and was with us to assist us in our council-meeting. Our little church is in good order at this time. May the good Lord direct all to his honor and glory, that souls may be saved!

V. C. Fisher.

Baltic, O.

From the Forks Church, Garrett Co., Md.

We, a small band of members, twenty-eight in number, are living in rather an isolated place, where we have but little preaching done, on account of having no meeting-house of our own to worship in. We formerly had preaching every four weeks in the United Brethren's house, but that privilege is denied us now.

Brother Samuel J. Miller, near Engle's Mill, is our nearest home minister. I am confident if we had a house of our own, where we could hold a good series of meetings, that our number could soon be more than doubled.

Brethren, we must have a meeting-house. We have $200, but we need about $400 more. As the members here are principally poor, we feel like asking our neighboring churches, or the District Missionary Board to help us. I think, by the help of God, and the loving brethren, if a proper effort is made, the work can be accomplished. Brethren, let not this call go unheeded! Let us rise up in our might and see how much we can accomplish for the Lord's cause in this place! Let those who feel to give us a few mites, be they ever so few, send them to the undersigned. For fuller particulars, or any advice you can give us, address the undersigned. Perry Bowser.

A Happy Event.—Coming Home.

It is, to a great extent, known to the friends and also to many of the Brethren that during the agitation of our church relations, several years ago, Bro. Charles and sister Augusta Elson, of this City, withdrew their membership from the church.

This step, so unadvisedly taken, proved to be a very great mistake, causing them much unhappiness and discontent, as such a course must ever do,—going away from the Father's house. It is, however, gratifying to know, and it will bring joy to the hearts of their numerous friends and also all the Lord's dear children to whom our dear brother and sister are known, that they have again returned to the fold.

They are welcomed by all! Eld. George Holler said on their return that they had always had a warm place in his heart. The high social qualities and amiable dispositions of brother and sister Elson will endear them to all the members. We have reason to believe that they will become active, and, we trust, faithful workers in the good cause.

May the Lord bless and prosper his Zion everywhere, is our prayer! S. W. Hoover.

Dayton, Ohio.

Report of the Insurance Association of the North-eastern District of Kansas.

The Association met in the Chapman Creek church, April 4, 1889. Considerable business came before the meeting, which was transacted in a Christian-like manner. There were several changes made in the rules governing the Association, which will be printed and sent to each policy-holder. We now have two hundred and sixty-eight policy-holders, and the property insured amounts to $533,859. We have been in full-working condition for three years. We have made one assessment of two and one-half mills on the dollar, which, judging by the past, will pay losses for some time; yet we have no assurance of the future. We ask the Brethren to join in and help us, as we think that our association does not conflict with the Gospel. We can thus help to bear one another's burdens. We find it much cheaper than worldly companies. Any information will gladly be given by the Secretary.

B. S. Katherman.

Lawrence, Kans.

From Accident, Md.

According to previous arrangements brethren W. G. Shrock and D. H. Walker, from Berlin, Somerset Co., Pa., came into our midst April 12, and held forth the Word of Life until Sunday evening, April 21. As an immediate result of their labor, nine came out on the Lord's side, we trust, to walk in newness of life.

Saints were much encouraged and awakened to a sense of their duty. Many comforting thoughts were presented to our minds. Although the meetings were not very largely attended, yet the interest and attention were good.

Our Brethren made many warm friends. May the Lord bless them and make them instrumental in saving many souls from the awful doom that awaits the ungodly, so that, when they are done laboring and toiling in God's moral vineyard, it may be said of them: "Well done, good and faithful servant; enter into the joys of thy Lord."

Railroad Arrangements.

THE B. & O. R. R. will sell tickets over their line to Harrisonburg, Va., the place of our next Annual Meeting, at one fare for the round trip. Tickets will be sold commencing May 25, and continue until June 11, good to return until July 5. These rates will be made on all the branches and lines under the control of the B. & O. R. R. The following extracts from letters in regard to the Southern Passenger Association from Mr. Bond, Division Passenger Agent of the B. & O., will explain themselves:

"Referring to your favor of the 9th inst., to Mr. McDonaugh, your Railroad Agent, I beg to advise that the Southern Passenger Association has named you rate of one limited fare for the round trip from all stations in East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia, to the Annual Meeting of the Dunkard Brethren at Harrisonburg. Tickets will be sold commencing June 4th, and continue up to the 11th from that part of the territory, and will be good to return until the 20th."

"We will commence selling tickets, and have requested the Trunk Line Association to place on sale tickets commencing May 25th and continue until June 11th inclusive, good to return until July 5th. We will send our circular in a few days, copy of which will be forwarded you as soon as received from the printers. This circular will give rates, route and information in general to the German Baptist Brethren."

MR. GEO. L. MCDONAUGH,
Gen'l Railroad Agent, No. 116 N. 4th St., St. Louis, Mo.

Dear Sir:—

Replying to your favor of the 1st, inst. relative to rates from points in Canada to Harrisonburg, and return, for Brethren attending the Annual Meeting, I beg to advise that the rate question for this occasion is up before the Committees of the Central Traffic and Trunk Line Associations and as soon as it is ecided upon I will advise you. As regards those coming from Canadian points, the best that can be done is to give them round-trip rates from the Border, and let them add the local rate from their starting point to it.

Yours Truly,
B. F. BOND, D. P. A.

The Route to Harrisonburg.

HARRISONBURG is located in Rockingham County, Virginia, upon a branch of the Baltimore and Ohio R. R., which is the only road running to the town. During the Annual Meeting all trains on the B. & O. R. R. from the West will make connection at Harper's Ferry for Harrisonburg. The B. & O. trains from Chicago and Cincinnati run through solid to Harper's Ferry, and through Sleeping Cars also run from St. Louis to Harper's Ferry via the Ohio and Mississippi R. R. and the B. & O. Where there are parties of 30 or more who wish to travel together, the B. & O. will arrange to run cars for them through to Harrisonburg via Harper's Ferry. It is only via the B. & O. that cars can be run through to Harrisonburg without change.

Excursion tickets to Harrisonburg and return will be sold from all points in the West at one fare for the round trip. This will be the rate from Chicago, St. Louis and all points east thereof, and it is confidently expected that the roads west of Chicago and St. Louis will make rates equally as low.

On this basis the rates from some of the principal points will be as follows, viz:

Chicago, 17.25. St. Louis, 20.25. Cincinnati, 12.50. Dayton, O., 13.50. Columbus, O., 11.75 Indianapolis, 15.65. Milford Junct., 16.60. Auburn Junct., 15.35. Fostoria, O., 13.50. Mansfield, O., 13.50. Zanesville, O., 11.75. Wheeling, W. Va., 9.75. Pittsburg, 9.00. Johnstown, Pa., 9.00. Meyersdale, Pa., 7.25. Cumberland, Md., 6.15. Hagerstown, 3.85. Martinsburg, W. Va., 3.85, Frederick, Md., 4.15.

From the fact that the B. & O. R. R. is the only line running to Harrisonburg, and that it is only via this line that cars can be run right through to the place of meeting, it stands to reason that the B. & O. is the best route to take.

For the benefit of those desiring to visit friends in the East, the B. & O. will sell excursion tickets from Harrisonburg to any point on its lines east of Harrisonburg or Harper's Ferry. The B. & O. R. R. Co. will have a Ticket Agent on the meeting grounds for this purpose, and tickets can be procured at any time while the meeting is in progress. For further information in regard to the B. & O. Route to Harrisonburg, address any of the following Agents of the Company:

L. S. Allen, 193 Clark St., Chicago, Ill. W. E. Reppert, 11½ N. High St., Columbus, O. F. P. Copper, Tiffin, O. E D. Smith, Pittsburgh, Pa. B. F. Bond, Baltimore, Md., or W. H. King, Asst. G. P. A., Grand Central Depot, Cincinnati, O.

Further Railroad Arrangements for Annual Meeting.

ARRANGEMENTS have been perfected with the Chesapeake and Ohio R. R. on the same basis as previously stated, with the B. & O. Persons coming via the Chesapeake & Ohio will find close connection at Staunton, and ample facilities to convey them to the meeting grounds at Harrisonburg, Va.

With this arrangement the Executive Committee hope for the harmonious working of the railroads, and, with the accommodations offered by them, trust that the visit of the brethren and sisters to Virginia and the Annual Meeting will be a pleasant one.

The railroads further agree to give same commission on tickets via St. Louis, as is given on tickets via Chicago.

P. S. THOMAS,
Sec. Ex Com.

The Best Route to Harrisonburg

Is via the Chicago, Santa Fe and California railway (Santa Fe Route), and Chicago. Passengers via this route can leave Kansas City at 6:35 P. M. and arrive in Chicago in the morning. The fast express leaves Chicago at 5:05 P. M. and arrives at Harrisonburg the next evening. This will give all an excellent opportunity to see the wonderful city of Chicago with its many beautiful parks and boulevards and innumerable points of interest. It will be to the advantage of the German Baptist church for all its members to travel via Chicago. A recent issue of the GOSPEL MESSENGER fully explained this arrangement. H. A. Bonn, Western Passenger Agent, 812 Main St., Kansas City, will be glad to call on all Brethren who will attend the coming meeting. Full information will be cheerfully furnished upon application to J. J. Byrne, Ass't Gen'l Pass. Agent, C., S. F. & C. Railway, Rialto Building, Chicago.

From Hooversville, Pa.

BRO. J. M. Mohler, of Lewistown, Pa., came to Hooversville March 4, to open a series of meetings in the Disciple church at this place. When Bro. Mohler came to church, he found a goodly number of people assembled to hear the first sermon preached here by the Brethren, for quite a number of years. Bro. Mohler addressed the congregation on the subject of "Prayer." The sermon was short and to the point.

On Tuesday evening the roads were very muddy, but the attendance was excellent, considering the new place of meeting and condition of the roads. We were very ably addressed on the subject of "The Power of God." On Wednesday evening we again had a good meeting.

On Thursday Bro. Mohler received the sad telegram of the death of his father, and so had to return to his home in Lewistown. We certainly were all made to sympathize with Bro. Mohler, and were very sorry to postpone our meeting. Bro. E. J. Blough, however, was present in the evening and preached a very good sermon from Matthew 11: 25–29.

On the evening of April 10, Bro. Mohler returned and began his services by talking to us on the subject of "Jesus Christ, our Heavenly Teacher."

On Thursday and Friday evenings the attendance was good and sermon instructive. On Saturday evening the house was quite full. The subject of "Faith" was introduced. The congregation seemed to take particular interest in the words spoken, as so many seem to think faith means "believe just as you feel," not knowing that faith must be proved by works or that even devils believe and tremble.

On Sunday morning Bro. Mohler and I concluded to take a drive to the Dibertsville church, a few miles west of Hooversville. There we found a small congregation of brethren and sisters assembled. The small congregation, however, did not lessen the interest. Bro. Mohler spoke to us on the subject of "Christian Arithmetic,"—"Add to your faith, virtue," etc. We certainly all were benefited and felt like saying, it was good for us to be here.

On Sunday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, quite a number had gathered at the church, especially the old folks, who were not able to attend services after night. The Scripture was read relative to "Repentance" and a good explanation was given as to what repentance means. In the evening Romans 12 was read and the effects of evangelical repentance spoken on. A great deal was said on the fashions of the world,—the sins of the followers of fashions were pointed out. The filthy habit of using tobacco, intoxicants, etc., was pointed out. Each one could say, "He meant me," because a good part of the sermon adapted itself even to the brethren and sisters.

On Monday evening 2 Chron. 34: 3 was selected by Bro. Mohler as a basis of his remarks. On Tuesday evening Prov. 21: 8 was read and considered. On Wednesday evening we listened to a very interesting sermon on the "Design of Baptism," and on Thursday evening a full house listened with the greatest interest and quietness to a sermon on the "Mode of Baptism." All present who wanted to learn could not fail to see the mode clearly, as taught by the Gospel. All was clearly proved by the Scripture, with the exception of a few historical facts.

Friday evening the turn-out was smaller than usual, but on Saturday evening the usual crowd had gathered, notwithstanding the services in the United Brethren church, and the meeting of the Lodge. Sunday morning April 21, Bro. Mohler and myself went to what is known as the "Ridge Church," two and one-half miles east of Hooversville. There Bro. Mohler addressed a small congregation.

In the afternoon, at 2 o'clock, we again met for worship in the Disciple church at Hooversville. The subject of "Communion" was treated. Bro. Mohler told why we do not invite other denominations to communion,—that it is not because of selfishness, but because it is not according to Scripture, etc.

After the sermon it was announced that Sunday evening would close our meetings for the present at Hooversville. In the evening the subject of "Love" was preached on. At the close of the sermon an invitation was given for those who wished to change their course in life and unite with the Brethren. Five precious souls declared themselves for the Lord. Two of them had been baptized by single mode backward immersion just two or three weeks before, but they saw their course was wrong and desired to go right back and start anew. If only all, who make a wrong start, were really honest and not prejudiced, I believe many would yet be added to the Brethren. The following day they were baptized. Our hearts were made to rejoice and we pray that the good Lord may bless them and ever keep them faithful!

From here Bro. Mohler went to the "Ridge" and preached five sermons from Monday evening to Friday evening. Three precious souls came out on the Lord's side, two of whom are yet quite young. May the Lord be ever near to those dear little lambs!

We believe many and lasting impressions have been made while Bro. Mohler was with us, and we hope the day is not far distant, when we can have a church of our own at this place, and when many more will come out on the Lord's side and serve him in his own appointed way.

PERRY J. BLOUGH.

From Pipe Creek, Md.

OUR Bible Class closed March 23. We meet weekly, at the members' houses, during the winter. We feel to thank the Lord, and trust all concerned were spiritually benefited.

Our Sabbath-school was organized the following week,—Sunday, the 31st. The weather being inclement, the attendance was small, but we have been much encouraged by the addition of quite a number since, and hope, as we advance in the good cause, to gather the children from the highways and hedges.

I was much disappointed that Bro. Brumbaugh was unable to continue his notes on our Sunday-school lesson, as they were both interesting and instructive. I trust he may resume them in the near future!

Do not forget the Sunday-school! There the young mind is instructed in the paths of Jesus and many lasting impressions made. It is casting bread upon the waters.

Our Annual Council was held April 18. We think everything was adjusted with Christian feeling, and, we hope, to the satisfaction of all. Our deacon brethren, John E. Senseney and David J. Roop are delegates to our District Meeting, held in Frederick City to-day, April 23. Our Love-feast will be on Saturday, May 4, commencing at 1:30.

The great Necessity of Retaining the German Baptist Brethren's Church in the City of Dayton, O.

THE last census gave to Dayton 60,000 inhabitants. The city is divided into several districts, each one having its name. The eastern part of Dayton, called Oregon, is the largest of these, and it is in this spacious field, which is white already to harvest, that the Brethren church is situated. At the most prominent and conspicuous place the greatest good can be done. Centrally located as it is, makes it convenient for all, and being in the midst of all the street railroads passing through the city, it is easy of access. The number of people east of the Miami river are estimated at about 40,000. I presume one-half, or more, of these are established in their churches, but there is at least one-fourth of the number that do not go to church at all, on account of the modern usages and customs now indulged in and tolerated in the churches, and who would, if they had an opportunity, gladly go to hear and accept the Word in its simplicity and purity. We can all see, therefore, the necessity of a church in the city.

No one has aught to say against a church in Miami City or West Dayton, as there are a goodly number of members living there. If Brethren west of the river would do as they did in the days of Joshua,—come over on the east side and help the brethren and sisters to get their home in good working order, and work all over the city for the building up of the kingdom and the cause of Christ, an organization would more readily and easily be effected. Then we could hopefully and truthfully say that a great, grand and noble work might be done in this vast place. It is not for the want of a good place to work, it is for the want of workers and some means to make it the most extensive and prosperous church in the Miami Valley. Let me call your attention again and think of it! Ten thousand souls who do not go to hear and learn of their Redeemer! Some, perhaps, have never heard the story of the cross. Who knows but there are some Brethren's children among them?

Many, who have not been brought up in the Brethren's church, refrain from going where pride and vanity are afloat. Such would not hesitate to come to us, if we would build up our church and start a Sunday-school.

We think no one should doubt the necessity of having a well-organized church in the city. Persons, not connected in any way with our people or denomination, will not walk or even take the street-cars, to go across the river, to attend divine services, when there are forty or fifty popular churches on their own side of the river, but they will go if they are as near to the sanctuary, as they would be to ours. My prayer is that we may all unite on a plan by which to sustain the old church-site, that is so commodiously and prominently located for the great work of the Master in this city. Some denominations have four and five churches. What hinders the Brethren from having two?

Let us consider this all-important question, and let us go out to the public places and highways to work for the prosperity of Zion and the saving of souls!

MARY B. STITELY.

From Waynesville, Pulaski County, Mo.

WE held our quarterly council today. All passed off pleasantly and agreeably. No deferred matters were brought up. We petitioned District Meeting to change the name of our church from Dixon to Waynesville church, that being the post-office address of most of our Brethren. We then organized a Sunday-school with Bro. Dan. Stump as Superintendent, assisted by Bro. E. Burro. We are but few in number, but love and union prevails. Dear brethren and sisters, let us thank God for the blessings that we enjoy, looking forward to the home beyond the skies! RACHEL E. GILLETT.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

BROWN.—In the Maple Grove church, Wis., April 19, Emmaretta Brown, wife of T. T. Brown, aged 32 years, 1 month and 7 days.

Another of the sweet singers of Israel fallen asleep in Jesus! This can appropriately be said of our dear sister Brown. Her sweet, loving voice, her kind, affectionate and Christian character, were sure to win the true regard of all with whom she became acquainted. The deceased took her bed some time in July, 1888, and was confined to her bed until death relieved her and the Master called her home. She manifested a willingness to go, and made all things ready by complying with God's written Word.

Sister Brown was laid away in her last resting-place April 21, after an address by the writer, from Rev. 14: 13. She was followed to her grave by a large concourse of sympathizing friends. She leaves an affectionate husband and seven children to mourn their loss, but they need not mourn as those who have no hope, as we believe their loss is her eternal gain. S. H. BAKER.

ZION.—In Rush County, Ind., April 18, Mary Zion, aged 83 years, 3 months and 8 days.

Deceased was born Jan. 10, 1806, near Trenton, Butler Co., Ohio. She was married at the age of eighteen years to Joseph Saunders. To them were born nine children, all of whom lived to have families, except one daughter. Joseph Saunders died Jan. 10, 1884, leaving to mother the care and responsibility of raising their children. She remained a widow until April 23, 1851, when she married George Zion, who died March 17, 1874. She then was a widow fifteen years.

Funeral services April 19, by Harvey Wright from 1 Cor. 15: 53.

SARAH M. SAUNDERS.

MINNICK.—In Henry County, Ind, March 2nd, Michael Minnick, aged 90 years, 3 months and 17 days.

He was united in marriage to Lydia Henry in York County, Pa., Dec. 10, 1808. The fruit of this union was two sons and nine daughters. His beloved companion and two daughters have preceded him to the spirit land. About twenty-one years ago his companion became an invalid, and for fourteen long years he watched and cared for her with all the tender love and affection that is due from a kind and loving husband. July 5th, 1881, she was freed from her sore affliction. Since that time he has been almost constantly with his daughter Sophia Knupp. He with his wife left Pennsylvania and moved to Virginia, and afterwards to Henry County, Ind. In 1835, he, with his wife, united with the German Baptist church and lived a consistent Christian life. GEO. L. JENNINGS.

STUDEBAKER.—At their home in Augusta, Kansas, of malarial scarlet fever, three children of Noah and Catharine Studebaker, as follows, Mamie, March 13, aged 10 years, Angie, March 14, aged 8 years, William, April 3, aged 15 years.

Thus, within three weeks a strong, healthy family of six in number were reduced to three. This being no ordinary instance of mortality in one family, it enlisted the interest and sympathy of many. The funeral of the three children was preached in the Baptist church by Eld. G. W. Churchill from Ps. 119: 75

Bro. Studebaker, his wife, and only surviving child, soon return to Illinois. They will long live in the sympathetic regards of their many friends in Augusta.

G. W. CHURCHILL.

GARVER.—At his home in the village of Polk, Ohio, in the Maple Grove church, April 7th, after a short illness, Samuel Garver, aged 74 years, 11 months, and 4 days.

Deceased was born in Fayette County, Pa., where he joined the Brethren church under the preaching of Bro. James Quinter, nearly fifty years ago. He lived a blameless and faithful Christian life, and was prepared for the end, and patiently waited for the Savior's gentle call, when he passed quietly and peacefully away to the haven of eternal rest and happiness. He leaves a wife, one son, six grandchildren and four great-grandchildren to mourn his departure. Services by Eld. George Worst and Dessenberg, at the Mohican church, where he was buried.

NICKEY.—In Lower Cumberland church, Cumberland Co., Va., April 18, Bro. Benjamin F. Nickey, aged 60 years, 7 months, and 16 days.

He was in the ministry eighteen years, and we believe he "fought a good fight, finished his course, and kept the faith."

E. B. GARVER.

MORE.—In the Middle Creek congregation, Somerset County, Pa., April 5, Bro. John Henry More, aged 35 years and 27 days. Funeral services by the writer.

PLETCHER.—In the same congregation, April 11, Amanda, daughter of Bro. Jacob and sister —— Pletcher, aged 21 years, 10 months and 11 days. Funeral services by the writer assisted by Bro. Jacob D. Miller.

MILLER.—In the same congregation, April 12, Bro. Jacob L. Miller, aged 74 years, 4 months and 5 days. Funeral services by Bro. Isaiah Johnston and the writer, assisted by brethren Urias Brancher and Amos Christner. VALENTINE BLOUGH.

GARVER.—At his home in Polk, Ashland Co., Ohio, April 7, Bro. Samuel Garver, aged 74 years, 11 months and 4 days.

Bro. Garver leaves a wife, one son, six grandchildren, and four great-grandchildren to mourn the loss of a beloved husband, father and grandfather. Funeral services at the Mohican church, Wayne Co., Ohio, by Eld. George Worst and William L. Dessenberg from Heb 9: 27, 28. DAVID SNYDER.

LEHMAN.—In Maple Grove congregation, at the residence of her son, in Ashland County, Ohio, March 23, sister Lydia Lehman, aged 82 years, 4 months and 17 days.

Sister Lehman was the mother of one son. She leaves three grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. She was a consistent member of the Brethren church for twenty-six years. Sister Lehman was a widow for fifty-six years. She was born in Lancaster County, Pa., near White Oak church, Nov. 6, 1806. Her maiden name was Lydia Witmyer. Funeral services by elders William Murray and George Worst, to a large concourse of people. DAVID SNYDER.

HENRY.—In Middle Creek congregation, Somerset Co., Pa., Bro. Jacob Henry, aged 78 years, 3 months and 28 days. Funeral services by the writer to a large congregation from 2 Pet. 1: 15. G. W. LOWRY.

HOUT.—In the Pleasant Valley church, Elkhart Co., Ind., April 22, sister Frances Hout, wife of Bro. Richard Hout, aged 62 years and 22 days.

Deceased was a faithful member of the church for about twenty years. She leaves a kind husband and six children to mourn their loss. May they not mourn as those that have no hope but may they follow her good example and at last meet her in the heavenly mansion where God will wipe away all tears. Funeral services by Bro. Isaac Berkey from Job 14: 14.

LEVI E. WEAVER.

HOWARD.—In the Lower Twin Creek church, Preble Co., Ohio, April 12, Emma Eliza Howard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Washington Howard, aged 14 years and 28 days.

The stroke was keenly felt by the family and many were the sympathizing friends. The occasion was improved from the words "Set thy house in order: for thou shalt die and not live." Isaiah 38: 1. Services by the writer. DANIEL M. GARVER.

TOBIAS.—In the Bear Creek church, Montgomery Co., Ohio, March 31, sister Susannah Tobias, aged 55 years, 5 months and 2 days.

Sister Tobias was a member of the Brethren church for over thirty-two years. She was a consistent member and adorned her profession. She leaves a kind husband and four sons to mourn their loss. Deceased was afflicted both in body and in mind.

Funeral services by Eld. John Bowman and the writer from Psalms 92: 12.

DANIEL M. GARVER.

SHEETS.—Near Middletown, Henry Co., Ind., April 25, Mrs. Lidda Sherfey Sheets, aged 89 years and 3 months.

Deceased was born in Shenandoah County, Va., in 1800. She was married to Joshua Sheets in 1822, who departed this life in 1866. Eleven children blessed their union. Eight children, together with twenty-six grandchildren and twenty-three great-grandchildren survive her. She united with the Brethren church at the age of sixteen and remained faithful to her baptismal vows. When death came, it found her fully prepared, as a sheaf of wheat,—ripe, and ready for the heavenly garnering. Funeral services at the old church by Bro. Henry Frantz, of New Carlisle, Ohio, and Bro. David Hoover, of Sulphur Springs, Ind. GEO. L. JENNINGS.

EUROPE is all very well, but don't you think it is only fair as an American to know your own country thoroughly? Try the "American Alps" on the South Park Division of the Union Pacific in Colorado this summer. There's nothing like them in Switzerland.

THE splendor of the "American Alps" is beginning to be appreciated by our people, and a visit to Switzerland for gorgeous scenery is unnecessary. The picturesque mountain [illegible] on the South Park Division of the Union Pacific in Colorado are absolutely unrivaled on this continent.

"For peculiarly soft yet penetrating shades of color, marvelous grouping in form, fantastic seclusion and tender shaping of rugged cliff and mountain and valley," says a distinguished artist, "the wonderful empire of Colorado stands peerless." The Alpine scenery along the line of the South Park Division of the Union Pacific in Colorado is the most magnificent in the United States.

MORAN, the great artist, despaired when he saw the Great Shoshone Falls,—it was so far beyond his pencil's cunning. So there are wonderful dreams of beauty in the tempestuous love-liness of the grand "American Alps," in Colorado, which are at once the aspiration and the despair of painter and poet. Splendid beyond comparison is the superb scenery along the South Park Division of the Union Pacific in Colorado.

"There rested there—escaped as while
From cares which wear the life away,
To eat the lotus of the Nile
And drink the poppies of Cathay."—

And every American business man is beginning to find that his summer vacation is more and more a necessity; the money making machine won't stand the strain without an occasional rest. The "American Alps" of Colorado offer the highest conditions for perfect relaxation, pure vital air, comfortable hotels and the noblest scenery in the country, and may be reached on the South Park Division of the Union Pacific Railway.

IT is not American in the highest sense for our people to prate about Europe so glibly when so many of them are profoundly ignorant of the wondrous beauties of their native land. As a matter of fact there are hundreds of thousands of American citizens who are thoroughly familiar with Switzerland, who have idled away weeks at Lucerne, done Chamouni and attempted the Matterhorn, and yet have never feasted on the lovely beauty, the wild, weird majesty of any one of the Colorado Peaks. "More than Alpine glory," rewards visitors along the South Park Division of the Union Pacific in Colorado. There is no country like it in the new world.

"THE peerless empire of form and color, is found in Colorado," says a great artist. So are many other very wonderful effects. There is a great triumph of engineering skill, the Bow Knot Loop, famed all over the world, the pretty town of Graymont nestled against the base of Gray's Peak, the giant prince of the range; sunrise on Gray's Peak—a sight once witnessed never to be forgotten; Idaho Springs the beautiful restful spot blessed with the healing waters for all who come, within two hours' ride of young leviathan Denver the storied gold camp of Georgetown, perched in the upper air of the mountains ever fresh and cool and clear—these are a few of the delightful spots in the "American Alps" reached by the Colorado Central Division of the Union Pacific Railway in Colorado.

Advice to Mothers.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used during the period of cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once, it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child, and the little cherub awakes "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to take. It soothes, the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. 28y1

H. B. BRUMBAUGH, Editor,
And Business Manager of the Eastern House, Box 50, Huntingdon, Pa.

BRO. FRANK F. HOLSOPPLE, a Normal student, we are told, preached an acceptable sermon in the chapel on last Sunday morning. Such help is always appreciated, and we would be glad to have more of it.

WITHIN the last few weeks, we have had several baptisms. The spirit of the Lord seems to be moving among us, and, as a result, souls are being added to the church. We hope that others may follow in the choice.

BRO. H. P. FAHRNEY, of Frederick, Md., a graduate of the Normal, spent a few days with us last week. As this is his spiritual birthplace, around it cling many hallowed associations. Such always receive a most hearty welcome on their return. He reports the Frederick church getting along nicely, and that it has a good Sunday-school.

OUR aged Eld. Studabaker related to us an incident the other day that we think will bear repetition, especially at this time. Years ago, when the now wide-awake Buckeye State was considered on the frontier, people indulged customs and things that would not be considered as orthodox for a people professing to be followers of the Christ whose life was without spot or wrinkle or any such thing. In those days it was the custom, when their log houses were to be raised, to summon the whole neighborhood, and on many of the occasions whisky flowed freely. One of the neighbors had a house to raise, and the people assembled for the purpose, but there was no whisky and some of the men refused to help unless it was brought. Finally, the man who was building the house said he would leave it to a vote, and if the majority would vote in favor of whisky he would send for it. To this they all assented; the vote was taken, and as the saying now runs, "it went wet." Among the number was a brother of considerable influence, who did not drink whisky or intoxicants, yet who for some cause voted for the whisky. After the building was up, the crowd divided themselves into two parties,—those who voted for the whisky formed the one, and those who voted against, the other. This division placed the brother with the drinking party. As they began drinking they commenced getting drunk and fighting followed. This was too much for the brother and he saw plainly where his vote had placed him. But he determined to leave the drinking crowd and go to the other. As they saw him coming they told him to go back, that he voted with the whisky crowd and there he belonged, and there he should remain. This was more than he bargained for. And he then and there determined that never again would he cast his vote on the side of the drinking and the drunkards. It was a lesson learned that he never forgot. And, brethren, is it not a lesson to us? May the Holy Spirit drive it home to us in a way that we, too, will never forget it!

WE have been hearing from a number of the District Meetings, and so far there have not many queries been sent to Annual Meeting. It will certainly be wisdom on the part of the churches, not to trouble with queries that have been answered and met at previous meetings. To expect to get a decision to cover every question that may arise, is more than can be done. Questions can be decided from general principles, if the true, Christian spirit is exercised.

"GOSPEL CHIMES" have now been sent to all orders received so far as we know. Orders for them are coming in rapidly, and the sales thus far have been very encouraging. The book was gotten up in "character notes" for the special purpose of filling the demand for this kind of musical notation, as they are considered much more readily learned by children, than the round notes. The music is new and suitable and, we believe, will give very general satisfaction. Single copy, post-paid, 30 cents; per dozen, post-paid, $3.00; per dozen by express, $2.60. Send for them, have good music, and add greatly to the interest of your Sunday-school.

LAST Saturday and Sunday we spent with the Warrior's Mark brethren. On Saturday afternoon we were with them in their quarterly church meeting, at which time the usual business was attended to, and brother John Law was forwarded to the second degree of the ministry. In the evening we talked to a good house on the adoption of the amendment that is now agitating the minds of the good people of our State, and the bad ones too. We also filled an appointment on Sunday morning. Eld. Samuel Cox, who lives some distance from the church, was present during the meetings, and also filled an appointment on Sunday afternoon, after we left. The members of the church are very kind, and we always enjoy our visit to them. Bro. S. S. Gray does the principal part of the preaching at the church-house, and is assisted by brother Law. They have an interesting Sunday-school, and seem to be doing a good work.

IS THE EARTH ROUND?

HAD we to determine the answer to this question by our own observation and measurement, it would require a long time, and a vast amount of measurement, indeed. Hundreds of years and generations of men have passed away in the solving of the question, and the result came slowly and by inches. And the information thus far gained is but little sought after outside of the scholar and his text-book. It is not what is known that the people want so much as the unknown. The question may arise; why should we be concerned about this question? We are concerned only so far as we don't know, and it is astonishing how many are seeking for the sake of finding. Not that there is any promise in the finding, outside of the mere gratification of the desire. We all seem to have some kind of a world to explore and find its shape, and after it is found, the general expression is: "Just as I thought it was," and off we go to explore another unexplained world. Beauty and riches are lying all around us, not hidden, but on the surface, and yet we are tramping them under our feet while in the pursuit of the soap bubble that will vanish in the grasping.

Somehow and for some unexplainable reason we are indifferent to the real, while we are wild and full of enthusiasm for the ideal. We are poor, naked, hungry and miserable, because we are ever refusing the obtainable and seeking after the unknown.

Lottery schemes, gambling schemes and the chance grab, hold out much stronger inducements to the mass than honest labor and sure reward. Thousands of dollars are daily slipping through the hands of the poor into the bottomless maws of these greedy robbers, and yet the blindness remains.

This disposition is not a characteristic of the flesh alone, but is a spiritual disorder which is equally prominent in the world. What is plainer than the plan of salvation as it is revealed in the Scriptures? It is the revealed wealth of the spiritual world, and is distributed around and about us, as are the productions of the earth, or the outgushing fountains as they run and gurgle down their pebbly channels.

But notwithstanding their abundance and preciousness, men do trample them under their feet in their greed to search out that which they cannot understand. The unsearchable riches lie in their way, and they stumble over them in their eagerness to catch the ever-receding phantom that is all promise and no substance.

Is the world round, is the question, and it must be solved independent of cost or sacrifice. There are thousands who would be Christians—so they say—if they could understand how the whale swallowed Jonah without smashing his ribs, how manna rained down from heaven, or how the sea divided to let Israel through. They spend their lives in searching out the secret things of the Lord, that in no way concern them, while they utterly ignore that which he has plainly revealed, and is intended for our salvation and that of our children throughout all generations.

It is all right that we should know the shape of the earth on which we live, if such information is accessible; but neither our happiness nor well-being depends on such knowledge. So it is with many things that pertain to our spiritual life. We may learn these with profit, but it is not on these things that our salvation depends. Repentance, a living faith, and a Christian baptism, are the essentials to a new creature in Christ Jesus. About these there should be no mystery, and they are given to us in unmistakable language. "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." By accepting these, we first seek the kingdom of God, which insures to us the promise of "all things." And having this much we need no more.

ESSAYS

"Study to show thyself approved unto God; a workman that needeth not be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth."

THE BRAVEST BATTLE.

THE bravest battle that ever was fought!
Shall I tell you where and when?
On the maps of the world you will find it not,
'Twas fought by the mothers of men.

Nay, not with cannon or battle shot,
With sword or nobler pen;
Nay, not with eloquent word or thought,
From mouths of wonderful men.

But deep in a walled-up woman's heart—
Of woman that would not yield,
But bravely, silently, bore her part—
Lo! there is that battle-field!

No marshaling troop, no bivouac song;
No banner to gleam and wave!
But O! these battles that last so long—
From babyhood to the grave!

WASH ME FROM MINE INIQUITIES.

BY SUSAN SIDLE.

"Wash ye, make you clean; put away the evil of your doings from before mine eyes; cease to do evil."—Isaiah 1:16

THE Psalmist says in Psalms 51, "Wash me thoroughly from mine iniquity, and cleanse me from my sin. Wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow." He then says, "Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me. Then will I teach transgressors thy ways; and sinners shall be converted unto thee."

We read in the Sacred Volume how much washing had to be done in olden times for the cleansing of the soul and body. When we read the Sacred Oracles and meditate thereon, we have great cause to believe that feet-washing was a sacred ordinance from the beginning. Abraham entertained the three angels in Gen. 18. Lot also entertained two angels, and soon a little water had to be brought to wash their feet, before they could be permitted to go into the house or rest under the tree. In Ex. 30, Aaron and his sons had to wash their hands and their feet before they were fit subjects to minister in the priest's office, and still other instances might be found.

The words "washing feet" occur ten times in the Bible between Genesis and the New Testament. It seems in every case it was teaching righteousness and humility. So it passed along down to the Savior's time, and he established it to be observed in the Christian church. He yielded to the sacred ordinance before he washed the disciples' feet in John 13. When he was in the Pharisee's house, a certain woman came in and washed his feet with tears, and wiped them with the hair of her head, but the man of the house found fault, and told the Savior that she was a sinner. Jesus, answering him, said, "Simon I have something to say to thee. Seest thou this woman? I entered into thy house; thou gavest me no water for my feet, but she hath washed my feet with tears and wiped them with the hair of her head." No doubt the Savior approved of all that the woman had done, and it was a wonderful case of humility. For that act her sins were forgiven and she was told to go in peace.

In John 13, when the Savior washed his disciples' feet, he set us an example that we should do to one another as he had done unto them. He made it a binding ordinance in his church on earth, and we cannot find a more pleasant and happy place this side of Jordan, than to come together in love to obey those holy ordinances that have been left on record by our Blessed Master, so plain that, as Isaiah says, in 35th chapter, "The wayfaring man, though fools, shall not err therein."

Another case shows plain that feet-washing is to be done in the house of God. In 1 Tim. 5:10, we read that the widow could not be taken into the number unless she had washed the saints' feet. Where was she to find the saints? Not out in the highways or hedges, or out in the country. No, but right in the congregation of the saints, in the church of the Living God. There is the place she was commanded to go and wash the saints' feet, and it is hard to understand why it is that any one that professes to be a follower of the Lord Jesus Christ can possibly pass by any of his commandments, and teach that they are of no use.

A great number of persons make a mistake at the commencement of their journey. They submit to the backward action in baptism, and only one action. Many more use sprinkling as a substitute for baptism, and all receive the bread and wine in the morning or at noonday, and call it the "Lord's Supper," when every one knows right well that "supper" is a full meal in the evening. They leave undone what they please and still bear the Christian name. No wonder that there is confusion in the camp!

We go forward and bow our heads in prayer, and why not go forward in the holy rite of baptism? The children of Israel were commanded to go forward. Had they gone backward, they would never have got through the Red Sea. The Egyptians would have caught them in the wilderness. When Lot went out of Sodom, the command was, "Go forward, escape for thy life, look not behind thee, nor tarry in all the plain." Lot's wife looked back and became a pillar of salt. No doubt she had some precious idol in the city that she was loath to part with. Here we can see the fruits of disobedience.

The apostle speaks in Rom. 6:3, "Know ye not that as many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death?" "Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death and as he arose from the dead, so we walk in newness of life."

In Matthew 26:39, we read that Christ, when he was in the Garden of Gethsemane, fell on his face and prayed. Mark says that he fell to the ground and prayed, and Luke says that he kneeled in prayer in the garden. In his death he bowed his head and died. So we see that he went forward in every act he did, and the Holy Spirit is still speaking to us in pleasing accents to go forward and not look back, nor commence our journey to the Heavenly City in a backward action. The apostle reminds us to press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus.

Wash us that when our days are past
And all our work is done,
We will not have a care to breast
As we ride safely home.

CHURCH LETTERS.

BY S. S. MOHLER.

THE custom of giving certificates of membership to those moving from a church, is at times not attended with the care that, it seems, should be observed. To sign a letter by order of the church for a brother or sister, whose standing in the church does not come up to the declarations, expressed in the letter signed, is certainly not a trifling thing, and to do this would show that the church has no right views on the subject. Letters have been given to members who were troublesome, and at their moving away were not in good standing. Sometimes it looks as if such can get letters far easier than more worthy members. There seems to be a desire to get rid of them, rather than to hold them amenable for their conduct, lest they might not get away.

Letters, granted under such circumstances, come very near being an imposition on the church where they are presented.

Letters are sometimes asked for, and given, when but a very small portion of the church is present, when the meeting for worship is somewhat to one side of the limits of the church. To do this has a suspicious look, and there are instances known where the party, wanting a letter, found it convenient and preferable to ask for, and obtain, a letter under such circumstances rather, than where the attendance of members was larger.

Elders, moving away, have called for a letter when no other elder was present, and the church, not knowing better, granted the request. This is an error. Ministers sometimes call for a letter when no elder is present. This may only be allowed in extreme cases. It is far better for the minister moving away to postpone getting a letter until some future time, when an elder can be present, or request it long enough before moving, so that in neither case a breath of suspicion may stamp itself on his letter.

Sometimes members fail in their request to get a letter, and then threaten, or plead for one, until, out of pity, or for some other reason, the church consents and gives the letter. It is not often that such a course turns out well, or that the members or church have their self-respect increased by yielding.

Sometimes a self-willed elder is not willing to give a letter to deserving members. He, the elder, needs attention just then. Sometimes some weak members have had an old little affair with the member wanting a letter, and, although the affair is settled (though they scarcely know whether it is settled or not, or whether it ought to be), when they are asked will say, "Do as you please, I'll be neutral." This seems to satisfy them, and, now, do not scold them!

Sometimes letters are requested at a proper time and place, and a letter is granted. Then, after the members have moved and located in another church, a complaint is forwarded against them about a matter that was known to exist when the letter was granted, but was not named. This is a very strange thing.

Some years ago the Mineral church decided that any member,—having an unsettled matter with another member, and leaves it drag along, and then, upon request of the other for a church letter, brings it forward as an objection,—is not fairly entitled to his objection. His duty was to settle the matter when it occurred. The church that grants a letter under such circumstances, and afterwards entertains the member's complaint and forwards it, can not have a very correct idea of business, and, as a result, will put the church in trouble where the members are located. A case like this differs widely from a church granting a letter where no existing trouble was known, or where there was no trouble, but where causes were at work when the letter was given, that afterwards developed into a trouble. In such a case a church should take up the complaint and act on it, and go back of the letter given to such members, because the trouble, following after the letter was given, had its origin before it was given, but had not yet shown trouble when the letter was issued.

If unchristian conduct of members exists, but is not known when a letter is granted them, but afterwards becomes known, this will justify, and demand, that the church notices it the same as if no letters were granted. But where letters were given when it was known that something existed which needed attention on the part of those requesting letters, and it was not named, then all that seems possible under the circumstances, is, not to forward complaint to the church, but to confer with them privately, and, if they are Christian men or women, they will render satisfaction. If they refuse to do this, then, upon proper explanation to the church where the letter was handed in, a process of discipline may be instituted. As a rule it is best, only to act upon requests for church letters when the church is together in regular or called church meetings. This is especially advisable where there exists a probability that objections will be offered. Cases may arise where, from the inexperience of members, or from some peculiar temperament of the one desiring the letter, the church can not fully endorse a good letter, and yet prefers giving such a letter, in the belief that, by proper care, they may in time become faithful members. In such cases a good letter may be given, and if the elder of the church where they intend to locate, is written to privately, explaining their peculiarity, and soliciting his special care in their behalf, it would be not only a Christian act, but may be the only proper course to save them.

Sometimes members have letters and fail to hand them in to the church and, by their conduct, cause the church trouble and reproach. Members may have moved into churches without a letter, and caused the church to suffer reproach by their conduct. In either case that church has no jurisdiction over them, but that church can not allow itself to be helpless,—to be made to suffer and be reproached even though it has no jurisdiction over those members. It has however the power, and it is her right and duty to protect herself. This right of self-protection against such members lies in her power to pass an act, suspending the fellowship of those members, so far as that particular church is concerned. This is not an expulsion from the church. It is simply an act of self-protection against such unworthy members, and should be reported to the church from which they moved. Such members may have, in moving into another church, contracted debts, and made promises to business men which were accepted solely on the reputation which the church has for honesty. These business men finding themselves deceived, and the church learning the facts, would feel humiliated,—reproached. The fellowship of such should be promptly suspended by the church, thus relieving the membership from the stigma caused by the transgression of those delinquents. This is applicable to every species of misconduct on the part of non-located members.

THE FULFILLING OF PROPHECY—A CRITICAL EXAMINATION OF SCRIPTURE.

BY F. C. RENNER.

Number 3.

"Blessed is he that readeth, and they that hear the word of this prophecy, and keep those things which are written therein: for the time is at hand."—Rev. 1: 3.

WE will proceed now to find when the Gentiles began to tread the city, etc., and if the 1,260 years reach to the date of the end of 2,300 years when the sanctuary is to be cleansed, then our view is substantiated. It is admitted on all hands that the Mohammedans are the Gentiles that tread the Holy City, etc., and, as their time is limited to forty-two months or 1,260 years, we have only to find where they begin.

Gibbon dates the flight of Mohammed from A. D. 622, and after he was an exile of seven years, he was enthroned as a prince and prophet of his native country in A. D. 629, and the great historian informs us that, by the year 630 he had all Arabia under him, and that all those differing from him in religion were killed, or had to fly to a place of safety. Temples and churches were destroyed, and mosques built in their stead. Hence this marks well the time when the two witnesses should commence to prophesy in sackcloth, for the only two witnesses that can stand are the humble followers of the Lamb and the Jews.

In 630 the treading of the city began, and 1,260 years reach to A. D. 1890, when the sanctuary is to be cleansed, because the time of the Gentiles will then be fulfilled. As the 2,300 years end at this same date, we have reason to believe that we are on the eve of some great matter which time will soon reveal.

There are some things in Daniel 12 that throw a shadow, apparently, on the prophecy. I will examine those points by the light of Scripture, that, if possible, we may determine their import. We refer to the "troubles," "the time," "times" and "half time," the "1,290 days," and the "1,335 days."

The troubles spoken of in Dan. 12: 1 are past. They occurred at the destruction of Jerusalem, and from that time until the days of persecution were shortened, Jesus says (Matt. 24: 21) then shall be great tribulations, such as were not since the beginning of the world. Hence we have divine proof that those things in Dan. 12: 1 are fulfilled. In verse 6 it was asked, "How long to the end of these wonders?" The angel answered that it shall be "for a time, times, and a half time," and when he shall have accomplished to scatter the power of the holy people, all these things shall be finished. Now, therefore, to understand, we must examine history to see when the power of the holy people was scattered.

We understand the power of the Holy Spirit to be the Divine Spirit with which the humble followers of the Lamb were endued from on high, to convert the nations to which they were sent, "Go ye into all the world," etc. Now this power was scattered. In A. D. 1184 the Inquisition was fully established. In 1207 Pope Innocent III sent his inquisitors against the Waldenses, and the Fourth Lateran Council in 1215, in order that the bloody work might be rigorously prosecuted, converted this inquisition into a standing infernal council. In 1261 Pope Urban IV issued a Brief that the punishment of heretics should not be hindered. In 1325 Pope John XXII forbade any treaties being made with heretics, and any person found harboring one should be arrested. In 1339 the Christians could no longer worship in public; hence their power was restrained or scattered.

Now, it is admitted that the 1260 days are the same as a "time," "times" and a "half time." These "times," etc., date from the taking away of the daily sacrifice (see verse 11). About A. D. 70 the daily sacrifice was taken away. Add 1260 to 70 and we have 1330,—the time when the holy people were scattered. To confirm the matter, Daniel said that he heard but he understood not. Then it was told him that it would be for a time, and that the wicked would do wickedly, but the wise would understand, and that from the time the daily sacrifice was taken away, it should be 1290 days (years), then the scattering of the holy people would be finished.

In A. D. 1330 the power of the holy people was scattered, and this state of things continued for thirty years. The grossest darkness prevailed, parents were afraid to trust their children, and, to let one's religion be known, was death. What followed this? John Wickliff, who was born A. D. 1324, and was now thirty-six years old, became aroused, and, by his zeal and writings, he made papal dominions tremble. By his boldness he gave courage to the humble followers of the Lamb, and the power of the holy people that were scattered, now began to shine forth, never to be again obscured by the power of the beast. This enlightenment and reformation commenced A. D. 1360, and agrees with what the angel told Daniel, that, from the taking away of the daily sacrifice and setting up of the abomination of desolation there shall be 1290 days (years). Add to 1290 the 70 years, and we have 1360,—the very date when these things were finished.

The angel further said to Daniel, "Blessed is he that waiteth and comes to the 1345th day (years)." This is a period forty-five years longer, and reaches to the time when the powers of reigning sin were broken, and the rising sun of righteousness was sending his beams of Gospel light into the benighted regions, bringing joy and gladness to the broken-hearted. John Wickliff had, in this interval, translated the whole Bible into English,—a great task, indeed. John Huss read the Scripture, in public, in Bohemia, and from reading the writings of Wickliff he acquired a spirit of holiness. Thus the great Reformation was begun. The Gospel light was once more radiant, nevermore to be obliterated. The art of printing was discovered, and, by the year 1406, Gospel light and privileges were so strong that the saints felt blest. The 1345 years reach to A. D. 1405. Hence this reaches to a literal fulfillment of what Daniel saw and heard.

I am fully aware that most all writers put this prophecy to the second coming of Christ. This can not be, because we have the date to count from, the taking away of the daily sacrifice, and we have the length of time,—1290 and 1335 years.

NO NIGHT THERE!

BY LIZZIE H. DELP.

"There is no night there, but one endless day,
In that beautiful home, away, far away."

"I WILL not leave you comfortless," is one of the richest promises in which we can put our trust. When we have finished our life-work, we shall have the "place" in heaven, prepared for us, if we have been serving the King of that domain! We know that they who gain an entrance there, are unspeakably happy. We know that the streets are golden, that the gates leading to the city are twelve pearls, that the rivers are as crystal, yet, no mind can comprehend or imagine the glory that is unspeakable. There will always be light, and joy, and gladness, for the Lamb is the light thereof, "and there shall be no night there."

Our Savior was troubled in spirit on the night of his betrayal. As the twilight deepened into the darkening gloom of night, so the shadow of sorrow and suffering grew darker, until his inward torture wrung from him sweat, as it were great drops of blood, and the prayer, "Let this cup pass from me." That night in Gethsemane is shrouded in blackness, as no other ever can be. The sins and woes of a suffering world, weighed down the spirit of the Lord of all. It was night in the valley of Kidron,—night in the councils of the Jews and high-priests,—night in the soul of Judas Iscariot,—night upon the terrible future before him.

To many a weary soul, a night of pain, of perplexity, of calling unto the Lord for help to bear up against the surges of sorrow, is no new experience. Such may find comfort in the thought of the rest, and peace, and beauty of the New Jerusalem, in dazzling radiance of eternal day. "There shall be no night there,"—the things which seem dark and mysterious here, shall be made clear and plain to us there. We shall look back upon the intricate windings of our pathway through life, and see clearly how it led straight to the feet of Jesus. "There shall be no twight here!" Children of affliction, hear ye this! Pain cannot exist in the atmosphere of heaven, no tears are shed there, no graves opened, no friends removed, and never, for a lonely moment, does even a flitting cloud shadow the deep rapture of tranquillity.

"There shall be no night there!" Children of calamity, hear ye this? No baffled plans there! No frustrated hopes! No sudden disappointments! One rich tide of happiness shall roll through eternity, and deepen as it rolls.

THE BEAUTIES OF GOD'S WORKS.

BY H. W. STRICKLER.

"When I consider the heavens, the work of thy fingers, the moon and the stars, which thou hast ordained; What is man, that thou art mindful of him? and the son of man, that thou visitest him?"—Ps. 8:3 4.

I THINK I can see David, the sweet singer, as he sits, with his harp, in the valleys of Hebron, watching the flocks of his father Jesse, looking up into the heavens while playing one of his richest melodies upon his instrument of many strings. While singing praises to his God, his eye catches a glimpse of the little stars as they appear in the azure fields far beyond, where his spirit oft had walked in deep meditation. With soul-thrilling songs he learned to love the great God of heaven.

Is it any wonder that in after-years hewas able to pen the many glorious psalms; from one of which I have selected my text?

To every person who delights to reflect on the works of God, the firmament of heaven, where the resplendent stars roll their vast orbs, opens a noble field of observation. The grandeur, the vast number and the brilliancy of these celestial spheres offers a most enrapturous spectacle to him who loves silently to contemplate the works of nature.

The appearance of the stars alone, supposing we had no knowledge of their nature and design, would be sufficient to fill the soul with joy and with admiration, for where can we see an object so striking and magnificent as the expanse of ether, resplendent with the varied luminaries, which, in their several degrees of magnitude and brightness, traverse the heaven in cloudless majesty? But can we suppose that an infinitely wise Being has adorned the celestial canopy with these sublime objects merely as a beautiful spectacle or picture? Would he have formed those suns, around whose center other worlds revolve, merely that the inhabitants of this earth might have the pleasure of seeing in the firmament a number of luminous objects, of whose nature and destination they know but little, and which are often not to be seen at all?

No one who takes a broad survey of nature, and observes the wonderful harmony and agreement between all her works, and their proposed end, can suffer such an idea to enter his mind. We cannot doubt that God, when he ordained the stars to shine, had a much more exalted view than to procure for us an agreeable sight. Though we cannot precisely determine all the particular ends which they may serve, it will not be difficult to acknowledge that one of their uses is that depicted by the author of the following: "Among those stars which are most easily distinguished, there are some constantly observed in the same part of the heavens, and which we always see immediately over our heads. These are certain guides to those who travel during the obscurity of the night, by sea as well as by land. To the mariner they point his course, and enable him to reach his destination. Other stars vary their aspects, and though they always preserve the same situation with regard to one another, they vary with respect to us. They change the order of their rising and setting, and their variations, which are performed in regular order, are to us of great utility. They serve to measure time and regulate it by fixed laws. The constant and stated revolutions of the stars accurately determine the end and return of the seasons. By these means the laborer knows precisely when to trust his seed to the ground, and in what order to conduct the cultivation of the fields."

But whatever benefit the stars, in this respect, may be to the earth, we ought not to presume that it is the only or the principal end, which God has proposed in the creation of these wonderful and innumerable bodies, most of which are invisible to the naked eye. Is it possible to believe that the wise Creator has filled the immense expanse of ether with millions of worlds and of suns merely that a few individuals of this earth may be enabled to measure time and ascertain the return of seasons?

Doubtless these numerous globes are formed for much nobler purposes, and each one has its particular destination. All these stars being so many suns, with the power of communicating light, heat, and animation, to other spheres, is it probable that God should have endowed them with this power in vain? Would he have created suns which can shoot their rays far as the earth, unless he had created other worlds to enjoy their benign influence? Would God who has peopled this earth with so many living creatures, have fixed in the regions of space so many vast orbs,—deserted and uninhabited,—fruitlessly to roll their courses? Certainly not.

We have every reason to believe that each of the fixed stars which we see over our heads by thousands, one above another, and all around, far as the eye can penetrate, and yet much further, to distances immeasurable by our limited faculties, are suns equally resplendent as that which beams on our horizon.

We may also suppose that these spheres serve as abodes to different orders and species of living beings, all rejoicing in the power, and celebrating the magnificence, of God. Though these are only conjectures, formed from the little we know of the wonders of nature, yet they are conjectures which fill the mind with awe and reverence, open to it a vast and boundless field of thought, enlarge our contracted and partial notions, and tend to soften the hearts and ameliorate the soul. With David we are led to exclaim, "What is man that thou art mindful of him?"

THE AGE GOSPEL.

BY JAS. Y. HECKLER.

THERE is always more than one side to a question, and things are seen differently from different stand-points. If, therefore, we take a different stand on this subject, we do not do so for controversy. Admitting that there will be much redeeming love shown, and much of the work of redemption to be accomplished in the ages yet to come, we do not admit, however, that "the everlasting Gospel," or the "age Gospel," mentioned in Rev. 14:6, has reference to any age beyond the present dispensation. The translators of king James' version were justifiable in rendering it "the everlasting Gospel," because the principles of this Gospel, "good will to men, and on earth, peace," are as enduring as the throne of God, and, therefore, everlasting.

Knowing that we are far down the stream of time in this Gospel dispensation, let us not look at the things in the Revelation as if they were all in the future, but let us remember that much of it has been fulfilled, for in the commencement of this book we read that they are "things which must shortly come to pass." If, therefore, eighteen hundred years ago they were "things which must shortly come to pass," there certainly must be much of it fulfilled by this time.

The greatest difficulty in understanding these things is because we have so little knowledge, and do not know what has transpired in times past, and what the various scenes in the Apocalypse, and the metaphors in writing it, are intended to represent. The sixth and part of seventh verse referred to, reads, "And I saw another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting Gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people, saying with a loud voice, Fear God, and give glory to him; for the hour of his judgment is come." The hour of his judgment is here; for if judgment commenced at the house of God in the apostles' time, the end of it is not yet. Every faithful minister declares judgment against the sinner, and every sinner who is aroused from the stupor of sin and death, sees the awful frown of judgment impending. There is, of course, a judgment to come in a future dispensation, which we will leave to the future. The Gospel of Jesus Christ is the Gospel of the ages. There may be changes in it in the ages and dispensations yet to come, but the principles of it are "everlasting."

The words in the text, "And I saw another angel fly in the midst of heaven," intimate that the Revelator, in his vision, had seen an angel fly in the midst of heaven at some time before he saw this one, and by referring to Rev. 8:13 we find that it was so. These two angels flying in the midst of heaven, so far apart, denote two different periods of time. Both periods mark important events in history, and embrace an intervening space of twelve hundred years. I understand that the time represented by the first angel flying in the midst of heaven crying, "Woe, woe, woe, to the inhabiters of the earth," to have been in the beginning of the fourth century, when the Christian religion was established by law (A. D. 324), when the clergy were granted large revenues, and much power; when swarms of monks and hermits already existed in the church; when costly edifices were erected, and when heathen temples were converted into houses of worship, attended with pompous ceremonies. Much could be said of the corruption in the church at that time already, which indicated woe to the inhabitants of the earth, but we will proceed with our text. Those two angels, flying in the midst of heaven, represent spirits, for "he maketh his angels spirits, and his ministers a flame of fire." The second angel or spirit, mentioned in Rev. 14:6, desiring to proclaim the everlasting Gospel to those who dwell on the earth, created a thirst and a desire among the people to read the Gospel and to have it read in their own tongue. All scholars know that when Luther commenced the agitation of a reformation in the sixteenth century, the state of religion was in a deplorable condition.

It is a pity that so many of our brethren, and even ministers, do not know how exceedingly low and corrupt the state of religion was before the time of Luther. There had been several burning and shining lights before him, such as Wickliff, Huss and others, and they were as the throes of a great birth. Luther was, in the commencement of a great work, much greater than many people are aware of. The printing press, which had been invented some time before, he brought into good use, and gave the people the Bible in their own tongue. It was the commencement of a great work, which the Revelator had a glimpse of in his vision by the angel flying in the midst of heaven, taking out the Gospel, of sending the Bible to every nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people. So great was the demand for the Bible in Luther's time, and from there on, that 1,326 editions of it were published in the sixteenth century. In the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries the work went on, and in this nineteenth century the English and American Societies have printed, of the Protestant version, 124 million of copies.

Before Luther's time the people were dependent on the clergy who dished out a little Latin for them in their ministrations, which the common people did not understand. The Bible then in use was Vulgate,—the same Latin Bible,—which is still in use in the Catholic church, and which the uneducated people could not read. Education was very much neglected, and very few people then could read at all, but when Luther gave them the Bible in the German tongue, many of those who could not read, acquired that knowledge. The Catholic church now has translations of the Bible in other languages, all taken from Vulgate. Much could be said of the spread of the Gospel since the Reformation, but this may suffice for the present.

Harleysville, Pa,

THE RICHES OF POVERTY.

BY C. H. BALSBAUGH.

Beloved Fellow-sufferer.—

ARE you not in danger of erring from the faith because of your uneasiness under the pressure of poverty and invalidism and human desertion and treachery? Poverty in the spirit is better than gold in the pocket. The sense of wealth invariably accompanies the realization of 1 John 1: 3. The Father in Heaven has no paupers. "All the fulness of God in the heir of all things," is also the blessed present joy of the joint heirs. Col. 1: 19; and 2: 8; Heb. 1: 2; Rom. 8: 17. This fact fully established by faith, the "faith which worketh by love," we move naturally and easily in the upper-world paradox of Rom. 8: 18, 2 Cor. 4: 17. The credit of faith is the fulfillment of all that is signified by the supreme Bible Word, EMMANUEL. To make God a liar by our doubts is to curtail our privileges, kill our joy, darken our hope, and jeopardize our eternal security. If all the world are your friends, and the smiles of millions bathe you like a perpetual sunshine, and all the Astors and Stewarts and Vanderbilts and Rothschilds lap you in their luxuries, it would not equal one blink from the loving face of the Godman, even if all "your lovers and friends stand aloof from your sore, and all your kinsmen stand afar off." Psalms 38: 11.

Your case is pitiable indeed, when viewed apart from the Incarnation and the Cross. Many know from terrible experience how it rends and calcines the heart when trusted ones grow cold and distant, and when soul after soul folds up its sympathies into the inner cell of self, leaving one to shiver and moan and weep in the valley of Achor. All this must be counterbalanced, and is meant to be by the "joy unspeakable and full of glory" which is nature to genuine, unalloyed faith. Take that eighth verse of the first chapter of the first epistle of Peter, and eat it as the sweetest morsel in the pantry of Grace so that on every door that is shut to your welcome you may write in Heaven's golden letters the great miracle of Matt. 5: 44. Is this impossible? So many say, even professed disciples of Christ, and so my own naughty heart of self-love has often said; but Christ said it and lived it, and so can we if he has been fashioned in us, "the brightness of the Father's glory," and the assured hope of Eternal Life. Let not discontent gain a foothold in you. The innumerable brood of hell soon follow when the heart begins to pine for altered conditions and circumstances to substitute "the peace which passeth all understanding." When health fails and the purse gets empty, and doors close against us, and church and world turn the back, faith finds an immense compensation in the "I KNOW" of 2 Tim. 1: 12. Do not allow yourself to become bitter and contracted, but pray and wrestle for the largeness and grandeur and upper worldishness of 2 Cor. 12: 15. These are all impossibilities, I admit, save to the faith that makes man a very God. Gal. 2: 20. We cannot tell who are the sisters, and brethren, and mothers of Jesus till they are tested by the wood and nails of Golgotha. O what masks are there torn off! What rattling skeletons of moral death are there exhibited! Who has not been put to shame there? Sink down, dear fellow-sufferer, into "the likeness of his crucifixion," and let God be all and in all, and you will know what is meant by John 11: 40. Jesus waits to superabound to you; but your faith is His only chance of making you a sharer in His riches of Grace. Many of God's children shun and snub you because attention to your wants means self-crucifixion. O let them see that their neglect only enhances to your soul the great salvation which can sing Alleluia in the midst of the great shaking of Heb. 12: 27. Turn to Psalms 46: 1–4, and see the calmness and confidence of faith in the most terrible destruction of all earthly supports. You are in the sevenfold heated furnace, and I ditto, and so let us shake hands over and in John 12: 25, and 14: 19, and Eph. 2: 7. "If so be that we suffer with Him, that we may be also glorified together." Rom. 8: 17. O, how the redeemed will laugh forever over the glorious reality of Rom. 8: 18. "Not worthy to be compared" will be the psalm of their souls through all Eternity.

THAT BURMESE LETTER.

BY SARAH M. SAUNDERS.

IN No. 19 of the MESSENGER is published a letter from Dr. Judson, a missionary in Burmah, which I think is the most direct and pointed appeal to the consciences of the women of America, professing godliness, that I have ever read. Taking into consideration the fact that our native country has sent so many missionaries across the briny deep, and among them eminent women I might name, to preach the glad tidings of salvation to the heathen world, what a humiliating thought that any man or woman should so far forget their calling, their responsibility before God, as to appear before those people arrayed in "gold, pearls and costly array," and expect the blessing of God on their work!

It is unreasonable and absurd to expect to convert the heathen to Christianity while the missionaries and the churches they represent are themselves living in open rebellion or disregard to the mandates of the Gospel they profess to preach. Not only does this inherent love of "dress and display" on the part of the female portion of the human family cripple our influence for good in India, but its injurious effects are plainly visible in our own country.

Not long since I was permitted to associate with some of the noted Christian (?) women of Indianopolis, and I was forced to the unwelcome conclusion that their alms-deeds would go down deeper and expand farther, if they would just use the money that is spent for silks, satins, pearls and gold or diamond ornaments, to feed and clothe some poor motherless children, especially girls. The sum realized from the sale of their useless and God-forbidden ornaments would have provided whole families with food and raiment for a year. What a stigma on the Christianity of this day and age is this love of dress, this vieing with each other in vanity and display! Every sister should read and re-read Dr. Judson's appeal to the Christian women of America, and "examine herself" to see if she is in the faith and practice of the Gospel.

A REVIEW.

BY ENOCH EBY.

I AM so forcibly and favorably impressed with the timely article in GOSPEL MESSENGER, page 291, current volume, that I feel to call special attention to it. It is not only good for those who go to Annual Meeting, but for those who remain at home, whose prayers should follow, and be felt like good news, on the electric wire,—especially that wisdom from above might be given to the delegates who are the judiciary power of our Conference.

Bro. Hays tells us what to leave at home, to which I say, Amen,—especially when applied to delegates. No one should go as a delegate, especially on the Standing Committee, who is not at peace with the church at home or who may in any way be under censure by the church.

Furthermore, we are strongly of the opinion that if the instructions and spirit of that article were strictly adhered to, which, we think, it should be, there would be no necessity of the article in the same number, page 299, under the caption, "Virginia Immigration." Being on the Annual Meeting ground last year after the multitude were all gone, and seeing the mass of papers, of a secular character, strewed all over the holy place, so sacredly consecrated a few hours before to holy things, and where the most important work that God has committed into the hands of mortal man, was being engaged in, the impropriety of making our Annual Meeting a medium through which to advertise almost any and every enterprise, and to encourage a worldly and speculative spirit, was very seriously impressed on my mind. Is it not possible, yea probable, that we may lose sight of the sacredness of our Conference too much, by admitting the money-changers, and seats to them who sell?

I have confidence, however, in the Committee of Arrangements of the coming Annual Meeting that they will take the matter under advisement and carefully guard against all improprieties, for the less such we have, the more we may expect the blessings of God to attend our work.

While I may be the only one whose pen speaks, I am sure I am not alone in my views on this point.

May God bless our dear Brotherhood and its coming Conference, is my fervent prayer in Jesus' name.

GLORY OF THE FUTURE.

"THE Christian's future—how bright! Hope bends its rainbow all over it. Joy shimmers through all its air. Love perfumes all its breezes. Peace sheds its balm everywhere. There is his inalienable inheritance — his patrimonial estate. There are his friends, his companions, his Savior, his Father. Rewards, rich and glorious, for the toils and sorrows of life are there. Heaven and home are there; for heaven is home, and home is heaven. The great future is full of grand discoveries to be made, of delightful surprises to be met, of ineffable blessings to be enjoyed, of high possibilities to be realized. Death opens the gate to all this magnificence of glory."

"LABOR disgraces no man, while man disgraces labor."

LIVES OF THE CÆSARS.

BY W. H. ROOSE.

Number Two.- Julius Cæsar.

HISTORIANS tell us that this emperor was the most wonderful man that we have any record of. His rule began about forty-five years before Christ, and continued but three years. His bravery was great, so much so that, added to his skill, he conquered almost all that part of the world that was known to him.

Notwithstanding his bravery he possessed many faults. His only dreams were of greatness, he wished to be a great man, yet the poor man had not the correct idea of true greatness. Christ said, "If any wish to be chief or greatest, let him be the servant." Christ was truly great yet he served at the feast of Cana and before the supper at which he was betrayed, he plainly taught us that the servant should not think himself greater than his Lord.

Cæsar did not manifest the fruits of the spirit, as he did not care to make those around him happy, but only thought of himself. He became such a tyrant that no one dared to stand in his way; he did not even care to save those who had been the kindest to him, and had aided him in gaining the position he did. He delighted to be found on the field of blood, and often led his men into the greatest dangers that they might destroy thousands of people, merely for his own gratification. All this suffering he caused in order to become famous in the minds of men and be talked of in after generations. This was done before the Prince of Peace was born, so he did not know it was his duty to be humble, peaceable and affectionate. He did not care to make men wiser or better; he had no thought of their welfare or happiness.

Cæsar had a noble talent and it was said of him when he was but a boy that he would become a great man. Sylla, the Roman governor, determined at one time to kill him, as he married a lady who belonged to a faction that opposed Sylla, and he was afraid he would be ruler before long. It appears that men at that time would do anything to get into office or to retain it when once they got it, and it is a weakness or fault that is inherited by many of the present day also. To know whether office-seekers would kill their opponents or rivals or not, we would need only to remove the restraining influence of the law. One thing we do know, they seek to ruin and trample under foot that which is dear to every honest man,—character.

Sylla could find nothing against Cæsar that was deserving of death, and, in order to accomplish his desire to remove him, tried to get a quarrel with Cæsar by asking him to put away his wife. Now this very unjust demand was justly denied because Cæsar loved his wife dearly.

Cæsar, finding himself in a dangerous position, he left his wife, Cornelia, and home, and alone he wandered about for several years without home or friends. He was a man of great courage and endurance; he never gave up in despair. These characteristics were clearly seen in his experiences with the sea pirates who had captured him and taken him away on one of their ships. These pirates were heartless men and thought nothing of killing their captives. Sometimes they would save them, provided a nice sum of money was given as a ransom. Now Cæsar knew the murderous nature of pirates and he had no assurance that his life would be given him another day or hour. He would have fully realized his expectations had they known who he was, but thinking him but a Roman, and that of but little consequence, they said if he would pay them fifty talents they would liberate him. This would make about eighty thousand dollars in our money. Cæsar had many friends, and some of them who lived at Miletus sent the required amount. It required considerable time to send the money, and Cæsar was compelled to remain with these wicked men all that time. He was not afraid of them, though he listened to their daily recital of horrid deeds they had committed. There was one deed, of which they told Cæsar, that was particularly shocking in consequence of his being an aspirant to the throne of Rome. They seized a very wealthy man near Rome and took him away out to sea, which caused him to become very angry and much frightened. He did not know the men with whom he had to deal, and thought that, perhaps, if he informed them that he was really a Roman and gave his name they would return him, but this caused much merriment among them. They mocked him by bowing to him and begged his pardon, for conferring such indignities upon him. They thought it too bad they had captured such a good man, and to show their make-believe penitence they went and secured a splendid robe for him, aided him in getting on his shoes and dressed him in a most magnificent manner. We can only imagine what was in the poor Roman's mind; but he found out to his sorrow the cruel joke they were playing upon him. The pirates proceeded to attach a ladder to the outside of the ship, the lower end of which extended far below the top of the water. They told him that they couldn't for the world keep such a great man in their ship, and desired him to walk out of their ship upon the ladder. Though their company was not congenial, the poor man undoubtedly preferred it to the fate before him, but his pleadings were in vain. His entreaties were answered by the cruel pirates ceremoniously handing him to the ladder, forcing him to descend into the sea step by step. When the water reached his knees he begged permission to return to the ship, but was told to go another step, this step taking him to the waist. He thought because they were laughing they were only joking, but he was forced to go deeper and deeper until he was drowned.

The apostle Paul had some experience with these "sea robbers," yet, like all the rest of the persecutions, he endured them all. His fate was not sealed by their hands, but he came out more then conqueror.

TRINE IMMERSION.

BY A. W. REESE.

Part Two.—The Design of Baptism.

"Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." Matt. 28: 19

BAPTISM is a test of faith. Man wants his own way: his self-will is strong. He is wonderfully persistent in this.

God says, "My ways are not your ways, and my thoughts are not your thoughts." As the Creator of man and the Bestower of eternal life, God has the absolute right to dictate his own terms. Man does not like this. His natural pride rebels against it. His lofty spirit and high ambition soar above the simplicity of God's methods. Therefore, when God commands a certain thing man wants to do something else,—like Naaman of old, he wants to do "some great thing," something wherein he may divide the honors with God. How simple the command to the great captain of the Syrian armies, "Go wash in Jordan seven times, and thy flesh shall come again to thee, and thou shalt be clean"! How great the reward of obedience to the prophet's word! and yet the haughty spirit of this renowned warrior spurned the simple remedy offered by God; and, man-like, how ready the suggestion, "Are not Arbana and Pharpar, rivers of Damascus, better than all these waters of the Jordan, may I not wash in them and be clean?" No, Naaman! If you will not accept God's way, if you will not obey the voice of his prophet, down to the minutest detail, you can not be made clean! You may dip yourself four, five, six times in the sacred Jordan, and yet, if you fail in the seventh, the foul, loathsome, putrid leprosy, incurable by man since creation's dawn, will cling to your festering flesh till your decaying frame shall rot and drop into its merciful grave!

So God has appointed the washing of baptism to cleanse the foul blot on the human soul—the leprosy of sin—incurable by human skill, a like figure wherein baptism doth now save us, in a wider and more spiritual sense.

God does not command you or me now to be dipped, as Naaman of old, seven times in the waters of the river Jordan, but he does command all men everywhere, "all nations" to be dipped three times in the holy waters of baptism—once into each name of the sacred "Three in One," "baptizing them (all nations) in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." It is the same test of faith applied to us with the reward of obedience as to the Syrian captain of old.

Will we obey God rather than man? Will we wash and be clean? Will we yield to God's plan, or will we seek out some easier and more convenient plan framed by the hands of men? Such is the solemn problem set before us. Saul, king of Israel, was ordered by the Lord to march against Amalek as the instrument of God's vengeance upon that wicked race. Speaking through Samuel, his prophet, the orders to Saul were to wage a war of extermination, to utterly destroy everything from the face of the earth—man, woman, child, sheep, cattle, camels and asses,—and to make the land of Amalek a desert. Nothing was to escape the avenging sword of God in the hand of Saul. But Saul was king of Israel, commander-in-chief of its mighty armies of valiant and heroic men. Saul was elated with the pride of place and power.

He entered upon the campaign with all the pomp and glitter of a conquering chieftain, at the head of his vast columns, two hundred and ten thousand strong. He moved through the doomed country with impressive martial display, and like an iron whirlwind his troops swept the soil of Amalek beneath their feet. A broad line of desolation marked his remorseless pathway; smoking houses, ruined fields, ravaged homes, dismantled walls, and blackened, tottering pillars of heathen temples, mangled carcasses and the unburied bodies of the slain, given to the merciless torch and the avenging sword. But Saul, the conquering hero of the victorious campaign, flushed with the pride of a conquest which was to add fresh laurels to his kingly brow, in an evil hour was tempted to modify the command of God. Was he not, in the eyes of that mighty host, the great leader on whose conquering banners victory had perched and who had led him on to imperishable renown? Certainly, then, the figure of King Saul should loom up prominently in this grand picture before the eyes of all Israel and her mighty hosts!

So, then, Agag, the Amalekite king was made a prisoner of war to grace the returning triumph of Saul. So, also, the fairest and best of the kine and the sheep were reserved. And thus it was that Saul "obeyed the voice of the Lord." But, as the victorious king, with his returning legions, rich with the spoils of war, approached the confines of Israel, he was met by the venerable prophet of God. Saul, confident of Samuel's approval, meets him joyfully and exclaims, "I have performed the commandment of the Lord!" "But, what then," said the white-haired prophet, "meaneth this bleating of the sheep in mine ears, and the lowing of the oxen which I hear?" "O! these," said Saul, "are the best of the sheep and the oxen that the people saved to sacrifice to the Lord in Gilgal."

Surely this would appear to be a worthy purpose—a laudable thing! This should have an appearance of honoring the Lord, the Creator of all things and the Ruler of heaven and earth! It would seem an act of piety and devotion in Saul and, to all human view, a most commendable thing, but mark how it looked in the eyes of God, and note the prophet's withering reply,—"Hath the Lord as great delight in burnt offering and sacrifices as in obeying the voice of the Lord? Behold, to obey is better than sacrifice, and to hearken, than the fat of rams."

Thus Saul fell under the condemnation of God for his disobedience to his command, and the crown of Israel was taken from his head. "But," says one, "what has all this about Saul to do with baptism or its design; I see no analogy here!" We answer, Much. Baptism is a command of God! I was about to say an emphatic command, but there is no difference in the commands of God; all are emphatic,—one is of as much importance as another. Baptism is, therefore, like all the rest of the commandments of God, a test of faith! The man who sets but little store by baptism, has but little faith. He who rejects it altogether, has no faith at all! It is idle to claim that he has; it is an empty boast, vain as that of Saul,

"False as the smooth, deceitful sea,
And empty as the whistling wind."

Man's estimate of the importance of a solemn rite is not always God's estimate of the value of that rite. Saul was influenced by "the people" to disregard the strict command of the Lord, but, at last, the responsibility and the dreadful judgment of God fell on him. So it will be with us in the last, great day if we hearken unto men rather than to God.

Obedience to God's Word is the supreme test of faith: "For rebellion is as the sin of witchcraft, and stubbornness is as iniquity and idolatry;" the latter especially hateful to God and most fearfully denounced in his Word.

2. The design of baptism is declared to be "the answer of a good conscience towards God." 1 Pet. 3: 21. "Baptism is, then, a matter of conscience," says one, "and therefore whatever man's conscience may approve, is baptism to him, and is all right in the sight of God." "On this point all sects can agree, and, therefore, all controversy ends."

Let us examine this for a brief space. Let us see if we can agree on terms. What is conscience? The word is derived from the Latin verb conscio, "to know." In a broad sense it implies self-knowledge, but, more especially, as to the affections and desires, and is that faculty or power of the mind which decides whether these are pure or impure, lawful or unlawful. But it is a mooted question in Mental Philosophy, whether this peculiar faculty of the mind is an innate principle or a thing of education. On either supposition conscience may or may not be the rule of conduct in life. Saul of Tarsus was just as conscientious when he was on his way to Damascus "breathing out threatenings and slaughter" against the Nazarene sect, as he was in after years when he stood in the presence of Pagan kings, an apostle of Jesus Christ, and "reasoned of righteousness, temperance, and judgment to come." But the language of Scripture is significant in this: "Baptism is the answer of a good conscience toward God." In order that this state of things should obtain, the mind, or conscience must first be enlightened by the Word of God; then, and then only can its exercise be acceptable to God. "A good conscience towards God," can not rest short of implicit confidence and trust in God and in his Word of grace. Such a conscience must believe what God says, and the proof of that belief is and can be nothing short of complete obedience to that word.

Sincerity alone can not be any decisive proof of a good conscience, per se, to leave God out of the question entirely, nor is it any proof of correct views of theology wherein his existence and power are admitted. The Pagan is as sincere and zealous when he bows down to stocks and stones as the most devout Christian that ever lived. The Mohammedan believes just as certainly that God is God and Mohammed is his prophet, as we believe that Jesus of Nazareth is the Son of God.

Look but a moment at the horrible cruelties practiced, in the name of Jesus, under the impulses of a fanatical conscience, the shameful and diabolical, Christian (?) wars that have deluged the earth with innocent blood, a disgrace to the very name of man. Thus we see that conscience, divorced from the Word of God, is a very unsafe guide, and its dictates unreliable as a rule of conduct in life. So we see the position is not tenable that whatever the conscience may approve is necessarily right in the sight of God.

THE WAY OF LIFE.

BY A. HUTCHISON.

"There is a way that seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death."—Prov. 16: 25.

THERE is a good deal more in the above expression, than we at first might suppose. It seems to be a pretty generally accepted idea, that, if we do what our consciousness approves of, the question of right is then settled, but when we apply the divine rule, or the square and plummet of God's Word, we will soon discover that we need something more than our conscience. Solomon says, "The way of a fool is right in his own eyes, but he that hearkeneth unto counsel is wise." Prov. 12: 15.

Here you will notice that even the fool has a sense of right, and measures his actions or words by his own eyes, or, in other words, he is measuring himself by some one who has set up a higher standard than he has, and he compares the good traits of himself with the bad ones of his neighbor. By this kind of comparison he soon begins to think he is a pretty clever sort of a fellow, and this is not to be wondered at, when we consider how much man is disposed to screen himself,—even if he must do so by condemning somebody else. It is even possible for a man to work himself up to the point of which the wise man speaks when he says, "All the ways of man are clean in his own eyes." Prov. 16: 2.

Man is disposed to listen to almost any one else, sooner than to the Word of the Lord. People are now a good deal like the people of whom the prophet Jeremiah speaks. He says of them, "Behold, ye trust in lying words, that can not profit." Jer. 7: 8. And it seems that they would not trust in these lying words, unless there was a sense in which they seemed right to them, notwithstanding the end thereof is death. It is now very common to hear people say, "If the heart is is right, all is right," and, suppose there are none who would for a moment, call in question the correctness of the expression. But we must have some kind of a standard by which to determine when the heart is right. We have heard persons say, "they wanted no other evidence of their acceptance with God, than their own heart." They say they know by their feelings. They even go so far as to say, they need no Bible to teach them, that they are the children of God. Surely, it seemed that way to them, and therefore seemed right. Here you will notice that such persons, (and their name is legion) trust altogether to their own heart. Doubtless they think their way is right. We will again call upon Solomon, and he says, "He that trusteth in his own heart is a fool." Prov. 28: 26.

Persons come up sometimes and say, "Surely I can trust my own heart." Then they will begin to ask questions like the following, "Do you think it is safe for us to follow the dictates of our conscience?" "Is it safe to join the same church to which our parents belonged?" A great many questions of a similar nature are often asked. As to our conscience being safe, it is very important that we determine by what standard we are going to try it. Every person ought to know, that our conscience (or heart) only approves of what we do, when the thing done comes up to the standard which we have set up. If our father or mother was the standard set up, then we will feel easy when we have had our names enrolled on the church book, where our parents held their membership.

While it may be very pleasant to be associated with our ancestors in church fellowship, yet we want a more satisfactory evidence than that. We all feel good when we can realize that we have performed that of which our hearts approve. Thus the Savior says to the disciples, "If ye know these things happy are ye if ye do them." John 13: 17. When we set up Jesus and his Word as the standard, then our heart approves only as we do those things which he has given us to do while here. Then our way does not only seem to be right, but we KNOW. Hear what the apostle says about it, "And hereby we do know that we know him, if we keep his commandments." 1 John 2: 3. The beloved apostle does not say that we think we are right,—that our heart or conscience approves, or that this way seemeth to be right, but he says, we KNOW. Know what? We know that we know God.

Well, may we not know him otherwise? Again we quote from the same apostle. He says, "He that saith, I know him, and keepeth not his commandments, is a liar and the truth is not in him." 1 John 2: 4.

We cannot afford to travel in the dark over this perilous road. There are so many things placed in the pathway of the Christian that he needs to be much with Jesus, look often at his bloody sweat, and view him as he prays. Let us all listen to what he is saying and then ask ourselves the question, "Am I a Christian?" "Do I know that I am his and he is mine?" "Or am I only following the way that seemeth right?" May we not finally have to say, "The harvest is past and the summer is ended and I am not saved?"

"HE who does not trust God with the little things, cannot trust him with the big things. He who does not trust God for time, will hardly trust him for eternity. The faith that does not conquer life will not conquer death."

"WE cannot be saved without denying self. The Lord Jesus could not have saved us without denying himself. No pardon save through the blood of the cross; no progress in holiness, save by the power of the Holy Ghost."

"WE should sometimes be ashamed of our best actions if the world did but know all the motives which prompted them."

☞Communications for publication should be legibly written with BLACK ink on ONE side of the paper only. Do not attempt to interline, or to put on one page what ought to occupy two.

☞Anonymous communications will not be published.

☞Do not mix business with articles for publication. Keep your communications on separate sheets from all business.

☞Time is precious. We always have time to attend to business and to answer questions of importance, but please do not subject us to needless answering of letters.

☞The MESSENGER is mailed each week to all subscribers. If the address is correctly entered on our list, the paper must reach the person to whom it is addressed. If you do not get your paper, write us, giving particulars.

☞When changing your address, please give your FORMER as well as your FUTURE address in full, so as to avoid delay and misunderstanding.

☞Remittances should be made by Post-office Money Order, Drafts on New York or Chicago, or Registered Letters, made payable and addressed to "Brethren's Publishing Co., Mount Morris, Ill.," or "Brethren's Publishing Co., Huntingdon, Pa."

☞Always remit to the office from which you order your goods, no matter from where you receive them.

☞Do not send personal checks or drafts on interior banks, unless you send with them 25 cents each, to pay for collection.

$1,00 pays for the GOSPEL MESSENGER from May 1 to the end of 1889. Show this to your neighbors and ask them to subscribe.

BRO. SHARP reports two more as having accepted Christ, making six to be baptized at this time.

BRO. A. W. VANIMAN is now serving in the capacity of business manager at McPherson College.

BRO. M. M. ESHELMAN at last report was at Panora, Iowa, working in the interest of the McPherson school.

WE expect to publish next week the decision of the Western and Central Passenger Associations, in regard to the issue of tickets to the Annual Meeting.

BRO. L. E. BUZAN, of Zero, Lucas Co., Iowa, wishes our ministering brethren to call upon them and preach for them. They live away from the church and are hungry for preaching.

REPORTS from Kansas, Colorado, and the Pan Handle of Texas, say that there has been an abundance of rain in these sections, and that the prospects for an abundant crop were never better.

BRO. JACOB WITMORE will stop at Progress, Colorado, on his way home from California, and hold a few meetings at that place, and will not reach home until about June 1.

MR. G. L. MCDONAUGH informs us that he had the misfortune to lose a memorandum book containing the names of a number of ministers among the Brethren in North-eastern and Southern Kansas, to whom he had agreed to send requests for half fare permits. Those who had applied for such permits, will please write him at 116 North 4th Street, St. Louis, Mo.

BRO. JAMES R. GISH stopped on his way home from Arkansas and preached six sermons for the members at La Forge, Mo. They were all very much refreshed by Bro. Gish's visit, so reports Bro. Ira P. Eby.

IF sister Ella Grafton, who resides in the State of Iowa, will send her address to Gertrude A. Flory, La Porte, La Porte Co., Ind., she will receive something that will throw a beam of light upon her spiritual path.

THE General Missionary and Church Erection Committee will hold a meeting at Harrisonburg during the Annual Meeting week. Those who have business with the Committee will please make a note of this item.

BRO. LEWIS W. TEETER, of Hagerstown, Ind., will represent the Southern District of Indiana on the Standing Committee, at the coming Annual Meeting, and Bro. Samuel Flory, of the Southern District of Iowa, will also be a member of the Standing Committee.

WE are gratified to learn that our aged brother, Eld. Isaac Hershey, of Moscow, I. T. is recovering his health. He says, "I am still improving and hope soon to tell the story of the cross once more. One was received into the church by baptism at this place two weeks ago."

JOHN WANAMAKER, Postmaster General of the United States, has issued an order to the effect that no saloon-keeper shall be allowed to act as postmaster. This is a move in the right direction and, if followed up, will do much toward giving the people a pure and efficient civil service.

BRO. JACOB WITMORE writes under a recent date as follows: "Just closed a series of meetings in East Los Angeles, on the evening of the 5th. Immediate result of the meeting, two baptized—mother and daughter. On the 14th I expect to start towards home. I expect to go into Southeastern Colorado and hold meetings about one week. May God bless the effort!"

ON Sunday, the 12th inst., six were received into the church by baptism, at the Silver Creek church, with two applicants for baptism in the near future. Of this number, six persons were young men who are in attendance at the school at this place. Others are deeply impressed with the necessity of giving their hearts to God. May they decide in favor of the right before it is too late!

THE American Humane Society offered a prize for the best essay upon "The Effect of Education in Suppressing Crime." Competition was open to all American colleges. The committee awarded the prize to Mr. Ralph W. Trine, of our town, a former student of the school at this place; at present of Knox College, Illinois. We congratulate Mr. Trine on his success in literary work.

WE are informed that some of our brethren in Ohio are in correspondence with our Railroad Agent, Mr. George L. McDonaugh, in regard to making arrangements for a trip to California, and that he has consented to take the matter in hand and see if a party of Brethren in different States can be organized to make the trip in the latter part of June. He will be at the Annual Meeting and will be able to give full particulars as to cost of the trip, etc. A part of the programme will be to stop a day or two at McPherson, Kans., at the college and then resume the journey. Eld. Henry Frantz, of Ohio, wife and daughter, are to be of the number.

IN the town of Pullman, Ill., where the great Pullman car manufactory is located, the sale of intoxicants is strictly prohibited, and yet it is said that the Pullman Sleeping Car Company took out 1600 licenses in one week to sell liquor on as many Pullman cars. If the Company believe prohibition is a good thing for the town where they live, why not give the same protection to the travelling public, or is this but another instance of selfishness which would protect its own interest and let everybody else look out for himself?

THE Chicago and North-western R. R. have taken all Sunday trains off the Dakota division of their road, 800 miles. We do not know whether this is the result of the agitation of the Sunday question or not, but we believe it would be a good move if all the railroads would stop running trains on Sunday and give the men who are engaged in such work a day for rest and worship. The violation of Sunday laws has become so common in this country, and the evils growing out of it have become so apparent that many of our best-thinking men and women are earnestly engaged in an endeavor to have all business and traffic, except in cases of necessity and in acts of mercy, stopped on the Lord's Day, and we wish them God speed in the good work.

DR. BROOKS says, "If we could sweep intemperance out of the country, there would hardly be poverty enough to give healthy exercise to the charitable impulses." How true! If the money spent for intoxicants in this country were put into the United States Treasury for three years and then distributed among those who are unable to buy homes, each family might receive $2000.00 and millions would be left. Thus in three years poverty and pauperism could be swept from America and everybody would be happier and better than they now are. How blind men are to their best interests! If they would do that which would be best for them in this world and the next, every brewery, every distillery and whisky shop in the country would be closed to-day.

ANNUAL MEETING NOTES.

—TWO more issues of the MESSENGER after this will bring us to our next Annual Meeting. During the week of the meeting we will not send out an issue of the MESSENGER, but our readers will not lose a number of the paper as we shall issue fifty numbers as heretofore.

—THE indications are that a great many of our brethren and sisters from the West will attend the Meeting. We hear of a great many who are arranging to go, and they will avail themselves of the opportunity to visit their old homes in Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia.

—AT our last Annual Meeting, a committee appointed by the Conference made the following recommendation to the Meeting which was unanimously adopted: "We, your committee, after carefully reading the papers submitted to us by Standing Committee, beg leave to make the following report: However much we may be in favor of avoiding feeding a mixed multitude on Sunday, we are met on every side by the impracticability of such a course, as our Annual Meeting is often held where there are but few brethren; hence, we decide to make no general change, but advise Committee of Arrangements, where such Meetings are held, to dispense with the traffic of everything on Sunday, except what is really necessary, and that all cooking be done on Saturday, to avoid as much labor as possible on Sunday." We think this is a move in the right direction.

—The Conference will be an important one as several questions of grave interest to our Brotherhood will come up for discussion, and we indulge in the hope that they may be so disposed of that God's approval and blessing may follow. Let us, dear brethren and sisters, be engaged in prayer to God Almighty that the Meeting may be guided by the Divine Spirit and then all things will be well done. Notice particularly what Bro. Enoch Eby says in his review this week about using our Annual Meeting grounds for advertising purposes. We are, and we believe our brethren generally are, in accord with the sentiments expressed by Bro. Eby. Two years ago we called attention to this tendency in the MESSENGER in these words: "We hope that our brethren will guard well our Annual Meeting from any influence that might detract from its sacredness, or in any way bring reproach upon the church. The sacredness of these great reunions of our Brotherhood should not be marred by the world of traffic."

—WE have noticed a tendency on the part of some at our Conferences to speak on questions when the delegates are anxious to vote, and when it is apparent to the most casual observer that the sentiment of the Meeting is clearly in favor of the question. To make a speech under such circumstances, urging the delegates to vote in favor of the question, is simply to take up the time of the Meeting to no purpose whatever, unless it be to gratify the desire of the speaker to be heard. It seems to us that in this respect an improvement might be made to the advantage of the Meeting. If the Meeting is unanimously in favor of passing a question, why should time be taken to make a speech urging them to do what they are anxious to do? Or if it is apparent that the Meeting is unanimously against a question, why should it be detained in listening to speeches urging its rejection? We believe in full and fair investigation but certainly the course above indicated is not in the direction of investigation but is taking up time to no purpose whatever.

—IN the report of our Annual Meeting errors frequently occur. Sometimes the name of a brother is attached to a speech that he did not make. This is the result of a little confusion which occurs occasionally by speakers arising and commencing to talk without addressing the Moderator and waiting to be recognized by him. Our brethren do not intend to be discourteous in this respect, but if they would follow the common and most excellent rule adopted by all deliberative bodies, never to commence talking until they are recognized by the Moderator and their names plainly announced, the errors would not be found in the report. Again, by a violation of this rule, the Meeting is sometimes thrown into a temporary confusion by several attempting to speak at the same time, and that, too, without recognition from the Moderator. We believe it would be well for every brother who speaks at Annual Meeting to make a rule unto himself that he will not commence speaking without first addressing and being recognized by the Moderator. If this were done, but little confusion would result and it would greatly help the Moderator in the discharge of his onerous duties.

DISTRICT MEETING OF NORTHERN ILLINOIS.

OUR District Meeting for 1889 was held in the Lanark church on the 14th, and was very largely attended. The house was not large enough to hold the members who came to the Meeting. Our old brother, Eld. Samuel Murray, of River, Ind., now in his eighty-third year, was present. Elder Jesse Calvert, of Warsaw, Ind., also attended the Meeting. Bro. Murray addressed the Meeting for a few minutes. He said that looking back over seventy years he remembered when our Annual Conference was held in private houses, and that not nearly so many members came together as are in attendance at this District Meeting. He rejoiced that the church had grown so large, and he admonished all to be faithful in the work of the Lord.

Twenty-one congregations were represented by delegates and letter.

The Meeting was organized by electing D. E Price, Moderator; J. G. Royer, Reading Clerk. Nineteen queries were presented to the Meeting, which were considered in the true spirit of Christian charity. Indeed the Meeting was marked by the absence of any unkind feelings, and in this respect it was what all such meetings should be.

The forenoon session was devoted to the Missionary work of the District and the reports from the various fields were encouraging. This was, perhaps, the most interesting part of the Meeting. During the year two churches were organized, thirty-two were added to the church by baptism, and four reclaimed. Brethren J. G. Royer, Daniel Dierdorff and D. E. Price spoke of the Chicago Mission and its needs. It was shown that the work there is on a permanent basis and that the outlook for the future is very good. A request was made to purchase or build a house in the City suitable for worship, and the Missionary and Church Erection Committee of Northern Illinois were instructed to make an immediate effort to secure a house for worship in Chicago.

Reports from Wisconsin were made by brethren D. M. Miller and D. E. Price. The work has been most prosperous in this field,—one church having been organized and twenty-eight received by baptism. The outlook for the future is excellent. A call for a meeting-house was referred to the proper Committee.

Bro. C. S. Holsinger reported that there have been no accessions in the Southern Mission Field but that the church is in peace and union.

Brethren Zollers, Grater, and Miller reported mission work at Sterling, Ill. At this place an excellent opening offers itself. Four have been baptized, one reclaimed, and there are three applicants. A meeting-house is also needed, and this, too, was referred to the Missionary Committee.

Bro. J. C. Lahman, District Treasurer for the General Church Erection and Missionary Fund, reported that he received, during the last year, for general missionary purposes, $506.76, and Bro. C. P. Rowland, Treasurer of the District Mission Board, reported the receipts for the year $488.52, and expenditures $414 24.

An appropriation of $600 was made for the Mission Work for the ensuing year.

The queries were then taken up and disposed of as follows:

No. 1, asking if the District has a right to tax churches, was returned to the church from whence it came, on the ground that there was no case which the query covered.

Nos. 2 and 15 asked whether it is right for our ministers to unite in holding union meetings with ministers of other denominations. Ans.—See Art. 4, 1843, page 203, Classified Minutes.

No. 3 was a question regarding church boundaries, and it was, on motion, sent to Annual Meeting.

No. 4, regarding Sunday-schools, was referred for an answer to Art. 8, Minutes of Annual Meeting of 1886.

No. 5. This paper reported the action of a Committee of elders and the Naperville church, with reference to a circular, purporting to have been sent out by Susie Hadsell, and the District Meeting decided that said action should be published in the GOSPEL MESSENGER.

No. 6 referred to soliciting for the Endowment Fund; it was answered by referring to the decision of Annual Meeting, and with the statement that the soliciting is done by the authority of said Meeting.

No. 7, relating to the illustrations used in the Young Disciple, was returned to the church which sent it to the District Meeting.

No. 8, which referred to photographs and pictures, was disposed of in the same manner as No. 7.

No. 9, asking for a reconsideration of the query which passed last Annual Meeting, with regard to wearing gold, was answered as follows: "The answer signifies that the petition to Annual Meeting was not granted. The Scriptures referred to (1 Tim. 2: 9 and 1 Pet. 3: 3) are sufficiently plain on the point of wearing gold."

No. 10. This query asked that the churches be supplied with hymn-books, and the question of relining hymns was brought in. The answer was, "No objection to supplying churches with hymn-books; brethren to use their judgment as to relining hymns."

No. 11, concerning the Sterling Mission, was referred to the Missionary Committee.

No. 12. Is it right for members to unite with the Grand Circle of White Men? Ans.—No.

No. 13. Has a delegate to District Meeting a right to vote against a query sent by the church he represents to said Meeting? Ans.—No.

No. 14 was a petition to Annual Meeting to change our church name to "Brethren (or German Baptist)." It failed to receive the assent of two-thirds of the delegates and was lost.

No. 16 brought up the question as to where members, owning property in different congregations, should pay their proportion for church expenses. Ans.—In the church in which they live.

No. 17, in regard to dehorning cattle, was sent back to the church where it originated.

No. 18, asked for information in regard to ministers signing applications for half fare permits on the railroads, and the answer says that, when necessary, a letter of explanation be sent to the General Passenger Agents.

No. 19 proposed to have the Minutes of District Meeting read at the close of the Meeting, but it was decided to make no change.

Brethren Daniel Dierdorff and Geo. D. Zollers were chosen to represent the District on the Standing Committee; Jacob Delp, General Missionary; Levi Trostle, District Treasurer for the General Mission Fund, and Daniel Zellers was re-appointed member of the District Mission Committee.

It will be noticed that a number of the queries were referred to Annual Meeting Minutes for answers. This could and should have been done without sending the queries to District Meeting. More care among the churches is necessary in regard to this matter. It is not right to burden our District Meeting with questions that have been acted on by Annual Meeting and plain answers given.

Missionary and Tract Work Department.

"Upon the first day of the week, let every one of you lay by him in store as God hath prospered him, that there be no gatherings when I come." 1 Cor. 16: 2.

"Every man as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give. Not grudgingly or of necessity, for the Lord loveth a cheerful giver." 2 Cor. 9: 7.

HOW MUCH SHALL WE GIVE?

"Every man according to his ability." "Every one as God hath prospered him." "Every man, according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give." "For if there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not." 2 Cor. 8: 12.

Organization of Missionary Committee.

D. L. MILLER, Secretary and Treasurer, - Mt. Morris, Ill.
G. B. ROYER, Assistant Secretary, - - Mt. Morris, Ill.

Organization of Book and Tract Work.

S. W. HOOVER, Foreman, - - - - Dayton, Ohio.
S. BOCK, Secretary and Treasurer, - - Dayton, Ohio.

☞All donations intended for Missionary Work should be sent to D. L. MILLER, Mt. Morris, Ill.

☞All money for Tract Work should be sent to S. BOCK, Dayton, Ohio.

☞Money may be sent by Money Order, Registered Letter, or Drafts on New York or Chicago. Do not send personal checks, or drafts on interior towns, as it costs 25 cents to collect them.

☞Solicitors are requested to faithfully carry out the plan of Annual Meeting, that all our members be solicited to contribute at least twice a year for the Mission and Tract Work of the Church.

☞Notes for the Endowment Fund can be had by writing to the Secretary of either Work.

"MISSIONARY EGGS."

BY G. B. ROYER.

FREDONIA, KAN., Apr. 20, '89.

Dear Brother:—

We send you 65 cents for missionary work, this amount being the proceeds of the eggs laid on Sunday the last quarter. Your Brother and Sister in Christ.

GAMBIA, OHIO, Apr. 19, '89.

Dear Brother:—

Inclosed find 75 cents for home missionary work. This amount is the proceeds of eggs laid on Sunday by eighteen hens since Jan. 25th.

CHERRY GROVE, ILL., Apr. 18, '89.

Dear Brother:—

Enclosed find Postal Order for $2 30, the amount received for eggs collected each Sabbath day in January, February, and March. The money is to be used for the grand work of spreading the Gospel of our Glorious Redeemer.

ROCKTON, PA., Apr. 26, '89.

Bro. Miller:—

I send you one dollar, the proceeds of the eggs laid on Sunday during the last quarter, for the General Mission Fund. I wish all the sisters who have poultry would try this plan. You will be surprised to see what it will amount to in one year, and you will never miss it. Some day we may receive the interest in the banking house of heaven.

BALTIC, OHIO, Apr. 1, '89.

Dear Bro. Miller. -

After reading the proposition in the MESSENGER to give the value of all the eggs collected on Sunday to the Mission Fund, I concluded to adopt the plan, and I now send you 81 cents for the quarter, commencing Jan. 1st. As I live in a village I do not have the means that some of our farmer brethren have, yet I trust many others will notice this humble effort, and give it a trial for one year at least. I believe if all the members of the church, that could conveniently do so, would follow this easy method, there would be more mission money raised than ever before, and it would not go so hard to give as it now does with some, when they are called upon to give a few dimes, from that slow-coming wallet. Brethren and sisters, think of the souls that might be won to Jesus, and of the stars that would be added to crowns. Then think of the pleasure and happiness that would result from so noble a cause as this! EMMA FISHER.

SOME time near the beginning of the new year, some one through the GOSPEL MESSENGER suggested that, in order to help to increase the Mission Fund, the sisters should gather and sell the eggs laid on Sunday, and give the proceeds to the Fund. At the close of the first quarter, ten sent in their proceeds. The lowest amount is 65 cents, and the highest $2.30, making a total for the ten of $13 35. This makes an average of $1.335 for one person, for one quarter, and $5.34 for one year. Considering this a fair average for what each family in the Brotherhood might do, and allowing that 15,000 families keep chickens, our sisters could raise $79,100 00. That looks almost too large to believe; but figures do not lie, so we must believe.

What do you think of the work you may do, sisters? Would not that amount give the Bread of Life to many hungry souls? It is in your power to give it and Christ promises to bless you for cheerfully giving. You who have not given anything in this way, and you who have given nothing at all, what do you say? Will you help in this work? The way to raise the money is this: Let each one commence right away to gather the eggs on Sunday for the Lord. Do not wait until the beginning of next quarter, but begin immediately, now, and see what you can do during the summer when the hens lay the most eggs.

And brethren, what are we going to do? Shall we let our sisters put us to an open shame in the work of the Master? Many of you are doing well, but there is a much greater number who are doing nothing. Turn to the GOSPEL MESSENGER, No. 16, current Vol., page 250, and read Mr. F's testimony, and then ask yourselves the questions, "Do I really believe a soul is worth more than the whole world?" "Do I really love souls?"

FOR MISSION FIELDS.

BY J. H. MOORE.

IF it were so that I could attend the coming Annual Meeting, I would like to aid in perfecting Bro. Daniel Vaniman's plan for securing suitable workers in mission fields, for it is a subject in which I am greatly interested. And I am confident that it will be to the interest of our Brotherhood to adopt measures that will enable the Mission Board to command such aid as will be needed in the new fields.

I am not certain, however, that Brother Vaniman's plan is just the right thing, but his object is certainly not only commendable, but is a necessity. The Mission Board needs men, and must have them in order to make the work a success, and it is the duty of the church to adopt lawful measures that will supply this want. If the suggested plan is not satisfactory, let it be improved or amended until it does give satisfaction.

There ought to be at least one dozen men located in the South—each one in a different locality—to work up and establish churches. To have these men come here and preach a few weeks, and then leave for other parts, will be a waste of time and money. They must be located in a manner that will hold them, and they must be made to feel that it will be to their interest to remain and make every possible effort to succeed in the work. Furthermore, they must be men adapted to the work, and men who will be true to the church and her doctrine. Before the Board can locate such men they must, in some way, be at the disposal of the Board.

As an additional clause to Bro. V's plan I suggest that the Mission Board call for volunteers to locate in certain fields. The standing and qualification of those applying could then be investigated, and one selected, if all things proved satisfactory. In some instances the Board might receive very valuable workers, who, in any other way, would not be brought out. A notice like the following might be inserted in the MESSENGER:

WANTED.—A minister, sound in the faith, well versed in the Scriptures, to locate in Southern Alabama, and work up churches. One able to teach school, and who understands Sunday-school thoroughly, preferred. Mild climate, cheap lands, and good fruit country. Would like to have a few faithful families of members to locate with the minister, and aid him in his work. The Board will aid the minister in settling and carrying on his work. Address D. L. Miller, Mt. Morris, Ill.

I believe something of this kind might bring out many good workers who would be willing to enter these new fields with a view of making them their permanent homes. The idea of having a few families locate with the minister will not only be encouraging to him, but will give private members an opportunity to personally aid in the mission field. A few members thus located will prompt others to settle there, and in that way the new congregation will have trained members to aid in impressing and maintaining our Gospel principles from the beginning.

TAKING CARE OF THE FRAGMENTS.

BY FANNY MORROW.

"He said unto his disciples, Gather up the fragments that remain; that nothing be lost."—John 6: 12.

CHRIST never uttered an idle or useless word. We can always climb heavenward by pondering them in our hearts and taking heed thereto. The passage quoted above, may seem, to a careless reader, to have no meaning for us, only as a bit of history. I wonder, if some of those disciples did not complain something like this: "Why is it we must stoop over here and pick up these broken pieces and little scraps of food, and burden ourselves with carrying these heavy baskets when the Master can make whole loaves and fishes by merely speaking a word?" Or did they learn quicker than we, that unquestioning obedience is the truest happiness? We may not be able to feed upon whole loaves of spiritual food every day, but there is never a day without its fragments, upon which our souls feed and prosper, if we only gather them up.

One day, while I was diligently gathering up the precious fragments in GOSPEL MESSENGER, No 12, my eyes lighted upon one which helped to fill my thirsting soul with the Water of Life; for I believe the dear young sister, in her far eastern home, when she penned the lines, was sailing out upon the broad ocean of God's love. Are we not commanded to love one another? Let us continue, then, in this greatest of graces, let us love indeed and in truth, and not be afraid to give expression to our love. Of Christ it has been written, "Whom having not seen, we love," so, sister Sadie, we may say the same and hope sometime to love each other more when we reach our elder Brother's home.

One day, since then, a fragment of love came to me in the form of a letter from one of my many nieces (not after the flesh) asking me to write something for the GOSPEL MESSENGER, especially for our young brethren and sisters. I thought of the many good things that have been written for them,—the many whole loaves upon which they have been fed, and wondered what more could be said. Remembering, however, the word of a certain prophet, about "line upon line, precept upon precept, here a little and there a little," I will try to gather up the fragments, and perhaps may strike upon some lines hitherto left out.

Being deprived of church privileges, to-day I am seated in my home alone, surrounded by the holy hush of a blessed Sabbath. My heart goes out with a kindly greeting to every dear young sister and brother. You are now in the narrow path which Jesus said leads to eternal life. By the exercise of your own God-given, glorious free will you are there, and as you taste of the good Word of Life from time to time, you doubtless rejoice greatly, and desire earnestly to honor your profession.

Often your young hearts glow with desire to be good and do good. Whatever your lot in life may be,—rich or poor, learned or unlearned, you must have the child-like spirit that will enable you to learn of him who was meek and lowly of heart. Let no pressure of business or pleasure hinder you from reading his Word and going to him in prayer every day of your lives. He is the Bread of Life, and by living near to him and feeding upon his Word, your soul will never starve, and you will not be deceived. Don't pattern after any one of his professed followers, only so far as he follows Christ, remembering that each one must give an account of himself. Study to obey, not only a part, but all of his teachings. If you live a clean, pure, true life, devoted to Christ and his cause, you are no less a preacher of righteousness than the most eloquent minister you ever heard.

When you meet with success and are appreciated, be thankful, but rejoice more than for anything else that your names are written in the Book of Life. When you meet with discouragements or sorrow, remember how the Savior battled on amidst a world of opposition and hatred, always doing good. Live not to please yourselves or your fellow-men, but for the love of Christ do good, and you will finally conquer in his name.

Whenever you can do so, join in the sacred services of the Lord's Day with reverence. Never, never allow yourselves to jest or make sport of sacred subjects or holy words, or appear amused even if others do. Such things will grieve the Holy Spirit. You may see older persons whisper or laugh, sometimes, during meeting, but, dear young friends, be assured their education is not what it should have been, and they will surely suffer loss and, spiritually, grow weak.

Be sure you pray for the minister more than you criticise him. Thus your heart will be open to receive some truth each time, that will help you to honor God.

Keep gathering the fragments of time, that you may learn many things that are helpful. The church has often been advised to attend the meetings of adjoining congregations at love-feast times, to build each other up and promote sociability, thus avoiding selfishness which would lead to congregationalism. These will be grand opportunities for you to show your love for God and his followers. In conclusion, dear young members of Christ's body, please receive a few admonitions from one who loves you. When you are at such a place of meeting, especially if in your own home congregation, and strange brethren and sisters are present, don't content yourself with staring at them, as much as to say, "What are you doing here," but at some interval between meetings go to them and give them a warm welcome—a hearty greeting! Even if you have never received a formal introduction, and there is no one present to give you one, you can easily introduce yourself; and thus show by loving his children, whom you are permitted to see, that you love the Father whom you have not seen. The same apostle who tells us to be of one mind, also tells us to be pitiful—be courteous. Is not one as important as the other? Study up the word "courteous" and you have a large field opened before you in which you can work for Jesus.

A lady who had traveled from the Pacific coast to Kansas in an emigrant car, told me once that a couple of "Dunkard women," as she styled them, rode for a short distance in the same car, on their way to a meeting. They complained loudly, said the car was "dirty as a pig-pen," and "no decent person could travel in such." The lady said she thought their plain dresses covered very proud and scornful hearts.

Now it was probably thoughtlessness and want of courtesy more than anything else that ailed them. If you were to visit a friend and, after you were in that friend's house, you received no greeting until you went to the farthest corner of the room, and asked her if she had not even time to shake hands with you, and then, during your whole visit she spent most of her time in finding fault either with you or your friends, and in making unfavorable comparisons between your way of doing work and hers, do you think you would love to visit that friend again? Surely not unless duty strongly called, and you went in Christ's name!

Let me say to all, both young and old, Let us try more constantly to follow the golden rule, "Do unto others as you would have others do unto you."

MISSIONARY.

The following letter, translated from the German, shows what has been done by our tracts, and also the necessity of extending our German paper. Will not every member in our Brotherhood subscribe for a short time for the Brüderbote and send it to some German friend, who might wish to read the paper? If you cannot afford to send a dollar, then send some postage stamps with the address of your friends, and forward to J. M. Snyder, McPherson, Kans. S. Z. Sharp.

Cornelia, St. Clair Co., Ala., May 1, '89.

Editor of Brüderbote,

Dear Brother in Christ:—

I have learned that the German Baptist Brethren publish a church paper in the German language, at McPherson, Kans. I am inclined to subscribe for it, but desire first to see a few copies, and also to know what the paper costs per year. Please send me several copies.

I might further state that my wife and I have decided to unite with the German Baptist Brethren church. We must, however, first move from this place as there is no church here and no prospect for one. During the last year we have read tracts and writings from the German Baptist Brethren, and came to the conclusion that we did not obey the Lord according to the Scriptures. We were formerly Baptists, but we must obey God rather than man, and observe "all things whatsoever the Lord has commanded." Matthew 28: 20.

I am by trade a shoemaker, and wish to continue at my work in a village where there is a church of the Brethren. I own a small piece of land, an acre of ground, besides buildings, good water and good fences. I would exchange or sell. We have here seven kinds of mineral water. Many invalids come here every summer to obtain the benefit of these waters. Hope to receive an answer soon. I. P. R.

BENEFITS OF TRACT WORK.

BY LANDON WEST.

One of our best reasons in favor of the Tract Work is, that it affords us a good opportunity, and at little cost, to put forth and preserve the best thoughts of all our writers. It is also the easiest and best way of sending them to all the people.

Another advantage is, that the Tract Work puts money to work for the Master and for heaven, that would otherwise canker and rust, or work for sin, for death, and for the enemy.

In the Field.

The writer commenced a series of meetings April 20, at Steel's school-house, several miles south-west of Decatur, Adams Co., Ind. We held a council-meeting the following Saturday, with the scattered members of that vicinity. We organized a new church with eighteen members, elected one minister and one deacon. For minister Daniel Byerly was chosen; for deacon, Jacob Heller. We hope and believe they are the Lord's choice. Elder Jacob Crumrine being present, assisted in the work. He also stayed over Sunday and preached three discourses, which, I think, were appreciated by all. We closed the meeting May 2, with good interest. As an immediate result two applicants will be baptized in the near future. Others are seemingly counting the cost, and we hope are not far from the kingdom. May the Lord bless his church here, and elsewhere, is our prayer! Samuel Neher.

Notice to the Churches of North-western Kansas and Colorado.

If any of the churches or scattered members in the above District have not received the Minutes of District Meeting, I will send the amount asked for, if the parties will give me the number wanted and their address, plainly written. Address me at Quinter, Kans. B. B. Whitmer.

The Route to Harrisonburg.

Harrisonburg is located in Rockingham County, Virginia, upon a branch of the Baltimore and Ohio R. R., which is the only road running to the town. During the Annual Meeting all trains on the B. & O. R. R. from the West will make connection at Harper's Ferry for Harrisonburg. The B. & O. trains from Chicago and Cincinnati run through solid to Harper's Ferry, and through Sleeping Cars also run from St. Louis to Harper's Ferry via the Ohio and Mississippi R. R. and the B. & O. Where there are parties of 30 or more who wish to travel together, the B. & O. will arrange to run cars for them through to Harrisonburg via Harper's Ferry. It is only via the B. & O. that cars can be run through to Harrisonburg without change.

Excursion tickets to Harrisonburg and return will be sold from all points in the West at one fare for the round trip. This will be the rate from Chicago, St. Louis and all points east thereof, and it is confidently expected that the roads west of Chicago and St. Louis will make rates equally as low.

On this basis the rates from some of the principal points will be as follows, viz:

Chicago, 17.25. St. Louis, 20.25. Cincinnati, 12.50. Dayton, O., 13.50. Columbus, O., 11.75 Indianapolis, 15.65. Milford Junct., 16.60. Auburn Junct., 15.35. Fostoria, O., 13.50. Mansfield, O., 13.50. Zanesville, O., 11.75. Wheeling, W. Va., 9.75. Pittsburg, 9.00. Johnstown, Pa., 9.00. Meyersdale, Pa., 7.25. Cumberland, Md., 6.15. Hagerstown, 3.85. Martinsburg, W. Va., 3.85, Frederick, Md., 4.15.

From the fact that the B. & O. R. R. is the only line running to Harrisonburg, and that it is only via this line that cars can be run right through to the place of meeting, it stands to reason that the B. & O. is the best route to take.

For the benefit of those desiring to visit friends in the East, the B. & O. will sell excursion tickets from Harrisonburg to any point on its lines east of Harrisonburg or Harper's Ferry. The B. & O. R. R. Co. will have a Ticket Agent on the meeting grounds for this purpose, and tickets can be procured at any time while the meeting is in progress For further information in regard to the B. & O. Route to Harrisonburg, address any of the following Agents of the Company:

L. S. Allen, 193 Clark St., Chicago, Ill. W. E. Reppert, 11½ N. High St, Columbus, O. F. P. Copper, Tiffin, O. E D. Smith, Pittsburgh, Pa. B. F. Bond, Baltimore, Md., or W. H. King, Asst. G. P. A., Grand Central Depot, Cincinnati, O.

From Hutchinson, Kans.

NOTICE of our District Meeting has already been given by the Secretary of meeting, and I would only say that we had a very enjoyable feast in connection with it, at which time the church decided to elect a brother to the ministry. As a result we have Bro. William A. Rose as a co-laborer with us.

Last Saturday, May 4, we were requested to aid the members of the Salem district in a profitable church meeting, preparatory to their communion meeting. Brethren J. Wise and L. Hillery were also present. The church decided to elect a brother to the office of deacon. Bro. Samuel Homer was chosen. We hope those brethren will magnify their office! ENOCH EBY.

The Ohio & Mississippi Route to the Annual Meeting.

THE Ohio and Mississippi Railway is the only direct through car line from St. Louis to Cincinnati where connection is made in the Union Depot with trains of the Baltimore & Ohio R. R., and the Chesapeake & Ohio R. R., the only lines running to Harrisonburg, where the Annual Meeting will be held. Both the morning and evening trains from St. Louis have connection for Harrisonburg.

Excursion tickets will be on sale at principal ticket offices throughout the West at about one fare for round trip. Those who attend should see that their tickets read via the O. & M. Railway in connection with either the B. & O. or C. & O. route. Tickets may also be obtained at Union Depot and our City office in St. Louis and at principal offices on the line at one fare for round trip.

Sleeping cars are run from St. Louis by this line to junction point near Harrisonburg, from whence there is but a short run by daylight to the place of meeting.

Be sure to get your tickets via the Ohio & Mississippi R'y.

To the Members of Poplar Ridge Church, Ohio.

THIS bright Easter morning, April 21, 1889, we sit down in our new home, in a strange land, to address a letter to you, through the columns of the GOSPEL MESSENGER, as time and strength will not permit a private communication to each. Knowing that in this manner we can reach all, who requested us to write, by one message, we avail ourselves of this advantage, hoping that each member will feel that it is addressed to him individually.

April 13 we presented our letter to the La Porte church, Ind., and are now members of the same. This church is not so large in membership as the old home church, and most of the voices and faces are strange; yet a little band of the Father's children resides here, and, as we claim a near relationship to such, we feel at home among them, and love them as the Father's children. Nevertheless, when we meet to worship in God's house, we miss the dear faces and voices we have been accustomed to see and hear. Such is life! We meet to enjoy one another's society for a season, then part to meet no more on earth! But, O, sweet consoling thought! Beyond this world of pain and parting, is a fair, peaceful clime, where the sacred ties of love and Christian friendship are never severed, and sad farewells are never spoken. There we may meet, to associate throughout ceaseless ages.

At this hour some of you, at least, are gathering in the old church to celebrate the glorious resurrection which brought life and immortality to man, and we yearn for that spiritual communion we so often enjoyed with you, — the sweet communion which only Christians comprehend. O, how we should love to meet with you, this Easter Day, to unite our songs and prayers of praise and adoration as of old! In spirit, at least, we are with you, and know that Jesus is able to make you feel our presence. We may never meet again personally on earth, but if we are faithful we shall meet beyond, where saints of the Lord enjoy an eternal Sabbath, — one eternal day of worship.

We are well pleased with our new home. It is a beautiful location, but, like all earth homes, the weeds and briers grow side by side with the grain and fruits, and roses conceal the sharpness of the thorns. Nevertheless the Great Creator has strewn grandeur and loveliness on every hand in our vicinity, and daily a tribute of gratitude ascends to his lofty habitation for his glorious handiwork. But this is not our greatest blessing. Here kind neighbors gather about us, to do us service in time of necessity, thus far taking the place of those from whom we so reluctantly parted. Some have been as kind parents to us. We have no reward to offer, in return for their care and solicitude for our welfare, but our humble love. This we freely give, trusting the Author of love to reward them as they deserve in this life and in the life to come.

We are now prepared to receive our friends, and shall welcome both old and new, that may deem it a pleasure to visit us. The sweet ties of friendship are thus strengthened, and the toils and cares of life forgotten in Christian association.

We shall be glad to hear from any who desire to write to us, as we shall soon be able to reply privately, and wish to keep the bond of love pure and loyal. Our address is LaPorte, LaPorte Co., Ind.

Now, asking you to remember us when you bring your offering before the Lord, we close, hoping to meet you all again, if not on this side of the golden strand, on the other side, where parting is unknown, and love is eternal. May the blessing of our Father abide with you evermore! ISAAC AND GERTRUDE A. FLORY.

From Eads, Colo.

APRIL 19th, Bro. Kesler and wife, of Wayne County, Ohio, arrived at this place. They came here on a visit to their daughter and family. Sister Kesler, also, has two brothers living here. How glad we are to meet those that are near and dear by the ties of nature, and what joy to meet with those of like precious faith! Especially refreshing is this to those who are isolated, and have not the privilege of assembling with their Brethren in a church capacity. On account of Bro. Kesler being well up in years, and the great change of climate he had to undergo, we made no appointments for preaching the first week of his stay with us, but, during the second week of his sojourn, he preached three times in our sod school-house, to very attentive congregations.

This was the first time any of the Brethren have preached in this part of Colorado. Bro. Kesler made many friends while with us. He returned home by way of Carthage, Mo., where his aged father is living,—now in his eighty-sixth year. We hope they may find the old brother in good health and enjoying the few short years that may be allotted him.

If any of the brethren traveling through this part of Colorado wish to stop with us they will always be welcome, especially ministers, or if there are any of the ministering brethren that would like a home on the frontier, we think this is the place to come. We ask an interest in the prayers of all, that we may hold out faithful unto the end!

LIZZIE SHOEMAKER.

From Tuhunga, Cal.

THE love-feast with the members of the Conejo church, Ventura County, came off April 29. Over forty members were present, including six ministers. It was indeed a feast of good things and all seemed to enjoy it very much. April 30 Bro. Witmore commenced another series of meetings in Los Angeles. There was one applicant for baptism the same evening; so the good work continues to move along.

April 6 the District Meeting of California was held at Covina. Several papers were before the meeting and all business passed off pleasantly.

Since our last report Bro. J. Witmore preached a series of sermons at Stockton, Cal. H. R. Holsinger and other members of the Wolf congregation attended some of his meetings. H. R. Holsinger is preaching for the Wolf congregation of Progressives. Stockton is about four hundred miles north of Los Angeles. We have a few members living there who are anxious to see a church organized, and we hope the day is not far distant when not only there, but at many other points in California the standard of the cross will be planted, with many good soldiers to maintain the Gospel order of divine service.

J. S. FLORY.

A New Congregation.

APRIL 28 elders Wm. Roberson, of Franklin County, H. P Hylton, of Floyd County, and the writer met with the little body of members in Patrick County, Va. Bro. Roberson delivered a short but logical discourse on the power of the Gospel, followed by Bro. Hylton with some very appropriate remarks

The members had been consulted in reference to organizing into a congregation. Circumstances were such that the elders thought best, before dismissing the members, to spend a season in secret prayer and enter into the work of organizing. After all necessary instructions were given, we proceeded to take the voice for a minister and a deacon. The lot fell on Bro. Wm. Elgin for minister, and Bro. John A. Hooker for deacon. They were at once installed into their respective offices. The installation services, as usual, were very solemn and affecting to both members and outsiders as was evidenced by the flowing tears.

Grave responsibilities are resting upon our young brethren and their wives, as the destiny of the Smyth's River congregation depends largely on their lives and characters. May God give them grace and wisdom!

They unanimously adopted the above name for their congregation and selected H. P. Hylton for their pastor.

Fifty years ago my grandfather, Eld. Austin Hylton, late of Tennessee, visited this section twice a year, preaching one sermon each trip. He made twenty miles a day by steady riding. Prior to this time, an old Bro. Elgin and wife moved here from Bedford County.

Eld. John Bowman, of Franklin County, passed through and preached for them a few times. When Bro. Elgin and wife died, the Brethren were without a witness here for many years.

Bro. Hooker attended the Mountain Normal School at this place, and, while Bro. Dove, of Tennessee, was conducting a series of meetings here, he made a profession of religion. He returned home and shortly afterwards the Brethren baptized several in his neighborhood.

Through Time Schedule, Chicago to Harrisonburg via the Monon Route and the C & O.

THE fast train service now leaves Chicago at 8:30 A. M; Louisville, 7:00 P. M., arriving at Staunton next morning at 9:30 A. M. Thence to Staunton (only twenty-six miles distant), where you have choice of suburban trains to Harrisonburg, thus making the Monon route the shortest line by one hundred and fifty miles. The train leaving Chicago daily at 8:05 P. M., also makes through and quick connections, and both trains connect directly to the meeting grounds. Special trains for large parties, and all concessions in rates, same as via other routes, with advantage of shorter line. Address E. O. McCormick, Gen'l Pass. Agent, Chicago, or L. E. Sessions, Trav. Pass. Agent, Monon Route, Box 581, Minneapolis, Minnesota.

From Manassas, Va.

THE Brethren in Prince Williams and Fauquier Counties, in the North-eastern part of Virginia, number about one hundred. Most of them moved from the County where the Annual Meeting will be this year.

Any one contemplating moving to Virginia, or looking at the South, should come and see our country before locating. Those that have tickets over the B. & O. R. R., by stopping off at Strasburgh, going to or coming from Annual Meeting, would have sixty-one miles to Manassas, where they will be cared for by J. T. Baker or T. S. Holsinger, and also taken around to see the country.

We also expect to be at the Annual Meeting, and give all the information that we can. We have a nice, level country, gently rolling, good markets, and a mild climate There are no mountains between us and the ocean. We are only twenty miles from tide water, and thirty-four miles to Washington, D. C., by railroad.

We find the citizens here kind and accommodating. They are glad to see the northern and western folks come among them and help to build up the country again, which has been so badly crippled by slavery and the war.

T. S. HOLSINGER.

From Salem Church, Kansas.

WE, the members of the Salem church are still at work in the vineyard of the Lord. May 4 we met in council, to transact such business as might be presented. Nothing of a serious nature came before the council. The church selected Bro. Samuel Homer to fill the important office of deacon. May God bless him! Brethren Enoch Eby, John Wise and Lemuel Hillery were present. Bro. Wise did some excellent preaching for us until the 8th, which day was set apart for our feast, which is now in the past, but long to be remembered, for it was a feast indeed. Brethren John Forney and Jacob Trostle increased the number at this meeting. This evening, (May 9) brethren Wise and Forney will commence a meeting four miles north of Nickerson, to continue as long as good interest is shown. We are all in love and union. With Bro. Eby as our shepherd, we expect to press on in the good work. Pray for us, brethren and sisters! L. E. FAHRNEY.

From the Cheyenne Church, Kans.

OUR church is still in peace and union, although we are very much in need of ministerial help. There is no minister, and only one deacon in the church here, at present.

We expect Bro. J. H. Cakerice, of Marshall County, Iowa, to move among us this fall, but we would be glad if other ministers could also be induced to come among us, for truly the harvest is great but the laborers very few. Our much beloved elder, John S. Snowberger, of Holyoke, Colorado, comes to our assistance as often as he can conveniently do so.

Eld. Allen Ives, of Burr Oak, Jewell Co., Kans., passed through our County recently and preached some for us. Brethren, your work is highly appreciated by the hungry souls of the far West, not only by the Brethren, but also by those of other religious persuasions.

We organized a Sabbath-school at this place last Sunday. The writer was chosen Superintendent and is assisted by an able corps of officers. We expect to use the Brethren's Sunday-school literature. Any traveling ministers will be met at Bird City, by giving notice beforehand. Please come! O. C. SLIFER.

Annual Meeting Railroad Arrangements.

THOSE who have been inquiring about Annual Meeting round trip tickets over the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad, and its tributaries to Harrisonburg, Va., are hereby informed that the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, and the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad have made arrangements to have close connection at Staunton, Va., for Harrisonburg. The way is open now for all persons who may wish to attend our Annual Meeting. You can come by either the Baltimore and Ohio, via Harper's Ferry or by Ches apeake and Ohio Railroad via Staunton. The Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad agrees to pay Executive Committee the same percentage on their earnings as the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. (See notice of Bro. P. S, Thomas, Secretary of Executive Committee, in last issue of GOSPEL MESSENGER.) Tickets will be put on sale by both roads at the same time, and I think that ought to be at once. Then they should run for sixty days. The Brethren in Virginia think it quite a mistake to wait until the 25th. We will try and give all who come a warm reception. E. L. BROWER.

Waynesborough, Va.

From Beatrice, Neb.

ACCORDING to appointment the North Beatrice church met April 28, to dedicate their new house to the Lord. Our Sunday-school and morning services were postponed on that account. The brethren and sisters of our church attended the dedication. There was a large crowd present, and good interest manifested. In the afternoon we met at our church in Beatrice, when there were two more added to the church by baptism. Although it was very rainy during the afternoon, there was a good turn-out. The scene was very affecting. We feel very much encouraged in our new field of labor, knowing that the light is beginning to shine. We do hope the brethren and sisters may remain in harmony with one another, and continue to pray for those precious souls who are yet out of the ark of safety. Thanks be to the Lord for his continuing care!

MELVIN A. COUGHMAN.

From Rockton, Clearfield Co., Pa.

WE held our quarterly council April 13, and the business pertaining to the house of God was attended to in love and union. We concluded to hold our love-feast June 7, at 3 P. M., and we cordially invite all to be with us, and especially the brethren of Montgomery, Purchase Line, and Manor congregation. Our delegates to District Meeting are brethren J. A. Brilhart and J. H. Beer. V. V. CLOUSER.

From William's Creek Church, Cooke Co., Tex.

OUR beloved Elder came to us April 27th and held a council, which passed off pleasantly, with the best feeling and love manifested among all of the members present. He preached the Word with power and in demonstration of the Spirit, in the evening; also Sunday morning and evening. These meetings were truly a feast to us, and we pray that our brother may be so blessed, that he may be enabled to come more frequently.

Our Sunday-school is growing in interest; also in numbers. We would say to brethren contemplating a move to a new field, to work for the Master, that we think they could do no better than to come here. The harvest truly is great and the laborers few.

We have a beautiful country in parts of Cooke and Montague, but we need help in the work of the Lord. Who will come? Pray for the work in Texas! A. W. AUSTIN.

From Woodbury, Baltimore, Md.

BRO. S. N. MCCANN came to our midst April 11, and began a series of meetings. He preached eighteen sermons here. One was added to the church by baptism, and the members were greatly encouraged to press onward in the divine life. We enjoyed Bro. McCann's visit very much, and hope he will come again. May the Lord bless him and his labors to the good of us all, is my prayer! M. E. LEHIGH.

From Middle Creek Church, Iowa.

MAY 5 we again met on the banks of the South Skunk river, where two souls were led into the water, to be buried with Christ in baptism. We were made to rejoice, and thought, how good it is to come to Christ in the young and tender years. Our prayer is that they may be able to overcome all the trials that may cross their pathway here, so when their days are numbered here, they can have a home in heaven with all the sanctified!

JOHN GABLE.

From Hoytsville, Ohio.

BRO. JACOB HEISTAND preached for us two weeks. Those who attended the meetings were richly instructed in sound doctrine that could not be condemned. He preached to an attentive audience, and nobly declared the Gospel in its purity and simplicity. Saints were encouraged and sinners warned. As a result of the meetings six souls came out on the Lord's side, and were immersed. One was reclaimed. Two others applied for admission into the church, but on account of sickness could not be baptizrd for the present, but, if spared until our next meeting, they will be received. Three others promised to come soon. Brethren, pray for them, that they may not put it off too long! Bro. Heistand is mild and persuasive, and nobly defends the Truth.

S. JANE PRICE.

A Lamb of the Fold.

ABRAHAM Z. CROWELL was born April 6, 1871 and departed this life April 26th, 1889, his age being eighteen years and twenty days. He identified himself with the Brethren church, Feb. 13, 1887, being one among the twenty on that memorable day. Our dear young brother's death was caused by a sad accident. He was attending a "wake," when, by some cause, a match was lit, which burned a small place on one side of his mouth, causing blood poison. It was done innocently, the person not thinking at the time what might be the result. Forgiveness was asked, and was cheerfully given.

On Tuesday he called for the Elders and was anxious for their arrival. With eager eyes he watched the opening door. During the services he sat in the rocking-chair, made strong through his great faith. After the anointing he felt happy and said he was not afraid to die. On Wednesday his eyes were swollen shut and, though sight was gone from earthly things, his vision was clear on the other shore. Through his sickness he sung and prayed very often. That sweet voice, so weak, yet so willing, is now singing in a bright, clear voice the song of Moses and the Lamb.

Oh, how he will be missed in church and Sunday-school. His voice, though silent here is singing a grander, nobler song to his Maker who gave and has taken away. Oh, how bold he stood, in days gone by, telling those little, eager minds of his home beyond! In his sickness he told them he would only be with them a few days,—then he was going home. He told them not to weep; he had no fear of death! What a comfort! Is there greater than this? His soul is resting in peace. He was loved, and his memory will ever be cherished.

I would say to his companions, "Remember, his sufferings were only a few days. Yea, in the midst of health lurks death! Remember his virtues! Follow his good example! Think of his forgiving spirit! Let us all take heed to this great warning. God is no respecter of persons. Prepare to meet your God in peace, as our young, departed brother! Comfort yourself with the thought that you can meet again, never to part! Remember his last words,—they will help you in moments of temptations." To father, mother, brothers and sisters I would say, Your son and brother is only gone before,—only waiting on the other shore. Though your circle is broken, think of the happy reunion over yonder, where tears are wiped away. May this be your comfort and guide on your journey to a home not made by hands, eternally in the heavens.

Services by brethren Frantz and Krider to a very large and sympathizing assembly from John 14: 1, 2, 3.

S. E. STOVER.

Literary Notes.

"THE SEAMSTRESS OF STETTIN," adapted from the German by Cornelia McFadden, is a very befitting and interesting narrative of the experiences and trials of a young lady who was necessitated to fight her own way through the hardships of life single-handed as far as human help is concerned, but who confidingly leaned on the strong arm which is stronger than flesh and warmer than human sympathy. In it, many tangled threads are straightened out and many mysterious knots untied. Price, $1 00 postpaid. Cranston and Stowe, Cincinnati, O.

"PLEAS FOR PROGRESS" is a new book written by Atticus G. Haywood who makes an intelligent, earnest, and reasonable appeal in behalf of the education and general welfare of the negro of the South. The condition of the Southern negro demands the considerate attention of those who are interested in their welfare as citizens and the general good of the government. This work gives information in regard to them as a race, and citizens that all should know. 320 pages, neatly bound in muslin. Price, $1.00. Cranston and Stowe, Cincinnati, Ohio.

"THE BIBLE AND LAND," by James B. Converse, 251 pages, bound in cloth. For sale by the publisher, Rev. James B. Converse, Morristown, Tenn. Price, $1 00.

In an able and logical manner the author discusses the principles of land ownership and the legislation in regard to the question. It sets aside the speculations of Henry George and many other vagaries by which "Ownership in Land" has been surrounded by many modern authors. We believe the book will have a good effect in giving a clear and comprehensive view of the questions discussed to those who are looking for the truth

"GO TO THE ANT" and learn many wonderful things, by John Wentworth Sanborn, A. M., is the title of a new book of 120 pages, nicely printed on heavy paper and bound in good cloth binding "The writer says that in watching the movements of the ant and learning its habits he noticed that his children became interested in learning about them. And in trying to teach them he was led to make them a still more careful study until he had accumulated quite a fund of information in regard to their habits, etc. He then concluded that if these investigations were so interesting to his own children, they might be equally so to others. And thus he wrote the book for publication.

The volume is full of wonderful things about these little creatures to whom the wise man refers the sluggard, and we feel sure that every body's children would read it with interest and delight. Price 60 cents, postpaid. Cranston and Stowe, Cincinnati, Ohio.

The Treasury for Pastor and People enters upon its seventh year with the May number which is a capital one throughout. There is sufficient mental and spiritual pabulum on every page to repay every minister and Christian Worker for a year's subscription to the magazine. Dr. Meredith's Talk to Business Men will be read with interest. A new feature is an Arbor Day Service with suggestions, etc., for its observance, and an impromptu address by President Harrison on Inherent Nobility. All the Leading Thoughts of Sermons are excellent. Other articles of note are, Christian Integrity, by Dr. Behrends; The Inviolableness of God's Word, by Dr. B. Hart; Church Music, by Rev. W. H. Black; Light on the International Lessons, by Dr. Moment; Consecration and Conformity, by Rev. E. P. Marvin; Illustration in the Sermon, The Personality in the Preacher, by Prof. A. Phelps; An Ideal Ministry, by Dr. C. Parkhurst; The Young Christian and the Prayer-meeting, by Rev. C. S. Holt; Editorials are Sermonic Aid, Love of Mother, Family Worship in the White House, Unction, An Invigorating Tonic, Protection from Hinderances. All other departments full. Yearly, $2 50 Clergymen, $2 00. Single copies, 25 cents.

CHURCH HISTORY, by Professor Kurtz. Translated from Latest Edition, with approval of the Author, by Rev. John Mac Pherson, A. M. In three volnmes. Vol. I., just issued. Cloth, 12mo, 574 pp Price, $2. 00. Funk and Wagnalls, 18 and 20 Astor Place New York.

This work was first published in 1849. It has passsed through nine editions. Revised and improved at several different times, by the author, it is now about twice its original size. For years it has been almost a monopoly in Germany, and is now gaining a firm foothold in Great Britain and America. The author has long been distinguished for his ample and accurate scholarship; and the translator has done his work so well that the book has already become the standard Church History among English-speaking people. While it was prepared especially to meet the requirements of a complete text-book for theological students, it is equally well adapted to intelligent readers of all classes. Its arrangement of general divisions, subdivisions, sections, and numbered paragraphs, using large type for the most important matter, and smaller type for minor details—conduces at once to simplicity and variety. Of course the author does not treat every subject in a way to satisfy every reader. If we consider the many centuries he covers, the great number of doctrines and practices he discusses, the prejudices of the reader, and the predilections of the writer, it is evident that no man could possibly produce a Church History which might not be criticised. But the work before us is free from acrimony and dogmatism, and seems to be dominated by the spirit of Christian candor. It abounds in good things, and deserves a liberal patronage.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

JENKINS.—At Nora Spring, Iowa, April 29, sister Rebecca, wife of Bro. Dennis Jenkins, aged 53 years, 3 months and 17 days.

Our departed sister had been suffering with a pain in her head for sometime previous to her death. On the morning of the day of her departure she went about her daily work as usual, but soon felt the hand of death upon her, and, when the husband came into the house after a short absence, he found her lying dead. Thus the husband has lost a kind wife, the children a loving mother. Funeral services by Bro. J. F. Eikenberry, of Cold Water, Butler Co., Iowa.

G. M. NOAH.

BOWMAN.—In the Nettle Creek congregation, April 10, 1889, of pneumonia, sister Elizabeth Emma (Mahoney), wife of Bro. Abraham Bowman, to whom she was married May 15th, 1884.

To them were born two children, a son and a daughter She united with the Brethren or German Baptist church, March 8, 1879, of which body she was a consistent and devoted member till death. Sister Lizzie was of a quiet, inoffensive and unassuming turn. She would not stoop to grief or offense at small trifles, but would always make the best of everything, and by this kind of spirit she was successful in the church, in her family and also in her neighborhood, in all of which places she will be greatly missed. May she be resting from her labors and her works be following her!

Funeral services by Bro. Lewis Kinsey and the writer to a very large concourse from 1 Cor. 15 2, 3. LEWIS W. TEETER.

BLOUGH.—In the Quemahoning church, Pa., April 18, Mary E., daughter of Bro. Simon and sister Agnes Blough, aged 4 years 6 months and five days. Funeral services by brethren E. J. and J. W. Blough.

THOMPSON.—At Colville, Ark., April 26, Bro. James B. Thompson, aged 89 years, 8 months and 23 days.

Deceased was born in North Carolina, Aug. 3, 1799. In 1816 he moved to Virginia, where he lived for some years. He then moved to Kentucky, then to Illinois, then to Missouri, and finally, in 1872, came to Arkansas, where, by his upright walk and godly conversation, he was well-known to all to be a Christian man. He has been an earnest member of the German Baptist or Brethren church for thirty years. He was reverenced by the old and respected by the young. The children always ran to meet him. In his death our neighborhood has lost a good citizen and a true Christian. Though sadness fills our hearts, we sorrow not as those who have no hope, believing that our loss is his gain. W. O. YOUNG.

MAY.—At Boynton, Pa., April 13, James Blaine May, aged 6 years, 4 months and 13 days. Funeral services by the writer from Job 14. SILAS HOOVER.

BAIRD.—In the Jacob's Creek congregation, Pa., April 4, sister Mary A. Baird, aged 43 years. Services by the writer, assisted by Bro. John K. Eicher. H. S. MYERS.

STONER.—At Farmersville, Ohio, April 27, Bro. Solomon Stoner, aged 82 years, 4 months and 21 days.

Deceased was the son of Samuel and Hannah (Albaugh) Stoner and was born Dec. 6, 1806, near Timberville, Rockingham Co, Virginia. He was a farmer until twenty-one years of age, when he took charge of a mill, and that year, May 6, 1827, was married to Elizabeth Cline, daughter of Michael and Elizabeth (Byerly) Cline. Soon afterward they were both baptized in Middle River, Augusta Co., Va. Leaving that State in September, 1843 they came to Ohio and settled near Clarksburg, Ross Co., where they lived two years, burying one of their children, one having been buried in Virginia. In the fall of 1845 they came west to Montgomery County, Ohio, and settled near Farmersville. The wife and mother died in February, 1881, aged 72 years. Bro. Stoner still had the care and comfort of his children, one of whom remained with him until the last, and two during all of his sickness. He was blind for two years, but cheerful and contented all the while.

This father and mother were blessed with thirteen children, eleven of whom are yet alive, so far as known, and eight of them attended the funeral which took place April 30, at the Lutheran church, in Farmersville, O. The funeral services were conducted by the writer and Eld John Bowman, of New Lebanon, Ohio. Text, Isa. 26: 19.

LANDON WEST.

EARLY.—Near Pleasant Valley, Va., April 9, sister Annie Early, wife of Bro. Abraham Early, aged 75 years, 4 months and 9 days.

In the death of our much beloved sister the church loses another of its faithful ones. Our aged and bereaved brother feels deeply the loss of her in whom he confided for many years. Funeral services by the Brethren.

P. S. MILLER.

FISCEL.—In the Rock River church, Lee Co., Ill., April 23, Bro. William Henry Fiscel, aged 46 years, 11 months and 9 days.

Bro. Fiscel was born in Pennsylvania and came to this State with his parents in 1849. Since that time he has lived on the farm on which he died. His funeral was largely attended, as an evidence of the esteem in which Bro. Henry was held by his neighbors. He united with the Brethren church in 1880 and lived a consistent life until his death. It was his disposition to do that which would be for the good of others. Bro. Henry died without a murmur or complaint and with a bright hope of eternal life. He leaves a mother, three brothers, three sisters, a sorrowing wife and three sons. May the blessing of God be with the bereaved family in this life, and may they finally be reunited with the father gone before! Funeral services by Eld. J. G. Royer. C. M. SUTER.

EUROPE is all very well, but don't you think it is only fair as an American to know your own country thoroughly? Try the "American Alps" on the South Park Division of the Union Pacific in Colorado this summer. There's nothing like them in Switzerland.

THE splendor of the "American Alps" is beginning to be appreciated by our people, and a visit to Switzerland for gorgeous scenery is unnecessary. The picturesque mountain resorts on the South Park Division of the Union Pacific in Colorado are absolutely unrivaled on this continent.

"FOR peculiarly soft yet penetrating shades of color, marvelous grouping in form, fantastic, solemn and tender shaping of rugged cliff and mountain and valley," says a distinguished artist, "the wonderful empire of Colorado stands peerless." The Alpine scenery along the line of the South Park Division of the Union Pacific in Colorado is the most magnificent in the United States.

MORAN, the great artist, despaired when he saw the Great Shoshone Falls,—it was so far beyond his pencil's cunning. So there are wonderful dreams of beauty in the tempestuous loveliness of the grand "American Alps," in Colorado, which are at once the aspiration and the despair of painter and poet. Splendid beyond comparison is the superb scenery along the South Park Division of the Union Pacific in Colorado.

"THEY rested there—escaped awhile
From cares which wear the life away,
To eat the lotus of the Nile
And drink the poppies of Cathay."—

And every American business man is beginning to find that his summer vacation is more and more a necessity; the money making machine won't stand the strain without an occasional rest. The "American Alps" of Colorado offer the highest conditions for perfect relaxation, pure vital air, comfortable hotels and the noblest scenery in the country, and may be reached on the South Park Division of the Union Pacific Railway.

IT is un-American in the highest sense for our people to prate about Europe so glibly when so many of them are profoundly ignorant of the wondrous beauties of their native land. As a matter of fact there are hundreds of thousands of American citizens who are thoroughly familiar with Switzerland; who have idled away weeks at Lucerne, done Chamouni, and attempted the Matterhorn, and yet have never feasted on the lovely beauty, the wild, weird majesty of any one of the Colorado Peaks. "More than Alpine glory," rewards visitors along the South Park Division of the Union Pacific in Colorado. There is no scenery like it in the new world.

"THE peerless empire of form and color, is found in Colorado," says a great artist. So are many other very wonderful effects. There is that grand triumph of engineering skill, the Bow Knot Loop, famed all over the world; the pretty town of Graymont nestled against the base of Gray's Peak, the giant prince of the range; sunrise on Gray's Peak—a sight once witnessed never to be forgotten: Idaho Springs the beautiful, a restful spot blessed with the healing waters for all who come, within two hours' ride of young leviathan Denver: the storied gold camp of Georgetown, perched in the upper air of the mountains ever fresh and cool and clear—these are a few of the delightful spots in the "American Alps" reached by the Colorado Central Division of the Union Pacific Railway in Colorado.

Advice to Mothers.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. 28y1

H. B. BRUMBAUGH, Editor,
And Business Manager of the Eastern House, Box 50, Huntingdon, Pa.

WE are glad to state that the debt on the Altoona church has been fully cancelled, with a small balance left, which was voted to the Treasurer, John H. Stiffler, as a small token of appreciation for the time and labor he devoted to the work given to his charge.

AT the District Meeting, we had the pleasure of meeting our much esteemed, and aged elder, Jacob Miller. His health is not so good as it formerly was, yet he is thankful that it is no worse, and is patiently abiding his time and waiting for the Master's call.

EVERY Sunday-school in the Brotherhood, should have a supply of "Gospel Chimes." The music and hymns are well adapted to the purpose, and will add greatly to the interest of the schools. Single copy, 30 cents, or $3.00 per dozen, postpaid; by express, $2.60 per dozen. Send in your orders, and try them.

ELDER JOHN STUDEBAKER and his companion, are now visiting their friends in Morrison's Cove. It was there that they were born and raised, and as they, in their old age, revisit the scenes of their childhood days, no doubt, many pleasant reminiscences will loom up before them. The scenes of childhood are always pleasant recurrences that afford us peculiar pleasure. We wish them an enjoyable visit and a safer return.

OUR brethren throughout the State are receiving circulars enclosed in sealed and stamped envelopes against Prohibition, entitled "The teachings and examples of Christ in regard to wine," "The first miracle of Christ," etc. In the first one is practically reiterated the charge made against Christ by the hypocritical Pharisees, that he was a "wine-bibber." It is the poison of the asp under the cloak of a saint. Another is "A sermon preached in St. Peter's Church, at Rockville on Jan. 17, '86," no State given and the name of the minister left out. The probabilities are that it is written by a hireling of the whisky congress. The fact that all these circulars are printed, paid for and sent out by the "Distillers and Brewers' Association" ought to be a sufficient reason for all Christian people to throw them into the fire. Can a foul and polluted fountain send out that which is pure and good? Brethren should not allow themselves to be deceived by such men whose only object is to make money by destroying homes and ruining souls.

OUR COMMUNION MEETING.

THERE are no meetings held during the year that are looked forward to with a greater degree of pleasure, by devoted church members, than the communion meetings. This is because we expect something that will be satisfactory and profitable to our spiritual life. And if we have the love of God in our hearts, we will not be disappointed, as for the soul the meeting gives a bountiful feast. On this occasion we were made glad by having with us an unusual number of ministers. Elder J. F. Oller, and B. E. Price, of Waynesbore, D. M. Foglesanger, of Shippensburg, and Geo. Brumbaugh, of Graften, all came to our help and encouragement.

For some time we felt the need of having a brother called to assist us in the ministry, and as we had, at a late church meeting, decided to hold our election for this purpose, the work was attended to at the close of the examination services, and resulted in the calling of Bro. J. B. Brumbaugh to the position. And as this took from us our only resident deacon, the church was called together, and it was decided to call two deacons. The election was held, and the choice fell upon brethren D. C. Burkholder and Wm. Beery.

The church was again called together, and those called were installed into their offices, by Elder J. F. Oller. They all humbly accepted their respective positions, and, we hope, will prove active helpers in the promotion of the good work.

In the evening we held a very quiet, and pleasant communion service, which, we believe, was enjoyed by all who participated in the ordinances of the Lord's house. Our attending to these things is not so much a duty as a privilege. The blessings are for us, and so we ought to regard them.

On Sunday morning, we had the brethren with us at our Sunday-school, and Bible classes, at the close of which, Bro. Foglesanger gave a talk to the school. Bro. Oller then preached a practical sermon on the duties of church members, which was listened to with interest, and, we hope, with profit. At 3 o'clock we had a song service by Bro. Beery, using "Gospel Chimes," our new music book for Sunday-schools, religious meetings, etc. The singing was very good, and we feel sure if our lovers of sweet music had been present, the demand for the book would be greatly increased.

In the evening Bro. Hollinger preached for us to a good audience, and thus ended a day of very interesting profitable religious service. As our District Meeting did not open until Wednesday morning, our brethren consented to remain with us over Monday, and we made an appointment for the evening, which was filled by Bro. Foglesanger. In the evening, however, our ministerial force was considerably enlarged, by a number of the eastern and southern delegates stopping off on the way to District Meeting.

MIDDLE PENNSYLVANIA DISTRICT MEETING.

ON Tuesday morning a company of us, some forty, took the train at this place for "Cove," the nearest station to the place of meeting, where we were met by ten conveyances, being just enough to take us all in, and give us comfortable seating, as we were being wended over Tussey's Mountain. The morning being as fine as nature could well make it, everybody seemed to be in an unusually happy mood, so that the ride seemed short, and could not be otherwise than enjoyable to those who can see beauty in that which God has made beautiful. It was the season of beauty, and it was spread all around with lavish hand. Within several hundred yards we saw, in full bloom, the Crab Apple, Dogwood, Redwood, White Thorn, the Honey Suckle, and a number of other smaller shrubs, all beautiful to behold, while shedding their fragrance all around, thus giving an inspiration that lifted many hearts up in grateful praise to the Giver and Dispenser of all good. One of the old brethren was so enraptured at what he saw that, when leading in the morning worship, he referred to it, and said, "If we can so much admire and enjoy the beauty that God has placed around us here, what will it be when we get 'over there,' where the ravages of sin will no more mar that which He has made for our eternal enjoyment?"

On reaching the place of meeting, the delegation received a hearty Christian welcome, and a plentiful dinner was in readiness for all.

There having already assembled a large number of members and friends, a preaching service was held at 3 o'clock, and a Temperance service in the evening. This service was conducted by Elder Peter Myers, late of Illinois, and J. M. Mohler. Our duty as a church, professing temperance, principles, were plainly stated, and, we hope, will be attended with the best of results.

At 8:30, on Wednesday morning, the meeting was regularly organized, and at once entered upon the work brought before it. And the spirit manifested throughout, was most Christian, so that at the close the general remark was, that it was the most pleasant, and harmonious meeting held for years. A number came to the meeting with the intention of voting for a division of the District, not because of a dissatisfaction existing, but for convenience and a better representation, but when the time for voting came, it was to remain together, and thus avoid the severing of the strong fraternal feeling, that was so apparent among the churches.

When evening came the business was all attended to, and it was decided to hold a missionary meeting at 7:30, to be made up of ten-minute talks. The meeting proved very interesting, and a new inspiration was given to the work.

On Thursday morning we were again conveyed across the mountain, on our homeward way, feeling that it was good for us to be there.

The Clover Creek church, where the meeting was held, had made ample provision, so that the entertainment was all that could be desired. And the weather being fair and favorable throughout, we had all the elements necessary to success together, so that it could not be otherwise than a pleasant and desirable meeting, which it truly was.

ESSAYS.

"Study to show thyself approved unto God; a workman that needeth not be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth."

TEMPERANCE HYMN.

BY ADALINE HOFF BEERY.

God of might,
Truth and right,
Hear Thy people's prayer to-day;
Send a flame
In Thy name
That shall wipe the curse away!

Gird us all
From dark thrall
Neighbors, friends, and kin to save:
When men sup
Ruin's red cup,
Snatch them from its fiery grave!

Hasten down
With thy frown
For the cruel, shameless trade;
Right we choose,
And will use
To the death Thy temperance blade!

Out and in,
Chained in sin,
Drunkards wear the demon's brand:
Grave thy laws,
Win our cause,
And redeem our native land.

"ONLY BELIEVE."

BY SADIE C. BRALLIER.

To Mrs. E. G:—

Your letter is here, but as you have not given me your address, I will have to respond in a public manner. There is much I would like to say, but so little that I feel competent of saying. Being so many years your junior, I feel a reluctance in addressing you at all, yet God is great and wise, and to Him I humbly look for help. Surely, he will guide my pen, and bless the letter to your good.

Salvation, peace, and all our hopes of heaven are hinged upon the vital word, "BELIEVE" "Said I not unto thee, that if thou wouldst only believe, thou shouldst see the glory of God." Alas, for obstinate humanity! Nine-tenths of the souls that go to ruin, go down through unbelief. A true believer has never yet been lost, and never shall be; for, "whosoever believeth on Him shall not perish, but have everlasting life." Centuries may come and go, and even Nature reverses the course, but this is a mighty and eternal truth that will stand firm and steadfast when heaven and earth have passed away.

You come with your burden of sins and grief, and after a minute recital, wail: "What shall I do?" Believe and trust! It is all that you can do,—your only alternative. To what source can the sin-sick soul apply, but to the Source of sources,—the tender arms of the dear, forgiving Savior, who has said: "Come unto me, ye weary and heavy laden and I will give you rest?" O, precious promise! not a temporary rest, from which the soul will wake to grief and pain again; not a rest to be disturbed by troubled dreams, not a rest to be intruded on by painful memory. Oh, no! It is a blessed, SWEET, ETERNAL REST, —a rest for which your spirit yearns and weeps but which you have not realized because of unbelief.

You say: "I do believe there is a God, and that Jesus died to save the souls of men." Ah, my sister, that will not suffice. "The devils also believe and tremble." Until you believe that Jesus died for you, and feel that his heart's blood has cleansed your sins, you cannot grasp the Christian's hope, or claim a mansion with the purified above. Until then you are lost, and wholly lost. Though you sacrifice your gold to feed the poor; though you deny yourself the fashions of the world, and even give your body to be burned and have not faith, you still are lost.

Don't let Satan cheat you into the deceptive hope that outward forms alone, can bring salvation to the soul. It is one of the blackest lies that his venomed tongue has ever issued. True, God's holy ordinances must be kept, and to evade the least of them means ruin to the bold transgressor, but obedience to the last command within the Gospel lids cannot avail, when the heart is filled with unbelief. You must have faith,—faith to believe that Jesus died for you,—faith to believe that his precious blood has power to cleanse you from all sin. Otherwise, you might plead for pardon all your life, and still be lost forever; for "HE THAT BELIEVETH NOT SHALL BE DAMNED."

Just, yet awful retribution! O, my heart weeps agonizing tears, and my soul cries out to God in wails that know no words, because one being for whom the Prince of Heaven died should be bound by the chains of hell, and towed along by Satan, down, down, down, to the doleful regions of maddening woe, "where the worm dieth not and the fire is not quenched," and all for unbelief!

Dear sister, lay not such heavy stress upon your by-gone guilt and sins, nor in such wild, distracted terror cry, that they will bar your soul from Heaven. "O, thou of little faith!" Surely, he who raised the dead to life again, has likewise power to restore the dead in sin, to righteousness and peace. By the authority of the Most High God I declare to you that there is virtue enough in the blood of Christ to drown the vilest sins that ever stained the human heart. Though your soul has waded in the dark sea of iniquity these many years, yea, though you had reveled with idolaters and harlots and liars and infidels all your life,—what matter? Jesus died for you, and through that shameful death obtained your pardon, if you will but accept it. He has promised, "Though thy sins are as scarlet, they shall be whiter than snow," and verily his promises are true and steadfast to all who know the worth of faith. "Arise, and go in peace."

Only believe. Your life of woe shall be transformed into a hymn of gladness, when you have learned the mystery of faith. What matter then, though Satan scoffs and hisses when you pray? Pray on. Let not his fiendish presence terrify you from your trembling knees. He will vanish when you speak the holy name of Jesus; for in that name is ample power to overcome a multitude of devils,—yea, to subdue the utmost forces of hell!

Then, brace up, my sister! Other hearts than yours have wrestled with the demon of darkness, and almost fainted in the mighty struggle. Other souls than yours have been tempted to believe that their sins were beyond forgiveness. But, thanks be to God, there are those who took for their weapon the Spirit of Truth and pierced the monster's heart, until his foul blood spurted forth from every pore. With "joy unspeakable and full of glory," they triumphed over their assailant and now are valiant soldiers in the service of the dear Lord Jesus. God forbid that you should fall upon the battle-field, where other hearts as week and vile as yours, have been restored to strength and purity.

You ask, "Will I be lost?" Dear sister, the answer is not mine to give. You yourself must decide that question. Certain it is, you need not be. If you go to perdition, you go through your own soul's consent. God has prepared a way by which you can escape, and sent his son to lead you to the haven of eternal bliss. Only let him take your hand, and he will not allow you to be lost, though hell should marshal all its host to drive you to the awful pit. Oh! mount the golden wings of faith, soar far beyond the fiery darts of the infernal one, and thank God for the priceless gift of Jesus, and the glorious hope of a blessed immortality. In trustful confidence flee to the open arms of a waiting Savior, and, with a loud hallelujah, cry: "Jesus, Lord and Master! I do believe. Take me,—I am thine!" O may the love of God be with you, the power of Jesus convert you, the Holy Ghost direct you, and guide you to the home of everlasting joy! Amen and amen.

FORGIVING FROM THE HEART.

BY WM. M. LYON.

"So likewise shall my heavenly Father do also unto you, if ye from your hearts forgive not every one his brother their trespasses."—Matt. 18: 35.

From this text, as well as that part of our Lord's prayer (Matt. 6: 12) which says, "Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors," we learn that God has promised to forgive us our sins only to the extent that we are willing to, and do forgive the trespasses committed against us. Mark the language of our Savior in this parable when he says, "from your hearts." This expression demands our most prayerful consideration.

What do we understand forgiving from the heart to mean? Let us illustrate.

Bro. A. offended Bro. B. last month. According to Scripture, the latter went to the former and told him wherein he had hurt his feelings, whereupon the offender asked forgiveness, which was granted (?). Last week poor brother A., from some cause, did another certain thing, greatly to the displeasure of brother B., and almost before the erring mortal had time to appear before brother B., and "confess his faults," again the aggrieved one rushes upon him and rashly recites to him the character of the last trespass and also takes good care not to forget to say to Bro. A., "It's no more than I had expected, for I remember your former actions."

The question now arises, "Had brother B. forgiven brother A. from his heart?" According to my mind, if we forgive from the heart to-day, it remains forgiven forever.

We do not, upon every succeeding provocation bring up the buried things of the past and hurl them again at our erring brother. Were God to deal in this manner toward his children, none would be able to stand.

"To err is human, but to forgive, divine."

"Blessed are the merciful, for they shall obtain mercy."

Again, if we forgive from the heart, we are willing to admit our offending brother into friendship and familiarity again and our heart will be toward him as it formerly was.

In regard to this matter, I can not do better than quote from Mr. Whitby in his commenting on this subject. Says he, "This remission must be

"(1) Without delay, before the sun goes down, (Paul) before we go to our devotions, for when you pray, saith Christ, forgive. (Mark 11: 15.) Seeing we pray to God for forgiveness at present, and if we do not thus forgive, we can not say, "Forgive us as we forgive."

"(2) It must be an entire forgiveness of all, even the most heinous crimes, for this the example of the "ten thousand talents," forgiven by our Lord, requires. (Matt. 18: 24.) And otherwise, when we pray to be forgiven as we ourselves forgive, we pray that our greatest crimes may not be forgiven.

"(3) This forgiveness must be extended to our brother, though he doth frequently offend. (Luke 17), for we pray daily to God for the remission of our daily sins."

Let us see to it, then, dear brethren, that we are qualified to pass the examination of God's Word upon this subject.

Let us remember that to the extent that we hold ill-will, malice, envy, jealousy, or anything that pertains to evil, against our brother, according to the same measure God will deal with us, for Christ himself hath said, "So likewise shall my heavenly Father do also unto you."

THE CHRISTIAN'S ENJOYMENT.

BY FLORIDA J. ETTER.

Most of us who profess to be children of God have had some experience in this. I can speak freely from myself, and hope others can do the same. While I have passed through many severe trials for the sake of my dear Savior, feeling almost cast down, but not utterly destroyed, the Lord made a way for me to escape, and I can praise him for it. His works are mysterious and past finding out. He tests our faith in various ways, and he is more likely to lead us through the furnace of affliction than in any other way, as he did Job. The sinner thinks he has pleasure here, but he knows nothing of true pleasure. Earthly things will soon die out, and then what has he to base his hopes upon? All of his enjoyments here only tend to lead him to endless ruin, where there is no eye to pity.

The Christian can have hope! If he faithfully discharges his duty, obeys God and keeps all of his commandments, not leaving one undone, then he has the promise. We must be living epistles, "known and read of all men. For whosoever shall keep the whole law, and yet offend in one point, is guilty of all."

If you search the Scriptures, as commanded in Jas. 2: 10, you will find your duty as plain as the alphabet. Don't pass by one single command, but carefully study all, and then obey.

Some will say, What pleasure is it to be a Christian? It tends to make us more useful in this world, and lifts our thoughts to higher attainments. It qualifies us for a nobler purpose, and sweetens our enjoyments here and in the world to come. It tends to fill our minds with a greater degree of wisdom and knowledge, which will prove beneficial to our spiritual welfare. I think if we will take heed and follow the brotherly advice of Bro. Daniel Vaniman, found in Gospel Messenger, No. 3, we will do well. We will be much happier here, and also in the world to come. Let us be more resolute, energetic and zealous in the cause of our Master, and we have the promise that all shall be well for us. Pray for me that I may be faithful, that I may be able to do his holy will, which is my greatest desire, above all others.

THE LORD'S PRAYER.

BY SARAH M. SAUNDERS.

In Matt. 6, Christ gave unto his disciples the most sublime and eloquent of sermons, not as the wisdom of the world dictates, but as best suited to their needs and their understanding, telling them how to give alms, how to fast, and how to pray.

In the seventh verse he warns them to avoid "vain repetitions as the heathen do;" for, he says, "they think that they shall be heard for their much speaking."

Can not we, as his disciples, learn a grand lesson from this model sermon, especially in regard to public prayer?

The habit or custom of offering a long-drawn-out prayer, closing with an "Amen," and then some one else hurriedly repeating the Lord's Prayer, as is sometimes done, is not quite in harmony with our divine model.

"Our Father which art in heaven," what a sacred kinship is here assumed! We poor mortals call upon the great Jehovah as a child to its parent.

"Hallowed be thy name,"—may thy name be held in sacred reverence and awe,—never spoken in a light and thoughtless manner.

"Thy kingdom come, thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven," shows that we are perfectly resigned to all his dealings with the human family.

"Give us this day our daily bread." We are dependent upon him for the necessary nourishment for these frail bodies of ours.

"Forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors." What a solemn and a terrible petition this might be to us! If we do not forgive men their trespasses against us, neither can we expect our Father to forgive us our trespasses.

"And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil," direct us in the way which leads us away from temptation, and keep us from all harm.

"For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory forever. Amen." Such a comprehensive prayer was never framed by man. When we pray we should remember that our Father knoweth what things we have need of, before we ask him. The publican prayed a very short prayer. "Lord, have mercy upon me a sinner!" The thief on the cross could only say, "Remember me." In secret or private prayer we only ask for what we want. Then, why such long prayers in the congregation?

A GOOD WORD FOR BONNETS.

BY J. S. FLORY.

The following is going the rounds of the press: "Dr. D. Hayes Agnew says that he never saw a case of nasal catarrh among females belonging to the societies of Friends, Dunkards, or Mennonites. He thinks the bonnets of these people protect them from the disease."

The editor of a Chicago paper says: "It is pertinent to inquire whether the other conditions of dress and living may not contribute to the result noted." Thus we see that the Bible principle of non-conformity, — the opposite of worldly fashion,—meets, occasionally with commendation from persons who understand the propriety of the common-sense principle as applied to right living. It is a fact worthy of note that the principles of non-conformity, as expressed in the Gospel and understood by the church, harmonize with the laws of health as well as tend to a right cultivation of the Christian graces. Good health and a high state of spiritual life and enjoyment being essential to our happiness, it is passing strange that any one, professing to be a follower of Christ, will live in open rebellion to the Gospel and church, and become a mock show for fashion and folly.

ONLY ONE LETTER.

BY C. H. BALSBAUGH.

How insignificant it seems: only an "s" instead of an "r." Some weeks ago when I received my anonymous package of fruit from some southern locality, my first thought was, Who? and Why? The why gave me my caption, which was "The Great Chasm," instead of the Great Charm. The two are so nearly synonymous that it is probable no reader was conscious of any discrepancy. Yet thousands claim to find an irresistible charm in religion, who know nothing of the bottomless, bridgeless chasm it necessitates between the flesh and the Spirit. God is not heedless of the iota in His Alphabet. Where He makes a dot he claims our loyalty. The written word is only the letter-form of the Eternal Word. We do not halt or stick in the letter, but make it the avenue to a true, personal, conscious finding of God Himself. The Universe is God's vestment. He is known by the things that are made. Rom. 1: 19, 20. We see Him dimly in, but more largely through, the visible. There is a Christian Pantheism, but it identifies not God with matter. Baptism is not salvation, but a beautiful symbol of it. Bread and wine are only Bread and Wine, but the index to the most stupendous realities in the mysterious Tri-Personality of the Godhead, and the equally mysterious experience of the Christian life. We do because we live, and maintain, and develop—and perfect life by doing. Without faith there is no life, and without life no obedience. Not observance of ordinances is obedience, but observance as the expression of God in us by faith. We are offered a whole Christ, in whom dwells all the fullness of the Godhead bodily; faith appropriates Him, and then embodies Him in all the details of life. Symbols are only a peculiar and pictorial concentration of God in us, which are meant to stand for our real and hourly life. What liars and falsifiers most professing Christians are! The Lord's Supper is only a sample of all our suppers. If we eat to the glory of God at home, we will not eat and drink damnation to ourselves at the communion table. A dreadful delusion prevails as to what Christianity really is.

Emmanuel is much more than proximity, or even conjunction; it is the Word made flesh, Deity humanized and still remaining God. The life of Jehovah intwisted in the Seed of the woman as radically and essentially as that of any human father. And He is the First-born among many brethren. "My Father, and Your Father, My God and Your God." John 20: 17. "I in them, and Thou in me." John 17: 23. We are so centrally corrupt that no medication will do that does not new-create, new-character, new-personalize us. The Charm of Jesus is that he loves us enough to die for the consummation of this grand purpose. And the great chasm is the utter and eternal excision from the Adamic or self life. This strait gate the flesh shudders to enter, and hence few are saved. There is much doubt, and uncertainty, and unrest, and unhappiness in the church from the very cause. Ordinance, dress, tradition punctuality in externals in all relations of life, is the sum of their religion.

Is Christ your life, your peace, your rest, your present salvation? These are questions which many hesitate to answer. And yet an affirmative is the only possibility of that position and consciousness which the Bible terms salvation. To "contend earnestly for the faith once delivered to the saints" is to live as Jesus lived, and brave the world's scorn and the devil's hate. It is not essential whether the cap-string is one inch by six, or one and a half by ten, or of a lighter or deeper shade. And yet both these little items are of tremendous import according to motive. Jesus must be both Charm and Chasm. He is high, and glorious, and beautiful, and perfect enough for the one, and radical authoritative enough for the other. We are to be worthy of God, because He walks in us. Col. 1: 10; 2 Cor. 6: 16–

18. We can be our true selves only when God is all and in all. Christ in us makes us miniature Gods. Christ was not a myth, and being born of God is not a metaphor. Let us not rest short of likeness to God.

PRAYER.

BY J. H. MILLER.

THIS subject, I fear is too much neglected by us as professors. The language of Christ is, "Ask and ye shall receive; seek and ye shall find; knock and it shall be opened unto you; for every one that asketh, receiveth; and he that seeketh, findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened." This is prayer. We ask God for what we need; we thank God for what we receive from him. When I am needy, and have no money to supply my wants, I go to some of my brethren, and ask them to supply my need. That is prayer. After I receive it, I thank my brethren for that special favor conferred upon me. That is thanksgiving. We come before God in prayer. We ask God to confer favors upon us,—that is prayer. We thank God for this rich blessing,—that is thanksgiving.

A kneeling posture, is commendable with God. See 2 Chron. 6:13; Ez. 9:5. "O come, let us worship, and bow down, let us kneel before the Lord, our Maker." Ps. 95:6; Daniel 6:10. Stephen, the first martyr, was found kneeling, and praying to God. "Lord lay not this sin to their charge." The apostle Peter was upon his knees praying, and turning to Tabitha, said, "Arise." We find Paul fell upon his knees and prayed before he bade adieu to those he loved so well. Acts 21:5, Paul exhorts his brethren to unity, and oneness in Christ. "For this cause I bow my knees unto the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ."

By those references we see the holy men of the Old and also of the New Testament, would pray in kneeling posture. In certain localities some of our members do not bow in prayer, and, in others, most of the young people do not regard God enough to reverence his holy name, by kneeling in prayer. Brethren, who is to blame for this? Perhaps we, as ministers, do not speak of it in public, as we should.

While traveling in Canada, I was favorably impressed with the idea of prayer. I was among the different classes of Christian professors, and, in almost every family, I found the family altar. Children from the least to the greatest were ready and willing to engage in these solemn services. Another noticeable feature impressed me while there. At the table, before eating, either the husband or wife, or the visitor, would pray the Lord's blessing upon the meal before them. After all at the table had satisfied the returning wants of nature (no one leaving the table), thanks were returned. In the evening and the morning the children were called around the family altar. A Scripture was read, all fell upon their knees in prayer, and it is no wonder these children are so tenacious, and so fixed in principle, that they will not change from the early training in childhood days. "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he gets old, he will not depart from it."

I have been in Brethren's families, at family worship, where some of the children would not bow with us. I presume the reason was that those children never had such training while young, and when old enough to go to church, would sit back amongst those who never bow, hence felt under no obligation to bow in prayer.

Again I have met some Christian professors, whose children, while at the table, could not remain silent long enough until a blessing was asked. Those parents would feel ashamed, because of their unruly children. Who is to blame for all of this, the children, or the parents? Hear Paul to the Ephesian brethren, "Bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord." I am fearful that some of us parents are losing sight of the Bible training. Hear what Moses was commanded to do at the commandment of the Lord: "Thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children, and shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up.

The Israelites were commanded to teach the law to their children, and teach them diligently. Brethren, and sisters, how about the Gospel? Do we teach it diligently? Do we pray often, and teach our children to pray, and to bow with us in prayer? I have met some brethren, who were very anxious about their children, and would say to me, "Bro. Miller, talk to my son, or daughter. I want them saved." Perhaps a little more care bestowed upon them, while young, would have gained them. I wonder how some fathers and mothers will feel in the day of judgment, when their children will, perhaps, reveal a secret, "I never heard my father and mother pray."

Prayer is the Christian's native air. A fish can not live outside of water, neither can a Christian live a godly life outside of prayer. Daniel and David would come before God three times a day in prayer. We need our regular meals, to give us physical strength. We must go to God regular in prayer, to get spiritual strength. "Pray without ceasing."

Not long since, I was requested to hold a children's meeting. I called the little folks to the front seats, read from the Bible, and told them their duties. How eager they were to hear and learn! I told them that God loves little children, and children should love their Heavenly Father, and always bow in prayer, when the congregation bows in solemn worship. Some children were there, who never had such training, and while one little boy or girl would bow by their side, they became ashamed of themselves, and also bowed with us. Those children's meetings, I feel are a grand nursery to the church, and will help us much in the divine life. May God help us all to "watch and pray," that we enter not into temptation.

CONDITION OF THE DEAD.

BY MRS. SAMUEL NEAL.

AN article under this head appeared in the GOSPEL MESSENGER of October 14, 1888, which introduced a very important subject, though one which we seldom hear spoken of from the pulpit. I must, in all deference to the author of that article, differ from him concerning the apparent silence of the Bible on the subject, for, surely, we can find much in Holy Writ to dispel the appearance of mystery with which modern theology seeks to surround it. Surely, when the terrible delusion of Spiritualism is spreading so rapidly in our land, it is very important that we go to God's Word with great earnestness, to learn from the only reliable source of knowledge, something to fortify us against the assaults of Satan, in the shape of lying delusions, propagated by a false teacher, and greedily received by the unsuspecting and untaught of the human family.

Spiritualism is defined by Webster to be, "A belief in the frequent communication of intelligence from the world of spirits, by means of physical phenomena, commonly manifested through a person of special susceptibility, called a medium."

Now it will be readily seen that the truth or falsehood of Spiritualism depends upon what is the true doctrine concerning the state of the dead. N. F. Rawlin, a Spiritualist lecturer, of California, says, "The very central truth of Spiritualism, is the power of spirit return under certain conditions, to communicate with those in material form."

Now let us see what we can find in the Word of God, concerning the power and possibility of spirit return. The Word teaches that there is no remembrance in death, nor can we give thanks in the grave. Ps. 6:5. Our thoughts perish at the day of our death. Ps. 146:4. This excludes the possibility of a spirit returning, and also of probation after death, as the dead "know not any thing, neither have they any more reward." Eccl. 9:5, 6; Job 14:20, 21; we are also taught cheerful dependence upon the Lord. "Go thy way, eat thy bread with joy, and drink thy wine with a merry heart; for God now accepteth thy works. Eccl. 9:7. This surely means now, in the present life, as the foregoing verses teach that probation ceases at death. We are to strive to follow the Lord in the way of his commandments.

Now, as the phenomenal aspect of modern Spiritualism reproduces all the essential elements or principles of the magic, witchcraft and sorcery of the past, let us examine the law of God, concerning those. "A man, also, or a woman who hath a familiar spirit, or is a wizard, shall surely be put to death." Lev. 20:27; Deut. 18:10-12; Ex. 22:18. Here we find the penalty of death attached to the crime of witchcraft. Paul also classes it with a list of vices,—of such as he had taught them, in time past, "that they which do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God." Gal. 5:19, 20, and 21.

John says, "Beloved, believe not every spirit, but try the spirits, whether they be of God." 1 John 4:1. The prophet gives us the test, "To the law, and to the testimony; if they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them." Isa. 8:20. "Prove all things, and hold fast that which is good." 2 Thess. 5:21.

COME TO THE SAVIOR!

BY ANNA E. NETTROUR.

"Him that cometh to me I will in no wise cast out."—John 6:37.

YOU are invited to come to Christ. How are you to go? Not literally; that cannot be. Jesus has gone away; he is on the throne of the universe. The affairs of all worlds are under his government, and yet you may go to him,—go to him as really as if you could touch his person, and live in his visible presence!

Christ is your great High-priest. As such he once offered himself up for sins. He stood as your surety in the most momentous of all positions. He suffered,—the just for the unjust. He bore your griefs, and carried your sorrows. The Lord laid on him your iniquities. If you go to him, receive him as your Savior, and put your trust in him, he will in no wise cast you out.

Christ is infinitely able to save you. Man is powerless to save, angels are powerless to save, but nothing is impossible to him. You may be deeply sunk in sin, but he can raise you up from the horrible pit and miry clay. You may be stained with sins of crimson dye, but he can purge you, and make you whiter than the snow. A multitude which no man can number, have been washed in his precious blood, but the cleansing virtue of that blood is as great now as ever.

Christ is infinitely kind. You may be a sinner of the greatest enormity, you may have had godly parents, your teachers may have been earnestly religious, but you may have drowned convictions in worldliness and sin,—you may have spent many a long year in infidelity and vice. You may now stand on the shore of a dark eternity,—worn-out with sin,—but you need not despair. The mercy of the Lord reacheth unto the clouds. Christ is still willing to receive you. Beyond all knowledge is his love. It is an ocean, which no line can fathom, and no shore can bound. His mercy endureth forever. Tell me not that your iniquities are too black to be forgiven. The blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth from all sin.

An excellent and pious man, when on his death-bed, was for some time under considerable darkness respecting his spiritual state, and said to a friend: "For all that I have preached or written, there is but one Scripture I can remember, or dare grip to; tell me if I dare lay the weight of my salvation upon it, 'Him that cometh to me I will in no wise cast out.'" The friend replied, "You may depend upon it, though you had a thousand salvations at hazard."

It was a most true and wise reply. A man may make a promise, and may change his mind, and be unwilling to perform it. Not so Christ. He is the same yesterday, to-day, and forever. A man may make a promise and be afterward placed in circumstances in which he is unable to fulfill it. Not so Christ. All power in heaven and in earth is his. A man may make a promise, and may be indifferent whether it be realized or not. Not so with Christ. He longs with unchanging love for your eternal welfare. You may, then, depend on his word, though you had a thousand salvations at hazard. Do not distrust the Savior's promise. Take him at his word! You may rely on him with assured confidence. "This man receiveth sinners." You may be deeply unworthy; you may have wandered from him ever so far, but Jesus is gracious. He invites, encourages, beseeches you to come to him, and you may be sure that if you do so, he will prove true to his promise, and never cast you out.

OUR MINISTERS.

BY G. S. STODDARD.

"As we have therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men, especially unto them who are of the household of faith." —Gal. 6: 10.

Are we, as a church, strictly obeying the command as given by Paul in this passage of Scripture? We elect our brethren to the ministry, and, I believe, nearly all of them go forth and strive to do all they can to build up Christ's church here below. Now the question is, "Can we be like faithful Aaron and Hur?" Though we cannot preach, we can hold up the hands of our ministers. There are many ways by which even the poorest brother can do something to help send the Gospel to every creature. Nearly all of our ministers have to labor with their own hands in order to provide for their families. Many of them have farms, and often go from ten to thirty miles to their appointments, using one or two days of the week, for which they get no pecuniary compensation.

Now, brethren, let us think for a moment. We will say it is time that we had our spring crops planted and sown. We are in a hurry. It is already Friday, and if we could be at home Saturday and Monday, we could, perhaps, get our crops in, but we have to fill our appointment, which will take two days. We are not able to hire, so everything has to stop while we go and preach. Perhaps we have to pay a dollar or two railroad fare. Would we not feel thankful on returning home to find that some kind brother had been there, and that, instead of our crops being two or three days later, they were ready to grow? I do not believe in a salaried ministry, but we are told to bear one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ. It may be almost impossible for us to give a dollar in money; still I do not believe that there is a brother in the church who could not give our ministers at least one or two days' work on their farms during the summer, and never be the poorer for it. In fact I believe they would feel better in knowing they had done something for Christ's sake, who has done so much for us.

As our ministers have to spend so much time and money, I do not think it is right for them, when there has to be money raised to defray the expenses of love-feasts, etc., to be obliged to help, as I believe the time and money which they use in preaching ought to be their share, and even then they have the largest share to pay.

Dear brethren, let us think the matter over, and see if we are using the talents which God has given us to use in his service, or it may be said of us as it was unto the unprofitable servant. Paul says, "Look not every man on his own things, but every man also on the things of others." Let us not only look on our own crops, but while our brethren are called away to minister to the spiritual wants of the people, let us see if we can not lend a helping hand to them in their temporal wants.

"Let none hear you idly saying,
There is nothing I can do.
While the souls of men are dying,
And the Master calls for you.
Take the task he gives you gladly,
Let his work your pleasure be,
Answer quickly when he calleth,
Here am I, send me, send me."

LET US CROWN OUR YOUNG HEADS.

BY FANNIE E. KEMPER.

I do not mean literally to "crown our heads" with regal diadems, dazzling with jewels, and which but few are destined to wear, but crowns made by our own actions, that make us richer than the richest king, and the gems of which are brighter than the brightest diamonds.

These crowns are priceless, yet each of us may wear one if we only try.

It is very necessary that we should have an education. How very embarrassing it would be if we should go through life, ignorant of much of the knowledge that we might obtain by making an effort in that direction! We should all endeavor to "crown our heads" with knowledge. There is but one way in which this can be done, and that is by applying ourselves diligently to books, and studying what they contain. For this purpose we have our schools, and we should employ every moment of our time, while we are there, by trying to do our duty.

The human mind may truly be compared to a block of marble in the hands of the sculptor, which either becomes a form of beauty and of grace, or one of defects,—unsightly to behold. Aspiring youth looks through the dim vista of the future, and beholds the beacon light shining from "Fame's proud temple." Soon though, a murky atmosphere gathered around him, and the way becomes steep and difficult. Disheartened, he prepares to give up the struggle, but suddenly there comes a voice, whispering, "There is no excellence without labor." Let it be thy motto! When hills of difficulty arise, toil on! When mists bewilder thee, wait for the sunlight. No matter how hard our tasks may be, we should go to work and conquer them!

We can not but admire the untiring perseverance and industry of Napoleon, who waited not for fickle fortune's smile, but gained by his own exertions the top of the ladder. His well-known words to his soldiers on ascending the Alps, "Onward! Forward! henceforth let there be no Alps," would alone suffice to show his untiring spirit. He made history, and wrote it, and left it behind him in words as lasting as the pyramids.

Let us dig deep for knowledge, for in searching for one thing we may find many. It is quite easy to perform our duties when they are pleasant and imply no self-sacrifice. The test of principle is to perform them with equal readiness when they are disagreeable.

We can not expect life to have no dark clouds in its sky, so we must learn to do things which are a little difficult, as well as those which have all pleasure in them. Some people inform us that they do not "travel in the old ruts." As a general thing it is better to stay where we are than to flounder along in the mud, as too many enterprising geniuses of to-day are doing.

The over-prudent see only the difficulties, the bold the advantages of a great enterprise. What can be done without work, study and time? Jerusalem was not built in a day, neither were the "Hanging Gardens" of Babylon; none of them were built without labor. It took many days and months, and a great amount of work to construct these grand cities and wonders of ancient times. It is said that Semiramis employed over two millions of workmen, and that for years, in order to adorn Babylon.

There are many other crowns with which we should try to decorate our heads, besides those of learning and patience. We must have good morals and kind, loving dispositions, if we wish to be beloved by all our friends.

Look out for the sunny side of everything. Do not creep into gloomy shadows like moles or bats. In your intercourse with men seek the sunny side of their character, and there plant your seeds of influence, your good words and kindly deeds! Begin a revolution, till, like this earth of ours, your whole being shines in the beautiful sunlight! There comes a time when darkness shall be known no more. May we all be there in that city whose light is the Lamb, forever and ever!

In the beautiful days of spring, when all nature is blooming and gay, we feel hopeful and happy. Then we gather bright flowers and enjoy their fragrance, and though we might weave them into garlands to deck our brows, there are higher and holier crowns than these,—the crowns of honor, truth, purity and innocence with which we may crown our youthful heads. These we can obtain only by diligence, perseverance and attention to our various duties in whatever sphere of life we may be placed.

These crowns we should all endeavor to gain, not merely to satisfy our own ambition, but for the gratification of our loved ones, the dear ones whose every hope and prayer is for our welfare and happiness!

There is still another crown, — the crown of righteousness! This one we may gain by the prayerful study of the sacred Scriptures, and by obeying the commands there given us. If we do this and are faithful in all our duties, we have the promise of the last and best crown of all, "The crown of eternal life."

The Ground of Hope.—When time and space, wants, the bitterness, or the duties of life, separate us from those we love so far that our help is useless to them, our voices silent, our eyes blind; when we know that suffering, illness, danger, death, may lie in wait for them every hour, and no strength or longing of ours can avail to help them, where do they fly, what hope or comfort do they have, who cannot give their beloved into the safe-keeping of an omnipotent God: who cannot pour out their tortured and anxious hearts to Him who heareth and answereth prayer?

"It is a glorious thing to resist temptations, but it is safe to avoid them."

TRINE IMMERSION.

BY A. W. REESE.

Part Three.—The Design of Baptism.

"Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." Matt 28. 19.

In my article, Part One, "Trine Immersion," I am made, by the compositor, to say, "But we reject baptism in toto, even were it by trine immersion, much less by sprinkling, which we can not accept as baptism at all." It should read "But we reject infant baptism in toto," etc.

3. We believe that the design of baptism is also "for the remission of sins." This the Word of God most surely and plainly teaches us. Baptism is the final act of obedience required by the Gospel of Christ on the part of the sinner to complete the terms of pardon and reconciliation to God. These being met, the concluding act entitles him to an inheritance among the saints. The sinner is now translated from Satan's kingdom into that of God's only-begotten Son. In the act of baptism he has the promise of God that he shall receive the remission of his sins—and that he shall also receive "the gift of the Holy Ghost." This is the act by which he is received into the church of the living God. It is the putting off "the old man and his deeds," and the putting on of the new man, even Christ Jesus our Lord. It is the open act—the confession of Christ before men—the surrender of himself, body, soul and spirit, to the service of God. It is the forsaking of the pomps and vanities, with the sinful pleasures of the world. It is the descent into the watery grave of baptism, buried with Christ, emerging thence, "to walk in newness of life."

The warfare with God is at end, the rebellious spirit conquered, the carnal nature subdued. The sinner is "converted from the error of his ways and sets out with renewed hope and courage and with face set like a flint towards Zion." "You, then, believe," says another, "that baptism is essential to salvation; that a man cannot be saved, in other words, unless he is baptized!" In a certain sense we are free to say, that we do believe this! We do say that no man while in a state of rebellion against God can be saved! We declare, with the utmost reverence, that God himself can not save such a man. God has offered pardon on certain conditions, baptism is one of these, and if any man will not comply with these conditions God will not, and can not, save him. "Well, but do you believe that a man's sins are actually washed away in the act of baptism?" We believe just what the Word of God tells us on this subject. Ananias said to Saul of Tarsus, "Why tarriest thou? rise, and be baptized washing away thy sins!" Now, this is tolerably plain language, and we think it means just what it says.

"O I see! Campbellism! Campbellism!" Well, we are not much scared about this. We have not much to say about the views of Alexander Campbell, whose ability and learning as well as his honesty, perhaps, have been, some time since, pretty well established, nor are we much concerned about the theological views of any other man. But what we really are most concerned about is what the Word of God teaches us, not only on this but every other point. If, in the meantime, Mr. Campbell, Mr. Wesley, or Mr. Calvin will stand by us on this immutable and eternal Rock—God's sacred Word—we shall not try to push them off. Let us be understood, however, on this subject, and let us compare our views with the Scriptures of Divine Truth, for by these we must all stand or fall. Baptism alone will not save any man, any more than faith alone or repentance by itself. We believe that faith, repentance, and baptism, and in the order named, are God's terms, or conditions, of pardon and of the sinner's reconciliation to him. That these must be voluntary on the sinner's part, and that, complying with these terms, or conditions, entitles the sinner to claim God's promises in the case with absolute confidence and trust.

We claim that in the last of these requirements—baptism—he receives, according to God's promise, "the remission of his sins, and the gift of the Holy Ghost" (and not before this). We believe that in this final term, baptism, God remits his sins, pardons his past offenses, and receives him into the Divine favor. You may call this "Campbellism," "Heterodoxy," or what you please.

If this position is not sustained by the Word of God, we know not what is, or can be! "John did baptize in the wilderness and preach the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins." Mark 1: 4. "And he [John] came into all the country about Jordan preaching the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins." Luke 3: 3.

On the great day of Pentecost, when the disciples were assembled together in Jerusalem, we have the record of the stupendous miracle of tongues and the visible descent of the Holy Ghost like tongues of flaming fire upon the heads of the apostles of Christ. A vast multitude had convened at the Sacred City and under the marvelous preaching of Simon Peter, the terrified assembly, "cut to the heart" by the sword of the Spirit, in anguish of soul cried out, "Men and brethren! what shall we do?" What was the reply of God's Inspired Servant to these troubled souls? Did he say, "Come up to the mourner's bench and receive the prayers of God's people in your behalf"? Did he say, "Go out into the woods alone and there pray and wrestle with God until you receive the blessing"? Did he use such meaningless and stereotyped phrases as are common in the fashionable and popular pulpit of the present day? such as, "Trust in Jesus!" "Look to the Savior!" "Only believe!" "Have faith in Christ!" etc., etc.? Did he give these hungry souls any such empty husks as these? By no means! He gave them something tangible, something they could lay hold of, something practical, something they could do.

"Repent, and be baptized every one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ, for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." Was this "Campbellism"? Well it was a tremendous revival of religion, at any rate. It is declared that the number of converts on this occasion was about three thousand souls—all baptized in one day. And it seems the good work did not stop here; it went on and "the Lord added daily unto the church such as should be saved." No discount on these converts. They were the genuine stuff. They seemed to be pretty thoroughly converted. No "falling from grace" there, for we read that "they continued steadfastly in the apostles' doctrine and fellowship, and in breaking of bread and prayers." Pretty good fruits for "water regeneration."

Contrast the above with much of the popular preaching of the present day. Is it the plain, simple preaching of Christ and his apostles? We fear not!

In that day the great and important question seemed to be, "What must I DO to be saved?" This question is answered in the Gospel in a plain, straight-forward way that everybody can comprehend. There need be no fine-spun, metaphysical, hair-splitting disquisitions on faith. There need be no highly-sensational sermons, full of exciting and dramatic "death-bed scenes," to set the women and youths of tender age, to crying; there need be no mourners' benches or other inventions of man to supplement the Gospel of Christ. Why all this human rubbish to build up the walls of Zion's temple? Why not answer the sinner's anxious question as it was answered on the great Pentecostal day? Yea, verily, why not?

BY W. H. ROOSE.

Number Three.—Cæsar.

This cruel story did not cause the bold and resolute Cæsar to fear them at all. He knew they could kill him in a moment, were their anger to be kindled against him. The Christian cause has great need of thousands of such men. Poor Cæsar had no knowledge of the future existence of the soul. Life and immortality had not yet been brought to light through the Gospel. He knew these men had power to destroy the body, but he did not know he had a soul to be destroyed.

Instead of being obedient to them, he treated them as his own servants, and the ship was manned as though it belonged to himself. When Cæsar grew tired and sleepy, he simply demanded silence of them, and they remained as quiet as possible till he awoke. He was not a bad writer, and delighted in passing odd hours in writing poems and reading them aloud to the pirates. They could not always value them as truly as did Cæsar, and at this he would call them stupid dunces. You have all, no doubt, met people who had a very commanding appearance,—all they needed to do was to command, and people would obey. Such was Cæsar's make-up. He often laughingly told the pirates that he intended to crucify every one of them, some day. They thought him jesting, but found, to their sorrow, that he only was in earnest. All the time occupied with them in their sports and games, was spent in planning mischief against them. Finally, his money arrived from Miletus, upon the payment of which he once more was a free man. He lost no time in getting sailors and ships with which to overpower them. After a bloody struggle, the pirates were taken prisoners, their money was seized, and they were crucified, as Cæsar had promised them.

Sylla's time was drawing to a close, and Cæsar no longer feared him. He now returned to Rome, but, instead of spending his time in idleness, like so many of our young men do, he employed a teacher to instruct him how to make speeches. Cæsar had a school-mate who was learning the same accomplishments that he was, in which he excelled, though Cæsar became more famous as a soldier than did Cicero. Cicero was a close student of human nature also, but he was put to his wits to understand the true nature of Cæsar. He knew that Cæsar would be a tyrant if he had a chance, while, at the same time, he took great care that his dress was good, and his hair curled every day.

Cæsar was a tall man, with light complexion, and dark eyes. He was subject to fits, though he never allowed his poor health to be an excuse for indolence. He delighted in swimming and riding horses. He would often dictate letters to two secretaries at once, as they rode beside him. At one time he swam 200 paces at sea, holding a book above the water with his left hand and his armor in his teeth.

He often made great feasts. The people all tried to please Cæsar so that he would invite them.

The office-seekers of the present time, also, try to outdo each other in order to get the good-will and influence of the people, and the people, in turn, also do their best, in order to be benefited by the loaves and fishes.

Some, however, looked on Cæsar a little suspiciously, thinking that he wanted to make himself a king. The extravagance of Cæsar was working his ruin, but, upon the death of a Roman pontiff, named Metellus, he asked the votes of the people for this office. To be sure, like in all such cases, Cæsar had opposition in a man named Catullus, who offered Cæsar a large amount of money to withdraw his application. Catullus advised him to spend no more money, yet Cæsar said he would rather borrow more money than to lose the office he was seeking. Cæsar's mother was afraid he would be punished for his ambition, and shed many tears for her son before his departure, but he embraced her affectionately and said he would either succeed or go to some distant country, and live in exile.

There have always been some discontented people under all forms of government. We are told in the Holy Bible that the people clamored for a king, so much that God consented to their wishes, so there were people in Rome who were secretly plotting to overthrow the government, and proclaim some one king. The principal leader in this movement was Catiline, who was so avaricious and cruel that he murdered his own son and brother. He, with about thirty others agreed to set fire to the City, kill the Consuls, and Senate, and declare Catiline king. They had an obstruction in their way, and they concluded to get rid of Cicero. It was agreed between two conspirators that they should call on him early in the morning, pretending to have important business with Cicero. They were foiled in this attempt, however, by a woman, named Fulvia, who overheard their plans, and hastened to tell Cicero that if these men gained admittance into his room they would kill him. To be sure, Cicero was not at home. Cicero then endeavored to rid the country of these dangerous foes. He was very just toward Cæsar, as he would not allow him to be imprisoned upon the evidence furnished against him, though he was quite powerful.

Some of his enemies had laid a plot against Cæsar, accusing him of being a friend of Catiline, and sought to condemn him to death. As a general thing, people did not wish to take sides, as they might be suspicioned as some of the conspirators. Cæsar knew he was suspected, but he was bold, and rose up in the Senate, and said the men ought to be treated mercifully and not put to death. Cato then spoke, and said they should be put to death, and strongly hinted that Cæsar knew of the plan to murder Cicero, and wanted to save Catiline. The conspirators had no one else to defend them, and they were taken to prison, and strangled to death. Catiline raised an army to avenge the death of his friends, but his doom was sealed on the battle-field.

It is altogether wrong to try to avenge any wrong whatever, for "vengeance is mine, I will repay, saith the Lord."

THE NEW JERUSALEM.

BY JAS. Y. HECKLER.

Is the New Jerusalem, mentioned several times in the twenty-first chapter of Revelation, a literal city? Is it built of literal rocks and literal precious stones? No, it is neither probable nor plausible. I have heard ministers preach it, and have heard them calculate in mathematical terms the size of it, how much space it contains, and how many saints could dwell in it, but that was no evidence of correctness, or that the calculation was anything more than speculation.

It is the beauty of poetry to employ imagery and to use metaphorical language in writing it, to give it life and sublimity by figures, and to draw them out and describe them as real. That is what the Revelator has been doing. Though many people do not know that the book of Revelation is a poem, it is really one of the most beautiful and sublime poems that was ever written. I would not know where to find its equal.

In Rev. 21: 9 we read, "And there came one of the seven angels * * * and talked with me saying, Come hither; I will shew thee the bride, the Lamb's wife. And he carried me away in the Spirit to a great and high mountain, and shewed me (the bride), that great city, the holy Jerusalem, descending out of heaven from God." Is, therefore, the bride, the Lamb's wife, a literal city? No. The Revelator took for his figure the children of Israel, encamped in the wilderness, with their tents pitched in regular order, which had the appearance of a city, but he tells us, by way of comparison, that in the walls of this city, which is the church of the Living God, the twelve apostles are at the foundation, and the twelve tribes of Israel are the gateways. The church in the wilderness, or the children of Israel in their encampments, and all that belonged thereto in their arrangements, had to some extent the pattern of things in heaven, as the Revelator saw, and the apostle also so informs us. Many things in the Revelation have been drawn as figures from the children of Israel in the wilderness, from their sanctuary and from their tribes. In Heb. 12: 18 to 24, the apostle draws a comparison between the church in the wilderness and the church of the first-born in heaven when he says, "For ye are not come unto the mount that might be touched, and that burned with fire, nor unto blackness, and darkness, and tempest, * * * But ye are come unto Mt. Sion, and unto the city of the Living God: the heavenly Jerusalem, and to an innumerable company of angels, to the general assembly and church of the first-born which are written in heaven, and to God the judge of all, and to the spirits of just men made perfect, and to Jesus the Mediator of the new covenant."

Is, therefore, the church of the first-born, which is also called the heavenly Jerusalem, a literal city? I think not. If, on the other hand, it can be proven that the great Babylon, mentioned so often and pictured so graphically in Revelations, is not the false church, but is a literal city, then I will have to yield, and will have to admit that the New Jerusalem is also a literal city. Great Babylon, the false church, is also called the great whore, while on the other hand, the true church is represented as a chaste virgin.

MANIFESTATION OF LOVE.

BY GERTRUDE A. FLORY.

How frequently, when passing to and fro through the world, do we meet persons so unsociable that mentally we compare them to icicles, but looking beyond this outward coldness we find, perhaps, a warm heart, pulsating with love for the human race. Naturally we inquire, Why then, this unamiable exterior? Invariably we receive the reply, "It is enough to love." But it is not enough. God requires something more of us. He would have us make our love known. He manifested his love to us by sending his only Son to redeem us from the bondage of sin.

God is love, hence love is loving, trusting, tender and pure when allowed free course, but when shut up in the chamber of a silent heart, its gushing, glowing flame is, sooner or later, extinguished,—at least it gives no light nor comfort, but lies smouldering in the ashes of a heart, dead to the sacred joys of love expressed,—dead because a love shared by none nor known to none but the one possessing it, is worthless. Besides, the world is too full of sorrow for even one individual to have a joy unshared by any. Kind words, fitly spoken, may soothe the troubled mind and check the falling tear, but a tender caress of genuine affection will dry the eye and fall like heavenly balm upon the care-worn heart. Why, then, withhold what the human heart so craves and is so easily bestowed by us? What if somebody does say, "It is useless and silly." When we know better we ought to work according to our knowledge, regardless of what others may say. If this is true of us as men and women, how much more so as children of the Great Author of love? Can we be too loving to fulfill the blest command, "Love one another as I have loved you"? Verily no. The love Jesus had for us is beyond mortal comprehension. So, too, should we, as Christians, manifest our love to one another and to those in need, in such a manner that it will shine beyond the wisdom and understanding of the world. "Love not in word but in deed," implies expression of our affections by acts of love. This is charity in a very beautiful dress.

"Be kindly affectioned one to another with brotherly love." Rom. 12: 10. How soothing and consoling this kind of affection in the hour of affliction and sorrow! Often the tender tone and loving caress alleviate the suffering far more than the kind word spoken or the most efficient medical treatment.

"Ah yes, but this is all earthly," somebody is saying. But, dear reader, while we are of the earth, earthy, we shall have earthly desires that must be gratified, or let the human heart shrink in the depths of despair by its unsatisfied yearning. God commissioned us to bear one another's burdens, and if we can lift a burden from any heart by a word or expression of love, it is our business to do it. The more we love, the nearer we become like its Divine Author, and until we are divine we shall have need for all the love we can receive, or our beloved can bestow.

One of my sweetest recollections is a kiss given by the withered life of an aged stranger when my soul even seemed to be sinking beneath its burden of despair. Learning how I had forsaken home and friends for the church of Christ, she drew me to her, imprinted a kiss upon my cheek, saying, "You are a good girl. Be faithful until death, and you shall have a crown of life." These consoling words, accompanied by this richest of all tokens of affection,—the kiss,—thrilled me with a deeper joy than I had ever known, and awoke the realization that this world is not all sorrow and desolation, though abounding in sin. Now, with mature years, I am deeply impressed with the necessity of making our affections felt by those beloved, if we would cheer and bless. Life, that is, to us, a dead sea, may be changed into living water by realizing that we are the cherished objects of some one's love. No doubt the Savior foresaw this, hence enjoined the disciples, "See that ye have love one to another." While sojourning here, he seemed well pleased with the tokens of affection paid him by the multitudes. When Mary so affectionately washed his feet with her tears, and kissed them again and again, and broke the box of precious ointment on his head, he bade the murmuring ones, "Let her alone." Well did he realize that her act was the expression of a tender love that could not be repressed.

Thus, dear fellow-pilgrims to the Heavenly City, let us labor to increase our love for one another, till it burns in a radiant blaze of ETERNAL LOVE. Even so may it be, blessed Jesus!

ONE was baptized at the Silver Creek feast on the 18th inst.

BRO. J. H. WIRT reports three baptized at Viola, Minn., on the 5th inst.

BRO. D. F. STOUFFER represents Western Maryland on the Standing Committee this year.

BRO. S. S. MOHLER represents the Middle District of Missouri on the Standing Committee this year.

WE are informed that the Santa Fe road will sell tickets on the line of their road in Illinois, via Chicago, to the Annual Meeting, at one fare for the round trip.

BRO. J. S. MOHLER, of Morrill, Kans., is visiting at Covington, Ohio, and is doing some interesting preaching for the Brethren there. So reports Bro. I. J. Rosenberger.

BRO. I. J. and sister Rosenberger expect to spend some time in Virginia after the Annual Meeting. Those having special business with Bro. Rosenberger, should address him at Harrisonburg, Va., A. M. Box.

ONE of the necessities of man's existence is a revelation from God, and this necessity like the necessities of all of God's creatures has been supplied. We have God's revealed will and by it our spiritual natures are developed, and we grow up into the likeness of the Lord Christ. But we can only grow as we exercise, and obedience is exercise. "He that doeth the will of my father" has a wider significance than some give it. It means to do, and not to leave undone.

BRO. LEWIS W. TEETER will look after the interest of Southern Indiana on the Standing Committee this year, and Bro. S. B. Shirkey will serve the District of North-western Missouri in the same capacity.

BRO. J. H. LARKINS, of Lanark, Ill., owing to ill health will not be able to attend our Annual Meeting this year. This is a great disappointment to him as he anticipated much pleasure in visiting his old home in Virginia. We hope Bro. James may speedily regain his health.

BRO. VANIMAN is not at this time, we are sorry to learn, enjoying good health. He was compelled to give up work in the Walnut Valley church, Kansas, where he was holding a series of meetings and go to his home at McPherson. We hope he may soon be restored to good health.

THE lodging committee for our next Annual Meeting request us to publish the following notice, "Persons corresponding with any member of Lodging Committee will please observe the rules of politeness by sending postage for return and oblige." N. W. Beery, Chairman; D. B. Wampler, Secretary.

BRO. GEO D. ZOLLERS spent several days with us last week and held forth the Word of Truth in the College Chapel. We enjoy these visits of our brethren and hope we shall have more of them. Brethren Michael Connell and Samuel Kuhn, of the Naperville church, also spent several days with us.

SISTER ELIZABETH HORDEN, of Hyndman, Bedford Co., Pa., says they would like to have some of the brethren stop at their place, on their way to Annual Meeting, and preach for them. There are a few members living at Hyndman, and they have had no preaching for nine months. Who will fill this call for help?

SISTER E. M. SUMSTINE, of Salem, Nebr., informs us that the debt on the meeting-house at Salem, Nebr., has been fully cancelled. This has been done by the liberality of the brethren and sisters who took special interest in the work. May the Lord bless the efforts of his faithful children to establish the Truth as it is in Jesus.

CHRIST and him crucified, was the one great theme of Paul's preaching. Too many men to-day forget this great theme of the Apostle and preach themselves dignified. How many sermons there are delivered in which the preacher's personality is the most important factor. Preachers need to have more of Christ and less of self in their sermons.

EVERY one who serves God with a true heart comes to know what a great comfort there is in a simple, child-like trust in him. Looking out upon life we cannot know anything about the details of the future. We cannot know what the journey will bring to us or what is best for us beforehand. And at this point we need to trust in God, knowing that he will dispose of all things to his own glory and to our highest good, for all things work together for good to those who love him.

WE are pushing the work on the "Miller and Sommer Debate" as rapidly as possible. The discussion of the first proposition, which occupied two days, makes 135 pages. At this rate the eight days' debate will make 540 pages. This far exceeds the first estimate made on the book. Notwithstanding this fact we shall try to furnish the work at $1.50 per copy. Our agents who are at work report that the book sells well. We want a live active agent in every church in the Brotherhood. The profits all go to the Mission Fund of the church.

"WHAT one cannot do and at the same time pleasantly think of God as seeing him while doing it, he had better not do. He has in this one fact conclusive proof that the act is not right. If it were right the thought of God would give him no discomfort."

BRO. ISAAC F. CLASEN, of Vail, Crawford Co., Iowa, wants to know if there are any Brethren living at that place; and if not, how far from Vail is the nearest church of the Brethren? Some of our Iowa Brethren who know, will please write to Bro. Clasen.

BRO. JOHN FORNEY, of Abilene, Kans., asks us to correct an error he made in reporting meetings in the Abilene church, Kans. Read "P. R. Wrightsman" instead of "Enoch Eby." He also says "One has been added to the Chapman Creek church since May 1st. She is a sister to whom I ordered the free MESSENGER for six months. Rejoice with us."

BRO. JAMES L. SWITZER tell us of heavy rains in Kansas and says everything is growing immensely. Wheat is headed out and is heavy. We rejoice with our Kansas brethren in the prospects of a year of temporal prosperity, and we trust their most sanguine hopes will be fully realized. Several years of partial local crop failures have discouraged some of them and a good crop will be a great help to them.

BRO. J. L. SWITZER, of Monmouth, Kans., under date of May 14, writes: "We have just had the painful intelligence that Bro. Rhodabaugh, of Cherokee County, with his youngest daughter and a young man by the name of Burg were drowned in Lightning Creek yesterday evening. The team was also drowned and the accident was not discovered until this morning. The bodies have all been recovered."

ELD. SAMUEL MURRAY, of River, Ind., now in his eighty-fourth year, attended and officiated at our feast at Silver Creek. The old brother is enjoying good health and an active use of his mental faculties and his interest in the Master's cause is unabated. May the blessing of heaven rest upon his declining years. Among other ministers present were brethren Geo. D. Zollers, M. S. Newcomer, David Rowland, Samuel Newcomer, Daniel L. Forney and Lewis Wallace. We thank the brethren for their helpful visit. Come again.

OUR love-feast at Silver Creek held on the 17th, was a pleasant season of spiritual enjoyment to all who had the privilege of attending the meeting. About 320 brethren and sisters surrounded the Lord's table and partook of the sacred meal. Owing to the fact that a heavy rain storm prevailed during the evening, but few spectators were present. On this account the assembly was almost entirely made up of members. Without the elements were in commotion. Dark clouds covered the heavens, the lightnings flashed, the thunder rolled, and the rain descended, but within there was a sense of deep peace and joy among the people of God. It was a striking illustration of the true condition of those who are safe within the fold of Christ, as compared with those who stand without, exposed to the storms of wrath that sin always brings upon those who follow it, for "the wages of sin is death." The meeting closed at nine o'clock, but many preferred to remain in the house until the storm fully spent its force. The time was passed pleasantly in singing the sweet songs of Zion, until after eleven o'clock, when the clouds broke away and the rain ceased. It was one of those meetings the recollection of which will always bring joy to our hearts. It marks one of the places where God graciously and especially blessed his people.

THE following letters, received on the 21st inst., will explain themselves. We regret very much that the action of the Western Passenger Association has been unfavorable to our Brethren. The rate from Chicago will be one fare for the round trip, as heretofore announced:

D. L. MILLER, CHICAGO, MAY 20, 1889.
Mt. Morris, Ill.,
Dear Sir:—

Replying to your letter of May 18, I am sorry to inform you that the Western States Passenger Association declined to make a rate for the Dunkard Meeting at Harrisonburg. The South-western Passenger Association, however, has made a rate of one fare for the round trip, same as that made by the B. & O. This includes all points east of the Mississippi River.

Yours truly,
L. S. ALLEN, N. W. P. A.

MR. D. L. MILLER, ROCHELLE, ILL., MAY 20, 1889.
Mt. Morris, Ill.,
Dear Sir:—

The Western States Passenger Association declined to make a rate for your people from their territory. The rate on the B. & O., as you are aware, is one fare for the round trip. As we are governed by the Western States Association, we can make nothing different from our regular fare.

Yours truly,
H. D. JUDSON, Gen'l Sup't.

Our Brethren at local points on the roads west of Chicago, in the territory of the Western Passenger Association, and tributary to Chicago, will be compelled to pay regular fare to the above-named city, and there secure tickets to Harrisonburg, Va., at one fare for the round trip. Those living on South-western roads will have the advantage of half-fare from their homes.

LODGING AT ANNUAL MEETING.

WE received this letter too late for our regular correspondence columns, and give it a place here.

There have been a number of inquiries in regard to lodging. So far, they have not been answered. The Committee now proposes to answer through the MESSENGER, by saying that all applications for lodging have been respected. All have been assigned to respectable quarters. We now ask you to apply at the office of Lodging Committee, as soon as convenient after arriving on the grounds, that you may receive your tickets.

All applications made between now and the time of meeting will receive attention. We have endeavored to arrange to accommodate all who desire lodging. We desire to impress upon all the importance of applying at the office, in order to avoid confusion. Tents can be procured, upon application, at reasonable rates, with straw furnished, but no bedding.

A large assembly is anticipated, to accommodate which ample provisions have been made. We hope to have a good meeting.

QUERISTS' DEPARTMENT.

Visiting Members—Anniversary Parties—Losing and Saving Life—Exhorting to Prayer, etc.

1. Whose duty is it to visit members who may be out of order or who have fallen into error?

THE deacons or visiting brethren as they are sometimes called, are usually sent by the church to visit those who may have fallen into wrong doing. It is their duty to visit all the members at least once a year to encourage them spiritually and ascertain if all are in peace with each other. The visiting, however, is not all confined to the deacons. The elder and the ministers of a congregation, feeling an interest in the spiritual welfare of all the members, will also visit them and give them such encouragement as will help them in their conflicts in this life. If a member were out of order, doubtless some of the ministers or the elder would visit them and try to get them to correct their errors and lead them back again into the right path. We know many instances where this has been done, and such visits usually are attended with most excellent results.

The matter of the elders visiting all the members in their charge at least once a year, is of considerable importance, so much so that a query will be presented from one of our State Districts to our next Annual Meeting requesting that elders shall so visit the members. We believe that such visits, made especially for the purpose of encouraging the members in the work of the Lord, would result in much good. In large churches it would impose a heavy burden on the elder.

2. Please inform us through the MESSENGER where the word "wealth" is first found in the Bible.
J. H. TIMMONS.

ANS.—Genesis 34: 39.

3. A brother asks: "How is it considered by the brethren when one of their ministers attends an anniversary party, spends the evening in playing games, makes the presentation speech, and writes an article on the entertainment for the newspaper?"

A minister who would so far forget his holy calling as to spend his time as the query indicates, must certainly have forgotten his first love, and his course would be considered wrong by the brethren generally, as it certainly would not be in harmony with the teaching or the spirit of the Gospel. The men who minister in spiritual things should be "blameless," "sober," of "good behavior," having "a good report of them which are without," keeping themselves from every "appearance of evil," and walking so that they may be "ensamples to the flock." While it should be the aim of every follower of Christ to avoid all evil and to walk in the path marked out in God's Word, yet a minister is expected to set such an example before the church and the world that he will in no way injure the cause of Christ. As an embassador of the Lord Jesus Christ he could not engage in such things as are set forth in the query without bringing a reproach upon the church.

3. Will you please explain through the MESSENGER Matt. 10: 39; 16: 25, and Luke 17: 33. SARAH GILBERT.

The language upon which an explanation is asked, reads as follows: "For whosoever will save his life shall lose it; and whosoever will lose his life for my sake will find it." The same thought is expressed in all three of the passages named.

Here, the word "life" is used with a double meaning. Reference is made to the higher and lower,—the spiritual and the natural life. The Master taught that his followers should sacrifice the lower or natural life, "lose it for his sake," with all of its interests so that they might gain or find the higher or spiritual life. He that has not a willingness to do this, but is anxious to save his temporal life and to live in sin, shall lose both his temporal and spiritual life in the end, and shall fail of heaven. While he who is willing, for Christ's sake to give up all of the world and its sinful pleasures and comforts, shall in the end secure life eternal, thus losing his lower or temporal life for Christ's sake, he finds his higher or spiritual life and gains heaven and eternal glory.

STERLING, KANS.

Dear Brethren:—

4. Would you please favor us with an explanation of 1 Tim. 2: 1? What does "first of all" mean? When, where, and under what circumstances are prayers to be made?
J. G. CALVERT.

ANS.—"I exhort therefore, that, first of all, supplications, prayers, intercessions, and giving of thanks, be made for all men." The Apostle in this and several of the following verses sets forth the duty of public prayer, giving particular direction for whom prayer should be offered. It will be noticed that it was to be offered for all classes of men without distinction, for God wants all to come to him so that they might be saved.

The words "first of all" have been differently interpreted by commentators. According to King James' Version we would infer that the praying was referred to in point of time, and that the apostle meant that the first thing to be done was to offer prayer as directed. To this view, however, many commentators took exceptions, claiming that a proper translation would connect "first of all" with "I exhort" and that the meaning of the Apostle is, "First of all I exhort that supplications," etc. The Revised Version settles the question in favor of the latter view and gives it as follows: "I exhort therefore, first of all." The language might be paraphrased as follows, giving clearly the meaning according to the best translations, What I have to say to thee by way of a charge is that I desire first of all that prayer be offered for all men.

As to the place where prayer is to be offered, it is generally admitted that reference is made to public worship, but the exhortation would doubtless reach and include private prayer. In closing the subject, the Apostle in the 8th verse says, "I will, therefore, that men pray everywhere, lifting up holy hands without wrath and doubting." The thought is that prayer is not only to be made at stated places, see St. John 4: 21, 24, but wherever God's people are, there they may erect an altar and offer the prayer of faith.

DAYTON, OHIO.

Bro. Miller:—

5. Will you please explain through the MESSENGER the design of fasting as taught in Matt. 6. When should it be observed and what is the effect on those who observe the command?
A. N.

A query similar to the above was answered in the current volume, No. 9, of the MESSENGER, to which we refer our querist.

6. Will you please explain through the MESSENGER Matt. 12: 48; Acts 22: 1, 23? 1st. Who are my Master and brethren? 2nd. To whom did Paul speak? SAMUEL RODEFER.

1. The language in Matthew is very plain and does not need a lengthy explanation. Read verses 49 and 50 and you will find the Master's own explanation. It is all who follow him, all who obey his will,—all who keep his commandments are his brethren, sisters and mother.

2. Paul spoke to the council of the Jewish Nation known as the Sanhedrin. Men and brethren was the common mode of addressing an assembly and it was proper in this case because Paul was himself a Jew and in a national sense the men whom he addressed were his brethren although they sought to kill him. We may here learn a lesson in courtesy.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

THE following communication will fully explain itself:

The Naperville church, having met in council, with elders David E. Price, Edmund Forney and Daniel Dierdorff, of Northern Illinois, April 20, 1889, to take into consideration the action of Susie Hadsell, in getting up, signing and circulating circulars, dated Dec. 3, 1888, seriously reflecting upon the character of a number of brethren, decided that the reflections upon the brethren, mentioned in said circular, are without foundation, and therefore asked Susie Hadsell to acknowledge the same through the GOSPEL MESSENGER.

In the Naperville church council, held May 4, 1889, Susie Hadsell, being present, refused to accept the above decision, and was disfellowshiped by said church.

By order of the Naperville church.

The action of the above-named church was reported, as above, to the District Meeting of Northern Illinois, held at Lanark, May 14, 1889, and, on motion, the following action was taken: "This District orders that the action of the Naperville church, in reference to Susie Hadsell's case, be published in the GOSPEL MESSENGER; and, whereas it is reported that B. A. Hadsell continues to represent himself as a brother, the fact be published that he is an expelled member.

By Order of the District Meeting of Northern Illinois.

OUR NEGLECT OF OPPORTUNITIES.

BY J. O. BARNHART.

As I to-day meditate upon the great mercy and love of God, shown forth in the blessings which he has poured out so bountifully around us, in order that we may enjoy all that is possible of temporal blessings, I, with the Psalmist, am led to exclaim, "O that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men!"

Not only are things provided for our enjoyment in this life, but, through infinite love and mercy, he has given us the unspeakable gift of his Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have everlasting life.

He has prepared for his children, joy untold, such as "eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither entered into the heart of man." When we try to anticipate, and measure the depth of joy eternal, and realize what heaven will be to us, our dull, finite minds are baffled in the attempt, and we turn to consider our own ungrateful hearts, and unworthy lives. We then ask, "Is it really for us that these bountiful gifts are poured out from the treasure house of God?"

Shall we enjoy these great favors, and taste of the rich fullness, ourselves, without inviting others to come and partake, and be filled with good? If we but look around us, we behold numbers that are pursuing the downward course to ruin, with seemingly no aid nor warning voice given in their behalf. No one tells them that there is better food than that with which they are gratifying their own sinful appetites to the ruin of their souls.

If we do, indeed, care for and love the sinner, how little is that love or regard manifested by earnest endeavor to lead him to the pathway of life, which ends at last in heaven!

Not only are so many indifferent, but, when aroused to a sense of duty, they say, "I have no talent." "I am too poor." "There are others better qualified than I, and I feel as if I were in their way." These are common excuses, but how poor, and inconsistent they are in the sight of God!

If we were laboring for our own glory, there might be some reason in them, but God has given us our talents to be used for his glory, and our good. We are only his stewards. We are really not our own.

How useless, then, are such excuses in the sight of Him, who, with all-seeing eye, beholds the multiplied thousands, many of whom are hungering for the Living Bread, while we are withholding what is really God's, and only given us for improvement.

We often hear people say, when called upon to take charge of a class in the Sunday-school, or to go on an errand of mercy, "I am not fit for such work; I am so unworthy!"

Dear brother, sister or friend, when, and how will you ever become any better? If you have not grace enough, will you ever get it by complaining of your weakness? Have you not talent? The unprofitable servant was not punished for not having much, but for hiding the little that he had, and which might have increased.

Oh that we might be made to comprehend the magnitude of the work before us! It needs noble, earnest, consecrated workers, that are not hindered by life's cares, or discouragements, and magnified sorrows! To-day God calls us to labor. Harden not your hearts!

Oh, thou indifferent one, hear the voice of one crying unto the ancient church, "I would that thou wert cold or hot, but because thou art lukewarm, I will spew thee out of my mouth." Will you, careless one, neglect your opportunities, till at last you must hear the solemn declaration, "I was hungry, and ye fed me not; naked, and ye clothed me not; sick and in prison, and ye ministered not unto me." "Depart ye cursed!"

"YE CANNOT SERVE GOD AND MAMMON."

BY S. N. M'CANN.

Number One.—"A Living Sacrifice."

THE more extensive our knowledge of God and self, the more fully will we realize the necessity of complete consecration of both soul and body to him. But in proportion as our knowledge of God is limited, so will our sacrifice be circumscribed by the inclinations of the flesh. It is a sad thing to realize how little of the spirit of consecration and sacrifice there is to be found in us as a people, clinging so close to "mammon" that our bowels of compassion are often shut up, and the poor brother or sister must be sent to the alms-house, or draw from the Common Poor Fund, instead of that, that should be laid by "in store as God hath prospered,"—1 Cor. 16: 2. May we realize that God's love is being lost whenever we forget that we are not our own, whenever we fail to comprehend that the things that we possess are not our own? 1 Cor. 6: 19; Acts 4: 32.

To realize that we are but stewards in God's hands, signifies something more than an occasional gift pressed out of us by stern necessity, and strong appeals. To present the body "a living sacrifice," is more than wearing plain clothes and going to meeting, more than to meet current expenses in the home church, more than giving of our abundance,—it is complete death to sin, Rom. 6: 2, FULL CONSECRATION of ALL to God. Without complete consecration to God, we soon think that our bodies are our own, and that we have a right to use them as we please, even abusing them by undue exposure, improper dress, and intemperate habits. Without consecration, we get the idea that our money, our cattle, our grain, our lands, and all of our property is our own. We may not talk this way, but then we act just as if they were our own,—and our actions speak louder than our words. How can we say all these things are God's,—these cattle, horses, lands, grain, and even our bodies,—and then refuse to let the Lord have even a single hoof of the property, or a dollar of the money? Bob Ingersoll's property is God's in the same way, my brother, that your property is God's, if you use it as your own. God wants consecration, and until we are willing to sacrifice, and that of our means, to his work, we have not died to sin, have not "put on Christ," have not imbibed his spirit, and can not be truly his. Rom. 8: 9.

What is to be thought of the man, who says his body is the Lord's, and then refuses to let the Lord feed and dress it; but goes to the Devil for both food and dress? This we do when we do not eat and drink to God's glory, 1 Cor. 10: 31, whenever we do not dress in non-conformity to the world, Rom. 12: 2, whenever we put on gold, if only a ring, or ear-drops. 1 Peter 3: 3, 4. What is to become of the man who says his goods are all God's, and then allows the devil to have the use of them, almost exclusively? This we do whenever we make our goods our own, Acts 4: 32, whenever we let the love of money come between us and a sacrifice that God's work requires (1 Tim. 6: 10), whenever we seek to lay up our treasures here on earth.

Christ says, "Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink; nor yet for your body, what ye shall put on. Is not the life more than meat, and the body than raiment? (For after all these things do the Gentiles [or nations of the world] seek:) for your heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things. But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you."—Matt. 6: 25, 32, 33. In seeking the righteousness of the kingdom, Christ has given directions for our daily life, demanding that we "work with our own hands," in order that we "may walk honestly toward them that are without," and that we may have lack of nothing." 1 Thess. 4: 11, 12. Christ does not leave us without a plan for using that, that is gained by our work, when we seek the righteousness of the kingdom, for he tells us to "eat and drink to God's glory," to dress in "modest apparel," and to give to him that suffers need, to be ready to every good work.

The nations of the world are troubled about what they shall put on, whether this fashion will be more becoming, or that one of the fashion plates must be consulted. Their eating, also requires much of their thought and time,—gormandizing and gluttony are hard masters. They, also, are much perplexed about their money, where, and how it shall be used, in order to bring the biggest returns. Consecration to God gives a correct solution to all these problems, and every other problem that may come up. "Is not the life more than meat, and the body more than raiment?" Christ understood our needs, and laid the plan for our eating, dressing, and for the investing of our means. In investing, the principal is honesty to all men; the rule, owe no man any thing but to love one another. Some men think that gain is godliness, "but godliness with contentment is great gain. For we brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can carry nothing out." "And having food and raiment, let us be therewith content." 1 Tim. 6: 6–8.

Consecrate, "the body a living sacrifice" will give GREAT GAIN, will give CONTENTMENT in sickness, or health, in adversity, or prosperity, in death or life, will give the fullness of the blessings of Christ. It will give protection, for Christ will work all things for our good, Rom. 8: 28, will give a hundredfold in this time. Mark 10: 30.

May God help us to consecrate soul and body, all to his service, that we may be faithful stewards in his hands!

Notes from our Correspondents.

"As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country."

—Bro. J. H. Crume, of Oliver Lake, Ind., writes of two precious souls uniting with the church at that place.

—Sister Salome Watkins, of Ladoga, Ind., sends the joyful news of one dear soul added to the fold at the above place.

—Sister Mary Stitely, of Dayton, Ohio, writes: "Bro. I. J. Rosenberger, of Covington, Ohio, is expected to hold some meetings in the old church-house at this place in the near future. We hope for good results."

—Bro. A. J. Lentz, of Adrian, Mo., writes: "The Brethren of the Mound church have preaching once a month. Eld. Witmore, of Centre View, is our elder. We have prayer-meeting every Sunday afternoon, and we greatly enjoy these meetings."

—Under date of April 29, Bro. Horace Whisler, of Douglass, Montcalm Co., Mich., writes: "Bro. E. Bosserman came to us April 20, and preached three excellent sermons. One soul came to Christ and found peace with the Savior. May God bless his work everywhere!"

—From Cartersville, Va., sister Florida J. Etter writes: "We, as a church, are getting on well, considering we are stray sheep without a shepherd. We have now begun our Sunday-school, which seems to prosper encouragingly. Pray for our success!"

—Under date of May 14, Bro. Elias Mellott, of Hoytsville, Ward Co., O., writes: "The Brethren met Sunday, May 12, and organized a Sunday-school with Bro. J. C. Price, Superintendent, assisted by Bro. J. C. F. Wansitler and an able corps of officers and teachers."

—Sister Margaret Huston, of Fairview, Iowa, writes: "We are situated quite a distance from the Brethren meeting-house and do not get to meeting as oft as we would like to, but, truly, the MESSENGER is a preacher for me. It is sent me by my kind parents. The neighborhood in which we live is mostly settled by Methodists. I am handing them the paper to read, hoping and trusting I may by some means turn their minds to the Truth."

—Under date of May 6, Bro. J. M. Replogle writes: "The Mexico church, Ind., has had quite a shower of refreshing again. Bro. Jesse Calvert, of Warsaw, Ind., came to us Saturday, May 4, and preached the same evening, and Sunday morning and evening. Bro. Peter Myers, of Cerro Gordo, Ill., preached on Sunday at 4 P. M. Both handled the Sword of the Spirit with power. We had large congregations, with the best of attention. Sinners were made to tremble, and the saints were much encouraged."

—Bro. H. F. Maust of the South Waterloo church, Iowa, writes: "Our love-feast, of May 11, is now numbered among the things of the past, but it is a feast which will not soon be forgotten. There were about one hundred seventy that partook of the Lord's Supper. It was indeed a feast to the soul. The weather was very pleasant, and hence we had a large crowd of spectators, and we hope that many good impressions were made. The ministering brethren from abroad were elders Peter Forney, Stephen Johnson, Marcus Fowler, and Paul Wetzel. The church, on the afternoon of the 11th, called Bro. Ephraim Huff and Nelson Metz to the deacon's office, and, on the afternoon of the 12th, Bro. Samuel M. Miller and William Ikenberry were called to the office of elder. May God help them to discharge their duty faithfully."

—Bro. J. A. Root, of Ozawkie, Kans., writes: "April 14 the church met in council. All business was disposed of in a Christian spirit. One dear sister, who had left the fold, was restored again. May the Lord be with her! We appointed our communion for June 1 and 2. Brethren from the West, going to Annual Meeting, will please make their arrangements so as to be with us."

—From the South Beatrice church, Nebr., sister Lydia Dell writes: "Our Sunday-school for the coming season has been organized. Bro. Thomas Graham is our Superintendent, assisted by Bro. John Rife, and an able corps of officers. May God help us all to be more zealous in the Master's work. While Bro. M. M. Eshelman was with us, he preached for us two weeks. There were two added to the church, and we have reason to believe that good impressions were made that will not be forgotten."

—Bro. N. A. Gray, of Lipscomb, Texas, writes: "Many of our brethren and sisters claim to be unable to take the MESSENGER, because they have not the means. They are willing to do without its cheering visits, simply because they have not the moral courage to deny themselves of some luxury which would more than pay for the paper. I wish every brother and sister would feel it to be his duty, not only to take the paper himself, but also to induce others to take it, and send it to those who are unable to pay for it. The Lord, who blesses the giving of a cup of water, will also bless us for every such effort put forth in promotion of his cause."

—Sister Sally Hutchison, of Oak Hill, W. Va., writes: "MESSENGER, No. 18 is here with much good news for the soul. I was especially pleased with Bro. H. W. Strickler's article to the young. The young brethren and sisters ought to put their shoulders to the wheel, and help to keep it in motion. If they could do nothing more, they could lift up their voices in prayer, to the Giver of every good and perfect gift. Prayer brings down many blessings. It is the Christian's stay in time of trouble. Often the tempter tries to keep us, — the young soldiers,—from praying. Even when we are on our knees he whispers, 'It is no use for you to pray, for you are too wicked.' Let us ever continue to pray, though the devil, with a host of temptations, would prevent us!"

From Jonathan Creek Church, Perry Co., Ohio.

WE boarded the train at Knoxville, Tenn., April 10, arrived at Bro. J. W. Horn's home, near the Helser meeting-house, on the evening of next day. On Saturday evening commenced meetings at the church, and continued until the evening of April 22, principally at night. We had very good congregations all the time, considering the busy season of the year. There seemed to be a great interest manifested, especially on the last Sunday evening at the "Children's Meeting."

On the morning of April 23 we were conveyed by Bro. Jacob Leckrone to the Goshen church, about twenty miles distant. We commenced meeting at that place on the evening of the 24th This is near the home of brother Elijah Horn. Here we continued until the evening of May 2. The congregations were small at the beginning, owing to the appointment not being generally circulated, but they increased on to the last. We had to close the meetings just when the interest seemed to be the greatest. As the immediate result of this meeting, one precious soul came forward and gave his heart to the Lord. He was the youngest child of Bro. Elijah Horn. O how happy were the hearts of that dear father and mother to see their last child coming home to God! It was then that they could realize the promise in the command, "Bring up the child in the way he should go." Dear brethren and sisters, let us all heed this command, for there is great joy in keeping it.

We returned to the Helser meeting-house May 3, and met again on Saturday with the brethren and sisters in a social meeting. We continued the meeting until Sunday night. We had a large and attentive congregation, and while there were no accessions at this place at present, we feel that many are almost persuaded to leave the ranks of Satan and join in with the people of God. The church at this place has undergone some severe trials, but we are glad to know that the dark clouds are rapidly passing away. We have met many kind brethren and sisters since we have been in Ohio. Their kindness to us, since among them, will always occupy a sacred place in our heart. We have enjoyed good health since we left home, for which we thank the Giver of all good and perfect gifts. We desire the prayers of all God's dear children in our behalf, that the Good Spirit may accompany us in all our weak efforts, and that much and lasting good may be done in the name of the holy Child Jesus!

J. M. BOWMAN.

McPherson Notes.

MAY 11th was an unusual day in the history of our church. In the morning six were received by baptism, and in the afternoon another was added. All were young people, four of them students.

In the evening over two hundred brethren and sisters seated themselves around the Lord's table prepared in the spacious dining hall of the College building. The facilities given here for preparing a meal made this an appropriate place for holding a communion-meeting. It was a surprise to many to see such a large community of members here, where a few years ago there were none. A number of visitors from Lancaster County, Pa, were with us, and seemed to enjoy the beautiful appearance of the growing crops, which at this time are unusually promising, and also to sit at the Lord's table with those of the same faith and practice. During the meeting Bro. J. M. Snyder read a letter from a brother in Denmark, calling forth the sympathy and love of our brethren and sisters here.

Eld. John Forney, Eld. J. D. Trostle, and other ministers from adjoining churches, labored for us. This being the first time a communion was held in the College, and the first time a large number ever took part in a communion, the occasion was a very impressive one. S. Z. SHARP.

The District Meeting of North-Western Missouri.

THE Meeting was held in the Smith Fork church, Clinton County, May 9, 1889. There was a good representation of the churches, and the deliberations were charactized by the best of Christian feelings.

The Meeting was organized by electing C. C. Root, Moderator; S. A. Honberger, Reading Clerk; Wm. C. Wolf, Writing Clerk, and D. D. Sell, Assistant.

Considerable time was devoted to the mission work. The Treasurer's Report showed that there was paid out for the missionary work during the year $186.11. A number of baptisms were reported and several new fields opened.

Bro. Jacob Shamberger was chosen on the Mission Board for three years. These brethren constitute the Board. They reside sufficiently near each other to enable them to meet and frequently consult. Only one of the members' time expires each year, leaving two experienced in the work.

Brethren S. A. Honberger, Joel Glick and Geo. Clemings were chosen a committee to formulate a plan for a Tract Work for Northern Missouri. They submitted the following plan:

1. That each member contribute two cents yearly into the Tract Work Fund.

2. The fund to be collected in the same manner as the Mission Fund, and forwarded to District Treasurer.

3. The Mission Board to purchase said tracts and furnish them to brethren doing mission work.

One query goes to Annual Meeting. Bro. S. B. Shirky is the delegate on Standing Committee; J. E. Ellenberger, alternate.

Our feast, in connection with the District Meeting, and prior to it, was a foretaste of the longed-for rest in the evening of this world. Seventy communicants surrounded the Lord's table, and partook of the sacred emblems. The occasion was one of impressive solemnity. Oh, how much we have to be thankful for! There were twelve ministers present, who gave us many good lessons, and the solemnity of the occasion will long be remembered.

These meetings were considered to be among the most pleasant and enjoyable ever held in North-western Missouri.

At our council-meeting, May 4, we rejoiced to see two souls return to the fold. We trust there is rejoicing not only here, but also in heaven.

WM. C. WOLF.

THE members of this church met in council April 30. There was not much business, but what we did have was disposed of in a Christian-like manner. We decided to hold our love-feast June 8. We organized our Sunday-school, April 28, and elected Bro. Simon Harshman, Superintendent. He is assisted by Bro. H. A. Hochstettler. I hope that, by our Sunday-school, many will be brought into the fold of Christ. We ask the prayers of all of God's people.

The Route to Harrisonburg.

HARRISONBURG is located in Rockingham County, Virginia, upon a branch of the Baltimore and Ohio R. R., which is the only road running to the town. During the Annual Meeting all trains on the B. & O. R. R. from the West will make connection at Harper's Ferry for Harrisonburg. The B. & O. trains from Chicago and Cincinnati run through solid to Harper's Ferry, and through Sleeping Cars also run from St. Louis to Harper's Ferry via the Ohio and Mississippi R. R. and the B. & O. Where there are parties of 30 or more who wish to travel together, the B. & O. will arrange to run cars for them through to Harrisonburg via Harper's Ferry. It is only via the B. & O. that cars can be run through to Harrisonburg without change.

Excursion tickets to Harrisonburg and return will be sold from all points in the West at one fare for the round trip. This will be the rate from Chicago, St. Louis and all points east thereof, and it is confidently expected that the roads west of Chicago and St. Louis will make rates equally as low.

On this basis the rates from some of the principal points will be as follows, viz:

Chicago, 17.25. St. Louis, 20.25. Cincinnati, 12 50. Dayton, O., 13 50. Columbus, O., 11.75 Indianapolis, 15.65. Milford Junct., 16 60. Auburn Junct., 15.35. Fostoria, O., 13.50. Mansfield, O., 13.50. Zanesville, O., 11.75. Wheeling, W. Va., 9.75. Pittsburg, 9.00. Johnstown, Pa., 9.00. Meyersdale, Pa., 7.25. Cumberland, Md., 6.15. Hagerstown, 3.85. Martinsburg, W. Va., 3.85, Frederick, Md., 4.15.

From the fact that the B. & O. R. R. is the only line running to Harrisonburg, and that it is only via this line that cars can be run right through to the place of meeting, it stands to reason that the B. & O. is the best route to take.

For the benefit of those desiring to visit friends in the East, the B. & O. will sell excursion tickets from Harrisonburg to any point on its lines east of Harrisonburg or Harper's Ferry. The B. & O. R. R. Co. will have a Ticket Agent on the meeting grounds for this purpose, and tickets can be procured at any time while the meeting is in progress. For further information in regard to the B. & O. Route to Harrisonburg, address any of the following Agents of the Company:

L. S. Allen, 193 Clark St., Chicago, Ill. W. E. Reppert, 11½ N. High St., Columbus, O. F. P. Copper, Tiffin, O. E. D. Smith, Pittsburgh, Pa. B. F. Bond, Baltimore, Md., or W. H. King, Ass't. G. P. A., Grand Central Depot, Cincinnati, O.

THE Baltimore and Ohio R. R, as has been previously stated, will sell tickets from Chicago to Harrisonburg, Va., with stop-off privileges, and the Brethren who want to visit their old homes in Berkely Co., Va., Washington Co., Md., or Franklin Co., Pa., can do so with very little additional expense by stopping at Martinsburg, West Va., on the main line of the B. & O. They can then go to Hagerstown, Md., or Green Castle, Pa., via the Cumberland Valley Road, thus saving time and money. The B. & O. have recently placed on their line a fast vestibule train which leaves Chicago at 2:55 P. M. Passengers by this train will reach Harrisonburg on the following evening, making close connections at Harper's Ferry, and with but one change of cars between Chicago and Harrisonburg, thus making quicker time than by any other route.

Railroad Arrangements.

THE Wabash Railway will give our people a rate of one fare for the round trip to our Annual Meeting at Harrisonburg, Va. Chair Cars will be furnished free, and without change of cars, going via Defiance and Baltimore & Ohio Railway. If desired, they offer to set off a Chair Car, or Sleeper at Cerro Gordo, or any other point so desired, where sufficient number are going, and let first passenger train pick it up, thus avoiding a rush for seats, besides giving our people cars to themselves. The route named herein is the most direct and the only route running direct to the place of meeting. Good cars will be furnished and good care taken of our people via this route.

ELD. JNO. METZGER.

In Memoriam.

"No more the weary pilgrim mourns,
No more affliction wrings his heart;
The unfettered soul to God returns—
Forever he and anguish part."

ON his seventy-third birthday—April 7, 1889,—Bro. Benjamin D. Seibert departed this life, leaving a wife, three children—boys—and a brother,—Dr. John Seibert, of Chicago, to mourn their loss. Funeral services were held in the College Chapel on Tuesday, April 9.

Bro. Seibert was born in Washington Co., Md. He came to Illinois at an early day, making Ogle County his home. He was a man of quiet, unassuming habits, yet withal a successful financier. Though not so active in church work as some others, he proved his interest in the work of spreading the Gospel by giving to the Mission Endowment Fund, a few months before his death, a liberal donation. It was also his purpose to appropriate a part of his means to the much needed Building and Endowment Fund of Mt. Morris College, but death suddenly and unexpectedly took him away before he set apart the portion he intended for educational purposes.

May the Lord help the widow, and those boys, so full of vitality, to devote their energies to God's service, and finally be numbered with the family of God in the eternal world! J. G. ROYER.

Glad Tidings.

WE, the members of the Dry Creek church, met in quarterly council May 13, preparatory to our District Meeting and love-feast. Considerable business came before the meeting, all of which was disposed of with the best Christian feeling. Delegates were chosen to represent our church at District Meeting. Those chosen were brethren J. B. Miller and George Rogers. We are glad to say there are no queries to go to District Meeting from our church.

After our council-meeting closed, we repaired to the waterside to witness the scene of two precious souls being buried with Christ in baptism, making four received into the church by baptism, and three by letter, since March.

We are made to feel revived, and encouraged to press onward with more zeal Zionward. While we rejoice to see wandering souls come home, how much greater must be the joy when angels rejoice in the same! May those who have lately entered the fold, find it a pleasure to live for Christ, and may our good Shepherd care for them and strengthen them that they may be found faithful unto the end! O may we all realize the fact that the crown is not given at the beginning, nor in the middle, but at the end of the race.

My prayer is that we may live more faithful and consistent Christians to our profession in the future than we have in the past, that our light may so shine as to constrain others to follow Jesus our Lord, and, finally, when the battles are fought, and the victory is won, we may dwell with Christ at home, where we can see him as he is and praise him in perfect unison.

ANNA F. MILLER.

Robins, Ia.

From Johnstown, Pennsylvania.

APRIL 27 Bro J. M. Mohler, of Lewistown, Pa, came to break the Bread of Life unto the starving souls in Johnstown. He remained until May 13, proclaiming the glad story of redemption in all his strength and zeal. The weather was unfavorable, generally, but notwithstanding this disadvantage, the attendance was good, and while sinners were warned to flee from the wrath to come, saints were built up in the most holy faith of God. The meetings closed with a love-feast.

On the night preceding the love-feast, three dear young girls responded to the gentle wooings of the Spirit, and pledged their troth with the Faithful Husband, who will never leave them nor forsake them. As we stood in the calm, still moonlight, and witnessed the sacred nuptials, we seemed to hear all heaven shout in rapturous praises and sing for very joy! The next morning a young man returned from the kingdom of darkness and was "born again." Dear brethren and sisters, pray for these precious lambs in Christ, and may others hasten to seek a shelter in the same kind arms, lest their sun will have forever set, and the shades of that awful night "wherein no man can work," have sealed their souls in gloom. Oh, how sad that so many souls that might be grand, in the beauty and loveliness of young manhood and womanhood, let all the golden opportunities of life pass by, and at last go out to meet an angry God beneath the damning brand of sin!

May 4th Bro. Mohler was joined by his wife, whom we met with gladness. She remained until the close of the meetings, and by her godly walk and conversation, preached some mighty sermons, which we shall long remember, and cherish tenderly. The sojourn of our dear brother and sister was much appreciated by us all, and we were loath to say farewell; but the time of parting came at last. On the morning of the 13th, we accompanied them to the depot, and, after a hasty exchange of fond adieus, we parted, perhaps to meet on earth no more. But then we thought of that sweet heaven, where separations can never break fond, loving hearts, and we were comforted. May God help us so to live, that we may meet again in the resurrection of the just!

SADIE C. BRALLIER.

From Mascot, Nebr.

I HAVE just read Bro. E. A. Replogle's article in MESSENGER, and will say that he is mistaken in regard to Jennie Phillips being the only sister in Frontier County, Nebr. There are some members living a short distance North-east of Stockville, Bro. Wm. Colebank, a minister in the second degree, lives there. There is another minister in the South-eastern part of the County,—North-east of Cambridge. There were four members living there, a year ago, last December. Bro Herman Sipe and wife live there. There is also a sister, by the name of Lucy Fisher, living near Curtis, the county-seat. Bro. S. S. Mohler informed me recently of her moving there.

The Sappa Creek church is an organized church. Furnas County is included in said church, and it corners with Frontier County. There is also an organized church in Buffalo County, which is less than one hundred miles from Frontier County.

We need more ministers here in the West. We want men who are loyal to the church to come among us and help us carry on the work of the Lord! J. P. NOFZIGER.

From Pleasant Grove, Lunenburg Co., Va.

OUR little flock, though isolated from the Brotherhood,—being one hundred and fifty miles from the nearest congregation—is, I am glad to say, in a growing condition. We have weekly meetings, and I notice our congregation is steadily growing. Our house, on last Sunday, was densely filled. Two sisters were on that day received by baptism. The rite was administered in the presence of a large concourse of people, many of whom saw it, for the first time, obeyed in accordance with the commission of our Savior.

The beautiful lake of pure water, about one hundred yards wide and half a mile long, was still and smooth. The green foliage, the blooming flowers, the singing birds, the beautiful sunshine of this gladsome spring morning, all conspired to throw over the scene a gentle halo.

I am glad that our brethren and sisters here are the chief men and women of this cultured community. I justify myself in thus rejoicing, by remembering that Paul was proud of a similar fact. If we follow him who followed Christ, we receive the approbation of heaven. S. H. LOVE.

Special Rates and Train to the German Baptist Annual Meeting at Harrisonburg, Va., via B. & O. R. R.

FOR the benefit of the members of the German Baptist church who desire to attend the Annual Meeting to be held at Harrisonburg, Va., a station on the Harper's Ferry and Valley Branch of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, this company will place on sale, at all principal stations, round trip excursion tickets at the low rate of one fare for the round trip. Sale of tickets to commence May 25, and continue until June 10, inclusive. Returning, will be good until July 5, 1889. One stop-over in each direction will be granted at stations west of the Ohio river, and at all points east of the Ohio river, upon notice to conductor. Stop-over not to exceed the limit of the ticket.

On June 8th special train will leave Chicago at 11:15 P. M., arriving at Harrisonburg at 10 o'clock Sunday morning. Fare $17.25 for the round trip. To accommodate all those who may wish to visit friends in Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania, arrangements have been made to sell round-trip excursion tickets at Harrisonburg, east of Harper's Ferry, to all stations on the B. & O., at the low rate of one fare for the round trip. No round-trip tickets will be sold east of Philadelphia or west of Harper's Ferry. For parties of thirty-five or more, traveling together, a through coach will be furnished. For further information address W. E. Reppert, Div. Pass. Agent, Columbus, Ohio.

My Visit to Mt. Morris.

WITH pleasure I look back to my cherished visit at Bro. Miller's home, and our pleasent associations with the Christian hosts and guests. God made the place divinely sweet. Our Christian intercourse was precious. The disclosure of oriental scenes and places,—a view of the peculiar relics of the Holy Land,—stirred and deepened our interest in the Bible narratives. I shall long remember the scene of happy faces, and our associations in Christian love. May we all meet in heaven! GEO. D. ZOLLERS.

May 20.

From Roanoke, Va.

I WISH to call the attention of the Brethren of the First District of Virginia to railroad arrangements to Annual Meeting at Harrisonburg.

Tickets will be on sale at Roanoke and points north June 1, good for thirty days, via the Shenandoah Valley. Rates, 2½ cents per mile each way. Buy your tickets to Waynesboro,—they do not sell tickets to Harrisonburg. At Waynesboro you will find tickets via the C. & O. R. R. to Staunton. There you will get tickets to Harrisonburg. Brethren west of Roanoke will find tickets at Christiansburg and Bristol on the Norfolk and Western R. R. at 2½ cents per mile each way. They will arrange to reach Roanoke at 1:30 A. M. At 7 A. M. No. 2 leaves Roanoke and makes good connections at Waynesboro and Staunton, giving plenty of time for transfer of baggage and buying of tickets. We reach Harrisonburg at 6:20 P. M., of same day. For special information address the undersigned. D. C. MOOMAW.

Another Church Organized.

ACCORDING to previous arrangements the brethren and sisters of Lancaster Co., Nebr., convened in the Baptist church at Jamaica, eight miles of Lincoln, May 11, for the purpose of organizing a church. After devotional exercises the following business was transacted in the fear of the Lord, Bro. B. F. Flory acting as Moderator. Elders present, M. M. Eshelman and G. W. Stambaugh:

1. Agreed unanimously to be organized in the order of the general Brotherhood.

2. The name of the organization to be "The Lincoln Church."

3. Boundary lines proposed, — lines of Lancaster County.

4. Unanimously agreed to practice the single mode of feet-washing.

5. D. G. Couser was chosen Secretary.

6. Bro. Jacob C. Peck was chosen Solicitor for District and Home Mission.

7. Sister Minnie Kerschner chosen as Solicitor for General Mission.

8. Bro. A. R. Smith chosen Treasurer.

9. Bro. B. F. Flory chosen to have the oversight.

10. Appointments.

The church has at present seventeen members with the following officers, Brethren Isaac Thomas, Adam R. Smith and D. G. Couser, ministers. Brethren J. C. Peck and Aaron Kerschner, deacons.

We were glad for the assistance and encouragement of the brethren present, who warmly exhorted us to simplicity, and general deportment, that we might be as shining lights, that others may see and walk in the path of right.

We had preaching Friday night by Bro. Flory, and also Saturday night; Sunday at 11 A. M. and 3:30 P. M, Bro. M. M. Eshelman gave us much to think about. We trust all will be benefited by his sermons. They will either do us good, or bring condemnation upon the negligent. Some expressed themselves as being near the kingdom.

We have three places of meeting, and may soon have another in West Lincoln.

Our weekly prayer-meetings keep fresh in our minds the duties which we owe to God, and our fellow-men.

May we all strive to preserve that simplicity which we find ever among God's humble children. The Baptist minister was present when we organized, and remarked, "I am glad to see you Brethren take the stand you do in regard to non-conformity to the world." Brethren, pray for us!

THE following amounts were received since our last report:

Levi Mohler, Missouri,	$ 10 00
Maria Meyers, Illinois,	5 00
Abram Horner, Pennsylvania,	5 00
E. M. Sumstine, Nebraska,	12 00

I am glad to state that the debt on the Salem church is now paid. Many thanks to the kind brethren. E. M. SUMSTINE.

From Panther Creek Church, Wordford Co., Ill.

OUR love-feast was held May 11. Everything passed off pleasantly. Good order was maintained. The ministering brethren present were, brethren T. D. Lyon, D. Stoner, C. S. Holsinger, O. Ebert and D. Hershey. Our meeting will long be remembered by the brethren and sisters. May we all draw nearer to the Lord by obeying his word! Pray for us that the good work may go on and that immortal souls may be brought to Christ.

As there are some churches that have not done anything in the home mission cause for some time, I wish to inform you that your mite will be needed, as the funds are nearly exhausted. There is not enough to pay what will be due in the near future. I hope those having charge of the several churches will lay the matter before their congregations, and give all a chance to cast in their mite, as the Lord has blessed them, for the Board can not do anything without means, and the last District Meeting has put more upon us, as you will see when you get the Minutes. I hope all will respond, and that the Lord may bless you!

Messages Dropped by the Way.

THANKS be to the Most High for the growing improvement in the matter of love and harmony at our District Meetings throughout the Brotherhood! When District Meetings were first granted and organized, their work fell into the hands of comparatively inexperienced brethren, as regards work of parliamentary order, but the present system of congregational and District delegation, and limited terms to serve in a given time, has and is giving such satisfaction by experience and improvement in local work, that we can not fail to be glad and rejoice.

At our late District Meeting one more dear brother publicly stated that he can now better afford to give $10 to the Mission Fund annually, since he quit the use of tobacco, than he could twenty-five cents while he used it, from the fact that it saves him more than that yearly.

To the Brethren who hold doubts as to the "apron," generally in use by our brethren and sisters, wherewith they gird themselves when washing the saints' feet, answering for the "towel" of King James' translation, I would say, Luther's translation renders the original article as being an apron (Schürze), and not towel or Handtuch. Hence the following must be proven before a change can be found necessary, First, that the original word is not the German Schürze. Second, that whatever it proves to be, must be fastened on without a string or girdle.

C. C. ROOT.

From the English River Church, Ia.

THE District Meeting of the Southern District of Iowa was held with the above-named congregation, April 26. The churches were not all represented. Why they were not, we do not know, but we feel sorry that it is so. It looks as if there were not the interest that should be. Some were represented by letter. There were a good many present from adjoining churches, which made us feel glad. There were some queries presented, and disposed of in the fear of the Lord, we trust, as was shown by the spirit manifested throughout. It is very seldom every one can have things pass just as he would like it, but then there was that spirit of forbearance, that characterizes Christians. One query was passed to Annual Meeting. Eld. Samuel Flory represents the District on Standing Committee. Bro. Geo. S. Wine is delegate for the English River congregation.

WE live in Rawlins County, Kans., just a mile from the State line. I do not know of any members in this County except myself. I have not heard any of the Brethren preach for two years, and would be much pleased to have some able minister come here and organize a church. We have a new school-house in our district, which would be a good place to hold meetings.

RHODA SMITH.

MATRIMONIAL.

"What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder."

PETRY—RINEHART.—At the residence of Bro. Peter Kitterman, April 14, by the undersigned, Bro. Steven S. Petry and sister Elzina Rinehart, of near Gratis, Ohio.

A. G. CROSSWHITE.

COOK—LONG.—At the residence of the bride's parents near South English, Iowa, May 2, by Bro. Geo. S. Wine, Mr. Justin P. Cook and Miss Rilla Long.

A. J. WINE.

WINSLOW—RENCH.—At the residence of brother and sister J. S. Ott, Rawlins county, Kans., May 5, by the undersigned, Mr. Lemuel Ulysses Winslow, of Thomas County, and sister Hattie Rench, of Rawlins County, Kans. B. B. WHITMER.

RHODES—STROPE.—At the residence of the undersigned, near Cerro Gordo, Ill., by Bro. A. J. Nickey, Bro. Isaac Rhodes, of Ashland, Oregon, and sister Susan M. Strope, of Oreana, Ill. J. V. EILER.

FALLEN ASLEEP

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

BROWER.—In the bounds of the Walnut church, Fulton Co., Ind., May 6, of blood poison, Bro. Josiah Brower, aged 51 years, 10 months and 24 days.

Deceased was born in Preble County, Ohio, in 1837. When about one year old, his parents moved to Miami County, Ind. He was married to Elizabeth Taylor, March 4, and soon after his marriage united with the Brethren church and moved to Wabash County, Ind. About five years ago he moved to Fulton County, Ind., where he ended his days. He was the father of seven children, who are all living except one son, who preceded him. He was a faithful member of the Brethren church for about twenty-four years. He was a kind and affectionate husband and father and a sociable neighbor, and loved by all who knew him. He endured his sickness with the greatest of patience, without a murmur or complaint. He called for the elders and was anointed with oil in the name of the Lord. He leaves a kind companion (a sister) and six children to mourn their loss, which, we hope, is his eternal gain.

Services by Bro. Aaron Swihart from Rev. 14: 12, 13, to a large audience of sympathizing friends and neighbors.

JOHN S. KRYDER.

EARLY.—Near Timberville, Rockingham Co., Va, April 26, Sister Leah Early, wife of Bro. Jonas Early, aged 67 years, 11 months, and 13 days.

Sister Early had been an intense sufferer for a long time. She has been blind for about six years, but never was known to complain. She bore it all with Christian fortitude. Funeral services by Eld. Daniel Hays and the writer. JOHN F. DRIVER.

JOHNSON.—Near Mount Olivet church, Rockingham County, Va., sister Elenora Johnson, aged 25 years and 12 days.

Deceased leaves a husband and five small children to mourn their loss. Sister Johnson was carried from her bed just five weeks ago to the living stream, to follow the example of the Savior in baptism. Funeral services by the writer. JOHN F. DRIVER.

SMITH.—In the Grand Prairie church, near Sidney, Nebr., Martha Bell, infant daughter of friend Lafayette and sister Ellen Smith, aged 1 year and 17 days. Occasion improved by the writer from the words, "He shall gather the lambs within his arm and carry them in his bosom." Isa. 40: 11.

May this departed angel child be a magnet, attracting the father to her Heavenly Shepherd! W. C. TEETER.

SPITZER.—Near Broadway, Rockingham Co., Va, April 30, sister Catherine Spitzer, wife of Bro. Jacob Spitzer, aged 45 years, 1 month and 3 days. She leaves a husband and eight children to mourn their loss.

Funeral services by Bro. John P. Zigler and the writer. JOHN F. DRIVER.

HAWKENBURY.—In the Kingsley church, Iowa, Feb. 16, Ella S., infant daughter of Bro. Albert and sister Agnes Hawkenbury, aged 5 years and 12 days.

J. W. TROSTLE.

BRUMBAUGH.—In the East Nimishillen church, Stark Co., Ohio, April 12, Bro. Jacob Brumbaugh, aged 89 years, 5 months and 17 days.

Deceased was born in Huntingdon County, Pa. He came to Stark County, Ohio, with his father, Conrad Brumbaugh, in 1812, and has lived here during his long life. He was able to be around and see to his business until within three days of his death, when he took a cold, which was the immediate cause of his death. Services by Eld. David Young and John Kurtz. A. BRUMBAUGH.

MOATS.—In the Manor congregation, Md., March 24, sister Martha Laura Moats, aged 23 years, 1 month, and 2 days.

Our sister was permitted to live but a short time in the service of her Master, but made all necessary preparations for an assurance of eternal happiness. She was anointed, and a communion meeting was held at her home. She bore her affliction patiently, and died in the hope of a glorious immortality beyond the grave. She leaves one little child with the husband, to mourn their loss. Services by Eld. David Long from 2 Cor 4: 17, 18. D. VICTOR LONG.

DIVELY.—In the Claar church, April 17, Abraham Frederick Dively, aged 6 months and 1 day.

DIVELY.—Also in the same church, May 4, Maggie May Dively, aged 5 years, 4 months, and 28 days.

The above were children of Bro. Joseph C. Dively (deceased) and Annie Dively. Father and four children were thus taken away inside of one year. Surely the hand of affliction has been resting heavily upon the family! May God help them to bear their troubles. Funeral occasion improved by the undersigned. MICHAEL CLAAR.

JOHNSON.—In the Pipe Creek church, Carroll County, Md., Feb. 17, of cancer and general debility, our sister Christena, widow of Samuel Johnson and a sister of Eld. Jacob Lerew, aged 66 years, 10 months and 19 days.

She was a consistent and exemplary member of the church for fifty years, and died in the hope of a blissful immortality. Funeral services by elders S. and E. W. Stoner from Rev. 14: 13.

COX.—In the Donnel's Creek church, Clark Co., O., May 4, of spinal fever, Albert D., only child of Bro. George and sister Maria Cox, aged 10 months and 4 days.

Services by one of the home ministers from Matt. 19: 13, 14, which was selected by the parents. They have the sympathy of their many friends. D. LEATHERMAN.

ABBY.—In the Middle Fork church, Clinton County, Ind., May 2, sister Susan Catharine Abby, aged 26 years, 11 months and 4 days.

She was the daughter of Bro. David and Mary E. Gochenour. She leaves a husband and two children to mourn their loss. She joined the German Baptist church when in her thirteenth year and lived a consistent life. Funeral services in the Pleasant View church by Eld. Isaac Billheimer and Michael Flory from Prov. 12: 28, to a very large congregation of sympathizing neighbors and friends. JOHN E. METZGER.

HAMILTON.—In the George's Creek church, W. Va., April 19, James Hamilton, aged 64 years, 9 months and 3 days. He was a member of the church for nearly thirty years.

BOSWELL.—At Little Walnut, Ind., March 31, Bro. Daniel Boswell.

Deceased was a member of the church of the Brethren since 1851, ever strong in the faith and in union with those of like mind. He was the father of eleven children, seven of whom, together with their mother, are left to mourn their loss.

SALOME WATKINS.

PIPHER.—In the Pokagon church, Cass Co., Mich., March 31, sister Mary Ann, wife of Bro. Peter Pipher, aged 53 years, 3 months and 15 days.

PLANK.—In the Elkhart Valley church, Elkhart Co., Ind., April 28, James, son of brother and sister Jonathan Plank, aged 13 years, 11 months and 7 days.

JOSEPH S. KULP.

HEASTAND.—In the bounds of Sandy church, Columbiana Co., Ohio, Henry Heastand, aged 66 years, 3 months and 14 days.

Deceased was a consistent member of the Presbyterian church for over a quarter of a century. Services by Joseph Sheehen of the Presbyterian church, assisted by the writer.

EUROPE is all very well, but don't you think it is only fair as an American to know your own country thoroughly? Try the "American Alps" on the South Park Division of the Union Pacific in Colorado this summer. There's nothing like them in Switzerland.

THE splendor of the "American Alps" is beginning to be appreciated by our people, and a visit to Switzerland for gorgeous scenery is unnecessary. The picturesque mountain resorts on the South Park Division of the Union Pacific in Colorado are absolutely unrivaled on this continent.

"FOR peculiarly soft yet penetrating shades of color, marvelous grouping in form, fantastic, solemn and tender shaping of rugged cliff and mountain and valley," says a distinguished artist, "the wonderful empire of Colorado stands peerless." The Alpine scenery along the line of the South Park Division of the Union Pacific in Colorado is the most magnificent in the United States.

"THEY rested there—escaped awhile
From cares which wear the life away,
To eat the lotus of the Nile
And drink the poppies of Cathay."—

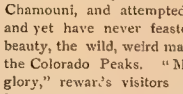
And every American business man is beginning to find that his summer vacation is more and more a necessity; the money making machine won't stand the strain without an occasional rest. The "American Alps" of Colorado offer the highest conditions for perfect relaxation, pure vital air, comfortable hotels and the noblest scenery in the country, and may be reached on the South Park Division of the Union Pacific Railway.

"THE peerless empire of form and color, is found in Colorado," says a great artist. So are many other very wonderful effects. There is that grand triumph of engineering skill, the Bow Knot Loop, famed all over the world; the pretty town of Graymont nestled against the base of Gray's Peak, the giant prince of the range; sunrise on Gray's Peak—a sight once witnessed never to be forgotten: Idaho Springs the beautiful, a restful spot blessed with the healing waters for all who come, within two hours' ride of young leviathan Denver: the storied gold camp of Georgetown, perched in the upper air of the mountains ever fresh and cool and clear—these are a few of the delightful spots in the "American Alps" reached by the Colorado Central Division of the Union Pacific Railway in Colorado.

MORAN, the great artist, despaired when he saw the Great Shoshone Falls,—it was so far beyond his pencil's cunning. So there are wonderful dreams of beauty in the tempestuous loveliness of the grand "American Alps," in Colorado, which are at once the aspiration and the despair of painter and poet. Splendid beyond comparison is the superb scenery along the South Park Division of the Union Pacific in Colorado.

IT is un-American in the highest sense for our people to prate about Europe so glibly when so many of them are profoundly ignorant of the wondrous beauties of their native land. As a matter of fact there are hundreds of thousands of American citizens who are thoroughly familiar with Switzerland; who have idled away weeks at Lucerne, done Chamouni, and attempted the Matterhorn, and yet have never feasted on the lovely beauty, the wild, weird majesty of any one of the Colorado Peaks. "More than Alpine glory," reward's visitors along the South Park Division of the Union Pacific in Colorado. There is no scenery like it in the new world.

Advice to Mothers.



MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. 28y1

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER.

"Set for the Defense of the Gospel."

Vol. 27. Old Series. Mt. Morris, Ill., and Huntingdon, Pa., June 4, 1889. No. 23.

The Gospel Messenger.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH, Editor,

And Business Manager of the Eastern House, Box 50, Huntingdon, Pa.

ELDER P. S. MYERS and wife are visiting among their many eastern friends, and are also attending a number of Communion meetings. They will remain east for some time yet.

"THERE is many a thing which the world calls disappointment, but there is no such word in the dictionary of faith. What to others are disappointments, are to believers intimations of the will of God."

REPORTS from every-where are that the prospects for large crops were never better, and our farmers are hopeful of receiving a rich reward for their labors. May the harvest of souls gathered be equally good!

WE expect to have a tent on the Annual Meeting grounds where we will be pleased to meet our brethren and sisters, and those who have labored so faithfully for us and our work. Through correspondence we seem to be acquainted with many whom we have never met. A personal interview with such is always pleasant and appreciated.

"WE are to despise none, however humble in ability, or weak in strength, or ignorant in intelligence, for God only knows how much the germ of faith within them may expand into the years and ages to come, and because the weakest saint here is honored more of God than the greatest sinner. All the feeble saints have the ministration of the angels of God."

"LET a man's innocence be what it will, let his virtues rise to the highest pitch of perfection, there will still be in him so many secret sins, so many human frailties, so many offenses of ignorance, passion and prejudice, so many unguarded words and thoughts, that without the advantage of such an expiation and atonement as Christianity has revealed to us, it is impossible he should be saved."

"GOD loves the liberal and cheerful giver. He has made the most generous promises to the liberal soul. We need to think of these things, for now the salvation of the world waits upon the greater liberality of his people. The few are doing according to the full measure of obligation and ability, but the many give little or nothing. What we need is that all shall give, and that each one shall give liberally and cheerfully."

"LIFE is full of reasons for thankfulness. If we look back, goodness and mercy have been over us in the past. If forward, grace is promised for the way, and glory at the end. If within, there the divine spirit works. If without, there both nature and revelation shed light on our present path. All the dealings of divine Providence are designed for our good; and if rightly improved, will prepare us for the world where thankfulness and joy shall reign forever."

"GOSPEL CHIMES" seems to be meeting with very general favor, and the almost unanimous expression, from those who have given the book a fair test, is encouraging. Bro. John E. Young says that the one piece, "God be with you 'til we meet again" is worth the price of the book. Only 30 cents each, or $3.00 per dozen, post-paid.

WE have made arrangements to have copy of report of our coming Annual Conference written out as taken, and to have it printed, and ready for sending out, within six or ten days after the close of the meeting, thus getting it to our readers before it has time to cool off, or get stale. Orders can be sent in at once. Price, 25 cents per copy, or $2.50 per dozen.

A FEW SUGGESTIONS.

THE different railroad companies are offering very liberal terms or rates for our Brethren to attend the Annual Conference. And as they do this, we should show a corresponding appreciation for favors thus granted. And further, we ought to show that we possess a fair share of the Christian graces, such as good common sense, politeness, and cleanliness.

The first can be exercised to a good advantage in getting on and off the cars,—not to rush in to get the empty and best seats, and thus crowd others out who may be older or quite as deserving. As in every case, where a car is over full, some one must be unseated, and it is always more honorable to be the unseated one, than to get a seat by virtue of physical strength and bad manners.

Those who wait, and enter decently, and in order, generally fare quite as well. If not, they need not blush at their ugliness. And in getting out, there is no necessity for causing a stampede. Trains always stop long enough for everybody to get out safely, and in good order. Crowding in and out is not only bad manners and ungentlemanly, but it is dangerous, as it gives pickpockets excellent opportunities to ply their trade on the unsuspecting.

Politeness is a grace that should be exercised every-where, but especially while traveling, and before the public.

While traveling we should be careful not to infringe upon the proper rights of others by using undue liberties, such as loud talking, or doing anything that would disturb others. Not long since, as we were returning home from a trip East, we noticed two men getting in at a way station, and as there was no place empty in the coach where they could sit in the same seat, they were compelled to take different seats. One of them, however, soon went to where the other was sitting, and opened a standing conversation, and did it in a way that so annoyed the one at the side of his friend, that he got up and left his seat in disgust. Such boorishness should not be indulged in by Christians, and a little thoughtfulness on the part of our people, while traveling, will add greatly to our reputation. In stopping at hotels and public houses, the same carefulness should be exercised.

We shall never forget a scene that we saw at Harper's Ferry, on our way to Annual Meeting in Virginia, some years ago. Our late, and ever esteemed Elder Quinter, and others, were along with us. As we had to lay over there several hours, we were met at the depot by a porter, who pressed on us to go with him, and, as an inducement, he said, "We have a whole lot of your people with us." As we entered the sitting-room, we found it well filled with "our people," and each one had a pipe, puffing away, so that the whole room was filled with a cloud of tobacco smoke. Brother Quinter seemed to be shocked at the sight, and he at once asked if we could not have another room, which request was granted. But after we left, remarks were made by the smokers, "That crowd is too proud to sit with us." If to refuse to sit in a room polluted with smoke, even though the smokers be called brethren, is pride, our company was guilty of the charge. We are not ashamed of such pride. In the room was a bar, where whiskey was sold, and where drunkards congregated,—a fit place for smokers, but a bad place for brethren. To the Christian belongs a dignity that we must recognize, and cannot afford to overlook. We are glad to believe that scenes like the above are of rare occurrence, and, we hope, may never be repeated. There is no necessity for brethren, and especially ministers, lounging around in bar rooms. Any respectable public house will give a respectable room, when asked for. Hotel-keepers, as a rule, soon learn to measure the moral and religious standard of their guests, and are always ready to place them where they properly belong.

Cleanliness is both a grace and a virtue, and is distinctively Christian. For uncleanliness there is no excuse. When water and soap abounds, filthiness is a crime against God and society. It is a sin against our physical bodies, and unfits us for respectable associations. No matter how cheap, and plain our clothes are, if they fit neatly, and are kept clean, they are respectable. Our members sometimes say that they are ostracized, and held in ridicule, on account of their plain clothing. This is a mistake. It is the miserable misfits and slouchy manner in which they are worn, and their uncleanly appearance, that attract attention. Plainness, with neatness and cleanliness, is always admired by good-thinking people.

We offer these suggestions for the consideration of our members at this time, because of the large number that will soon appear before the public as travelers, in going to and from our coming Annual Meeting.

As you go out, don't forget that you are representatives of the church, witnesses for Christ, and your lives are the light of the world. Let your neatness, cleanliness, politeness, and modesty, your conversation, and your general deportment, all witness for Christ, and the holy religion which you profess.

THE GREAT FAMINE CRY.

"Tell your people how fast we are dying; and ask if they cannot send the Gospel a little faster."—Words of a Heathen Woman.

Hark! the wail of heathen nations:
List! the cry comes back again,
With its solemn, sad reproaching,
With its piteous refrain:
"We are dying fast of hunger,
Starving for the Bread of Life!
Haste, oh, hasten! ere we perish,
Send the messengers of life!

"Send the Gospel faster, swifter,
Ye who dwell in Christian lands;
Reck ye not we're dying, dying,
More in number than the sands?
Heed ye not his words—your Master:
'Go ye forth to all the world'?
Send the Gospel faster, faster—
Let its banner be unfurled!"

Christian! can you sit in silence
While this cry fills all the air?
Or content yourself with giving
Merely what you "well can spare"?
Will you make your God a beggar,
When he asks but for "his own"?
Will you dole him from your treasure,
A poor pittance as a loan?

Shame, oh, shame! for very blushing
E'en the sun might veil his face:
"Robbing God"—ay, of his honor,
While presuming on his grace!
Keeping back his richest blessing
By withholding half the "price"
Consecrated to his service;
Perjured, perjured, perjured thrice!

While you dwell in peace and plenty,
"Store and basket" running o'er,
Will you cast to these poor pleaders
Only crumbs upon your floor?
Can you sleep upon your pillow
With a heart and soul at rest,
While, upon the treacherous billow,
Souls you might have saved are lost?

Hear ye not the tramp of nations
Marching on to Day of Doom?
See them falling, dropping swiftly,
Like the leaves, into the tomb.
Souls for whom Christ died are dying,
While the ceaseless tramp goes by;
Can you shut your ears, O Christian,
To their ceaseless moan and cry?

Hearken! hush your own heart-beating,
While the death-march passeth by—
Tramp, tramp, tramp! the beat of nations,
Never ceasing, yet they die—
Die unheeded, while you slumber,
Millions strewing all the way;
Victims of your sloth and "selfness"—
Ay, of mine and thine to-day!

When the Master comes to meet us,
For this loss what will he say?
"I was hunger'd; did ye feed Me?
I ask'd bread ye turned away!
I was dying, in My prison,
Ye ne'er came to visit Me!"
And swift witnesses those victims,
Standing by, will surely be.

Sound the trumpet! wake God's people!
"Walks" not Christ amid his flock?
Sits he not "against the treasury"?
Shall he stand without and knock—
Knock in vain to come and feast us?
Open, open heart and hands!
And as surely his best blessings
Shall o'erflow all hearts, all lands.

THE church has not cast anchor over an uncertain Bible or an uncertain creed. If it has, then it has no message to deliver and no authority to lift up its voice in the name of God and his Christ.—Dr. H. Bonar.

TRINE IMMERSION.

BY A. W. REESE.

Part Four.—The "Mode" of Baptism.

"Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost."—Matt. 28: 19.

WE approach now a very important part of our theme, a part of the subject about which there has been endless controversy in theologic circles, since the dawn of the fourth century of the Christian era. There has been much acrimonious and needless discussion which the world had been better without. Vast volumes, ponderous tomes, a colossal pile, mountains of painfully dry and unprofitable literary rubbish,—"Pelion piled upon Ossa," have been heaped up as to the "mode" of baptism. In these interminable efforts all the resources of modern learning have been impressed into the service. The domain of metaphysics has been ransacked from end to end in the effort to sustain the peculiar views and doctrines of ecclesiastic sects. All nominal Christian lands have contributed their respective shares to this wordy war, this struggle of theologic giants, this mighty battle of the Titans.

Much of this, if not all of it, might have been avoided had the church taken a bold and consistent stand on the Word of God, but as the traditions and commandments of men began their encroachments on the plain letter of the Word, instead of meeting these attacks with the fierce Sword of the Spirit, and with the moral courage of honest conviction, a disposition to compromise began to enter into the contest for the truth; and thus was principle so modified as to weaken its moral force and, finally, abandoned altogether. Drifting helplessly far out on the wide, illimitable ocean of human speculation, the church was lost in the hopeless fog of vain philosophy, and in the tangled web of the conflicting theories of man.

Before entering more directly upon the investigation of the mode of baptism, some premises must be laid down, founded upon the laws of intelligence and common reason that will enable us to arrive at just conclusions in the case. The propriety of this suggestion must be obvious to all. Words and phrases sometimes become current in the popular mind which will not bear a strict analysis of their truth. The common expression, "modes of baptism," is a conspicuous example of this, because this admits at once that all these different things, commonly called "baptism," are simply one and the same thing under different forms. This proposition, which is so popularly received, we, by no means, admit.

Mode simply means the manner, or way, of doing a certain thing or things, that are in their essential nature the same. We cannot adopt the same way of doing things that are utterly diverse from each other. The thing, then, which we call "baptism" must be uniform under all circumstances and, at all times, the same thing wherever found. If the plural form be used then it must be self-evident that the things compared or likened to each other must also be uniform, the same things, or, at least, similar things in all the essential features of the case. The foregoing we claim to be correct and just premises commending themselves to the judgment and reason of all thoughtful and reflective minds.

It must be apparent, then, that things susceptible of comparison must be alike. For example, we cannot compare an elephant with a sun-fish because they are not similar in a single feature except that of life. If this be true of nouns, the names of things, and examples need not be multiplied, how much more eminently so in the case of active verbs—the words which are the framework of all languages, and all peoples, words which imply and express the act of doing something. We cannot classify diverse or antagonistic verbs. We cannot include in the same comparison the operations of farming and those of the blacksmith because they are totally unlike. I cannot compare my mode of farming with the blacksmith's mode of shoeing a horse. The incongruity is plain, but I can institute a comparison between my mode of farming and that of my neighbor who is engaged in the same vocation of life. Or I may compare the manner of work in one blacksmith's shop with that of another smith. Now let us apply a similar process of reasoning to baptism and its "mode," in other words, the action required in its case—the way of doing it—for this is "mode" and nothing else. We contend in the outset, most earnestly, that baptism is a noun, a thing, one thing, and only one thing, all the time, everywhere, in every place. And we also contend that there is but one way (or "mode") to do that thing. Moreover that all other things called "baptism," done in any other way (or all other ways), is NOT that thing called, in the New Testament, baptism, but is some other thing.

"There is one Lord, one faith, ONE BAPTISM," (not four or five). Eph. 4: 5. This declaration of itself ought to be "the conclusion of the whole matter," and would most surely be so if men were content with the simple declaration of God's Word. Let us now proceed and see if we can discover the "mode" or the way of performing this baptism of which it is emphatically said there is but one.

It is a significant fact that the Greek word baptizo has not been translated. It has simply been transplanted from the Greek language into the English tongue. In the same manner an apple tree might be taken out of the nursery and set in the orchard; there is no change in the nature of the tree by this act. It is the same tree in the orchard that it was in the nursery from which it was taken. Whoever was familiar with it in the first place, would easily recognize it in its new home.

When we reflect that our Savior spoke and taught the multitudes in the language of the Greek, that it was the common tongue of the people in Palestine at that time, that his disciples also used the same speech, and that all the evangelists, Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John, wrote their Gospels in Greek, and the apostles all the epistles, it may be supposed that they could readily understand what our Lord and Savior meant by the term baptize. When, therefore, he tells them to "baptize all nations," we presume they knew just exactly what they were to do. This inference is conclusive when we see that our Lord does not explain to them the nature or manner of the thing they were to do. He simply says, Go and do this thing—"baptize all nations."

If the disciples had not understood this command, an explanation, as in the case of washing their feet, would have been given them. That they needed none, is, therefore, evident. Not only did they know just exactly what our Lord and Savior meant by the word "baptize," but they had seen it done time and again. When, therefore, they were commanded to "baptize all nations," they were to do a certain specific thing, not things or a set of things. There was but one thing to be done, one baptism and only one. There could be no mistake as to how—the "mode" by which—that one thing commanded them was to be done, how that "one baptism" was to be performed. There was and could be, no question of the "mode." There could be, in the very nature of the case, but one "mode," one way of doing it. Now, for the sake of illustration, let us suppose that "one baptism" was consummated, finished up by trine immersion.

This "mode" is accomplished by submerging, or immersing, the whole body thrice—once "in the name of the Father," once "in the name of the Son," and lastly, again, in the name of the Holy Ghost." This is what we understand the great commission to teach, not only from its grammatical construction but from the continuous or frequentative action implied in the Greek verb, baptizo. Of the peculiar grace and flexibility of this wonderful Greek tongue we shall have more to say hereafter.

This one baptism or immersion into each name of the Adorable Trinity, as commanded by our Savior, also establishes and confirms that great fundamental doctrine of our holy religion concerning which some have erred and "made shipwreck of the faith." What, then, shall we say of other "modes"? There are numerous sects who claim that the thing called "sprinkling" is baptism. I was about to say the "one baptism," but I believe the most, if not all, of these denominations are "liberal" enough to admit all other "modes" as "valid baptism." If, as we have supposed, trine immersion is that "one baptism," is SPRINKLING a "mode" of immersion? It is not. There is no resemblance to each other, there is no similarity between the two. SPRINKLING is not any FORM, whatever, of IMMERSION. It is a different thing in toto. Is IMMERSION, on the other hand, a "mode" of SPRINKLING? By no means. It is a different thing in every respect. There are also some sects who claim that POURING is a "mode" of BAPTISM. Is pouring a "mode" of SPRINKLING? Is it a "mode" of IMMERSION? Is it a way or manner of doing either of these OTHER baptisms? No one, certainly, will pretend that it is. Here, then, are THREE THINGS, all laying claim to the name of BAPTISM and all DIFFERENT from each other. Which of these THREE DIFFERENT THINGS is the "ONE baptism" set forth in the Word of God? SOMEBODY has made a MISTAKE? Who is it? If there is but ONE Christian baptism, one "mode" authorized by the Scriptures of Divine Truth, then there are several things CALLED baptism that are NOT of GOD, but are the INVENTIONS of MEN.

AFFLICTION.

BY JAMES H. LARKINS.

THERE is an elasticity to the human mind capable of bearing much, but which will not show itself until a certain weight of affliction be put upon it. "Fear not the darkness," saith the Persian proverb, "it conceals, perhaps, the springs of the Water of Life."

Experience is often bitter but wholesome. Only by its teachings can we learn to suffer and be strong. Character, in its highest forms, is disciplined by trial and made perfect through suffering. Even from the deepest sorrow, the patient and thoughtful mind will gather a richer mead than pleasure ever yielded. Think it not unkind when afflictions befall thee: it is all for the best that they are sent. God calls those whom he loveth and why should he not claim his own jewels to shine in his house though our own be made dreary?

It may seem hard under such circumstances to say that it is "all for the best." The human heart is prone to give over to grief and lamentations, but wait! Soon, when like the tired pilgrim you shall fall sick and weary, he will take you home to rejoice in finding friends from whom you have been separated. Then, how true will be the saying that "it was all for the best!"

Sad accidents and a state of affliction are a school of virtue. Thus our spirits are reduced to soberness and our counsels to moderation. God, who governs the world in mercy and wisdom, never would have suffered the virtuous ones to endure so many keen afflictions, did he not intend that they should be the seminary of comfort, the nursery of virtue, the exercise of wisdom, and the trial of patience. The venturing for a crown leads to the gate of glory.

Much of the most useful work done by men and women has been done amidst afflictions,—sometimes as a relief from it, sometimes as a sense of duty overpowering personal sorrow.

Adversity is the touch-stone of character. As some herbs need to be crushed to give forth their sweetest odors, so some natures need to be tried by suffering to evoke the excellence that is in them. Grief is a common bond that unites hearts. It can knit hearts closer than happiness can, and common sufferings are far stronger links than common joys. The visitations of sorrow are universal. There beats not a heart but that it has felt the force of affliction. There is not an eye but has witnessed many scenes of sorrow.

They are always impaired by sorrow who are not thereby improved. Some natures are like grapes,—the more they are down trodden the richer tribute they supply.

It may be affirmed substantially that good men reap more real benefit from their affliction than bad men do from their prosperities, for what they lose in wealth, pleasure, or honor, they gain in wisdom and tranquility of mind. "No creature would be more unhappy," said Demetrius, "than a man who had never known affliction."

The best need afflictions for the trial of their virtue. How can we exercise the grace of contentment if all things succeed well or that of forgiveness, if we have no enemies? At a superficial view it appears that adversity happens to all alike, without regard to rank or condition. The good are apparently as little favored by fortune in this respect as the bad,—the high as the humble.

People are continually rising and falling in all the grades of society. We often see men of high expectations suddenly cut down, and left to struggle with despair and ruin. If the happiness of mankind depended upon the caprice of fortune, their condition would indeed be wretched, but it is possible to possess a mind which will not lose its tranquility in the severest adversity or at least such a one as, being disturbed and deprived of its wanton serenity by a sudden calamity, will recover in a short period, and assume its native buoyancy, by the shock which it has experienced.

How uncertain is human life! There is but a breath of air and a beat of a heart betwixt this world and the next. In the brief interval of painful and awful suspense while we feel that death is present with us, we are powerless and he all powerful. The last faint pulsation here is but the prelude of endless joys hereafter. In the midst of the stunning calamity about to befall us, when death is in the family circle, and some loved one is about to be taken from us, we feel as if earth had no compensating good to mitigate the severity of our loss, but we forget that there is no grief without some beneficent provisions to soften its intensities. Thus, in the presence of death, there is also a consolation. Has the life been stormy, there is now rest,—rest for the troubled heart and the weary head, and it can be known only by experience with what a longing many hearts thus look forward to the rest of death. Many, whom the world regards as peculiarly blessed by Providence, carry with them such corroding, anxious cares that it is with a feeling of relief that they contemplate the approach of death. To them death comes in its most beautiful form; he borrows the garb of gentle sleep, lays down his iron scepter, and his cold hand falls as warm as the hand of friendship over the weary heart now ceasing to beat.

Grief or misfortune seem to be indispensable to the development of intelligence, energy, and virtue. The trials to which we are subject, are necessary, perhaps, to draw us from our lethargy to disclose our character. Afflictions even have the effect of eliciting talents which, in prosperous circumstances would have lain dormant.

Suffering, indeed, seems to have been as divinely appointed as joy, while it is much more influential as a discipline of character. Suffering may be the appointed means by which the highest nature of man is to be disciplined and developed. Sometimes a heart-break rouses an impassive nature to life. "What does he know," said a sage, "who has not suffered?"

No soul is so obscure that God does not take thought for its schooling. The sun is the central light of the solar system, but it has a mission to the ripening corn and the purpling clusters on the vine as well as the ponderous planet. The sunshine that comes filtering through the morning mists with healing on its wings and charming all the birds to singing, should have also a message from God to sad hearts. No soul is so grief-laden that it may not be lifted to sources of heavenly comfort by recognizing the divine love in the perpetual recurrence of earthly blessings.

Afflictions sent by Providence must be submitted to in a humble spirit, otherwise they will not conduce to lasting good. The same furnace that hardens clay, liquifies gold, and by the manifestation of divine power Pharaoh found his punishment but David his pardon. As the musician straineth at his strings and yet breaketh none of them, but maketh thereby a sweeter melody and better concord, so God, through affliction, makes his own better unto the fruition and enjoyment of the life to come. Afflictions are the medicine of the mind; if they are not toothsome, let it suffice that they are wholesome. It is not required in physic that it should please but that it should heal.

Let one of our loved ones be taken away and memory recalls a thousand sayings to regret. Death quickens recollection painfully. The grave cannot hide the white face of the one who sleeps. The coffin and the green mound are cruel magnets. They draw us further than we would go. They force us to remember. A man never sees so far into human life, as when he looks over a wife's or a mother's grave. His eyes get wondrous clear then, and he sees as never before what it is to love and be loved, what it is to injure the feelings of the beloved.

After this life of sorrow and pain, where we are continually weighed down with care, there is a home of perpetual rest,—the streets of which are thronged with an angelic host, who "with songs on their lips and with harps in their hands," tell neither the sorrow nor grief which perhaps wasted their lives while in this mundane sphere.

FRAGMENT OF A LETTER.

BY C. H. BALSBAUGH.

IN order to redemption, God had to become flesh. He made humanity the instrument, not the ground, of His atoning work. So it is still in the constitution of the church. The Holy Ghost is the life of the Mystical Body; and all ordinances and external forms are but media of expression for the indwelling Christ. All true works have the life of God for their origin and end. They do not save, but they are expressive and conservative of the life of Christ in the soul. Christ is ours by faith, and in accepting Christ we get both willingness and power to do all He commands. Our obedience is the result of salvation, and the maintaining of our position, and the condition of our progress.

Without incarnation and crucifixion of Jesus, there is no foundation laid for salvation; without the Holy Ghost that foundation will never become a personal and conscious appropriation. Jesus is the "down-bringer" of God, and the Holy Ghost is the "in-bringer of" Jesus. When Christ's redeeming work is made our righteousness, by faith, through the Holy Ghost, then the works appointed by Christ, for the illustration of our faith, will be certain, and natural as the movements of the hands and feet of a new-born babe. Jesus, the object; faith, the apprehensive faculty; peace, the immediate result; and good works, the life-long duty and joy of the saint!

WHO KEEPS HOLY THE SABBATH DAY?

BY J. H. HANSTINE.

WHO keeps the Sabbath Day holy, the man who remains at home engaged in reading, meditation and prayer, or the one who attends church and then visits?

The former, perhaps, partakes of a plain dinner, prepared with little trouble, while the latter causes some poor woman, tired-out with the week's work, to toil and roast in the kitchen to prepare for him a feast. I think neither man performs his whole duty.

There is a popular proverb which says, "Of two evils, choose the least." A better rendering of this proverb is, "Of two evils, choose neither." Now, if you will take notice, you will find that it is quite indicative of the character and motives of men, to note what classes observe the above distinction. The world-wise, pleasure-seeking, and time-serving class find it very much to their convenience to adopt the first form, "Of two evils, choose the least." The Christian, however, who loves God with all his heart, and whose chief joy is to please God, resolutely says, "Of two evils, choose neither."

If, then, it is the Christian's duty to mix no evil with his Sabbath keeping, let us learn from the Scriptures what is absolutely right to do, or not to do, upon God's holy day. Jesus said, "The Sabbath was made for man." A great many things have been made for man. The animals we use, the iron in the mountains, the coal in the bowels of the earth, the silver and the gold, the grain, and the fruits were all made for man. But every one knows that there are wrong ways as well as right ways of using them. So there are wrong ways of using the Sabbath. The Scripture says it was to be "kept holy." And one of the ways of keeping it holy, was to hold a "holy convocation" (or gathering). Lev. 23:3. We know that this was done in later times, by the Jews, in assembling in their synagogues. Christ, our great Exemplar, observed this custom as also did the apostles. We are further enjoined in the Scriptures to "forsake not the assembling of yourselves together." Hence we conclude that it is plainly our duty to attend divine worship on the Sabbath day.

The Scriptures also teach that the Sabbath was made for a day of rest. "In it, thou shalt not do any work." Let us now look at one of the prohibitions for that day. I will give it in the language of others, and the reader may look up the Bible references.

"No fire was to be kindled on the Sabbath, under the penalty of death." Ex. 31:14; 35:2, 3." —Smith's Old Testament History.

"On the Sabbath, the law forbade any fire to be kindled, even for cooking." Ex. 35:3; Num. 15:32-36.—Smith's Bible Dictionary.

A late writer in the Sunday-school Times, in describing the modern Jewish Sabbath in Palestine, says: "From 6 P. M. on Friday no fire is kindled, even for cooking, and at the third, sixth, and ninth hours all the male population, even to the youngest boy, who can walk, gathers in the synagogue."

In our climate we might well enter a plea for fire during the severe winter, on account of comfort and health; but can we, conscientiously, in the face of the above facts, enter any such plea for the purpose of having a "big dinner?" Surely not.

Therefore we conclude, that the person who attends a place of worship, then returns home to partake of a simple meal, prepared principally the day before (Ex. 16:5), and spends the remainder of the day in holy reading and prayer, or in imparting religious instruction to his family, is without doubt keeping the Sabbath day holy. He is not in any sense choosing "the least of two evils," but, in the spirit of the true Christian, says, "I choose neither." Any other course pursued, would be doubtful and, likely, sinful.

Sabbath visiting is very seldom done for the pure purpose of glorifying God. Usually the underlying motive is to gratify self in social enjoyment, which, if done at all, ought to be done on week days.

God has given to men six days out of seven for their purposes, and has reserved but one for His purpose, and now men are trying to wrest that day out of God's hand. Truly, the prophet had a reason to write, "Will a man rob God?"

UNITY IN TRINITY, AND MULTIPLICITY IN UNITY.

BY JOHN FORNEY.

UNITY is defined to be "a state of being one; oneness; conjunction; agreement, uniformity."—Webster.

Trinity is defined to be "the union of three persons (the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit), in one Godhead, so that all the three are one God, as to substance, but three persons as to individuality."—Webster.

Multiplicity is defined to be "a state of being multiple, manifold, or various; a collection of many objects."—Webster.

We will consider the above heading under two divisions, first, unity in trinity; second, multiplicity in unity. We will compare and harmonize them with some Scriptural phrases, as used by Jesus and the inspired writers.

Jesus said to the Jews, "I and my Father are one." John 10:30. "For there are three that bear record in heaven, the Father, the Word (Son), and the Holy Ghost: and these three are one." 1 John 5:7. Here we have three in one, and one in three. And above we see that the Son said, "I and the Father are one." "For I have not spoken of myself; but the Father which sent me, he gave me a commandment, what I should say, and what I should speak." John 12:49. "If ye loved me, ye would rejoice, because I said, I go unto the Father: for my Father is greater than I." John 14:28. "I came forth from the Father, and am come into the world: again, I leave the world, and go to the Father." John 16:28. "As thou hast sent me into the world, even so have I also sent them into the world. And for their sakes I sanctify myself, that they also might be sanctified through the truth. Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word; That they all may be one; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us: that the world may believe that thou hast sent me. And the glory which thou gavest me I have given them; that they may be one, even as we are one: I in them, and thou in me, that they may be made perfect in one." John 17:18-23.

Here we have a number of texts before us that bear directly on our subject. Let us proceed to harmonize, and show from the above texts, the consistency of there being unity in the Trinity. Let us look at the oneness of the three distinct persons in the Godhead,—the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit, how they are three, and how they are one.

1. In personality they are as distinctly set before us in the Bible as three persons, just as Adam and Eve were two distinct persons after they were formed into two bodies, and yet were one flesh. Jesus said, Matt. 19:6, "Wherefore they are no more twain." Why not? Because there was a union formed between the two,—they were made one in the beginning by God. They were divided into two separate persons by Almighty God, and united forever into one again. If we poor, stupid mortals could learn to understand the simpler mysteries of our Maker that are so closely connected with our nature here below, as the above example of one in two, and two in one, which he hath given us in the Bible, we might learn to understand something of this oneness of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, who were always united in one, and will forever remain so.

It is clearly revealed to us in the Bible that the Father was in heaven when his Son was here on earth for over thirty-three years, and wore a body of flesh. He traveled up and down the land of Palestine,—preaching the Gospel of the kingdom of God in every city and village. Multitudes of people followed him, and to his chosen disciples he said before his crucifixion, "It is expedient for you that I go away: for if I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you; but if I depart, I will send him unto you." John 16:7. "These things have I spoken unto you, being yet present with you. But the Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, he shall teach you all things." John 14:25-26. "And Jesus, when he was baptized, went up straightway out of the water: and, lo, the heavens were opened unto him, and he saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove, and lighting upon him: And lo a voice from heaven, saying, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased." Matt. 3:16-17.

In the Scriptures it is shown that Jesus, the Son of God, was in the waters of Jordan, that the Holy Spirit descended from the heavens to earth, and that the Father's voice sounded from heaven, "This is my beloved Son."

Afterwards we have the Son of God on the cross, the Father in heaven with the Holy Spirit. We hear the Son pray, "Father forgive them; for they know not what they do." Again, "My God why hast thou forsaken me?" "Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit."

Now I ask you, dear reader, have we anything in the Bible that is made plainer than this, that there are three persons set forth in the Godhead, that the Father is not the Son, neither is the Son the Father, neither is the Son the Holy Ghost, neither is the Holy Ghost ever called Father or Son. Each one has his own name and office in the great work of redemption.

We will next consider multiplicity in unity. Jesus saith, "I pray for them: I pray not for the world, but for them which thou hast given me; for they are thine. And now I am no more in the world, but these are in the world, and I come to thee, Holy Father, keep through thine own name those whom thou hast given me, that they may be one, as we are. Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word; That they all may be one; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us: that the world may believe that thou hast sent me. And the glory which thou gavest me I have given them; that they may be one, even as we are one: I in them, and thou in me, that they may be made perfect in one." John 17: 9, 11, 20, 23.

In these texts we have not only three in one, or one in three, as we have it in the first part of this article, but we have multiplied thousands, added together into one,—the same as God the Father and his Son Jesus Christ are one. He in whose mouth never guile was found, saith that they may be made perfect in one, just as he and the Father are one.

Dear reader, do you believe the testimony of Jesus? Do you now understand how not only two or three persons can be one in the sense the Scriptures represent the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit to be one? The Bible nowhere calls them the same persons, when speaking of their work or office. Let us look at a few examples: "Let us make man in our image, after our likeness." Paul said, "There is one Spirit, one Lord, one God and Father." Peter says, "Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ." Paul calls, "God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ," in no less than three of his epistles.

I do not believe that any one will undertake to say that Jesus Christ was his own Father, or that he addressed the following prayers to himself: "I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth." Matt. 11: 23. "He went up into a mountain apart to pray." Matt. 14: 23. "And fell on his face, and prayed, saying, O my Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me: nevertheless, not as I will, but as thou wilt." Matt. 26: 39; Mark 14: 35-39. "Jesus lifted up his eyes, and said, Father, I thank thee that thou hast heard me." John 11: 41. "Father, save me from this hour: but for this cause came I unto this hour. Father, glorify thy name. Then came there a voice from heaven, saying, I have both glorified it, and will glorify it again." John 12: 27, 28.

I conclusion I will say, Read the whole of John 17, and I think you will agree with me, and say, "Surely, Jesus Christ is the Son of God, and not God, the Eternal Father himself, as some men teach in their discipline."

Thus we have the union of the three persons,—the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost. There is no disagreement in the three, but a perfect union,—a oneness in everything they do. This constitutes the triune God. So Jesus prayed for all the believers in his Word to be united in one common faith and union with one another,—not only to be one with one another, but to be in a union and oneness with the Father and Son, in the same sense as they are one. Christ did not only pray the Father for this oneness, but he died on the cross to "gather together in one the children of God that were scattered abroad." John 11: 52.

Now, dear reader, you may call this oneness of the multiplicity of the children of God, what you please, it does not change the subject. You may call all the material members of Christ one church, or one family, or one house, or one body, all of it is Scriptural. "For ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus. For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ. There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female: for ye are all one in Christ Jesus." Gal. 3: 26 28.

It is one thing to have our sins worn away from the memory, and quite another thing to have them washed away at the Gospel fountain.

"ABLE TO RECEIVE."

BY GEO. L. JENNINGS.

I have often heard the remark: "It is not so much what God has for us as it is what we are able to receive." This statement expresses a great fact. God has an infinite supply of grace and strength, adapted to all ranks and conditions of his people,—every one. There is not a burden we bear, not a want that presses, not a trouble that wears and grinds, but God has grace to make it light and easy, or remove it. He wants to do it, and is waiting for the privilege. What, then, is the reason why we do not have the blessing? Simply because we are not able to receive it. And why? Simply because we have not faith. Faith comes to God and asks, and God grants, and our capacity is enlarged. We come again and ask, encouraged by the former blessing and help, and we receive. And as our hearts and understandings are enlarged, we ask more and receive more, and thus honor God, the glorious Giver.

All of us need enlargement of the heart, and this comes by taking God's gracious promises and pleading at the throne, till they are granted, and thus, as our ability to receive is enlarged, God's blessings come, because more room is made for them. "If ye, then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more shall your Heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask him." Luke 11: 13.

Is it not lamentable that, while the supply is so abundant and God so willing, yes, anxious, to bestow his grace for every need, we have not the ability to receive, because we do not trust him, and come with the simple, child-like faith that obtains the blessings and makes room for more? And what blessing is more desirable than the Holy Spirit, to increase our faith and capacity?

HOW CAN WE REACH HEAVEN?

BY FLORIDA ETTER.

This is a question of great importance, and one that seems to be of little interest to many. It should be the greatest theme of our minds. This is a point each individual has to settle in his own mind. We have a guide, and if we follow it closely, we will not find it a hard question to settle. But we must not think the narrow way is an easy way,—it is infested by many a thorn! We can not expect to be carried to heaven on flowery beds of ease. Heaven is a dear place, but only through trials and tribulation can we reach it! Christ reached it in that way. He was patient and obedient to the will of God, and so must we be! If the world does mock us, let us try to model after Christ and we shall be happy! None of these shall enter heaven. Let us, who are professed followers of Christ, have hope, be faithful, firm in our resolution, and by these means we can reach heaven!

How sweet is that word heaven to the Christian! A place to cherish and comfort him after he has toiled so faithfully through all of the hardships here on earth! Now he reaps his reward, and now can rest in heaven with all the sanctified for evermore!

I WONDER.

BY J. S. FLORY.

Christ says, in John 5: 31, "If I bear witness of myself, my witness is not true." I wonder how much of the spirit of Christ is in those persons who stand up in a public assembly to make a silent witness of themselves that they are Christians? I do wonder if such a witness can be true.

If those standing monuments of obedience to unbelievers can feel justified in thus saying, by their actions, to the poor sinner by their side, "We are more holy than thou," I wonder how the same "boasters" can say aught against the proud Pharisee?

When Christ was before Pilate (Mark 15), to the many accusations brought against Him, "he answered nothing." I wonder if Christians in these days will do likewise, when they are accused of selfishness, etc.

I do wonder if doing as worldly-minded professors do, in their public demonstrations of worship, or work, is not getting unequally yoked together with them?

I am made to wonder how a representative of the meek and lowly Redeemer can, in any way, take part in bidding "God speed" to modern Anti-Christians.

Lastly I am made to wonder how there can be any fellowship between righteousness and unrighteousness,—any communion between light and darkness, any concord between Christ and Belial, or what part a believer can have with an unbeliever, what agreement there can be between the temple of God and idols. What does the Apostle mean when he says: "Wherefore come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing"? Anything in religion, or religious service, not of God, is unclean.

HUMILITY.

BY HENRY ROYER.

"Humble yourselves therefore under the mighty hand of God that he may exalt you in due time."—1 Peter 5: 6

Humility and pride stand opposite to each other. Humility points down, pride points up. The one leads to hell, the other to heaven. Humility clings to Christ and his followers, pride belongs to the devil and his followers. Christ has humility, the devil has pride. Christ has obedience, Satan disobedience. Christ has self-denial, Satan, self-defense. Jesus has the truth; the devil, falsehood.

Here stands the Prince of Light, and the prince of darkness. Jesus holds the truth, the Word of God, the Sword of the Spirit. "Yes," says one, "Jesus fought against the enemy of God and man with the artillery of heaven, and Satan's face was all scarred with lightning. The Son of Man has come to bruise the serpent's head."

Turn, sinners, turn while Jesus is driving the enemy back! Turn, for why will you die? Jesus says, "Come to me! Come that you may have life! Come that you may escape the wrath that is to come!" Take his yoke upon you and learn of him meekness and humility, and you shall find rest to your souls. Turn, sinners, grieve not the Spirit, quench it not too long, for fear you may, like Capernaum and Jerusalem, be given over to hardness of hearts, to believe lies and be damned! When you look at self, Christ is small, but when you look at Christ, self is small.

No one can see himself so small, so unworthy as when he sees Christ suffering, bleeding, dying, out of love to keep man out of hell!

Louisville, Ohio.

When in your last hour (think of this) all faculty in the broken spirit shall fade away and sink into inanity—imagination, thought, effort, enjoyment—then will the flower of belief, which blossoms even in the night, remain to refresh you with its fragrance in the last darkness.

LIVES OF THE CÆSARS.

BY W. H. ROOSE.

Number Four.—Cæsar.

CÆSAR became more esteemed by the people of Rome as he adopted a scheme followed to some extent by leaders of to-day, by distributing to the necessity of the poor. The Senate saw that Cæsar was growing more popular, and they endeavored to head him off, by doing the same thing, so the people would be less dependent upon Cæsar for their living. They were quite successful, as the people cared little whence their bread came. This is true to-day. We find thousands who will forsake their party, even when the greatest principles are at stake, for a little bit of whiskey. Cæsar's money was now almost spent, and he secured the governorship of Spain. As he was about leaving Rome, he was hemmed in by creditors, who refused to let him go until he had paid them. This he could not do, but Crassus, who was the wealthiest man of Rome, lent him eight hundred and thirty talents, which paid his debts, and left him free.

While passing through a village on his way to Spain a friend laughingly said, "Surely in such a small village no one would care in the least degree about rank or greatness;" but Cæsar replied, "I would much rather be the greatest man in this little place than the second man in Rome." Yet with all this Cæsar was often kind, and sacrificed comforts for others. At one time his attendant was taken ill, and it was ordered he should be put in Cæsar's bed, which was the only one in the house. At another time he was dining with a friend, whose servants put lamp oil instead of sweet oil in the dishes. Cæsar forbade his friend to mention it to his host, as it would have distressed him very much. He lamented that he had not become as great as Alexander the Great, who had conquered the whole of the then known world, while at the age of thirty. Cæsar was not much above thirty years of age till he became almost as renowned a man as Alexander the Great had ever been.

In a few years thousands of their enemies were slain on the field of battle, and many cities were burned by their soldiers. In almost every country there were widows and orphans mourning for those who had given their lives to the honor of Alexander and Cæsar. Just think that in one day Cæsar killed over three hundred thousand men whose lives were just as precious to them as his was to him. They were innocent victims, because they laid down their arms and resisted not. When we reflect over these cruelties, we think what a blessing it would have been to all concerned, had the Prince of Peace made his advent the night before in their midst, while the guardian angel proclaimed, "Peace on earth, and good will towards men." This Prince of Peace appeared about forty years afterward, and became greater than either Cæsar or Alexander. They led their thousands to death, while this Prince has led many more to the hope of a blissful life in heaven. He came to make people happy. His honor was greater than all the conquerors of earth combined, yet he laid it all aside, and became poor that we might be rich. He might have lived a king on earth, had twelve legions of angels to defend him, but he came to heal the broken-hearted, to open the eyes of the blind, cure the palsied, and to save all who by God's grace should repent, and believe on the Lord, and obey him. Christ did no acts that would cause the heart to bleed with sorrow; he went about doing good continually. He lived only about thirty-three years, yet his life and mercies will never be forgotten.

When we take a look at Cæsar we can see what a man is by nature,—selfish, revengeful, and proud,—but in Christ we have an example what we ought to be, kind, peaceable, forgiving, tender, longsuffering, and merciful.

Upon Cæsar's return he gave his daughter in marriage to Pompey, who had ruled the whole city by his talents and power. He was very kind to Cæsar, and had him appointed one of the consuls that were to govern Rome for that year. Then they, with Crassus, made an agreement that they would not allow any thing to be transacted in Rome except they be all agreed to it, thus denying Ribulus, the other consul, any power or right in the making or execution of any laws whatever. Ribulus became so frightened at Cæsar that he secluded himself for a whole year. The people made sport of his cowardice. As it was necessary to have two consuls to rule the Romans, they said their consuls for that year were Julius and Cæsar.

Cæsar strove to please the people in many ways, and partly succeeded. He decreed that a considerable quantity of land should be given to certain of the Roman citizens, and that each man with more than three children should have a share. Much corn was also dispensed to the needy. Had these deeds been all done out of pure motives, he would have possessed one element in nature that goes far in making a noble man and estimable ruler. It is proper to consider the needs of the poor, but it should not be done to secure the objects of selfish ambition. People who do such good deeds solely to increase their power and influence, would very often murder the same people, if it assured them the same results. This is clearly proven in the conduct of Cæsar shortly after this. Pompey and others supposed that they had favored Cæsar so much that his attachment for them was too strong to be severed. As easily as he put off his old clothes when they were of no more service to him, did he sever himself from his old friends. Cicero seemed to be the greatest obstacle in his way, and he went to work to have that greatest of orators banished from Rome. Cicero had done nothing that would tend to weaken good government, but did all that lay in his power to build the Romans up in good morals, and that tender regard for one another that we all should possess, but when evil men conspire to another's ruin, the smallest trifle is caught up as a just accusation against him. So it was a few years later when the king of the Jews was brought to trial. The question was asked, "Why, what evil hath he done?" and the conviction was, "Crucify him."

Now when Cicero was disposed of, Cæsar next sought the life of Pompey. Cæsar found this no easy task, as it was the work of years. During this time, he borrowed many soldiers from Pompey, and made war upon the Gauls, who inhabited that part of Europe we now call France. He won many battles, and killed more enemies in ten years than had ever been done before. His soldiers took eight hundred cities, killed one million people, and took one million prisoners. They killed all who resisted them, men, women, and children. There were so many in the rivers and lakes that a person could walk over in many places on the bodies of the slain. At one time a soldier started a retreat, when Cæsar caught him by the shoulder saying, "Look on this side for your enemy." This is a noble motto for the soldier of the cross to adopt, in a spiritual sense.

VIOLATING THE MORAL NATURE.

BY EZRA. H. DETWILER.

IF, by a dishonorable course of life, a man may have attained wealth, and by that wealth has position, —the loss of property, and of position attained by that wealth, brings him to his reflections. Then, if not before, the voice of conscience, which has been contumaciously suppressed, keeps him awake at night, for the lessons which should have been received from day to day for years, are crowded upon him in one moment.

It is not necessary that a man should do as his neighbor, or as society dictates. So long as mankind is not run in one mould, there will be diversity of opinion, and each man will form, from investigation and reflection, a moral standard of his own, or modified by his individuality. It is not what others say of us, or what people of other nations say of our nation, that makes us great, powerful, and happy. It is what we can feel regarding ourselves; it is the self-respect which a noble life creates. If our conscience can pronounce the verdict, right, we are at once invincible; we are happy.

The applause of others may tickle our vanity at the moment we think it misapplied; but the applause of a clear conscience sinks a shaft of moral strength down into the very soul's centre. It does not simply dwarf a man morally to devote his entire energies to the accumulation of wealth, or the attainment of some other selfish object; it prevents him from acquiring a look of nobleness.

An individual may not be legally dishonorable, while straining every nerve for the accomplishment of some selfish purpose, but the simple neglect of his moral nature makes him less a man. He may not be a shrunken man physically. He may be well developed in that direction, but much vital force will be needed to spiritualize this gross corporeity.

Have you never noticed the difference there is in the appearance of a good man, and a man who has neglected his moral development? From the the former the soul shines out like a light from a window; the latter has no more spiritual radiancy than a six-penny showman.

There are thousands of men, some church members, of whom, if you take away their houses, lands, and fiscal skill, and such other qualities belonging to them that they will not want in heaven, there will not be enough left to represent them there in the way of righteousness, godliness, faith, love, patience, meekness, and such-like qualities.

They have used up all these qualities for fuel for their machine. It has been their business in life to sacrifice probity that they might gain power and influence, that they might make their hold on the world broader and stronger, and if they cannot carry forth these things which have been the objects, to the attainment of which they had devoted all their energies, what is left for them to go out of life with? You see whole ranks of the dwarfed, insect class of men patting each other on the shoulder, registering each other, and speaking of each other, as our strong men, our influential men, our great men; and yet, if you were to take away that of which the grave will divest them, you could not find them with a microscope. Do you not know just such men? Read James 5: 1–6.

There is a manifest carelessness in regard to the spark of divinity, and its preservation, within us. Few people are fully truthful. Few treat their neighbors with exact justice. Too many sacrifice peace of mind for momentary pleasure. Thousands are daily doing what they know to be wrong.

After all this violation comes self-accusation, remorse, and finally the whole system becomes affected by the committal of sins for which punishment is looked for beyond this life, when, it is hoped, an escape may be made through atonement, and the grace of God. Can we hope to outlive conspiracy, ignorance, war, and bloodshed, till we take our neighbor by the hand, rather than the throat?

Considering the prevalence of conceit, are you sure you are any better than the man on whom you hold your foot? Are you sure you are more intelligent? If so, is it not clearly your duty to take your foot off, and give him opportunities, and incentives for culture? There is no one passion so dwarfing to man's moral growth, as revenge. It cuts his soul down to a pointed, poisoned arrow with which he is ever ready to pierce his offending neighbor. It plants in his eye an expression as fierce as the serpent's tongue. Read Matt. 6: 23.

Considering church services, in our church, some congregations have three or four different places in which to worship God. They have six or eight ministers of the Gospel, yet they can only assemble in each place once in three or four weeks. At many places they do not have prayer-meeting once in a whole year. There is something wrong, either the lay members, or the deacons, or the ministers are not doing their duty. How can we cultivate the moral nature unless we assemble together, and help one another along? Read 1 Thess. 5: 11.

A BUDGET OF FRAGMENTS.

BY SADIE C. BRALLIER.

On the eighteenth day of June, Pennsylvania will vote on the Prohibition question. In much anxiety and through continual supplication we are awaiting the result. What shall it be! Surely every Christian heart will pray and work for Prohibition! Surely, no being in whom one particle of honor or manly feeling dwells, will vote in favor of the blighting evil which has broken so many hearts, blasted so many hopes, severed so many ties, and ruined so many souls! O, thou hateful, demoralizing spirit of liquor! Since there is no other stigma vile enough to represent thy true character, we will call thee devil! Away from earth, thou monstrous demon, and hie thee to thy native hell!

There is one great lesson that our American women should learn, and that is the lesson of independence. Too many of them regard honest toil as a thing of degradation, and think they are not true ladies, unless they can sit in the parlor and depend on "papa" for the sustenance of all their wants. Oh, my sisters, be not deceived! Idleness is the bane of humanity, while industry is the very essence of truth and honesty. It is the noble, courageous woman who determines to "paddle her own canoe." May the day be close at hand when woman shall take a broader and better view of toil, and feel that until she labors according to her strength, she has not fulfilled the demands of God who has commanded all to WORK!

Young man, young woman, are you a novel-reader? O break the habit! It is poison to the vitals, fatal to the mind, and damning to the soul. A mighty effort on your part can stay its progress, now, but if encouraged it will not relax its hold until it has wrought your physical, moral, and spiritual ruin. God only knows how many beings have been forever lost in the filthy mire of sentimental fiction!

* * *

Religion does not simply mean to go to church and hear the Gospel preached. Hundreds of individuals throw over their shoulders the fair garb of religion, wend their way to the house of God, and in all the sanctimony of pretended Christianity drink in the sacred truths. But hardly do they reach their homes again, until they call upon some Christian (?) friends to discuss the latest fashions, slander their neighbors, and engage in some low gossip of the week. Alas, for such professors! They are doing more to hinder the sinner from Heaven's courts than all the books of infidels have ever done, or can ever do. But God knows the heart and will detect the hypocrite in spite of all his saintly robes. O! "what shall the harvest be?"

* * *

It has been said that this is an age of rapid progression. Well, it appears that such is the case, and some people have advanced in knowledge to such an extent that they profess to know even more than the all-wise God himself. This fact was plainly demonstrated by a minister in one of the popular churches not long ago. He said: "The religion of Christ does not place so many restrictions upon the Christian after all. True, there are those who advocate a different doctrine, but such are only old fogies, and the sooner they are out of the world, the better for us all. The ordinance of feet-washing is not essential to salvation, and, besides, it does look so extremely vulgar in this fair age of modesty and refinement. Of course Christ did it,—but then, —that is,—we are not Christ, and can get to heaven without it." On the final day of judgment I had rather stand the chance of the lowest drunkard; nay, I had rather accept the fate of the vilest character that roams our streets, ever seeking and ever accomplishing the ruin of the virtuous and the pure,—far rather than of him, who, in the livery of heaven stood upon that sacred rostrum, and, in braze effrontery, transformed God's holy Word into an infamous lie!

REST FOR THE PEOPLE.

BY C. F. WALKER.

"There remaineth therefore a rest for the people of God."—Heb. 4: 9.

Brethren and sisters, is not this a great consolation, to know that if we hold out faithful, acquit ourselves nobly, while in this life, we can, when time shall be no more, enter into that rest prepared for all the faithful children of God? "Let us, therefore, fear, lest a promise being left us of entering into his rest any of us should seem to come short of it, for unto us was the Gospel preached as well as unto them, but the word preached did not profit them, not being mixed with faith in them that heard it."

There was a rest promised to the children of Israel by obedience to God's Word. The apostle tells us that, on account of unbelief, "they could not enter."

There is a glorious, heavenly rest, and many, through unbelief, have lost it. Let us give all diligence by faith and obedience to secure it! Oh how sweet will be that rest to the weary soul, when done toiling and laboring in the vineyard of the Lord.

While the children of God are traveling on that narrow path of self-denial, they meet with a great many difficulties. Sometimes a dark cloud overshadows our path that we almost think this little ship of ours will sink. But the Savior tells us in John 14, "Let not your hearts be troubled; ye believe in God, believe also in me. In my Father's house are many mansions."

In passing through sorrows and affliction, we must not lose sight of our Blessed Master, who has gone before us, and is now at the right hand of the Father, interceding for his children, and while we are, then, advancing towards our journey's end, we can, with an eye of faith, as from Pisgah's top, look a little beyond the stream of death to that glorious inheritance of the children of God, as Moses was permitted, before he died, to view that Holy Land. Brethren and sisters, let us still press forward toward the prize until we arrive at the gate of the celestial city, where we can join with those gone before!

CHRISTIANS: SHYING OR SHINING?

BY WM. M. LYON.

To which class do we belong? Do we shy or shine? Let us see. First, we will take a look at the shying Christian. He is chiefly noted as a discoverer of strange things and spectral sights. See him standing aloof from his brethren, as they pass before his scrutinizing gaze! Approach him now, and he is fully qualified to give you a complete analysis of the character of every one of his fallen brethren. "Bro. John is a very sociable man, but he has such a high look; Daniel seems kind-hearted enough, but he never has much to say, therefore I feel satisfied that he considers himself 'a little above other people.' George appears to be generous and good-natured, yet I'm inclined to believe that he 'has an ax to grind;' and there goes poor old Bro. Jacob—true, he wears plain clothes and a sober countenance, but he 'can't be trusted' in anything."

Thus he proceeds to point out the various defects of Christian character till the list becomes a long one, and he concludes that the "perfect man" can not be found. With great complacence and unbounded admiration he now looks upon himself—his own lovely form and figure—and he beholds the only model of perfection.

Do you ask what I call this man? He is a shying Christian.

Did you never drive a horse that had the shys? If so, you have the secret; the danger is not in what is seen, but it is in the "eye-sight" of the beast. In short, the animal has the shys. Now, it is bad enough when this trouble is found in the brute creation, but it is much worse when it appears in human form.

The beam of self-righteousness in the eye is the whole trouble. It is true that we all sometimes meet with scenes and objects of a frightful nature, but it does no good to shy; better be a shining Christian, and march right on, regardless of these spectres. And as you pass by, reflecting the rays of the "Sun of Righteousness" upon this unseemly spectacle, their hallowed influence will be felt, and you will no doubt decide that many of your fears and troubles were only imaginary.

"Let your light so shine." God loves these bright, shining Christians, and he has intended that they should go among the dark places of sin, in order that the sweet light of his grace may fall upon the pathway of sinners, and thus constrain them to glorify God.

If we are shining Christians, there is no beam of self-righteousness to obscure our spiritual vision, and to make us shy, but we look only through the sweet sunshine of God's love: and it is so very bright that we can not see so many defects and faults among our brethren.

The true light that comes from God leads us to look only with pity upon the weaknesses, errors and infirmities of our brethren and, instead of shying away from them, avoiding and exposing them, we reach tenderly and kindly after them to draw them away from the snares of the evil one.

The shying professor refuses to practice self-denial. With independent air he loves to glide along in "golden slippers," over smooth places, studiously avoiding the thorns and crosses of the narrow way. By good works we let our light shine,—become shining Christians; by shying we get too far away from the work, the light is turned to darkness, and O, "how great is that darkness!"

BRO. GEO. W. LOWRY changes his address from Kingwood to Scullton, Pa.

A REQUEST was made through the MESSENGER for the address of Frederick Wiedman. It is Lushton, York Co., Nebr.

THE Western District of Pennsylvania sends no business to the Annual Meeting this year. Bro. Valentine Blough represents the District on the Standing Committee.

ELD. STEPHEN JOHNSON will represent the Middle District of Iowa on Standing Committee. Bro. A. M. Dickey informs us that no queries are sent by that District this year.

BRO. JOS. HOLSOPPLE informs us that brethren J. M. Fyock and E. B. Widdensen, of the Manor congregation, Indiana Co., Pa., were recently elected to the deacon's office.

THE District Meeting of Eastern Pennsylvania sends a query to Annual Meeting asking that the Minutes be printed in German. Bro. S. R. Zug is on the Standing Committee.

NO paper next week. Editors and business manager are attending the Annual Conference at Harrisonburg, Va. The next issue of the MESSENGER will contain some account of the Meeting.

A CARD from Bro. Enoch Eby under date of May 22, informs us that he held a week's meeting in the Walnut Valley church, Kans., in connection with a love-feast and the dedication of a meeting-house. Five were baptized on that occasion and the members much built up.

BRO. M. J. ROLLER, of the Linnville church, Rockingham Co., Virginia, reports four additions by baptism as the result of a series of meetings held by the home ministers.

THOSE of our brethren and sisters who do not have the privilege of attending our Annual Meeting should not forget to pray that the Lord may bless the Conference so that everything that is done may receive divine approbation. The fervent, effectual prayer of a righteous man availeth much.

UNDER date of May 23rd Bro. Landon West writes: "The District Meeting of Southern Ohio was held May 21st. Two papers were sent to Annual Meeting,—one, asking that Canada Mission be turned over to the care of General Missionary Committee; the other, that members of Tract Examining Committee be chosen to serve five years, and one to be chosen each year."

OWING to the stringency of the times, the railroads have had a heavy falling off in their receipts, and it is further claimed that the Interstate Commerce bill has also operated seriously against the roads. These things have made the managers very conservative in granting favors, and to this may be traced the refusal of the Western Passenger Association to name a rate to our Annual Meeting.

ONE of the greatest comforts to the Christian is that his God will always hear him when he comes to him in the true spirit of prayer and with that unselfish devotion which always says, "Not my will, but thine, O God, be done." To draw near to God in this way is to have God draw near to us; and to seek grace for practical living, for comfort and hope, or relief in sorrow through Jesus Christ, in this spirit, is sure to bring the desired blessing.

DR. GEIKIE in his "Life and Words of Christ" thus paraphrases the words of the Master after he had washed his disciples' feet: "Do you know the meaning of what I have now done to you? You call me Teacher and Lord, and you are right, for I am both. Learn, then, that if I, your Master and Lord, wash your feet, you, also, ought to wash one another's feet, for I have done this as an example to you, that you should do to each other as I have done to you. You know, and I would have you remember it that a servant is not greater than his lord, nor an apostle than he who sent him forth, so that you may well imitate me, your superior, in my humility." Having such a clear conception of Christ's example and his command to his followers to do as he did, it is the more surprising that the learned doctor did not teach obedience to the humble example and precept of feet-washing.

HOW many there are in the world who, when they are talked to about giving their hearts to the Lord and joining in with the people of God, will answer, "Yes, I know it is my duty to become a Christian but then I cannot get the feeling in my heart that I once had and that I think I ought to have before I can become a Christian." The mistake in this position is the common one of placing feeling before duty. A man's feelings should never keep him from doing the duties that are before him. In every case his feelings must be brought to conform to his sense of duty. To do right, even if the flesh is weak, and without the strong help of enthusiastic feeling, because it is right, is to occupy a high spiritual plane and to reach moral heroism. Duties performed thus, become the leading elements in our lives, and right feeling is as sure to follow such a course as daylight follows sunrise.

THE Chicago, Santa Fe and California railway makes a special excursion rate for those desiring to attend our Annual Meeting from the following points on that line:

Norborne, Mo.,	$ 32 15
Roanoke, Ill.,	20 10
Joliet, Ill.,	18 00

These rates are for the round trip to Harrisonburg, Va., and return. Tickets on sale May 25 to June 10, good on any train going east between those dates. One stop-off allowed either going or coming west of the Ohio river and regular stop-off privileges at any points east of the Ohio river. Tickets good to return until July 5th. Other roads may also make rates from local points. The failure of the Western Passenger Association to make a rate to our Annual Meeting will, doubtless, keep many of our western brethren away from the Meeting, and we regret this very much indeed, but as many of our ministers have half fare permits on the western roads, it will not affect them as they can use them to Chicago or St. Louis and then purchase half fare tickets via the Baltimore and Ohio, or Chesapeake and Ohio railroads.

One thing we should strive to attain to in this world and that is to lead exemplary lives, consistent with our profession. We profess much as a church. We claim to have the Truth as it is in Jesus and we rest this claim upon our willingness to obey him in all things whatsoever he has commanded us. This claim imposes great obligations upon us and the world will judge of our right to make the claim by what we make our lives. And this includes every individual member of the church. Some appear to think that because they do not hold an important position in the church that they do not need to be so particular, and are, to some degree, released from the obligation of being examples of Christian character to others. But not so. Every professed child of God should be a living epistle "known and read of all men." The ministers and deacons are not only to be men of God and exemplars of Christian character, but every one in the church should show in their daily walk and conversation that they have been with Jesus and that they have learned of him such lessons of humility, of love, of patience, of good-will, and of peace that will convince the world of "righteousness and judgment to come."

SOMETIMES when members of the church are reproved for wrong doing, they set up the plea that they are not as bad or at least no worse than are some others in the church, and the comparison is never made with the most exemplary members but with those who are careless as to their Christian duties. This is a very unwise comparison. No one can be a standard of excellence for another. Christ alone is the true measure for us. Even Paul would not have men follow him farther than he followed Christ. But it seems natural for people to look upon their faults and sins with a greater degree of leniency than upon the sins of others, and thus find excuses for their own sins while condemning others who are guilty of the same thing. A man may take upon himself an obligation and fail to do as he promised, contenting himself with the specious excuse that he couldn't get around to it, and at the same time roundly berate some one else for making a misstatement. Both are wrong and both need to compare themselves with the Divine Standard. "The man who thinks his sins are not so bad or no worse than other people's sins, is already far gone in iniquity and is going farther in that direction. The man who is doing better than most men in his spheres is sure to be thinking that he is not doing as well."

No one can give to others what he does not himself possess. "We must have possessions before we can give them away," and the duty of providing things honest in the sight of all men is just as strong as is the duty of giving of what we thus provide, under God's blessing, to his cause. That having must precede giving is so apparent that it scarcely needs iteration. The improvident, careless, lazy man will never be able to give as will the careful, economical, industrious man, and hence as giving is one of the highest Christian duties, so industrious, economical living is placed on the same plane of duty, that we may have something to give.

PAUL'S advice to Timothy, "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth," should be carefully considered by every minister of the Gospel. The minister who fails to STUDY as Paul commands, fails in his work. No one can tell anything they do not know, nor make clear to others what is not clear to himself; and the only way to get knowledge and to have clear conceptions of the truth is the way pointed out by Paul—study!! STUDY!! This does not mean desultory or fragmentary reading, but it means a careful, painstaking looking into God's Word and the use of such helps as he has placed within our reach. It means to take up a subject, search the Scriptures carefully for all passages that bear directly or indirectly upon it, and then, by correct rules of interpretation, draw conclusions and make applications. In this work it will be wise to make haste slowly for it is better to preach one sermon approved of God than to preach a hundred in which the Word of Truth is not rightly divided and of which, in time to come, the minister will be ashamed. Having done your part faithfully, then trust in God for the rest. He requires no more of you than he has given you. He does require that with interest.

"A COMMON method of planning for a desired result in the sphere of benevolent endeavor, is based on averages. If a certain amount of money is to be raised in a church, or in a Sunday-school, or in a community, it is very easy to see that an average of so much to each member will secure all that is desired. If a certain work is to be done which involves a specified number of workers, it is obvious that an average of so many workers to a given field will be ample for the necessities of the case. This simple sum in arithmetic is very often accepted as the warrant for a hope of results that would gladden the hearts of multitudes; but unfortunately the issue is ordinarily very far short of the expectation. The reason of the failure is, that the average man never does his duty. It is always the extraordinary man that accomplishes anything in this world. Not the extraordinarily rich man, nor the extraordinarily able man, nor the extraordinarily good man, but the extraordinarily faithful man, is the man who finally counts for a good result in any undertaking in life. This truth is an important one, with its practical bearings on the duty of all those who would gain help from others, or give help to others. If you are planning to raise a certain sum of money, or to secure a certain number of helpers, the first thing for you to think of is: Who are the extraordinary persons to whom I can turn at this juncture? If, on the other hand, a call is made on you for aid in an emergency, your question ought not to be, What is my duty as an average helper just now? but, What is my duty as an extraordinary helper? A good average is a poor attainment. He who is not above the average is below his own fair level; for the average in this world's measurements is by no means a praiseworthy line."

"It is true that the more a man gives, the more he has; but it is not true that the more a man has, the more he gives. The giving of gifts to the poor is done more generally and more largely by the poor than by the rich. A rich man's gift is more likely to be noticed than a poor man's because of its immediate size: but the giving that tells for the poor is the every-day giving in small sums; and that is done by the poor to an extent little dreamed of, and rarely or never approached by the rich. Said Canon Clarke, in a sermon in Westminster Abbey: 'Only God and the poor know how much the poor give to the poor.' And that is a truth that should bring home its lesson to some who might more properly be called poor givers than givers to the poor."

REFORMERS.

THE history of the world in all ages has justly given its meed of praise to the men who have led the great reformatory movements along the line of the past. These were men to whom God gave quick perception to see the needs of humanity long before the masses of humanity could see for themselves,—men who thought more of the welfare and good of their fellow-men than of their own interests and who willingly sacrificed for the good of those they labored to benefit. And while they thus labored and sacrificed to bring about a needed reform, that would, in the end, elevate and better the condition of the human race, those for whom they labored and toiled with unselfish devotion, were always among the mob who followed the reformer with cries of derision to the stake or cried out in wild tumult, "Crucify him, crucify him."

So it has been in all ages of the world, and so it will doubtless continue to be until the end of the age in which we live. The men who live and think ahead of the masses will always suffer persecution of one kind or another.

But while these things are true and while we should be ever ready to recognize the true reformer, we must not forget that it is equally true that there have been all along the ages, and there are to-day, men who felt and feel that they were and are especially called to fill the role of reformers, and it is the latter class that we wish to notice.

Coming upon the stage of action at about the time they finish an Academic education, they evolve from their inner consciousness the idea that a general reformation is needed in church or State and that they are the men set apart to do the work. They have a "vaulting ambition which o'erleaps itself" and carries them where "e'en angels fear to tread." The "ego" is superabundantly developed in them and their talk and communications bristle with the letter I. They forget that all change is not reform and press their claims with all the boldness of the genuine reformer. Those who do not at once accept their methods and fall in with them are denominated "rut runners," "old fogies," "seekers after popularity," etc., etc. The opinions of men of wisdom and experience are cast aside and untried theories are accepted as if they had been thoroughly tested and proven. Reformers of this class, after making much noise and creating some trouble in the church and community in which they live, usually sink to their own level and end their lives as disappointed misanthropics, having failed to do the good they might have done had they been content to have labored in a field not beyond their capabilities, and upon lines marked out by the wisdom and experience of men far beyond them in mental and spiritual powers.

Many years ago we listened to an address delivered by an eminently successful editor and publisher, in which he illustrated the thought we have before us in, what seemed to us, a very forcible manner. He spoke to an assembly of editors. He said that, as a rule, the young man who enters the newspaper office as an editor, thinks his first duty is to reform the world. "Now," said the speaker, "if any of you have a notion of that kind I advise you to get it out of your head. Don't try to reform the world nor your own country, State, county, or township. If you want to reform, begin on yourselves. Get yourselves right, through and through, then try your hand on your immediate associates, those with whom you come into daily contact, and, when you have succeeded in getting them right, then begin work on your neighborhood and the town or village in which you live, and by the time you have succeeded in reforming yourself, your associates, your neighborhood, and your town, you will find silver hairs threading your temples, and if God has set you apart for a reformer you will realize that the greatest labor in life will be the expurgation of self from your character." These words contain nuggets of wisdom and we wish every man who feels that he is called to be a reformer, could read and study them.

Young men are apt to be, if their lives are pure, too hopeful of the future and their ability to mould events, and they may be easily tempted to go into excess in making changes, believing that they are laboring in the interest of reform, whereas the change they are trying to effect in the church may be at best of doubtful propriety. Old men, if they have gained wisdom by experience, become cautious and are safer in counsel than are the young. "Old men for counsel and young men for war," is an old and true proverb. It is true that some men never learn by experience, and age is not always synonymous with wisdom, and that some young heads are wiser than older heads, but the rule is as above stated. This, however, should not hinder the closest bond of union between the old and young in the church. The young men in a very few years are to take the place of the aged veterans.

That there is room for reforms in this age of the world, all will agree. The church has not yet attained to all that is in store for her and if she is to fill the measure of her possibilities, she will go from light to light, from truth to truth, progressing in the line of Divine Truth and in the highest sense of true Christian progress, but in this work of illumination let no one come to think that he is called to reform the church or that he is to shine as the one great electric light and that everybody must walk after him. It is a good thing for us to belong to the church, but it is exceedingly bad to get an idea that the church belongs to us. In her great work the church has need of every member, and it is also necessary that every member be active, but remember, if you are to do anything for the church, you must work in the church and in line with her general principles. To do otherwise is to fail. We have had so many examples of this kind within the last few years that this truth must be apparent to all.

Let us labor together as brethren, keeping constantly before us the bond of unity and the good of our beloved Zion, and God's blessing will surely follow.

Missionary and Tract Work Department.

"Upon the first day of the week, let every one of you lay by him in store as God hath prospered him, that there be no gatherings when I come." 1 Cor 16:2.

"Every man as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give. Not grudgingly or of necessity, for the Lord loveth a cheerful giver." 2 Cor. 9:7.

HOW MUCH SHALL WE GIVE?

"Every man according to his ability." "Every one as God hath prospered him" "Every man, according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give" "For if there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not." 2 Cor. 8:12.

"YE CANNOT SERVE GOD AND MAMMON."

BY S. N. M'CANN.

Number Two.—"Sin of Covetousness.

No other sin is more dangerous than the hydra-headed monster, "Covetousness." Classed as it is with the sins of fornication, adultery, idolatry, theft, murder, and drunkenness (1 Cor. 6:9, 10), we ought early and faithfully to fortify against it. No other sin steals upon the hearts of men with such a narcotic power, benumbing even the philanthropic nature, and shutting off the avenues of sympathy that naturally flow out into acts of benevolence, hermetically closing the fountain of love to God, to Christ, to His church, to the dying sinner, and to all save self.

No other sin is so little noticed by ministers, by churches, and by individuals, as this ever-growing curse that bids fair to blight our Nation, OUR BROTHERHOOD, AND OUR SOULS.

All become alarmed at a case of theft, murder, drunkenness, fornication or pride, if charged even against a lay-member of the church, but this, the devil's magic wand, is in the hands of ministers, deacons, and laity, transforming all that use it into beings that have eyes and see, but do not perceive,- ears and hear, but do not understand. Mark 4:12. Who ever found a real covetous man that could see himself in that light? It is always some one else, and not ME that is so covetous. "I am excusable for not giving this time; I know it is a good work, and I hope the brethren will take hold of it, but I can't help just now."

Another brother, who ought to give five dollars, gives five cents, and says, "Brethren, this money ought to be raised." Another voice, "I am in debt, brethren. I would like to see the church prosper but,"—shakes his head, draws a long breath! "But what," brother? The Devil has a stronger claim than God, because of covetousness. God's cause must suffer, the poor be uncared for, the Gospel message unheard, the church dwindle and die, because of the "love of money." 1 Tim. 6:10.

The same spirit that prompted the Pharisees to deride Christ, when He said to them, "Ye cannot serve God and Mammon," prompts individuals to deride the servants of Christ when they cry out against the same evil, covetousness, and point out a Gospel plan for its suppression. The covetous man becomes disgusted, when money is to be raised, his righteous indignation is stirred, and he begins to deride, for "no servant can serve two masters, for either he will hate the one and love the other, or else he will hold to the one and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon." Luke 16:13, 14.

Coveting this world's goods, has pierced many a soul with sorrow upon sorrow, and overshadowed many more with the darkness of the "prince of the power of the air," for "the love of money" has caused men to overreach their means, bringing financial disaster, often disgrace and shame, and always many sorrows.

Let us hear the word of Inspiration, and take the warning, "for," says the apostle, "the love of money is the root of all evil, which, while some coveted after, they have erred from the faith, and pierced themselves through with many sorrows. BUT THOU, O MAN OF GOD, FLEE THESE THINGS." 1 Tim. 6:10, 11.

Christ has commanded us not to covet (Romans 13:9), and if we wish to obey him, we must look at some of the enemy's plans to lead us into this sin, and then take hold of Christ's plan for the suppression of the evil.

The first step the Devil would have men make, is only a little of self love, just enough to make them "lovers of their own selves, covetous." 2 Tim. 3:2.

Then, how easy it is for the enemy to help us to make a second step, coupling our conversation with covetousness, and our lives with discontent. Heb. 13:5. Having made these two steps, the "love of money," the love of the world, the love of the things of the world, and the pride of life, are all attractive, and within easy reach, for we are "being filled with all unrighteousness, fornication, wickedness, covetousness, maliciousness, disobedience, and whatever is contrary to sound doctrine. Rom. 1:29.

Christ's plan is just the reverse of this. First, lose sight of self, and self love, for "If a man come to me, and hate not his father and mother, and wife and children, and brethren and sisters, yea and his own life also, he cannot be my disciple. Luke 14:26. HATE HIS OWN LIFE, but love "the Lord thy God with all thy soul, mind and strength, and thy neighbor as thyself,"—loving even your enemies,—is heaven's rule for keeping down the first step of covetousness. Let your conversation be without covetousness, and be content with such things as ye have, for he hath said, "I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee." Heb. 13:5. "Be content with such things as ye have," this strikes the death blow, and we can, "according to his divine power," "having escaped the corruption that is in the world," "add to our faith, virtue; and to virtue, knowledge; and to knowledge, temperance; and to temperance, patience; and to patience, godliness; and to godliness, brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness, charity, and every other good work." 2 Peter 1:5, 6.

Since the covetous man has no inheritance in God's kingdom, let us be on our guard, lest we fall by this sin. If we love God as we should, and our neighbor as ourselves, being content and trustful, we will be ready to do with our might whatever the interest of God's cause demands at our hands. "For this we know, that no whoremonger, nor unclean person, nor covetous man, who is an idolater, hath any inheritance in the kingdom of Christ, and of God." Eph. 5:5.

Notes from our Correspondents.

"As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country."

—Bro. J. C. Swigart, of Strode's Mills, Mifflin Co., Pa, writes: "At our council-meeting in the Spring Run congregation, May 11, three were received into the church by baptism."

—Bro. D. B. Provont, of the Auglaize Chapel, Ohio, writes: "We have preaching every three weeks. April 22 two united with the church by baptism. We re-organized our Sabbath-school, May 12, by electing Bro. J. A. Carnihan, Superintendent. He is assisted by Bro. P. H. Beery, and a full corps of officers.

—Bro. J. S. Mohler, of the North Morrill church, Kans., writes: "Our love-feast, May 11, passed off pleasantly. Attendance was large, both of members and others. The order was good. Ministerial help was ample and the services efficient and edifying. The church was refreshed, and a wandering sheep, that had strayed from the fold, was reclaimed. God's name be praised now and evermore!"

—From Somerset, Pa., Bro. W. H. Cover, writes: "At our church council in the Berlin district, held at the Beeghly church, May 4, it was decided to represent this church at the coming District Meeting by letter. Some money was raised for home missions, and Peter Beeghley was elected a delegate to Annual Meeting. The other business passed off harmoniously, showing the church to be alive to her duty."

—Some features of the popular evils of the day are commented upon by Bro. David Wantz. He says: "Too many persons aspire after applause and popularity, rather than to be meek and humble followers of the lowly Nazarene. Too much time is wasted in the reading of novels, and that, too, when the time is all too short for the study of the Blessed Book. Our public men are too much afraid of becoming unpopular,—they will not touch certain subjects of reform, for fear of losing the good-will of those who are opposed to any reform measures. Oh, that there might be more Daniels!"

—Sister S Jane Price, of Hoytsville, Wood Co., Ohio, writes: "Our church is still moving on in an encouraging way. We called Bro. Heistand back to finish his first work. He was here two weeks before and baptized six, and reclaimed one, and when he came back, he baptized five more. One more has promised to come. Others seemed to be almost persuaded, but they put it off for some other time. Let us pray that they may soon come! Bro. Jacob Heistand gave us sound doctrine, and it was the power of God unto salvation to them that believe in his Word. The brethren and sisters were much revived, and sinners warned to flee the wrath to come."

From Oretown, Tillamook County, Oregon.

I AM receiving from Mother Salome Bennett, some copies of your good and invaluable GOSPEL MESSENGER, which is a marvel of light and knowledge in the practice and teaching of the Scriptures and pure and undefiled religion of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. I also received a few copies from Bro. Peeler, of Linn County, Oregon, for which I return thanks. I am living within two miles of the Pacific Ocean, near the Nestachee River and Bay. There are people here who need salvation, and I hope that some of them may yet have their names written in the Lamb's Book of Life. They have never yet felt like the Macedonians, who prayed that Paul might come over and help them. "This also know that in the last days perilous times shall come. For men shall be lovers of themselves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affection, truce-breakers, false accusers, incontinent, fierce, despisers of those that are good, traitors, heady, high-minded, lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God. Having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof; from such turn way." 2 Tim. 3: 1-6.

Here we have an intimation of the wickedness that the Spirit made known to the apostle Paul, would arise in the last days. We see it now in all classes of the world. Many able writers seem to think the world is getting better, but I think the signs of the times indicate the approach of more perilous times yet ahead.

We have worked here trying to get the people to serve the Lord, but the cares of the world have entered in to choke the Word. There are vast fields in Oregon where the light of the Gospel has never penetrated. Now is the time for the spread of the pure truths of salvation to a lost and ruined world. The fields are white for the harvest, but the laborers are few. May the Lord send laborers into the harvest fields of our great humanity, here and everywhere!

Greeting to the Faithful.

I AM now in a strange land, among strange people, except a few of our Father's children. There are but few whom I ever met, yet, thanks be to God, I find them truly loving and kind toward one, who, though weak and unworthy, is willing to work in the Master's cause. I believe, the Ventura County church, Cal., is in love and union. This gives me assurance to believe that they will succeed and become a strong church. They are away from the evil influence of towns and cities, and ere their now quiet little valley gets a railroad, with the vanities of the world that come therewith, I trust they will be strongly fortified and able to stand their ground against the evils that come to any community.

I am going (if the Lord will) to a communion at Covina next Saturday. Bro. Wine's church had one last Saturday and Sunday.

I. N. CROSSWAIT.

In Memoriam.

BRO. JACOB B. SELL was born in Adams Co., Pa., March 21, 1800, departed this life May 7, 1889, aged eighty-nine years, one month and sixteen days. He leaves four sons, thirty-seven grandchildren and thirty great-grandchildren to mourn their loss. While we felt loath to part with him, we feel satisfied that our loss is his gain, as he suffered very much. Though he endured much, he bore it all with Christian patience, and often expressed a willingness to go and "be present with the Lord." 2 Cor. 5: 8.

He was joined in marriage to Elizabeth Burger in 1826, and in September 1828 they both united with the Brethren's church. They lived consistent members up to their death.

Mother preceded father to the spirit world seventeen years.

Father was buried in the Brethren's graveyard, near the church, and as brethren Studebaker and Lehmer were here from McPherson, Kans., Bro. G. E. Studebaker was called upon to preach the funeral. His text was Rev. 14: 13.

About six weeks before father's death we moved into a new neighborhood. In truth we can say that we found the best of neighbors, — always ready and willing to aid and minister to our wants. The evening before father's death our beloved brother, Nathan Hunt, from our former home, paid us a visit. We were glad to see him! Father has gone to his reward and we are left behind. We have the consoling thought that though he can no more come to us, we can, if faithful, go to him! May this be our constant prayer! W. B. SELL.

Notes from Upper Twin Church, Ohio.

WE had a pleasant council-meeting, May 2. Quite a number of our dear brethren and sisters, as well as members from our sister church, were present to enjoy it. Our beloved old elder and father, Jacob Garber, could not be with us, as he was summoned to attend the funeral of Elder George Garver, who came to his death very suddenly two days previous to our meeting.

The little band of faithful members in Dayton were not forgotten, and the general opinion is that there will be a move all along the line, to help them out of their financial troubles.

Our church will not burden either District or Annual Conference with papers. We have none for either meeting. Our dear co-laborer, Samuel Miller, will represent our interests at the Annual Meeting, and he and the writer at District Conference. Our Sunday-school was partly re-organized by electing Bro. Benj. Deardorff, Superintendent, and Bro. Uriah Eikenberry and the writer, Assistants. Last year was our first effort at this (Wheatville) house, and the average attendance was nearly seventy-five. The previous year, one was conducted at Sugar Hill, with about the same results. This year we want to have two in our district.

May 7, I attended a council-meeting at Lower Town church, which I also enjoyed very much. Here we had the benefit of the counsels of Jacob Garber, and John Calvin Bright, both of the Wolf Creek church. The work for the Master was agreeably done, so far as we could see. This congregation received considerable numerical strength at this meeting—seven by letter, and one by baptism. Among the number whom they are pleased to welcome, are Bro. Daniel M. Garver and wife. Their services in the ministry will be very acceptable. Bro. West has the oversight of some thirteen churches at remote points in the District, and the care of these, with other things, takes a good portion of his time from the little flock at home.

He will represent the church at the Annual Meeting, and Elder Jonas Horning and Daniel M. Garber at District Meeting. Their Sunday-school was re-organized, with brethren Christian Eikenberry as Superintendent, and John Kinsey, Assistant.

I think the members are all better pleased with the MESSENGER since it has been enlarged. I feel that it is a power for good, and that its mission field is constantly widening. An old man, who was next door neighbor to one of our sisters in Eaton, when visiting the family, occasionally, picked up a MESSENGER, and read a few lines. He became interested, asked to borrow some, read the articles carefully, with an open Bible beside him, and was thus led to the Savior. About a year from the date of his baptism he was called to the church triumphant.

We have now been more than two years with the brethren here, and have no cause to regret our move. The more we are with them, the stronger grow our affections. They scarcely forget us for a day, and we trust we may continue to remember each other at a throne of grace.

Another Sad Accident.

BRO. CHRISTIAN RHODABAUGH, sister Belle, his daughter, and Bro. David Burg were drowned in crossing Gripe's Ford, on Lightning Creek, Cherokee Co., Kans.

On the morning of the May 13 they started for the town of McCune to do some trading. When not more than one mile from home, they met their doom in this creek, which was considerably swollen. Not one of the company was left to tell the sad story. All, who are acquainted with the place, know that they made a bold venture, as the ford is considered dangerous at low water-mark, and they were not strangers to it.

No one else passed that way during the day, and the families thought they had gone on to town. When evening came, the families began to look for the return of their folks. The wives passed a restless night, watching, but no alarm was made until next morning. Brethren Rench and Houseworth went to the crossing, and saw evidences that a team had gone in, and that none had come out on the other side. They went down the stream about 125 yards, and found the drowned team, which told the sad fate of the missing ones. The banks of the stream were soon lined with anxious people. At about one o'clock the bodies were found, and at about seven, the same evening, they were buried in the "Star" cemetery.

It was a most pitiful sight: the men, when found, were embraced in each other's arms. Belle was a few rods farther down. Four evenings before they met with us at their last social meeting on earth, of which Bro. Rhodabaugh was leader. The subject was "Hope." They all spoke and read freely of the hope within them. Little Belle sang, with her mother, of the "lily-white robe in heaven for me," but scarcely thought she would need it so soon.

This occurrence cast quite a gloom over the entire community, as the departed ones were highly esteemed in the church, and much-respected citizens. It was sad to see their sun go down so soon.

Bro. Rhodabaugh was forty-seven, and Bro. Burg forty-three years of age. Sister Belle passed over in the morning of life, being only fourteen years old. The families should be remembered at the throne of grace by the brethren and sisters,—especially the Burg family, which consists of a wife and one child, and an aged widowed mother. They should not only be remembered "in word and tongue," but "in deed and truth." If you would know what is meant by deed, please refer to James 2: 15, 16.

Bro. Rhodabaugh left a wife and three children to mourn their loss. The memorial services were performed the following Sunday by brethren Samuel Edgecomb and Jacob Appleman, assisted by J. H. Nehr. The subject was "Righteousness."

My Visit to Mt. Morris, Ill.

MOUNT MORRIS is certainly a quiet little place. I was told while there, they had neither saloon nor billiard hall, and that speaks well for the town. There are certainly not so many temptations for the young men where they do not have those gambling and drinking dens. I think the religious influence of Mt. Morris College is very good. I attended Sunday-school in the afternoon, and church in the evening, and enjoyed both very much. They have a very interesting Sunday-school. I also attended the morning chapel service twice. This is conducted by Bro. Royer. All these services are a great help to the school, as we know that so many parents neglect that duty in their families.

At Bro. D. L. Miller's I was shown some specimens and pictures that they brought home with them from the Bible Lands, and Bro. Miller gave some explanations in regard to them, which were very interesting to us.

I enjoyed my visit to Mt. Morris very much, and made some very pleasant acquaintances. Just lately I heard that some more of the students have united with the church. My prayer is that the school will continue to grow in interest, and be a power in winning souls to Christ.

I think it would be well if more of the parents would visit our schools. I think they would be better satisfied, and would encourage others to send their children. ELIZABETH WITWER.

The Coming Annual Meeting.

THE coming Annual Meeting is drawing nigh, and the brethren here have been laboring earnestly to have everything in readiness for the occasion, and with fond hope of having a large attendance of brethren and sisters, who have their hearts in the work. This will insure a good and enjoyable meeting that will long be remembered.

Aside from the meeting, what family is there amongst us, who has not some friends and relatives in the West, or some other far away home, and is now anxiously awaiting the arrival of such, in order that there may be a reunion with those who were once near and dear in the family, or social circle? Brethren, these thoughts stir our hearts. Come to us; we do not wish to be disappointed.

Lastly, there may be such who are seeking homes for their short stay in this world. To such we would say, Come, friends, and see what can be done for you! From time immemorial the tide of emigration has been westward. According to the nature of things this could not be otherwise, as the eastern lands were occupied, and the "Great West" alone could offer inducements to those who were seeking homes. But the injunction "Go West, young man, go West," carries no significance with it now, whatever, as there have been opened up different channels.

The emancipation of slave labor in Virginia, as well as in other Southern States, left thousands of acres of good, arable lands without any one to cultivate them. These lands are now opened to the settler, and numbers are availing themselves of the opportunity of getting good homes. We now see iron furnaces and rolling mills looming up, the mining industry is developing; towns and cities and new enterprises are springing up in a marvelously short time.

By comparing the advantages and disadvantages of Virginia with other States, we feel to say that the opportunities that Virginia can now offer to the agriculturist, the manufacturer, and the miner, are equaled by few, and excelled by none.

Whilst there are lands for sale in this vicinity, which may seem moderately high, yet there are in various parts of the State thousands of acres of good, arable land, that in "ante bellum" days could not be bought at any price, but are now on the market, and can be bought at mere nominal figures.

Brethren, come, and see for yourselves; you will be heartily welcome! G. W. SNELL.

AGAIN we have been permitted to enjoy one of those feasts the soul longs for, and it was rich indeed. Our love-feast occurred May 18, and on Sunday morning we had a children's meeting before preaching. Bro. Jacob Trostle and Bro. M. M. Eshelman did most of the preaching May the Lord bless them abundantly for their arduous labors among us, for we believe their words shall be treasured up for many days to come.

We feel at home here among the brethren and sisters, for they seem to be wide-awake to duty. All seem to be ready to lend a helping hand. The country here seems to be in a very flourishing condition, and everything looks very promising at this time. LIZZIE HILARY.

Notes by the Way.

ON the morning of May 15 Bro. Hoover and the writer started for Connersville, Fayette Co., Ind., near where the District Meeting was to be held. We arrived in Connersville in the evening. We made inquiry for the Brethren, but, seemingly, very little was known about them. Brethren living only three miles from the city, a Brethren's church and preaching by the Brethren three miles from the city, and yet our people not known? Brethren, are we doing our duty? Jesus says, "Preach my Gospel to every creature." Will we not have to go to the cities to do that?

The meeting began April 17. It was opened by the usual devotional exercises. Twenty-two churches were represented by delegates; four not represented. Brethren Jacob Garber and Landon West, of Ohio, were present. Nine queries were presented to the meeting. All business passed off pleasantly. Bro. L. W. Teeter was chosen to represent us on the Standing Committee. Brethren Martin Bowers and Samuel Younce were chosen as missionaries. May the Lord bless them, and may they receive souls for their hire.

April 20 I was called to preach the funeral of Mrs. Nanna Clara Collins, daughter of brother and sister Mary A. Whitehead, who died April 18, 1889, aged twenty-seven years, two months and five days. She was the wife of Wm. W. Collins.

May 11 wife and I went to the Buck Creek church to attend their love-feast. We had a much desired rain in the evening, which checked the interest of the meeting in some respects. To say the least, we had a pleasant meeting. Bro. Isaac Branson officiated. Two were received by baptism at this meeting.

According to previous arrangements our home communion in the Massisinewa church was held May 17. The meeting began at 10 A. M. We had plenty of ministerial help and the brethren did well. We had a meeting long to be remembered. Room could not be furnished for all to commune, but about two hundred and fifty communed. Bro. Wilson Hutchinson officiated. One was received by baptism at this meeting, making four that have been received by baptism in the Massisinewa church since April 21. May they prove faithful until the Lord shall say, "It is enough; come up higher!"

May the cause prosper and many be gathered into the fold of our dear Redeemer!

GEO. L. STUDEBAKER.

From Holt County, Missouri.

As announced, our love-feast was held May 18 in the Bethel congregation. Notwithstanding the heavy rains which had fallen during the two days previous, and the threatening aspect of the weather in the forenoon, our large church-house was well filled, and the very best of order prevailed. Many of the brethren remarked that it was the best meeting they had enjoyed for a long time. Sixty-eight communed. This was, perhaps, the first feast ever held among us, without any of our brethren and sisters being with us from neighboring congregations. The weather, doubtless, interfered. On Sunday, Eld. Honberger preached to a full house from the words, "I partly believe it." The text was well handled, and, we think, good impressions were made. After a few well directed closing remarks by Bro. Joel Glick, two young men came forward and manifested a willingness to follow Christ. There are two other applicants for baptism; so the good work continues. Others are near the kingdom. O, that the loathsomeness of sin, with its terrible consequences, may, ere too late, cause many to flee to a loving Savior! P. E. WHITMER.

From the Peabody Church, Kans.

MAY 13 we met in quarterly council. Everything passed off in the spirit of love. The brethren and sisters concluded to hold their love-feast May 18. It is now in the past, but by no means forgotten, as we all felt greatly refreshed by participating of the emblems of the broken body and shed blood of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, and by the Gospel which was so manfully expounded. Ministers present from other churches were, Bro. D. Anders from Newton, and Bro. Neher from Sedgwick County, Kans. Come again, brethren. J. D. SHOWALTER.

From the South Waterloo Church, Iowa.

OUR council-meeting, preparatory to the communion-meeting, to be held May 11, met May 7th. All things passed off in love and union. It was decided at this meeting that two brethren should be called to the deacon's office during our love-feast, May 11. On Saturday following, at 10 o'clock, we met for public worship. Soon after dinner the election for the aforesaid officers took place. The lot fell upon brethren Ephraim Hoff, and Nelson Metz.

We had very pleasant weather for the meetings, and a great many brethren and sisters were with us from a distance.

The congregations were very large Saturday evening and Sunday morning. On Sunday afternoon a meeting was held for the purpose of calling two of our ministering brethren to the "elder's office." The lot fell upon brethren Wm. Ikenberry, and Samuel M. Miller. They were ordained and installed to office during the same meeting. Some of the brethren remained and preached for us Sunday evening. Our Sunday-school is doing a good work, and the attendance is excellent. JACOB H. FIKE.

From Keuka, Fla.

WE held our communion service May 11. To the regret of all, our elder, J. H. Moore, could not be with us. We felt, however, that the Master was with us in spirit, and the meeting passed off pleasantly. The brethren and sisters felt that it was a feast to their souls. We trust that the spiritual strength gained will help us on our pilgrimage in our isolated condition. We enjoyed the best of order during the service. Some said they had never seen the ordinances practiced as we observe them, but expressed themselves as being highly pleased with the meeting, saying that feet-washing had always seemed to them as a plain ordinance, and should be so observed. Who is going to be responsible? "Why call ye me Lord, Lord, and do not the things that I say?"

We have made it a rule in the Keuka church to take up a collection for the General Mission Fund at our communion meetings. The result of our effort this season was $4.50. This amount may look small to some of our strong churches in the North, but they should remember that our number is small. There were only twenty-two members present at our little meeting.

Our aged brother and sister Garman returned to their home in Highland County, Ohio, Wednesday, May 15. They spent the winter with their son, Bro. Ira Garman, of this place. We hope that they, with many others of like precious faith, will return when the chilly winds of winter begin to blow. E. J. NEHER.

Railroad Arrangements.

A SPECIAL train will leave Covington, Ohio, on Sunday, June 9, for Harrisonburg, Va., over the Dayton, Ft. Wayne and Chicago R. R., and connect with a special train leaving Dayton at 4:10 P. M., via Dayton, Ft. Wayne & Chicago, Scioto Valley, Chesapeake & Ohio. No change of cars between Dayton and Staunton, Va., arriving at Staunton at 3:45 P. M., Monday, June 10, and at Harrisonburg 6:07 P. M. on same date.

This train is arranged so as to give Brethren the advantage of the mountain scenery by daylight. Returning the train will leave Harrisonburg at 8:42 A. M. and arrive at Dayton next day at 9:35 A. M.

Mr. A. Velereborne, of Dayton, will accompany the train and remain on the Annual Meeting ground to give any information desired.

Mr. Velereborne has for years aided the Brethren in securing railroad favors, and has the Brethren's entire confidence.

I. J. ROSENBERGER.

From the Bethel Church, Nebraska.

OUR love-feast was an enjoyable occasion, and one long to be remembered. All seemed to be encouraged on their way Zionward, and we feel to thank the dear ministering brethren from other congregations who so kindly assisted us during our love-feast, by dealing out the words of Eternal Truth to the edifying of both saint and sinner. One dear sister was received into the church by baptism the day of the feast, and two young sisters were baptized a week before the feast. May they prove faithful to the cause they have espoused, and may they be as shining lights to those around them that others may follow their example!

Our Sunday-school was re-organized about April 1, with Bro. David Forney as Superintendent, assisted by Bro. Levi Beanblossom. The school is well attended by both old and young, and I trust a good work may be accomplished through the Sunday-school at this place. Let us all be more determined to work for Jesus and his cause. There is a work for us all to do. Let us work while it is called to-day!

Echoes from the Highway.

THE love-feast at Covina, May 11, was an enjoyable season. About a hundred members communed. On the same day, before the feast in the evening, two young soldiers enlisted in the ranks of the Lord's people, making four that were baptized by Bro. Witmore quite recently. On Sunday evening following the feast, Bro. Witmore preached his farewell address. During his labors among us in California his congregations became very much attached to him, especially was this the case with the members generally, so that, when the parting time drew nigh, many tears were shed. Many are the prayers that follow him on his homeward way, asking the Giver of all good to bless him and his, and that he may see many years yet, to devote to the cause of the Master.

There are now about one hundred and fifty members in Southern California. We have one meeting-house, and the prospect of one or two more in the near future.

* * *

The grain and hay crop of California this year will be the largest for many years. Already (May 17th) the barley harvest has commenced. The fruit crop promises to be abundant, excepting in certain localities where grape growing was the principal crop, and where the vineyards, for some mysterious reason, are dying off with a kind of blight. Thousands of acres are thus destroyed. Some say it is brought about through the prayers of the Prohibitionists. Let that be as it may, the Lord's ways are not man's ways. He can kill or he can make alive.

What Might Be Raised by Saving the Cost of one Meal per Week.

SINCE the missionary spirit has begun to take hold of our Brethren, as of late, we sometimes hear complaints that there are so many calls for money, and we also see an unwillingness on the part of some to aid the church in her calls for help for any purpose, let it be to build churches, to aid the poor, or to meet any expenses whatever. Because of this unwillingness to give, the Treasury is sometimes empty, and the cause lags. In view of this, I have been led to wonder what plan we could take to cure and to prevent the complaining, and at the same time secure all the funds that are needed. I can see no better way at present than that of fasting. Only leave out one meal in a week, and give the value of it to the aid of the church.

Here in Ohio, our people, and all others who can get it, make it a rule to eat three full meals each day the year round. The price in general, if bought, is twenty-five cents for each meal, and often it is more; but allowing for each meal the value of ten cents,—a very low estimate for such meals as our brethren and sisters want, especially on Sunday—and allowing, too, that each member will leave off one meal in a week and give the value of that meal to aid the church, the amount that will be made, without starving, or injury to any one in the least, is astonishing. It is enormous!

Here in the Southern District of Ohio we have 2,351 families represented, with an individual membership of at least 4,500. For all the brethren and sisters in the Southern District of Ohio to deny themselves the enjoyment of eating one meal in a week—a small burden indeed, and for the benefit of every one—and then bestow the value of that meal (only ten cents) to the cause of the Lord, we would have in the Lord's Fund, on every Sunday evening, the neat sum of FOUR HUNDRED AND FIFTY DOLLARS! And to continue this little sacrifice each week for the year, and that, too, without hurt or loss to anybody, will put into the Lord's Treasury in Southern Ohio the round sum of TWENTY THREE THOUSAND FOUR HUNDRED DOLLARS: and nobody starved, and nobody hurt. And, besides, this is no more begging for church funds, and no more complaining.

Dear brethren and sisters, can we not do this much for the Lord's cause, when he gives us all things, and even the food that we waste, and eat to our own injury? I feel that we can. May the Lord help us so to do! LANDON WEST.

From Nappanee, Ind.

TWO more were received by baptism in the Turkey Creek congregation May 20. This makes twenty-three received by baptism, and eleven by letter since Jan. 1, 1889.

Our communion is now in the past, but not forgotten. It was one of those soul-refreshing feasts where the spiritual man is richly fed, and which should make us strong in Jesus Christ. Ministers present from abroad, W. R. Deeter, Daniel Shively, G. B. Shively, David Shively and others.

In the morning after the communion these brethren made some very appropriate remarks about working for Jesus, pointing out to us the necessity of working faithfully till Jesus comes. May God bless these brethren for their counsel!

May 27. DANIEL WYSONG.

From the West Dayton District, Ohio.

THE members of the West Dayton church met in council May 17. Elders George Holler and John Smith were present. We were in need of more church officers, and a call was made for two deacons. The choice fell on brethren H. C. Butterbaugh and Samuel Bock. May God give them strength to perform their duties as they may come upon them, is the prayer of the Brethren! We have begun the work on our church, and expect to have it completed by Oct. 1, 1889.

ELMER WOMBOLD.

From Fairview Church, Sherman Co., Kans.

Our quarterly council met April 27. The members here, with but few exceptions, are live workers in the Master's cause. We very much appreciate our privilege in meeting together, as we are much scattered. We decided to hold a love-feast Aug. 10 and 11, at Bro. B. M. Peterson's. Brethren coming by way of the Rock Island Railroad, will please stop at Kansada, Kans., where they will be met, by notifying W. M. Welch, Kansada, Kans. Brethren, coming by rail, should come on the day before the meeting.

May 24. EMMA B. WELCH.

From Carleton, Nebr.

Our feast was held May 18, as previously announced. Brethren Kelso and Shick, from Beatrice, and Jos. Brubaker, of York County, came and ministered to us the Bread of Life. The Lord reward them for their labors of love! The members of the Bethel church were much built up and encouraged to continue the race with more vigor than ever. One dear sister of mature age was baptized, and Sunday, May 12, two of our Sunday-school scholars,— sisters,—were baptized. We pray God's blessing on these converts.
